HARRY CUMING WON THE PRESS MEDAL.

Successful Field Day Resulted in His Victory.

WAS HALF A POINT AHEAD.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS FURNISHED AN EXCITING CONTEST.

Cuming Was Closely Pressed in the Contest for The Daily Press Medal and the All-Round Championship by His Schoolmates—Medal Will be Presented to Him on Monday Morning

By the decidedly narrow margin of just half a point, Henry F. Cuming won The Daily Press medal and the all-round championship of the Plainfield High School yesterday afternoon at the annual closed field games of the Plainfield High School held at the Crescent Oval. Sydney R. Craig made the strongest kind of a fight and finished second to Cuming in the chase after the medal. William A. Fisher, Hervey K. Doane, Claude Edwards, William Morgan and J. Stanley Mosher all showed up well and made things lively for the victor.

The weather was all that could be possibly wished for the games, while the track was in fair condition. The audience numbered 300 and was wildly enthusiastic. The fair sex was largely represented.

The opening event was the 100-yard dash. Cuming started quickly from the one-yard mark and soon was in the lead of the bunch of six runners. Fisher pulled up rapidly toward the last, but Cuming won by over a yard. Morgan was rapidly being overhauled by Edwards, who was slow in starting, when he crossed the tape third.

Cuming scored five more points in the third wheel when he rode from scratch. He passed them all and won easily. Mosher second, Conant third and Edwards fourth. First scored five points, second three points and third one point.

Craig, although scratch, had an easy thing in putting the shot, while his principal rival, Edwards, did not show his usual form. Fisher carried off the laurels in the 440-yard run by a pretty sprint on the stretch. Edwards was pocketed but made a dive alongside of Doane, to be beaten for second by an inch.

The high jump went to Craig without trouble. Then his rival, Cuming, won the mile bicycle in great shape. He started from scratch and made a great pace until the last lap, when he was well up with the bunch. On the finish he ran away from the field.

The three-legged race made the crowd laugh. Edwards and Craig came down the stretch with giant strides and took the lead. Fisher and Cuming came to grief through the breaking of a strap and lost their chance, finishing second. Morgan and Hazeltine tried to gallop but it didn't work. Doane won the broad jump in a field of six.

The third mile walk was delightfully funny. Doane was the only man who knew anything about it but Fisher had a little spurt up his sleeve at the finish and passed him a foot from the tape. Cuming and Craig both grew so excited that they forgot and ran. They were disqualified. Edwards kept his head and finished third. J. V. Green acted as judge of walking.

Thomas A. Cuming was the referee. Ira W. Travell, Albert B. Meredith, and George Weeks Sandford were the track judges. Carroll L. Runyon and Walter L. Long were the field judges. H. C. VanEmburgh acted as starter. The timers were Fred P. Taylor, Thomas Quinn and J. V. Green. The clerk of the course was Charles Burdette Morse.

The summaries were as follows:

One-hundred-yard dash. Won by Harry Cuming, 1 yard; William A. Fisher, scratch, second; William Morgan, 3 yards, third. Time, 11 3-5 seconds.

One-third-mile bicycle race. Won by Harry Cuming, scratch; J. Stanley Mosher, 25 yards, second; A. Conant, 10 yards, third. Time, 45 seconds.

Putting the shot. Won by Sydney R. Craig, scratch; William Morgan, 12 inches, second; Claude Edwards, scratch, third. Actual distance, 32 feet, 3 inches.

Four-hundred-and-forty-yards run. Won by William A. Fisher, 5 yards; H. K. Doane, scratch, second; Claude Edwards, 10 yards, third. Time, 1 minute, 4 2-5 seconds.

Running high jump. Won by Sydney R. Craig, scratch; William Morgan, 2 inches, second; Claude Edwards, 2 inches, and Harry Cuming, 2 inches, tied for third. Actual jump, 4 feet, 7⅞ inches.

SNEAK THIEF'S QUICK JOB

GOT AWAY WITH $50 IN CITY HOTEL THIS MORNING.

A sneak thief in the City Hotel this this morning got away with $50 in cash. The robbery was committed in less than a minute and a half while the clerk, Albert Rogers, was in the barroom, having left the cash box just outside the door in the hall.

There are two cash registers in the City Hotel barroom, and the clerk takes the contents of each upstairs with him at night. When the bartenders come on duty in the morning Rogers hands over to them the cash necessary to make change with.

This morning, just before 7 o'clock Rogers came down stairs with a cigar box containing about $50, the contents of one cash register. Placing the box on the hat rack in the hall the clerk stepped into the barroom after the key and his coat. He was gone about a minute-and-a half, but during that short absence some one came in the hall and disappeared with the box, for when Rogers came back, it was gone.

There is no clue to thief. At that early hour the office was deserted. Although the front door was unlocked, it was not open, and it is strange how anyone could have come inside, stolen the money and got away without being detected. A year ago some one broke into the hotel barroom one night and smashed a cash register, but only got a few cents for his trouble.

PRIZED WALKING STICKS

MADE FROM A PLANK TAKEN FROM A SPANISH FORT.

Twelve of Them Made by Patrick Casey, of This City, for a Captain Who Brought the Material From a Battlefield.

Patrick Casey, of Park avenue, has just completed a piece of work for Captain Henry I. Reilly, of Evanston, Ill., which is destined to make him known pretty well through that State. The work is ten canes which he has manufactured for the captain from a plank taken from the fort at El Caney, Cuba. The canes are fitted out with heads of oxydized silver, silver and gold, and will be presented by the captain to some of his officers who took part in the battle with him.

Mr. Casey secured the job through Wm. Ford, who is in Battery F, Fifth U. S. Artillery, with Captain Reilly. When the fort at El Caney was taken Captain Reilly tore away a 2x6 plank of solid mahogany and carried it away with him, and when he came north brought it along.

This fort is said to have been constructed in 1625, and yet the planks of which it was built were in a good state of preservation. Sixteen of these two-inch planks formed the walls, which were, therefore, thirty-two inches in thickness. Mr. Casey expressed six of the canes to Captain Reilly yesterday. He still has a small square of the wood left, out of which he intends having a match-box or something made which Mr. Casey will keep himself.

SAYS HE LOANED MONEY.

George Miller's Claim on Mrs. Marshall Finally Brought to Trial.

After many attempts the case of George Miller against Mrs. Phebe Marshall was finally tried yesterday afternoon, although Mrs. Marshall is so feeble that Justice Mosher, in whose court the action was brought, went to her house and held court there.

Mr. Miller is suing for $185.83 which he claims he loaned Mrs. Marshall at different times. The case has been set down for trial many times, but was always adjourned. Yesterday afternoon the testimony was taken, but the lawyers left the summing up until this morning. Councilman Hetfield represents Miller and Counselor W. S. Angleman Mrs. Marshall.

Now in Postal Service.

William Shannon, of this city, for several years an employe of Woolston & Buckle, the North avenue painters, has received notification from the government postal authorities that he has successfully passed his examination for the position of postal railway clerk, and that he must be ready to go to work on short notice. Mr. Shannon stood next to the highest in average of those who took the examination.

Broke His Arm.

Walter Mathews, a colored man living on West Sixth street, fell from the grape arbor in his yard yesterday afternoon and broke his right arm in two places. Mathews was standing on a step ladder picking grapes when the ladder broke and he fell. The arm was set by a physician.

POSTAL FACILITIES GREATLY IMPROVED.

Postmaster Bird Has a Quicker Despatch of Mail.

NO CAUSE FOR CONPLAINT.

LETTERS MAILED AT NOON DELIVERED IN NEW YORK THE SAME DAY.

A Direct Pouch for Philadelphia and Washington Now Closes at the Local Office at 7:30 p. m.—A Direct Mail Also to Easton at Noon—Money Order Service is Greatly Improved Locally.

Postmaster E. H. Bird has made an early start along the line of improvements in the local office. Some citizens complained of delay in the service from the fact that a letter dropped in the office during the forenoon was not delivered in New York until next morning.

Mr. Bird has removed cause for complaint on this score by introducing another direct mail to New York City, closing at 12:30 noon, and arriving in New York in time for delivery in any part of the city the same afternoon.

This mail also connects with important Long Island, New England and Hudson river mail trains. Another notable improvement has been made in the night mail, closing at 7:30 p. m. In the past this was but one mail, direct to New York, and there distributed to the early morning trains. Under the new order a direct pouch for Philadelphia, Washington and the south will be made up for connection at Elizabeth with the "Washington Fast Mail."

The third addition to the service is a direct mail to Easton, Pa., closing at 12:30 noon, connecting through that office with mails for Wilkesbarre, Allentown, Harrisburgh and Reading and other cities in that section of Pennsylvania.

These improvements, with those that will be made from time to time as the needs of the city demand, will put the Plainfield office on a level, as regards efficiency of service, with cities of nearly double our population, and it will require only the hearty support of the citizens to make Plainfield a first-class office, and secure all the advantages of such classification.

Under a recent order of the post office department, postmasters are allowed to issue money orders payable at the same office. This will be a great convenience to persons having no bank account, as it permit the transacting of business with the same security and at a trifling expense.

TO ENTERTAIN VETERANS.

Survivors of Thirtieth New Jersey Volunteers to Gather at Newark.

Next week Wednesday at Newark, Lincoln Post, of that city, will entertain the surviving members of the 30th N. J. Vols. There are nineteen members of the regiment in this city as follows: Captain J. Frank Hubbard, Lieutenant E. C. Mulford, Sergeant Charles H. Randolph, Frank S. Runyon, Nelson Runyon, Theodore J. Runyon, Randolph Thorn, Jacob Jennings, J. Lance Mundy, Peter V. Weaver, David R. Weaver, T. J. Carey, Theodore Rutan, John Sullivan, Garrett Eick, Samuel Moore, John B. Stryker, John Giddis and Jacob Manning. Those who intend going to Newark will take the train leaving this city at 8:37 next Wednesday morning.

MIGHT HAVE BEEN KILLED.

H. M. Demarest Almost Thrown Under the Car Wheels.

Henry M. Demarest, of Park avenue, had a narrow escape from death on the rails this morning at the North Avenue station. He reached the depot platform just after the 8:37 train had started, and ran for it, just catching one of the cars. Mr. Demarest couldn't make a high enough jump to land him on the car steps so he got up on his knees and hung there, powerless to draw himself up until he had taken a few moments rest.

People who saw him held the breath for all thought he would lose his hold any moment and fall under the wheels.

Rally and Sociable.

The First M. E. church will have an autumnal rally tomorrow, including a sermon to old people at 10:30 a. m. and a Sunday-school roll-call at 2:30 p. m. Monday evening the entire congregation are invited to a social reunion in the chapel. Refreshments will be served and the pastor will speak of his recent trip to Europe.

Smashed His Finger.

James Muldowney, an employe of the Pond Tool Works, had a finger smashed yesterday afternoon while at work in the shop. He was obliged to go to the hospital and have the finger dressed. The accident will detain him from work for a few days.

BACK FROM HONEYMOON.

REV. MR. GARDNER AND BRIDE GIVEN A PLEASANT WELCOME.

Grace M. E. Church Made it Agreeable for Mrs. Gardner, Who Has at Once Become Popular Among the Parishoners.

The return of Rev. Mr. Gardner, pastor of Grace M. E. church, and his wife, from a pleasant honeymoon, was marked last evening by a reception given at the church by the members and friends. The pastor and his wife were given a royal welcome home. The women of the church planned the reception which was of an informal nature.

Though a stranger to everyone, Mrs. Gardner proved herself equal to the occasion, and won the hearts of all present by her winning ways and genuine sociability.

Rev. Dr. Carroll took charge of the programme of the evening for the women and announced each number. There were instrumental selections by Fred VanEps, banjo; Bert Harold, piano; Bert Littell and Ray Carroll, mandolins. Another pleasant feature was the vocal selections by Miss Alice Carroll and Miss Grace Carroll, both of whom were obliged to respond to encores. A pleasing part of the programme was the recitation by Miss Elizabeth Hoagland. Dyckman Winckler rendered several violin selections. Another number that came in for generous applause was the piano solo by Miss Nellie Valiant.

Following the programme the balance of the evening was devoted to social chat and the serving of refreshments. Those who had not previously done so, were given an opportunity to meet the bride and groom, and among those who extended their congratulations were Rev. and Mrs. William C. O'Donnell.

Mrs. John Valiant was chairman of the reception committe, while the entertainment committee was in charge of Mrs. Most. Mrs. John H. Carney had charge of the ice cream and assisting her were Mrs. Sebring, Miss Della Voehl, Mrs. A. A. Taft, Miss Smalley and J. P. D. Kirch. Those who looked after the cake were Mrs. Kirch, Mrs. Vermeule, Mrs. VanNest, Mrs. Morton and Mrs. Higgins.

A TEMPORARY TRESTLE.

FREEHOLDERS WILL ALLOW TROLLEY TO CROSS PETER'S BROOK.

The Trestle to be Used Till the New Bridge is Finished—Cars to be Run in Ten Days—One New Bridge Not Accepted.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Oct. 1.—The regular meeting of the Somerset county Board of Freeholders was held at this place yesterday, at which time permission was given to the Brunswick Traction Company to erect a trestle over Union avenue, Bound Brook, so that they can run trolley cars over the new and permanent bridge is completed.

This permission was granted with the explicit understanding that the trestle is not to be erected until all contracts for the erection of the permanent bridge are signed and a bond is given as security that the work will be done by the parties interested. The agreement is that the trolley company pays for half of the new bridge and Somerset and Middlesex counties pay the other half. If the Brunswick Traction Company so desire they can have the trestle erected and have cars running over it within ten days.

The members of the Board went out to Peter's brook and examined the new bridge just erected at that place. They found the bridge unsatisfactory and would not accept it. The sidewalks are now over three inches out of the way and other trouble is likely to arise. The contractors will be seen about the bridge and they will be expected to make it right.

MOULDERS ORGANIZE.

A Union Formed With a Charter Membership of Thirty.

Thursday night W. A. Perrine, of New York, representing the Moulders' Union of North America, was in town and organized a local branch of the Moulders' Union in this city. Thirty moulders were present at the meeting and a great deal of enthusiasm was manifested in the movement. Officers will be elected at the next meeting, to be held Thursday night.

There are about seventy moulders in town and Mr. Perrine expects to get fifty of them in the union. The next meeting will be held behind closed doors, and the names of the officers and those who have become members will not be known outside the ranks of the union for fear, it is said, that the men will be persecuted in the shops.

—The choral service, to have been rendered in the Church of the Heavenly Rest tomorrow, will be postponed until further notice.

A TRAGIC DEATH FOR DR. COX'S BETROTHED.

While Handling a Pistol She Was Instantly Killed.

DR. COX IN NORTH WOODS.

GUIDES HAVE BEEN DESPATCHED TO HUNT HIM UP.

Miss Colgate Had Spent the Summer With Mr. Cox's Family and Was Greatly Liked—Young Couple Were Very Much Devoted to Each Other—Dead Girl Well Known in Plainfield.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 1—Miss Elizabeth Eastman Colgate, daughter of Mrs. Clinton J. Colgate, of this city, killed herself yesterday afternoon while handling a revolver. The bullet pierced her heart and death was instantaneous. Miss Colgate was the affianced bride of Dr. Rowland Cox, Jr., of Plainfield, N. J., whose father is a lawyer at 229 Broadway, New York.

The engagement of Miss Colgate and Dr. Cox was well-known in Plainfield society circles. Miss Colgate visited at the home of Mr. Cox last summer and became a favorite among the Plainfield people who met her. She afterwards spent part of her summer at Pestitouche, Canada, with the Cox family.

The first intimation of the fatality to the family of the young man came in the shape of a telegram yesterday afternoon, stating that she had died suddenly.

Last evening they learned the nature of the sudden death of Miss Colgate and were greatly shocked, but were firm in the belief that her death was due to accidental causes.

Dr. Cox is now on a hunting expedition in the Canada woods. He graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New York City last June and went north at this time to recuperate after his hard course of study. He has been absent ten days and was not expected to return for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox left this morning for Manchester, N. H. Before leaving Mrs. Cox was seen by a Press reporter. She said that Miss Cox was a bright, vivacious girl and that the young people had been greatly attached to each other. There was not the slightest obstable in the path of their marriage and no quarrel had marred the last days of their acquaintance. Miss Colgate was expected to come to Plainfield this fall to visit at the Cox home.

Mrs. Cox was very positive in her behalf that there had been no idea of suicide but that her death was due to an accident.

The exact location of the party of which Dr. Cox is a member, is not known. A telegram has been St. Leonard, Canada, instructing the guides of that section to scour the woods for some trace of them and convey the message to the young man telling of the death of his betrothed. While every effort possible will be made to find him, there is little hope that he will be located until the return of the hunters a week hence.

Local society circles will remember that Mr. and Mrs. Cox gave a reception in the Casino to Miss Colgate during her visit here last summer.

DEMOCRATIC DELEGATES.

Borough Choose Representatives to Attend Congressional Convention.

The Democratic primary to elect three delegates to attend the Congressional convention was held last evening in the basement of the Borough Public School. Andrew E. Kenney called the meeting to order and was elected chairman, with Lambert Bodine, secretary. The delegates chosen were J. H. Trewin, David J. Carney and William L. Saunders. The tellers were Lewis Bird and Wm. N. Pangborn. The delegates were empowered to fill vacancies. It was stated by Mr. Trewin that the date for holding the convention had been postponed, but that the right date will be duly published. There was a very good attendance of citizens at the meeting and everything passed off harmoniously.

More Ripe Strawberries.

George O. Stevens, of the West End, picked a mess of ripe strawberries yesterday, and at noon Mrs. Stevens had them for her lunch. Mr. Stevens' man was cleaning out the garden and around the vines when he discovered several ripe berries. They grew on a bed that is two years old.

Will Go Around the World.

Louis S. Tieman, of Carleton avenue, will start today on a trip of business and pleasure around the world. He will be absent about one year.

HAPPY HOME SHOCKED.

THE TROUBLES OF PAUL METZ REACH HIS FAMILY.

New York, October 1.—Paul Metz, the young man who was arrested in Plainfield Thursday afternoon on the charge of robbing several houses in the guise of a piano-tuner, proves to be the son of wealthy parents and has a handsome home in New York.

The family consists of the father and mother, one daughter and three sons. Bernard Metz, the father, is a wealthy commission merchant in New York and is highly respected by all his associates.

The family was greatly shocked at the news. Paul Metz telegraphed from the Elizabeth jail yesterday morning asking his father to come and give bail for him. Miss Metz nearly fainted when she first learned the news and was very indignant at it.

They declared that it must all be some terrible mistake, for Paul Metz had all the work he could do, and more, too, while his home is comfortably and luxuriously furnished.

He was not troubled for lack of funds, they said, and therefore had no reason or motive to steal.

Paul is the eldest of the children. He is thirty years of age.

INDICTED BY GRAND JURY

EAST MILLSTONE GANG BETRAYED BY ONE OF ITS MEMBERS.

Jerry Washington Turned State's Evidence in the Case of the Men Who Assaulted Pennsylvania Nightwatchman.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Oct. 1—The Grand Jury of Somerset county, now in session, have sixty-seven cases to consider. In the case of Constable William Walker, Thomas Shine, and Thomas Wright, of East Millstone, who assaulted Henry Jones, the nightwatchman, who has since died, an indictment has been found.

Jeremiah Washington, the colored man, who was also implicated in the assault, has turned State's evidence and no indictment will be presented against him. The men implicated will not be held for manslaughter, as a certificate has been presented by the physician who treated the late Mr. Jones, which gives other reasons as the cause of death. Mr. Jones was subject to attacks of prostration and this is the reason assigned as the cause of death.

WOMEN GAVE A RECEPTION.

A Pleasant Time at the Relief Corps Meeting Last Night.

An enjoyable time was had last evening at the meeting of the Woman's Relief Corps. After the business of the evening was transacted, the meeting was thrown open and a large delegation of the members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., was escorted into the room. The occasion was a reception given by the women to Department Commander W. C. Smith, and several members of his staff, together with the comrades of the local Post. There were a number of patriotic speeches by the officers of the Post and Corps, and a musical programme was presented. Mr. Johnson, a seaman, who is a survivor of the Battleship Maine, was present and made a few remarks. Following this part of the exercises, the women in charge served refreshments in abundance to all, and the rest of the evening was passed in sociability.

DEATH OF A YOUNG MAN.

Leon Peterson Succumbed to Typhoid Fever in Chicago.

The death of Leon Peterson, formerly of this city, but late of Chicago, occurred yesterday morning in the latter city of typhoid fever. Mr. Peterson was 18 years of age and last summer he went to Chicago to work for the Western Electric Company. Previous to that time he worked for the same company for a short time at Hammond, Ind.

He was a brother of Miss Peterson, of Sandford avenue, and half brother of Miss Mattie Merrill, of the same address. Yesterday noon Miss Peterson received a letter from her brother telling her that he was well and getting along all right, and in the afternoon about 3 o'clock a telegram was received telling her of his death. The body will be sent to Reaville, Hunterdon county, for burial, and the notice of the funeral will be given later.

Bitten by a Mad Dog.

Word has been received in this city by friends of August Trust, of Marlville, N. C., that he was recently severely bitten by a mad dog that was running about his place. No further particulars are known.

AN IMPOSING PARADE OF THE ENDEAVORERS.

A Novel Spectacle Witnessed at Asbury Park.

2,000 IN THE PROCESSION.

AND NOT THE LEAST AMONG THEM WERE THE JUNIORR.

The Young Christians Made an Inspiring Sight—Interesting Talks and Reports About the Juniors—Plainfield Delegates Arrived Home This Morning After a Splendid Time.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Asbury Park, Sept. 30—The second day of the great State convention was most enjoyably closed by a reception given by the State officers at the close of the evening session at the Auditorium. The officers formed the regulation reception group in the secretary's room at the back of the convention hall, and for a long time streams of delegates poured past them, shaking their long-suffering hands.

When the sun rose this morning he had a heavy veil on and the early mist, which vanished before breakfast time, kept a good many away from the sunrise prayer meeting which was held in the Fifth avenue pavilion, and conducted by Edward E. Anthony, of Plainfield.

The address of the morning was by the always popular Amos R. Wells, and was entitled "Christian Endeavor Grit." "A sandstone sermon" he called it, and it was illustrated by a tableful of small specimens of stone.

A short interlude for luncheon, then came one of the great features of the convention, and one in which the people of Asbury Park were deeply interested. This was the convention procession and the Junior rally. The entire convention turned out, probably at least 2,000 strong, to escort the Juniors to their assembly at the Ocean Grove Auditorium. The State officers and superintendents assembled on the steps of the Albemarle at 2 o'clock, and an escort formed of the Fourth Company, Boys' Brigade, marched to that place, and, after an enjoyable exhibition by the drum corps, in which the microscopic drum-major especially distinguished himself, marched with the State dignitaries to the Asbury Park Auditorium, where the procession started. Banners with the names of the counties were stationed at street corners along the line of march, and as the procession, beginning with the Boys' Brigade and the State officers, the Junior Endeavorers following them, reached each delegation it fell into position, its banner preceding it. Union county was very near the end of the line, as the counties marched in alphabetical order, but it was well represented. The procession was somewhat imposing, as there were probably nearly 2,000 persons in it, and, as one clergyman remarked, it was an eminently respectable and very creditable procession. The Endeavorers were a well-dressed, good-looking, smiling crowd, and as they marched up the boardwalk and the ocean promenade, which had never witnessed such a parade before, they broke forth into joyful song. "Let a Little Sunshine In," "There's a Royal Banner," "Onward, Christian Soldiers," sang the Union county delegation, and the same hymns were heard all along the line.

At the Ocean Grove Auditorium the officers formed in line, with the young soldiers forming their escort, and stood at the side of the pathway, reviewing the long line which marched slowly past, to the music of the drum corps. The hundreds of delegates poured into the Auditorium, the Juniors being seated in the center of the house, and there followed a most interesting session. Rev. A. W. Spooner, D. D., of Camden, State Junior superintendent, presided, and the devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. P. Pockman, D. D., of New Brunswick, with a few words from Rev. Dr. A. A. Ballard, of Asbury Park. There was a very entertaining address by Amos R. Wells, given in the form of a story entitled "Jimmy's Shoes." The talk was illustrated with a pair of shoes and stockings stuffed to represent feet, which Mr. Wells said he had brought to represent Jimmy, since he could not bring the boy. The story was told to show the change that is made in a child when he starts out in the Christian Endeavor way. The little feet that kicked, that lagged on the way to school, afterward kept in the straight path of right.

A brief and interesting report of Junior work in New Jersey was given by Miss Carolyn Post, of Hackensack,

Ask your doctor how many preparations of cod-liver oil there are.

He will answer, "Hundreds of them." Ask him which is the best. He will reply, "Scott's Emulsion."

Then see that this is the one you obtain. It contains the purest cod-liver oil, free from unpleasant odor and taste. You also get the hypophosphites and glycerine. All three are blended into one grand healing and nourishing remedy.

OCCUPATION OF CUBA

Preparing the Transports to Carry the Troops.

AN EXHIBIT OF WAR RELICS

Improved Accommodations for Them During the Voyage. No Lapse of Time Between Evacuation by the Spaniards and the Entry of American Soldiers.

Washington, Oct. 1.—General Fitzhugh Lee arrived here yesterday and saw Secretary Alger and the president. He is anxious to go to Cuba, and said in an interview:

"I am delighted at the prospect of returning to the island, but I would rather not go there until the middle of November. I have had experience with the summer climate in Cuba, and at present my system is full of malaria. One of the objects of my trip north is to get up into the mountains and recuperate."

General Lee will leave Washington to-night for West Point, where he will visit his son.

The war department is engaged in preparing the transports for the troops destined for Cuba. Changes have been made in the vessels so as to fit them for this service, and the troops will be forwarded more comfortably than when they were used in carrying the army to Santiago.

There will be no overcrowding and there will be no such a haste in putting the men aboard as will make it necessary to sail without supplies. Orders have been issued to the quartermasters' and subsistence officers to have everything in readiness for the expedition to Cuba.

The president has been advised by persons conversant with the situation that it will not do to allow any lapse of time to come between the Spanish evacuation and our occupation, for fear of a reign of outlawry.

It is the desire of the navy department to have all the relics of the war with Spain placed on exhibition at some convenient place, and to this end officers in authority are requested to send to Washington such relics as have been picked up by their subordinate officers or men.

These articles will be labelled with the name of the captor or possessor. All flags captured by the navy will be sent to Annapolis, where the department keeps its collection of battle-flags.

Silver Men Name a Ticket.

New York, Oct. 1.—At the Union Square Hotel last evening the Silver Democrats held a meeting and named the following ticket to be supported at the coming state election:

For Governor—Henry George of Kings.

For Lieutenant Governor—Elliott Danforth of Chenango.

For Secretary of State—Gideon Tucker of Kings.

Attorney General—Ole F. Snyder of Erie.

Engineer and Surveyor—James A. Lee of Rockland.

The meeting was attended by the liveliest of proceedings, both inside and outside of the convention room.

Henry M. McDonald, the chief silverite in Greater New York, so-called, was the controlling spirit, but his authority was assailed so vigorously at one time that he threatened to call in the police to restore order.

The convention was, in reality, a meeting of the organization committee of the Chicago platform Democrats, made up of one delegate from each Senate district in the state.

Not more than one-half of the fifty members were present. t received its authority to nominate a ticket from the general conference of assembly district delegates, which met in Syracuse on Wednesday. This conference adopted a free silver platform, and then appointed the organization committee and empowered it to make state nominations.

It also authorized the committee to resolve itself into a state committee after the nominations had been made.

What One Man's Coolness Did.

When the attack was made on Sidon, during the war with Syria, it became necessary for the British troops to advance across a long, unprotected bridge, in the face of a battery of six guns, which completely commanded the approach. The men were unwilling to expose themselves to certain death, when Arthur Cumming, carefully dressed in full uniform, stepped forward to the middle of the bridge It was immediately swept by the fire of the battery. When the smoke had rolled away there stood Cumming intact, carefully brushing the dust from his boots, after which he stood erect, fixed a single glass in his eye, and looked back at the men. This was too much, and they captured that bridge and battery with a whoop.—Argonaut.

FUNERAL OF THOMAS F. BAYARD.

Remains Reached Wilmington Del. Last Evening.

Dedham, Mass., Oct. 1.—In pursuance of arrangements made by the family the body of Thomas F. Bayard was yesterday taken to Boston on an early morning train and thence sent to the home of the family at Wilmington, Del.

In the car, accompanying the body, were Mrs. Bayard, Miss Florence Bayard, James A. Bayard and Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Warren, relatives of the former ambassador to England.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The following tribute to Thomas F. Bayard was written by Secretary of State Colonel John Hay:

"The news of Mr. Bayard's fatal illness, followed so swiftly by the tidings of his lamented death, came upon his many friends with a singular shock. One of the elements of the remarkable charm which distinguished him was his persistent youthfulness. His handsome face was always young; he had the voice and the bearing of buoyant youth; his enthusiasms and quick emotions were those of a pure minded and high spirited boy. His scorn of everything mean or base, his disregard of consequences in his pursuit of what he thought right, his frank expression of that sympathy which he was so ready to give, his belief in the sincerity of others, being himself absolutely sincere, all these qualities, even more than his good looks and gallant bearing, gave the impression, not only of a young man, but of one who would always be young. It is hard to think that the rigid limit of three score and ten years should be the term of so much energy and activity. But the fine vitality and power of such a character will survive his death. In the affection of those who knew him, as a model and example to those who admired him, he will live long as an enduring memory and a wholesome inspiration."

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 1.—The party with the remains of Hon. Thomas F. Bayard reached this place at 7.30 last evening. The funeral of the dead statesman will be attended from his late residence here at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and will be devoid of ostentation. Many distinguished men in the state and nation will attend.

DR. PARKHURST RETURNS.

New York, Oct. 1.—The Rev. Dr. Parkhurst came back to town on the White Star line steamship Britannic yesterday.

When asked what he thought of the political situation, Dr. Parkhurst said: "I have the deepest admiration for Colonel Roosevelt. He is a good man, an honest man, and one who is not afraid to act. I know him, and I do not think he is the kind to allow himself to be coerced. Neither can I believe that he would allow anyone to dictate to him. He has a mind of his own and can use it.

"Of course I do not know the details of recent happenings, and cannot express myself fully until I am more fully informed. For one thing I want to see Colonel Roosevelt and learn from him where matters stand."

When asked whether he would go down to Oyster Bay to see Colonel Roosevelt, he replied:

"No. I hardly think that will be necessary. I hope to see him soon, however."

When the Democratic nominee for governor was mentioned Dr. Parkhurst said:

"In my opinion one member of a family is enough. I do not know Justice Van Wyck, but I know who he is. As I've just said, I think one member of a family is enough."

Concerning the Cits and the Cits' movement, he said:

"I think the Citizens' Union was formed to work in municipal affairs, and am inclined to believe that it should confine itself to the city. There might be an exception made where assemblymen are concerned, however, since New York really gets a great deal of its legislation from Albany."

When asked if he intended to start another crusade, Dr. Parkhurst replied: "I can say nothing about that now."

The Lasters' Strike.

Randolph, Mass., Oct. 1.—As the result of a meeting held here yesterday between representatives of the Lasters' Protective Union and Haggerty & Sullivan, shoe manufacturers, an agreement as to prices was reached, and the men who stopped work on Wednesday under orders from the union, returned. Neither side would state what were the terms of settlement.

New Hampshire Banks.

Keene, N. H., Oct. 1.—Five savings banks in Keene and other places in Cheshire county, which closed their doors within the past four years, will pay dividends to depositors beginning to-day.

In all, the five banks will pay nearly half a million in dividends during the next two weeks.

THE EMPEROR OF CHINA

Confident London Reports of His Death.

REFORMERS ARE PUNISHED

Their Acceptance in Diplomatic and Mercantile Circles. Suspicions of Poison. Speculations on the International Consequences.

London, Oct. 1.—Information reaches here from two high quarters, one diplomatic, the other a leading financial house, that the Chinese emperor is dead—has been dead, in fact, some days. Perhaps he was poisoned.

The dowager empress has summoned all the doctors of the empire to the palace merely to lend to his end the semblance of a natural death.

What effect all these strange happenings at Pekin will have upon international relations is the subject of earnest consideration in the highest quarters here.

The Punishment of Reformers.

Pekin, Oct. 1.—An imperial decree was published yesterday dismissing Chang-yin-Houan, the opponent of Li Hung Chang, and former minister of China at Washington and special envoy of China to Queen Victoria's jubilee.

He is dismissed from all his offices and is banished to li, a district of Chinese Turkistan.

THE PHILIPPINE PROBLEM.

A Hint as to the President's Desires Luzon Only Wanted.

Washington, Oct. 1.—Within the last two or three days the president has been consulting with Senators and representatives in regard to the Philippines. Mr. McKinley has intimated to his visitors an outline of the instructions given the peace commissioners.

From these conversations it is learned that those instructions do not contemplate a demand for the entire group of islands. The cession to the United States of the island of Luzon, including Manila and Manila bay, will be required; the United States will insist upon a satisfactory, liberal government for the inhabitants of the other islands and Spain will not be allowed to cede all or any part of this group to any foreign government without first securing the consent of the United States.

These terms, it is understood, represent all the president wants. He would be reluctant to have this government acquire absolute possession of the islands outside of Luzon.

The belief is growing, however, that Spain will not want to retain a conditional sovereignty over the rest of the group if Luzon is lost to her.

The Pending Flour-Mill Deal.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 1.—The Sentinel says that five of the six Milwaukee flour millers have given options on their plants to a syndicate represented by Thomas A. McIntyre of New York, according to a rumor on 'Change, and the manager of one of the mills is authority for the statement that the consolidation will soon be effected.

In addition to five of Milwaukee's mills whose daily combined capacity is 6,300 barrels, the syndicate is said to embrace three mills at Superior, Wis., three at Duluth, three at Minneapolis and one in New York.

The capital stock of the new company proposed is forty million dollars.

Warrant for Mrs. Guilford.

London, Oct. 1.—The officials of the United States embassy have received instructions in regard to the extradition of the woman alleged to be Dr. Nancy Guilford, the midwife of Bridgeport, Conn., who arrived at Liverpool on Tuesday last on the steamer Vancouver, from Montreal.

A warrant for the provisional arrest of the woman until the arrival here of extradition documents is now in the hands of the officials of Scotland Yard. Police Inspector Freest has charge of the case, but thus far the woman has not been arrested.

Making Smokeless Powder.

Santa Cruz, Cal., Oct. 1.—Work has been begun at the smokeless powder plant here to replace the one destroyed a few weeks ago.

The plant is larger than the old one and the daily output is six thousand pounds.

Enough orders for smokeless powder have been received to keep the mills running day and night for the next two years.

The Labor Troubles in Pana.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 1.—The sheriff at Pana, Il., where there has been trouble between imported negroes and the union miners, telegraphed Governor Tanner at 5 a. m. yesterday to send three hundred rifles and have the weapons in Pana at 7 a. m.

The governor said the request could not be complied with.

$100,000 for Barnard.

New York, Oct. 1.—George A. Plimpton of No. 70 Fifth avenue, the treasurer of Barnard college, has received in a letter the offer of a gift of $100,000, in absolute endowment to the college, conditional on the wiping out of the college debt by October 3, 1898. The gift is anonymous.

Biggest Sailing Yacht.

Glasgow, Oct. 1.—Coates, the Paisley thread manufacturer, has ordered G. L. Watson to design a 500-ton sailing yacht, which will be the largest vessel of her class in the world. The boat will be built in Henderson's yards.

Turks Attack Armenians.

Constantinople, Oct. 1.—Advices just received from Van say fighting has occurred at Alashgorb between the Turks and a number of Armenians from Russia. About fifty Armenians were killed.

Tod Sloane's Success.

London, Oct. 1.—Out of seven races at the Newmarket September meeting yesterday. Tod Sloane, the American jockey, won five and secured second place in a sixth.

DUN'S WEEKLY REVIEW

Fewer Failures Than for Many Years During September.

New York, Oct. 1.—Failures in September have been about $6,700,000, and for the quarter about $22,875,000. No report covering the exact month or quarter is possible this week for a journal which must go to press on Friday, the 30th, but the returns indicate a smaller aggregate of failures than in any other month in many years except in August of this year, and smaller for the quarter than in any other quarter since 1892.

Changes are all for the better excepting the fall of cotton to the lowest point for fifty years, and even the lowest prices of 1848, considering difference of qualities, were perhaps not lower than prices this week.

While the stagnation in wool continues, with sales even smaller than in the same month of the panic year, 1893, numerous mills have started temporarily in order to get out sample pieces.

The demand for boots and shoes seems a little better, and recorded shipments have beeen larger than in September of any previous year except the last, and larger than in any other year from January 1 to date.

With pig iron firm everywhere, in spite of the extraordinary output, and Bessemer held at $10.40 at Pittsburg, while Valley producers report 230,000 tons sold for delivery before June next, the consumption is evidently growing.

Car, locomotive, bridge and structural work is exceedingly heavy, and there are signs of decrease in the demand.

Wheat rose 2 1-2 cents, but on Thursday declined sharply, closing two cents lower for the week, notwithstanding very heavy exports, amounting for the week to 4,911,022 bushels against 5,092,186 last year, and for four weeks to 15,011,962 bushels, against 20,661,315 last year, flour included.

Corn is a fraction lower, with some decrease in export demand, though the recent shipments would have been considered heavy in any year until the last, and can hardly be continued long.

Foreign commerce has been a little smaller in exports and larger in imports, and yet the returns from New York still indicate another heavy excess of exports, probably about $54,000,000 for the month, making $114,000,000 for the quarter. Shipments of gold to this country have been $17,325,000 since the movement began, of which $5,750,000 is nearly due, and lower rates for money here are naturally followed by an increase of about a third in the proportion of commercial loans taken by the leading banks.

GEN. MERRITT'S REPORT.

The Conditions That Met Him at Manila Previous to the Armistice.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The report of Major General Wesley Merritt of his operations about Manila was made public at the war department yesterday. It is dated on board the transport China, August 31, and after giving briefly the story of his embarkation and arrival at Manila, and the disposition of the troops there, he says:

"I found General Greene's command encamped on a strip of sandy land running parallel to the shore of the bay and not far distant from the beach, but owing to the great difficulties of landing supplies, the greater portion of the force had shelter tents only, and were suffering many discomforts, the camp being situated in a low, flat place without shelter from the heat of the tropical sun or adequate protection during the terrific downpours of rain so frequent at this season of the year.

"I was at once struck by the exemplary spirit of patient, even cheerful endurance shown by the officers and men under such circumstances, and this feeling of admiration for the manner in which the American soldier—volunteer and regular alike—eccepts the necessary hardships of the work he has undertaken to do has grown and increased with every phase of the difficult and trying campaign which the troops of the Philippine expedition have brought to such a brilliant and successful conclusion.

"As General Aguinaldo did not visit me on my arrival nor proffer his services as a subordinate military leader, and as my instructions from the president fully contemplated the occupation of the islands by the American land forces, and stated that the powers of the military occupant are absolute and supreme, and immediately operate upon the political condition of the inhabitants, I did not consider it wise to hold any direct communication with the insurgent leader until I should be in possession of the city of Manila, especially as I would not until then be in a position to issue a proclamation and enforce my authority in the event that his pretensions should clash with my designs.

"For these reasons the preparations for the attack on the city were pressed and military operations conducted without reference to the situation of the insurgent forces.

THE WAR INQUIRY.

Gen. Lee to Appear Before the Commission.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The war investigating commission has decided to ask General Lee to follow General Wheeler in giving testimony concerning the charges made against the war department, and suggested Wednesday of next week as a date when he could be heard.

General Wheeler will be before the commission on Tuesday, and will be interrogated both about Camp Wikoff and the Santiago campaign, the examination concerning Santiago covering especially the facilities for caring for the sick and wounded, and the precautions taken to preserve the health of the men in the trenches.

The commissioners say that their purpose is to make a very complete investigation of these features of the Santiago siege, but ice Chairman Denby said yesterday that the policy of calling General Miles or General Shafter had not been under consideration. The decision to call General Lee also at an early date was reached yesterday because of the knowledge of the fact that he is in the city and is liable soon to be ordered to Cuba.

Crown Prince of Corea Ill.

Yokohama, Oct. 1.—Advices received here from Seoul say that the Crown Prince of Corea is seriously ill.

FATAL FOREST FIRES

Lives Lost and Towns Destroyed in Wisconsin.

THREE STATES RAVAGED

Gales Fan the Blaze and Timber Ranges and Villages Suffer Heavily, Colorado Mountains Swept by Raging Fires, Woman and Children Burned to Death.

Milwaukee, Oct. 1.—A blaze, supposed to have originated in forest fires, burned half of Cumberland, Wis., yesterday, causing a property loss estimated at $225,000. About twenty-five families are homeless.

Five children are reported burned to death.

A large saw mill is among the buildings burned, throwing many out of employment.

Rain saved the entire city from being burned. Wires are down and particulars are meagre.

A dispatch from Chippewa Falls says that Mrs. Jacob Correson was burned to death while fighting forest fires yesterday. Her two children, while attempting to save her, were badly burned about the face and head.

Passengers on the Wisconsin Central train from the north last night say the train passed through an almost continuous sea of fire.

Nearly every section of pine woods in northern Wisconsin is ablaze. Barron, a small town on the Soo Line, is entirely surrounded by fire, and farmers with their families are coming into town with what household goods they could save.

Glenwood, a town of 2,000 inhabitants, on the Wisconsin Central, between Chippewa Falls and St. Paul, was saved after twelve hours' heroic work by the citizens.

Telegraph and telephone wires are down and many railway bridges have been destroyed.

At Rice Lake, sixteen farm houses were reported to have been burned yesterday afternoon. The wind was blowing a gale.

A large portion of Clear Lake, a town of six hundred inhabitants, is reported destroyed.

Alemena, a town of three hundred, and Poskin, a town of two hundred, both on the Soo Line, are said to have been wiped out, but no loss of life has been reported.

A slight rain began to fall last night and may check the fires.

Devastate Colorado Timber.

Denver, Col., Oct. 1.—Colorado's timber reserves are fast being depleted by forest fires, which, fanned by high winds, are working great destruction.

Thus far no lives are reported lost. In the northern part of the state a swath thirty-five miles long and of unknown width, extending from the Grand river almost to Dillon, in Summit county, has been burned over.

Eagle county has also suffered, the country about Glenwood Springs being a raging furnace. Aspen is almost hemmed in by the flames and the smoke.

Gunnison, Crested Butte and Wolcott, south of Glenwood, report serious blazes in the mountains and many ranches and farms destroyed.

Minturn, near Glenwood, is the center of a fire belt, which comes near Upper Gypsum, Gannon and Collins, and threatens West Brush, one of the finest timber sections in the Rocky mountains.

In the San Juan region, in southwestern Colorado, the conditions are better.

Settlers in all the burning districts are fighting the flames by cutting clearings in the forests and plowing the land.

The Treasury Finances.

Washington, Oct. 1.—September closes on the books of the treasury without special significance. It is always a small month, both in receipts and expenditures, and it is not safe to compute results for the year from it. This year, moreover, $4,000,000 has been paid in anticipatory interest charges. War expenditures continue to constitute nearly half of tthe total, or $25,645,000, while the pensions this month amount to $10,936,000.

In receipts the internal revenue leads with $21,555,288; custome come next with $16,759,574; and from miscellaneous sources the returns are but $1,463,207, making a total of $39,778,070, against expenditures of $54,416,000, or a deficit for September of $14,637,929, comparing with $21,933,098 deficit in September, 1897.

The cash balance remaining in the treasury is $311,600,754, of which $243,471,722 is in gold.

Col. Hay Sworn in Washington, Oct. 1.—Colonel John Hay was sworn into office as secretary of state at 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

The ceremony took place in the president's room at the White House, and the oath was administered by Justice Harlan of the supreme court.

Prohibition in Canada.

Montreal, Oct. 1.—Returns received up to noon yesterday of the plebiscite taken Thursday throughout the Dominion on the question of enacting prohibition legislation give a majority of nearly 17,000 votes in favor of prohibition. The vote polled is a small one—only about fifty per cent. of that cast in a regular parliamentary election.

England Guards Passes.

Simla, Oct. 1.—General Egerton has summoned a great gathering of Afridis to meet at Peshawue on October 24 to hear the announcement of Great Britain's terms respecting the passes between Afghanistan and India.

Gov. Taylor Seriously Ill.

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 1.—Governor Taylor has been suffering with liver trouble for some time. Last night his condition was critical and relatives have been summoned to his bedside.

THE PEACE COMMISSION.

Preparations for the Final Negotiations.

Paris, Oct. 1.—The United States peace commission has taken possession of its working quarters, a suite of seven rooms on the ground floor of the Hotel Continental, at the corner of the Rue de Rivoli and the Rue Royal, commanding the Tuileries gardens, and formerly used by the ex-Empress Eugenie. Later they were occupied by the Behring sea commission and by United States Commissioner Peck, who has just moved into his offices on the Exposition grounds. American flags drape the entrance of the peace commission's apartments.

The clerical force of the commission has been systematized and is now working busily.

The spirit of the Paris press is daily rendered into English for the information of the commissioners, and the same thing is done with the newspapers of Madrid.

Many wooden boxes of records, data and authorities affecting the case of the United States were unpacked yesterday and carefully arranged.

The Spanish commissioners formally deny the various interviews and paragraphs purporting to give the substance of their instructions, which have appeared in the newspapers. The secretary of the Spanish commission said to the representative of the Associated Press, with the American commission: "No member of our commission has given any interview, and all which have appeared in print as to our instructions are false. We are here to defend ourselves, and, naturally, we are not willing to give any of our weapons to our opponents."

REPORTS FROM MANILA.

Otis Says He Needs Nothing. Dewey Praises the Climate.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The following telegram from Major General Otis has been received at the war department:

"Replying telegram twenty-first, state necessary qualifications made in rations by telegraphic authority commissary general, September 19. Carefully considered clothing and just ascertained amounts here and to arrive. Light quality manufactured here and at Hong Kong obtained at cheap rates. Will soon be abundantly supplied with clothing suitable to climate. Nothing needed. OTIS.'

The following statement made by Admiral Dewey with reference to the condition of the United States troops at Manila was also given out by the navy department:

"As Luzon is the farthest north of the large islands, its climate is naturally the most temperate. In this connection it may be mentioned that out of a force of two thousand on the ships of my squadron, the number of men on the sick list at any time has not exceeded forty, nor has there been any considerable sickness among our troops on shore, though they were much exposed for three weeks in the trenches during the rainy season.

"As a matter of fact Manila is far from being an unhealthy city, and the climate is as fine as that of any place in the tropics."

TO BRING SICK HOME.

Will Be Removed from Porto Rico as Soon as Possible.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The war department has posted the following:

The president has given instructions that all the sick at Porto Rico be sent North as soon as they are able to travel with safety, his purpose being to relieve General Brooke of the further care of the sick, and at the same time enable the men to receive the treatment obtainable in the better appointed home hospitals.

These men will be furloughed, as in cases of those returning from Santiago.

About seven hundred left yesterday on the transports Relief and Missouri.

In conformity with the above, the quartermaster's department issued orders to the officers having charge of the shipping at New York, telling them to send ships to Ponce equipped for carrying the sick to this country.

Dr. John Hall's Burial.

New York, Oct. 1.—Final arrangements for the funeral of the Rev. Dr. John Hall, late pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, are completed.

The body of Dr. Hall is expected to arrive on the steamer Etruria, which is due here to-day.

The funeral services will be held in the church on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and on the following day the body will be interred in Woodlawn cemetery without further public ceremony.

Cits to Get a New Name.

New York, Oct. 1.—So many protests against the use of the name and emblem of the Cits' Union have poured in on the men who are trying to put an independent state ticket in the field this fall that they have decided to adopt a new name and emblem.

In a letter sent yesterday afternoon to the executive committee of the union, the Cits announce that they will proceed soon to call themselves the Citizens' State party, and will employ a beehive for their emblem.

Nicaragua Canal.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The Nicaragua canal commission has opened headquarters in Washington in a part of the old Page hotel, and here for several months the final study of the data gathered by the engineers will be made, and a report prepared for submission to congress and the country.

This will be ready by the first of December, and will present several alternative propositions and so give the country a chance to decide which plan, if any, is preferred.

Insurgents to Disband.

Havana, Oct. 1.—The secretary of the Spanish military commission has delivered several documents to the American commission at the Trocha hotel, the present headquarters of the American party.

General Maximo Gomez, in an interview at Camp Rojas, province of Santa Clara, is quoted as saying that the insurgent forces will disband and apply themselves to farm labor as soon as the Spanish troops have evacuated the island.

Col. Murrell's Position.

Whether or not "Colonel" William Murrell, of Asbury Park, does what he says he is going to do to the Republicans this fall in the work of changing the colored voters to the Democratic column, he is at least getting plenty of notoriety out of his speech at the Democratic State convention last Wednesday. The Republican newspapers have fell like a thousand bricks upon the colored colonel, and if he is a sensitive soul he must be deeply pained at the editorial thrusts for which he is the target.

It must be admitted, however, that the Colonel's speech in the convention was not one that would convey the idea that the colored voter is a particularly smart man. The Colonel seems to regard the colored man's vote as something deposited with a view of are turn other than mere government—in fact, the Colonel hinted mighty plainly that if the Democrats got the support of his race that it would be with the expectation of a few future public perquisites.

That idea is all right in politics as far as it goes, but the Colonel carried it a little too far. He was too outspoken. The Colonel should have orated in praise of the colored man's desire for good government, equal rights and other theoretical things of State. Then, after the convention was over and the campaign in progress, the Colonel and his immediate advisors might get together with their white political brethern and fixed things for patronage after election. All these aspersions upon the Colonel's honest purposes would thus have had little ground for publication.

But still Col. Murrell undoubtedly knew from experience that a polished stand before election was generally ignored after election by the Republicans, and perhaps he concluded that it would be well not to indulge in glittering generalities in treating with his new friends. Whatever may be said of the Colonel it cannot be said that he is playing 'possum now. He is decidedly alive to the situation.

A Coveted Improvement.

The Board of Trade of Plainfield continues to meet at regular intervals, but their results so far have been decidedly Spanish—mostly talk of what they are going to do. One thing, however, that the tradesmen are very anxious to accomplish is the project of having the Central Railroad of New Jersey construct tunnels under their tracks at the North Avenue station and then build another waiting depot on the east side.

It is argued that at present the railroad company takes a very large risk in damage suits that are liable to grow out of the dangers to which passengers are subjected by crossing and recrossing the four tracks to board the various passenger trains. Scarcely a day passes but what there are some narrow escapes from either death or terrible injuries, but with the proposed new depot and a tunnel approach to it from North avenue, the company would absolve itself of responsibility for accidents that might occur in such a manner.

Congressional Outlook.

James E. Martine, who was chairman of the last Congressional convention of the Democrats in the Eighth district, yesterday issued the call for the convention, this year to be held in Bayonne, Oct. 17th.

Now that Mr. Martine's candidacy for the office has been put to an end by his own statement that he is not a candidate for any office, the name of former Judge Thomas J. Noonan, of Bayonne, is being suggested for the nomination. It is understood that Judge Noonan is inclined to accept the honor and make the fight against Congressman Fowler. Bayonne is the only reliable Democratic section in the Eighth district, and with Judge Noonan as a candidate it would spur the party there to greater efforts.

Col. John F. Wilson, who enjoys himself in looking after the Mayoralty job of North Plainfield, will have new duties added to his official life for the next couple of months when he serves as dispenser of justice in the local police court in place of Gen. Eli Long, who left today for Bluff Point, Lake Keuka, where he will harvest the crop of grapes in his large vineyard. On a few occasions heretofore, however, Mayor Wilson has performed the duties of Recorder, and so the experience will not be a new one to His Honor. But from past experience it be well for offenders in the borough to steer clear of the local police while the Mayor is on the bench.

The Somerville Democrat declines to be silenced in its claim that the Brunswick Traction Company has forfeited its franchise in Somerville by having Superintendent Radel characterize the claim as "the veriest bosh." According to The Democrat this week the Brunswick Company has not come to the front with $10,000 cash which the courts ordered them to pay to the Central Railroad of New Jersey before work was commenced on the viaduct in that place, the failure to complete which the Traction Company claims has stalled their work.

A number of Elizabeth merchants have struck an easy and practical way of evading the high charges made for electric light in that city. The merchants within a certain section have combined together and will install a dynamo and power in the rear of one of their stores, from which electric light will be furnished to those in the company, which will be run upon the co-operative basis. Only stockholders will be furnished light. A few such enterprises would doubtless effect a lowering of electric light rates.

After having had to adjourn the date of the Congressional convention in the Third district once the Democrats are now notified that the convention will be held in Freehold, Wednesday, October 12th. The Republican Congressional convention in that district will be held in Somerville, Tuesday, October 18th. Congressman Howell will be renominated without opposition.

Every time that the postal facilities are improved in the local office, so much more is Plainfield attractive and advantageous as a place of residence and business. Postmaster Bird starts off well as Uncle Sam's representative. May he keep it up.

It may interest many people to know that the State law regarding the use of lighted lamps on bicycles is so constructed that police authorities are given the power to excuse police on wheels from obeying the law in that particular.

We can imagine the politicians of Perth Amboy grinding their teeth. The Republican prints an editorial this week on "Good Sense in Politics." The Republican is edited by a woman.

The Star is a new journalistic light that shines in Bayonne. Bayonne supports three Democratic papers, but The Star will try to prosper espousing Republican principles.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Somerset county has now a representative State committeeman in the person of Andrew Lane, of Neshanic, that tried and true old Jeffersonian Democrat being the unanimous choice of Somerset's delegation in the State convention at Trenton Wednesday. Mr. Lane succeees Mr. Keys in this position and is favorably talked of and will probably be Old Somerset's unanimous choice for Congress. Mr. Lane would receive the hearty support of every man with a right of franchise. Go in, Andrew, and may you win!—Bound Brook State-Centre.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Charles Willis, of Johnston's drive, has a bird dog named "Dandy," that is considered to be one of the tree climbers in this vicinity. Although the animal is fastened with a long chain he succeeds admirably in ascending a tree nearby and enjoys himself greatly among the branches. In connection with the above Mr. VanNatta, of East Third street, who holds a position at Cranford on the Central Railroad, has a knowing dog that persists in following his master back and forth every day. The dog will get on the train, and when Cranford is reached seems to know that it is time to get off. He exhibits the same instinct in returning home.

* * * * *

Asbury Park, at the close of its season, has the greatest number of idle men, in proportion to population, of any city in the United States. A couple of weeks later there is a change, the men scattering for the winter employment. For the interval, the streets are lined with men whose vocation is chewing gum and talking over the experiences of the season. A good many of them keep up a semblance of labor. This is especially true of the hackmen, who attend the arriving trains with an assiduity which shows at least a desire for employment. One of these men obtained the best place for custom one day last week, and then went serenely to sleep. Trains arrived and departed, but he slept on. A score of other hackmen were wide awake and vociferous, but the man asleep had his nap, and they had only the exercise of their lungs. The attendance at the station was merely a habit.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Oct. 1—Miss Minnie Squire entertained a wheeling party of friends from Rahway Thursday evening. Games and refreshments passed away a very pleasant evening for all. Among those present from town who helped Miss Squire entertain were Miss Robison, Miss Riger, Miss Adams, Miss Johnston and others.

Miss Emma Clark has returned from a short stay at Asbury Park, where she has been attending the State Christian Endeavor convention.

The Republican primary to elect delegates to the Congressional and county convention will be held at Excelsior Hall Monday evening, Oct. 3d.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dorward have given up their residence in the village and moved to New York, where Mr. Dorward has a position.

Union services of the Methodist and Baptist churches will be held in the Methodist church Sunday evening. Mr. Braker will preach.

The boys' race over the mountain avenue course this afternoon will start at 5:30. There are six entries and a good race is expected.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Westfield, October 1.—The management of the entertainment to be given in the Westfield Club Hall Monday evening for the benefit of the Children's Country Home are very much pleased at the way the tickets have been bought. All the reserved seats are taken and the people are now buying standing room. Among those who will take part in the entertainment are: F. Emerson Brooks, the California poet-humorist; Marie Budworth, accompanist; James S. Burdette, humorist; George B. Day, original songs and sketches; Miss Helen Gomes, reader; Alfred E. Pearsall, reciter and soloist, and George Francis Train, the globe trotter. The talent have all donated their services free of charge.

Crane & Clark, who have a store in Plainfield and one in Westfield, have dissolved partnership. Mr. Clark will hereafter conduct the store in this place and Mr. Crane the one at Plainfield.

PEOPLE COME AND GO.

PERSONAL MENTION OF INTEREST TO PRESS READERS.

assistant superintendent. This report gave as the number of societies in the State 411, and as the number of Juniors 13,250. Of these 612 had joined the church in the past year. The last address of the session was a delightful "chalk talk," by N. S. Greet, of Boston.

A party of Endeavorers, including A. L. Force and others of Plainfield, enjoyed a visit to Camp Voorhees on Thursday, and tomorrow morning a large party, including several hundred, will go up and hold a more formal service, for the benefit of the soldiers.

Dr. Brett presided at the evening session, which was held in the Asbury Park Auditorium, the building being crowded.

The committee on resolutions introduced resolutions against the army canteen and Sabbath desecration. The election of officers followed, with this result: President, Rev. Cornelius Brett, D. D., of Jersey City; honorary past presidents, Rev. J. Clement French, D. D., of Newark, and Rev. John Kerr, of Union county; vice-presidents, Rev. L. R. Dyott, of Newark; Rev. Arthur W. Spooner, of Camden, and Rev. W. F. Lumbar, of Moorestown; secretary, Miss Ida B. Stephens, of Hackettstown; treasurer, Edward E. Anthony, of Plainfield; executive committee, Rev. Charles Harris Jones, of Bayonne; Chaplain Second Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, Rev. T. E. Davis, of Bound Brook; Rt. Rev. Bishop Walters, of Jersey City, and Rev. Peter Stryker, D. D., of Asbury Park.

The convention sermon was preached by Rev. R. S. MacArthur, D. D., of Calvary Baptist church, New York, whose topic was "Calvary's Central Cross the Universal Throne."

The consecration service closed the evening, and the convention as well. It was conducted by Rev. J. H. Owens, of Paterson.

October 1.—No sunrise prayer meeting was held this morning, but many of the delegates were seen on the boardwalk before train time, taking their last look at the breakers, which were larger and grander than at any time during the convention. The special train left at 8:35, having a merry crowd who decorated the cars with flags of orange and black, the State colors, sang Endeavor hymns, and amused one another with comical anecdotes concerning convention happenings.

Edward White.

WILLIAM CLINTON.

It was about five o'clock one Saturday afternoon, a time when the east end doctor, sometimes, but not always, gets a few minutes' rest.

The inner door was pushed slowly open, and the head of a thorough little gutter urchin appeared. He was a capital specimen of the London "gamin"—naked feet and legs up to the knee, ragged trousers, a thin cotton shirt, open at the chest, a ragged coat and no hat. He was grewsomely dirty, but his thin, almost delicate fingers told me at once that he was a pickpocket.

"I want Dr. Prebble," he said, in a hoarse voice.

"Well, you've got him," I answered.

"Bill's fell down and hurt 'isself," he said, slowly.

"Who is Bill?" I asked.

A shade of disappointment passed over his face. I had evidently fallen in his opinion. My not knowing Bill proved conclusively that I had not mixed in the choicest society.

"'E's our lodger," he said cautiously, "an' I ain't a-goin' to tell you no more."

"Why didn't he go to a hospital?"

"I dunno," he said. "'E was at work and fell off of somefing. So 'e come 'ome. That's all."

Luckily, a medical man is safe in almost any neighborhood. Moreover, I was well known, and as I went along I heard the gossips saying,—

"There goes the doctor. He's come to see after Bill."

Clearly Bill was a celebrity.

At last my guide stopped at a house, and, nodding to a woman, who stepped on one side to let us enter, said,—

"It's all right, old gal."

I found out subsequently that the "old gal" addressed was the young gentleman's mother. Respect for parents is not a leading feature in that neighborhood.

Without wasting a minute I knelt on the floor to examine Bill's injuries. I found they were serious—a dislocated shoulder, two ribs broken and internal injuries, which might prove more serious still.

On his fingers were the marks of oakum picking, which showed that Bill was an ex-jailbird, and in the corner of the room stood a suspicious looking bag, out of which peered a jimmy. It was then fairly safe to assume that Bill had met with an accident while engaged in his professional duties as a housebreaker. He was educated. One could see that at once by the development of his brow. In his face, too, there were some lingering traces of refinement.

I looked up at the boy, who was watching me carefully, and, I have no doubt, reading my thoughts.

"You ain't a-goin' to tell no tales, gov'nor?"

"My business is to cure him if I can," I said briefly. "Now I want your help."

With some difficulty I managed to get his shoulder back into position. Then I set his ribs. Beyond that I could do nothing until he recovered sufficiently to answer a few questions.

It was necessary to find a nurse. The man ought to have been in a hospital, but it was impossible to move him. Indeed, it was almost a miracle that he had ever reached home in such a mangled condition.

Not far from my dispensary there was a nursing institution, supported by some ladies, who devoted their time and money to nursing the poor in their own houses. The matron was a splendid woman, who never stopped to inquire whether a case was deserving. The fact that a man or woman was ill was all that she cared about. Their crimes and shortcomings she left to other people.

Miss Shepherd listened to my story with her usual sympathy.

"There is only one young lady I can send," she said thoughtfully, "and she has not had much experience. However, we must do something. I'll introduce her to you and see what you think."

It is a curious thing that on first seeing that girl she did not strike me as at all good looking. Since then I have learned to know her well, and I think her one of the most beautiful women in the world.

In these years of work among the poorest of the poor I met no woman of such a radiant, glorious nature as the pale-faced girl whom I saw for the first time that Saturday evening.

To my great disappointment on reaching the sick-room her composure quite gave way. I had hoped she would be strong enough to maintain her self control, instead of which she trembled and turned deadly white, looking almost inclined to burst into tears.

"Come, come, Miss Clinton!" I said. "You must get accustomed to scenes of distress. If you break down, you won't be able to help me at all."

"I beg your pardon, Dr. Prebble," she stammered, hastily. "It was only the first shock. Everything is so horrible. You may depend on my doing what you require."

Then I explained the case to her carefully and taught her the duties of a nurse as well as I could in such a short time.

Miss Clinton must have nursed her patient better than I expected she would, for he passed a fairly good night, and when I saw him at eleven o'clock on Sunday morning the fever had abated somewhat, leaving him, of course, very weak and in a more or less precarious condition.

The nurse whom Miss Shepherd had sent to take charge of the case during the day was a highly experienced woman, whom I knew well.

"It's a bad case, doctor," she said. "Will you pull him through?"

"I can't say yet," I answered. "Ask me to-morrow morning. What time did you relieve Miss Clinton?"

"At eight o'clock. She didn't like to go away, but I insisted on her having a rest. I can't help thinking that Miss Clinton takes something of a personal interest in the case," said the day nurse. "Have you read the morning paper?"

"Not yet. Is there anything in it?"

She produced a Sunday paper and pointed to a paragraph headed "Daring Attempted Burglary." The burglars had entered a window on the first floor by means of a ladder, but they were disturbed in their work and had been forced to escape hurriedly, leaving their booty behind them. It struck me at once that in all probability Bill was one of the burglars. In making his escape he had no doubt fallen from the ladder.

But there was another feature in the case which was more striking still. The owner of the house which had been entered was named Clinton.

On first seeing the sick man Miss Clinton had lost her composure to an extent that surprised me. What was the link that bound these three people together—a wealthy city merchant, a young lady devoting herself to work among the poor, and a broken down ex-convict lying sick, perhaps dying, in an east end slum?

On returning to his bedside at five o'clock in the afternoon I found Miss Clinton was again on duty. She was quite calm and self-possessed and without a trace of nervous excitement.

The progress which had been shown in the morning was all lost and a change had set in for the worse. A brief examination told me that he was in a state of collapse, which was the one thing I dreaded. Within a few hours he would be a dead man.

"When will it be?" she said in a steady voice.

"Before midnight," I answered. "Would you like me to stay with you, or shall I ask Miss Shepherd to send somebody in your place?"

"I will watch alone."

"Are you a relative of the Mr. Clinton whose house was entered Saturday morning?" I asked, leading her to the window.

"He is my uncle," she said.

"And who is Bill?" I asked.

"He is my brother."

She spoke in the same steady voice.

"He went wrong as a boy of nineteen," she continued. "My uncle might have saved him, but refused to. That is why I have taken up nursing. I knew he had sunk, but I didn't know he had come to this. I hoped I might find him if I mixed with the poor."

In one little matter I was able to save her some pain.

At the door I met an officer in plain clothes whom I knew by sight.

"I'm after a man for the Forest Gate robbery. I hear he is in this house."

"He is up-stairs," I said, "but you are too late. He is dying."

The detective hesitated.

"I will give you my word as a physician that he will be dead before midnight. If you arrest him, he will certainly die on the road to the station. Do you know his real name?" I asked.

The detective looked at me sharply.

"No; what is it?"

"William Clinton, a nephew of the man he tried to rob. At the present moment his sister is watching by his bed."

The officer made a note of it in his book.

"I shall have to keep an eye on him, doctor," he said kindly, "but you may depend I shan't interfere for the sake of the young lady."

And so William Clinton passed through the gate of life in peace.—Answers.

HANDINESS OF ELECTRICITY.

Its Convenience Shown by a Novel Application On a Chicago Elevated Road.

One of the cleverest uses to which electricity has been put recently was in drilling thousands of holes through the webs of the rails of the South Side Elevated Railroad, in Chicago, while the motive power was being changed from steam to electricity. One hole seven-eights of an inch in diameter was needed in each end of every rail, and altogether there were 20,000 holes to be drilled. The work had to be done while the road was in operation, and the space for operating drills was only the nine inches between the wheel rail and the heavy wooden guard rail. The work would ordinarily be done with ratchet drill stocks, operated by hand, but with these progress would have been very slow. Instead of this electric motors were called into use.

Each motor was mounted in a little car which ran upon the wooden guard rails, and drove a flexible shaft ten or twelve feet in length, which in turn ran the drill. The drill for each machine was mounted in a compact frame, with a screw at the upper end, and the whole thing, drill, frame, and screw, was just of a size to fit in between trains, and these often ran under two minutes headway. The outfits proved to be so handy for the purpose and the men working them became so expert that during the entire progress of the work not a train was delayed for more than ten seconds by the drillers.—New York Sun.

Its Use Discovered.

"What is the use of the vermiform appendix?" asked the teacher of the class in physiology.

"The vermiform appendix," promptly answered Tommy Tucker, "is useful to keep things out of."—Chicago Tribune.

Mr. Jason (before the "old Master")—I'll bet that there was a purty fair picture when it was new.—Indianapolis Journal.

BIRDS OF PEACE IN WAR.

How the Homing Pigeon is Used to Beat Messages from Our Warships.

A series of most interesting experiments has been made during the past five or six years with the pigeons at the Naval Academy. There has been no appropriation for this work, and the loft has been conducted by private contributions from officers at the Naval Academy, and has been managed entirely by several officers and professors at Annapolis, who have given over their time and their labor in the hope of convincing the people at Washington of the desirability of the service. Prof. Marion, an instructor in French at the Naval Academy, who has studied the habits of homing pigeons most carefully, has had most to do with this work, and to him perhaps the greatest credit is due for the ultimate success of the scheme. Lieut. Austin M. Knight, United States Navy, and Edward W. Eberle have also devoted some time and attention to the question, and have published papers in the proceedings of the Naval Institute which have called the matter to the attention of the officers in the service, most of whom have through this means been shown the value of the plan. During last Summer 18 pigeons made a total of 110 flights.

Lieutenant Knight writes concerning them:

"Let us consider the case of a fleet entrusted with the defense of that part of our coast from Block Island to the capes of the Delaware. Whatever position might be taken up by such a fleet, there would be thrown out many miles beyond it a line of light, swift vessels as scouts, and upon the rapidity with which these vessels could communicate with the inner line and with the shore would depend, in a large measure, the success of the defense. Suppose a vessel of this outer line to discover an enemy's fleet standing to the westward; she would hasten toward the squadron of defense or toward the nearest point of the coast from which it might be possible to communicate with the squadron with Washington and with the cities threatened, and if not overtaken by the enemy's cruiser or by a shell from a battleship, and if she did not break down, she would ultimately communicate the fact that at a certain time—already long past—the enemy's fleet, of unknown strength, was standing in from some unknown point on the coast. Let us suppose now, that instead of hastening off herself she could dispatch a number of pigeons, with the certainty that they would carry the news quite as surely as she could carry it, and far more quickly; and that then, holding the enemy in view, she could follow his movements, and from time to time send off new messengers with particulars of his strength, his course, and his apparent intentions. It is not difficult to see the immense value of a system which promises the possibility of such service as this."

In view of these facts it will be interesting to note some of the over-water possibilities of the homing-pigeons. They have been taught to regard a ship as their home, and thus their services can be utilized both ways; but their greatest usefulness for naval purposes will be the carrying of messages from ships to the shore. The distance one of these birds will fly over the water to the land is still uncertain; but it is thought to be about one hundred and fifty miles. During a series of experiments one bird was kept over three weeks in confinement on board a ship, and when liberated was some two hundred miles from its cote; yet it returned in good time and condition. This last was an important experiment, inasmuch as it showed that homing-pigeons can be kept on board a ship for several weeks at a time; and yet retain their strength of wing and ability to find their way home. During the experiment very few birds were lost, which establishes the practical certainty of their messenger service.

In speed they are excelled only by the telegraph and the telephone. One hundred and fifty-one statute miles have been made in three hours and fifty minutes. In Belgium one bird covered a distance of two hundred and fifteen miles at the rate of over seventy miles an hour. The average speed, however, is much lower than this; forty-five miles an hour, for short distances, being usually considered good time.

The messages are fastened to the leg of the bird or tied lengthways underneath the tail feathers.

During the siege of Paris, 1870-71, as many as forty thousand messages were safely borne into the city by a single pigeon at one journey. When the messages reached their destination they were enlarged by photography and read.

The ability of the pigeon to find its way home is commonly supposed to be due to instinct. This is only partly true, for the greater part of this homing faculty is developed by careful training. When the bird is about three or four months old and has become thoroughly familiar with its home, it is taken a mile from the cote and "tossed." The next time it will be taken about three miles. The different training stages are usually one, three, six, twelve, twenty-one, thirty-five, fifty, seventy-five and one hundred miles from the bird's home. At the end of three years careful training a bird can be "tossed" five hundred miles from its native cote with some prospect of its finding its way back. However, only about one bird out of fifty can be trained to return home from a distance of five hundred miles.

Though the Cubans in 1875 were seven years in arms the President was persuaded that they had not the status of belligerents and that this country could not do so without incurring vast responsibilities for the nation which undertook to recognize them. In his message Grant briefly stated his views of the Cuban question transmitting at the same time a despatch to the Spanish Government, written by Fish, and which was sent to the other Powers inviting their co-operation with the United States in putting an end to the cruel war then raging in Cuba.

The Powers to whom the despatch was sent snubbed Secretary Fish and the President's message was also received coldly by Congress, being considered as against our well established principles to keep aloof from foreign alliances. The invitation to the other Powers was regarded as opening the door to negotiations that might give these Powers an excuse to infringe on the Monroe Doctrine. This passage indicates how the sympathetic vein of the President was worked: "Our own civil conflict is too recent for us not to consider the difficulties which surround a government distracted by a dynastic rebellion at home, at the same time that it has to cope with a separate insurrection abroad." What Congress was asked to consider was the belligerency of the Cubans and the butchery of American citizens in the Virginius case.

Neither the despatch of Secretary Fish nor the response of the European powers, by the way, was ever published in American diplomatic correspondence, and the entire precedent is divested of that authority with which it would otherwise be invested through the sympathetic circumstances under which the message was written. Spain therefore escaped the terrible crisis of the second Carlist rebellion by almost as fortunate a chance as she had saved Cuba twenty years before on the advent of the Crimean war. She therefore got over the Virginius affair by an apology, and through availing herself of the same leniency extended to Great Britain in the Alabama award.

A TERRIBLE BATTLE.

The Night Battle of Wei Hei Wei Revolutionized Modern Warfare.

The battle of Wei Hei Wei revolutionized those notions of naval warfare that have come down to us from the days of Nelson and Trafalgar and demonstrated that the fortunes of war depend upon rather uncertain conditions and minor tactical advantages. The Chinese came out of that campaign with a loss of thirty-four protected cruisers and men-of-war. Of these twenty-two were destroyed—the greater proportion in the single engagement—and twelve were captured. On the other hand the Japanese lost but one gun vessel and one torpedo boat throughout the operations, capturing the fort of Wei-Hei-Wei and its commander and utterly routing the Chinese forces both on sea and land.

Five miles out at sea the Japanese fleet was visible on that fatal March evening as it kept its armed vessels under steam ostensibly waiting an opportunity to attack the Chinese fleet which lay at anchor in the bay and protected by armed forts on either side. The Japs awaited the cover of darkness and then quietly sent a flotilla of fifteen small torpedo boats towards the East entrance of the harbor. They stole past the line of torpedoes and booms protecting the harbor of Wei Hei Wei, and before their presence was discovered they were in the midst of the Chinese fleet, each deadly torpedo tackling one of the fourteen ironclads, cruisers, gunboats or other naval craft lying at anchor. Two torpedoes were directed towards the more powerful "Ting-Yuen" and the great ironclad sank at once. Suddenly the greatest consternation reigned in the harbor; and men were screaming and ships going to the bottom in all directions. Ironclads partly keeled over and forts now combined opened a wild fire, while the speedy wasps of war that industriously plied their stings upon every object bearing the Dragon flag with which they came in contact. Having caused havoc to the Chinese fleet the swiftly moving torpedoes all shot back around the point from which they came, having sustained a loss of one boat with its crew of eight men. The more powerful vessels of the Japanese squadron did not lift an anchor, though some of them steamed over next morning to exchange congratulations with their brothers who had also silenced the guns of the forts, or to view the beached vessels of the Chinese fleet stranded and crippled in the water.

A Painful Custom.

When ladies go to buy a dress in Japan they tell the shopkeeper their age and if they are married or not, because there are special designs for the single and double relations of life, as well as for ages. The consequence of this painful custom is that you can tell the age of every lady you meet, and know whether she is married, precisely as though she were labelled or you were a census taker.

Not a Very Good Boy.

Sammie had just returned from Sunday school, and his mother asked him if he had been a good boy.

"No, not very," was the truthful reply.

"Then you didn't get a good behavior card?" queried his mother.

"Oh yes, I did," replied the precocious youngster. "I saved the money you gave me for the heathen and bought two from the other boys."—Troy Times.

Blankenburg a. H. Die hiesigen Stadtverordneten hatten zwei ihrer Mitglieder wegen unwürdigen Verhaltens ausgestoßen. Hiergegen legten die Ausgestoßenen Beschwerde beim Verwaltungsgerichtshof ein unterfämpften ein obsiegendes Urtheil, worauf alle übrigen Stadtverordneten ihr Amt niederlegten. Dieser Beschluß wurde von der herzoglichen Kreisdirektion nicht bestätigt. Nunmehr hat der Regent von Braunschweig die Auflösung der Versammlung verfügt.

Gehrden. Hier erstickten neulich Abends in der elterlichen Wohnung die vier jüngsten Kinder einer Familie, während die Mutter mit den beiden älteren Kindern nochmals zu einem Kinderfeste in den Gasthof gegangen war. Vermuthlich haben zwei im Zimmer befindliche junge Katzen die brennende Lampe umgeworfen, wodurch die Betten der Wiege in Brand gerathen sind.

Großherzogthum Hessen.

Darmstadt. Dieser Tage starb hier bald nach seiner Versetzung in den Ruhestand in vorgerücktem Lebensalter der großherzogliche Turninspektor Schulrath Ferdinand Marx. Er war ein Schüler und Freund von Adolf Spieß und stund seit vielen Jahren an der Spitze des gesammten Turnwesens in den hessischen Schulen, um das er sich namentlich durch die Heranbildung tüchtiger Turnlehrer große Verdienste erworben hat.

Ebersheim. Eine junge Frau wollte Nachts die oberen Fenster schließen und stellte sich zu diesem Zweck auf eine Wiege; diese kippte um, so daß die Frau aus dem Fenster stürzte und sofort eine Leiche war.

CHAPTER XXXII.

When Sir Roy and his cousin reached the hotel where Evangeline was staying, he helped her out, paid the cabman, and then held out his hand.

"Good-bye, Evie! I will not come in, I am going to the station."

"You are returning home?" she asked anxiously; and the Baronet shook his head.,

"I could not. I am going up to London."

"Not to follow them, Roy?" His cousin's face grew very anxious, and exhibited no little relief when Roy shook his head again.

"What could I do?" he asked hopelessly. "They are married. I am going to see the directors of a new mine in Peru, and find if I cannot get sent out there."

As he spoke he held out his hand; but Evangeline, regardless of passers-by, put her hands upon his broad shoulders and kissed him affectionately.

"Poor, poor Roy!" she said to herself when her cousin was gone, and she stood with eyes full of tears to watch his tall figure disappear in the direction of the station. "Poor, poor Roy!" she said to herself again as she lost sight of him, and turned to enter the hotel, and, though she ordered breakfast, she found that she could not eat for thinking of Roy and his ruined happiness.

Meanwhile the Baronet had caught his train as it was just moving away from the platform, and had jumped into a compartment with a reckless disregard of the by-laws and his life. The latter indeed seemed of little importance to him now. He had lost Lilac. What was there left to live for?

Sir Roy lay back in the compartment, which he had all to himself, a prey to the bitterest remorse. He could not condemn Lilac for having rendered all chance of atonement impossible. He blamed himself far too much to think of resenting her marriage with Mowbray. He had left her friendless and alone among strangers, and then by his cruel letter had made her feel that she had no further claim upon his care. What wonder that she had accepted the protection of a man who had showed himself more truly devoted to her? But worst of all was the bitterness of the thought that the step had cost Lilac as much as it cost him, that her heart was still his, although she belonged to another.

When Sir Roy reached London he went direct to the Grand Hotel and was turning in at the doorway when he started back with every pulse beating wildly. By chance he had come to the very hotel to which Mark Mowbray had taken his bride, and as he entered Roy had caught sight of Lilac herself, who was speaking to an attendant in the hall. She did not appear to have noticed him, and Roy instantly turned back into the street, afraid to meet her, yet longing with all his heart to catch another glimpse of the face he loved. Was she entering the hotel or coming out? he wondered, as he stood back and waited, trembling in every limb with excitement.

It seemed to him that she must have entered the hotel, the time that he remained waiting appeared so long, and he had almost given up all hope of seeing her again, when at last she stepped out into the street alone. As he caught sight of her a dizzy faintness seized him, and, when his wild longing to look upon her once more was gratified, the pleasure it gave him was more than balanced by the fear that she would catch sight of him. How beautiful she looked—no longer his "prairie-flower" in a blue cotton frock, but dressed in a style that became the wife of a rich and popular novelist. Her face was much paler and more delicate looking than it had been in California, and there was an expression of deep sadness in her beautiful eyes which cut him like a knife.

As she emerged from the hotel she stood for a moment on the pavement, as if undecided, and Roy wondered whether she was waiting for her husband to follow her. He was surprised when she went on alone, and stepped into the roadway as if to cross the street. A moment before his great dread had been that he might be seen; now he thought of nothing but the fear that he might lose sight of her in the crowd, and he hurried forward to follow her. As he did so Lilac turned her head, and suddenly their eyes met. Her face changed instantly, a deathly pallor overspread it, and her eyes expressed nothing but fear.

Although she was in the middle of the busy thoroughfare, she stood motionless. A policeman called to her warningly, but it was too late. A hansom came rapidly along, and, before Roy could tell how the accident happened, there was a cry of consternation from a number of spectators, and Lilac was lying in the road almost under the hoofs of an approaching pair of van horses. The next moment he had dashed forward, heedless of an omnibus that was driving by, the pole of which touched him as he passed, and had raised the unconscious girl's form in his arms before anybody else could reach her. An interested crowd had already collected on the pavement, but the Baronet forced his way through it and carried his light burden into the hotel.

"Show me the way to Mrs. Mowbray's room, and then go for a doctor at once!" he said in a calm tone of command, although his mind was in a tumult; and Lilac's frightened maid who had seen the accident from the hotel windows, led him to the stairs, while a hall-porter started to summon medical assistance.

"The room is up two flights," the maid said, stopping at the foot of the stairs. "Had you not better take her into a room down-stairs?"

But Roy shook his head. Weak and tired as he had felt a few moments before, he considered himself capable now of carrying his burden any distance. A delirous sense of possession seized him. If she were dead—and she lay so still that he almost feared the accident had proved fatal—it was something to know that it was in his arms she had died, and he laid her down with reluctance upon the couch when the maid led him to an empty sitting-room on the second floor.

"Where is Mr. Mowbray?" he asked quickly; and the strange exultation in his heart increased when she answered—

"The master is away. There was a telegram waiting for him when he reached here this afternoon, saying that his mother had had a stroke, and he had to start back for Liverpool at once. The mistress would also have gone, but that she was too tired. We shall go to-morrow however, unless we hear."

A doctor came in as she spoke. He had been passing and had witnessed the accident.

"I do not think the lady can have sustained any serious injury," he said. "She was simply knocked down by a shaft of the cab, and is, I believe, only slightly stunned by the fall. It was lucky that you picked her up so quickly, though, or that van would have gone over her." He knelt down by the couch as he spoke. "It is as I thought," he said; "she has been only slightly stunned. If she is kept quiet, she will be little the worse for the accident when she recovers consciousness. Are you a friend of hers? If not, I think it would be better if you retired before she comes round. The fewer strange faces she sees the better."

Roy hesitated for a moment. Lilac was already showing signs of returning consciousness. He glanced towards her, then walked to the door.

"No—it might startle her if she saw me," he said.

But, when he had left the room, he did not go down-stairs. Instead, he walked up and down the corridor outside, trying to conquer the most terrible temptation of his life.

There was no doubt that Lilac loved him. If he had had any doubt of the fact before, the result of her recognition in the street would have proved it to him. And he—The thought of life without her was terrible. Why should both their hearts be broken by a mere ceremony in a church? Was it not a greater sin to remain with one man while her heart was another's than to ignore altogether a mere religious form? Why should he not wait and persuade Lilac to ignore it, to forget that she had gone through the ceremony of marriage with this Mowbray, and be his wife in spite of it? He had rescued her when the man who ought to have been at her side was not there to protect her. Had he no claim to the life he had saved? The temptation was a terrible one, and the cold perspiration stood in drops upon his forehead as he walked slowly to and fro in the corridor, struggling hard with his own heart. The social position and reputation that he would sacrifice counted for nothing. It seemed childish to put them in the scale against his love. But it was the sincerity of his love which at last gave him strength to conquer, and the thought of Lilac's own innocent eyes that filled him with shame to think that there had even been a struggle.

The doctor came to the door.

"The lady is quite conscious now," he said cheerfully, "and seems little the worse for her accident. Are you anxious to see her?"

"Has she asked for me?" inquired Roy; and the doctor, who had closed the door behind him, shook his head.

"No—she seems to feel no curiosity as to how she reached her own room."

"Then I will not see her," said Roy; "I only waited to hear that she was conscious."

He walked quickly down the stairs still half afraid of himself and repeated the doctor's report to the manager who was standing in the hall talking to a police-inspector. Roy ascribed the presence of the latter to the accident and took little notice of him; but as he turned away the man addressed him.

"Pardon me, sir, but are you a friend of this Mrs. Mowbray?"

Sir Roy nodded.

"Then, sir, I wish you would do me a service," he said. I have come here with some very bad news for the lady and I was wondering how I should break it to her. I should think it would be best if it were imparted gently by a friend."

"I am afraid that I cannot oblige you," said the Baronet, gravely. "But what is the bad news?"

"Well, I am sorry to say that her husband has been killed," said the inspector.

"Killed!" gasped Roy. "Mark Mowbray killed!"

"Yes, sir—he was killed in the train just outside London by an American called Marvel," continued the inspector, "and since you will not undertake it, it must be my unpleasant duty to break the news to his poor widow Poor thing—I feel sorry for her!"

* * * *

It was two months after the tragic death of Mark Mowbray, and once more Lilac was coming to Delverton Hall, to be present at Evangeline's marriage on the morrow. The two months had been spent in nursing poor old Mrs. Mowbray, who had lingered for seven weeks after the death of her son, mercifully unconscious of the loss she had sustained; Lilac had refused to leave Liverpool till her death, and then only the special and earnest request of Lady Garth induced her once more to become her guest. Sir Roy had gone down to the station to meet her, and her ladyship and Evangeline were chatting together as they awaited her arrival.

"I suppose that I ought to be satisfied," said Lady Garth, with an unconscious sigh. "You and Roydon both seem perfectly happy, although my lifelong dream is dissipated, and you are not to be happy together. I dare say you know best. Eric is certainly a very nice fellow; and I must say it was most providential that he should acquire his legacy just at the moment of receiving your message."

"But I should have preferred Eric without his legacy," said Evangeline quickly, to whom it had come almost as an unwelcome surprise that Eric Damian, when he arrived in answer to her summons, was not quite the poor man that she had expected, owing to the unlooked-for bequest of a distant relative, who had left the young fellow his fortune in recognition of his pluck and honesty.

Her ladyship smiled and shrugged her angular shoulders.

"You are far too romantic, dear. Whatever you may say, the legacy was very providential. And, as I was remarking, Roydon seems as happy as you are. Lilac is indeed a sweet and dear girl, and her marriage—Do not interrupt me, Evangeline. I know that you do not consider it a marriage; but there is no doubt that she is legally the widow of a famous novelist and has a position in society far different from that which she held when she first came to the Hall. Socially the marriage will not be a very unequal one."

"Then why are you not satisfied?" asked Evangeline. "I think you ought to be ready to jump out of your skin, aunt Gwen, at seeing Roy happy again and about to marry the best and sweetest and most beautiful— She paused to find a few more descriptive adjectives, whereupon Lady Garth broke in—

"I will admit that Lilac is everything that I could desire," said her ladyship, who had swerved round considerably in the girl's favor now that she was no longer a waif-and-stray from California, but the widow of a leading English novelist. "But I cannot help sighing a little, dear, over the downfall of my dreams. I always hoped that the Garth estates would be reunited when you married Roydon."

"Well, that would be of no use now, aunt Gwen," said Evangeline, with the merry smile that had quite taken the place of the old sad look which had been ever in her eyes. "Even if I induced Eric to marry Lilac and leave Roy to me—which I am afraid would be difficult—the union of the estates would be farther off than ever, because I have sold mine."

"Sold the Garth estates! Evangeline, for Heaven's sake say that your words are only a foolish jest!"

Her ladyship's face was a picture of absolute horror. She raised her gold pince-nez to stare incredulously at her niece.

"They are quite true, aunt Gwen," said Evangeline solemnly. "All these railway journeys I have undertaken lately have been to make arrangements for the sale, and they are all completed now."

Her ladyship's cold aristocratic face grew hot with indignation.

Evangeline, such conduct is sacrilege; she said angrily. "I know that Mr. Damian—"

"Eric, please, auntie!"

"That Eric wishes to settle in his own county; but to allow the lands that have been in the possession of the Garths for hundreds of years to pass into the hands of strangers—I cannot believe that you would do such a thing, and without saying a word about it to me!" Her ladyship seemed in danger of breaking down under the blow.

"But the purchaser was very anxious that you should not hear a word until the transfer was completed," said Evangeline, with a twinkle in her eyes which suggested the truth.

"The purchaser, who is it then?" asked Lady Garth quickly, and the girl answered, with a smile—

"The widow of a popular novelist, if you will call her so, who inherited his wealth as well as a considerable sum from an uncle in California, of which her cousin, whom we will not further refer to, tried to defraud her."

"Lilac?"

"Yes, auntie; she has paid me a fair price for the whole of the property and will bring it to Roy as a dowry when they are married."

Her ladyship sprang up with greater enthusiasm than her niece had ever seen her display before and kissed her.

"Evangeline, how can I ever thank you?"

"You will never do so, I hope," said the heiress, "because I deserve no thanks. The idea was entirely Lilac's. Here she comes for you to thank her."

As Evangeline spoke, she had caught sight of the lovers walking arm in arm up the drive. Lilac looked like a queen in her stately black dress.

"Is she not beautiful?" exclaimed Evangeline involuntarily, as Lady Garth joined her at the window; and her ladyship gave the highest praise in her power when she answered—

"Yes, she will make a fitting wife for Roydon."

Lilac was looking up into her lover's face with eyes full of love and happiness. She was thinking of the first time that she had come to the Hall.

"It seems all so different now that you are with me, Roy!" she said; and her lover answered tenderly—

"Yes, little prairie-flower! It was foolish of us ever to be separated from each other. Nothing must ever divide us again!"

HERBERT FLOWERDEW.

EARLY USES OF GLASS.

Known First to the Egyptians, But Perfected by the Romans.

In an interesting article on "Ornamental Glass in All Ages," in the Woman's Home Companion, Orlena L. Shackleford has this to say of the antiquity of glass. The Egyptians used glass ornaments largely for personal decoration. Necklaces, bracelets, beads, scarabaei, etc., of exquisite beauty have been discovered in their tombs. It also served to bedeck clothing, and innumerable domestic objects were made of it for daily use. Indeed, the accommodating medium was adapted by them to an infinity of purposes, being blown, cast, rolled, wrought or cut, as the worker willed, whether into statues of their gods or as glass eyes for the sightless sockets of their mummies, to express the wish of the soul to arrive safe and whole at the end of its journey. The Romans excelled the Egyptians as extensive users of glass. It served them for decoration to walls and floors, for all sorts of domestic vessels, cinerary urns and coffins (the Egyptians buried Alexander the Great in a glass coffin), for ornaments, toys, dice, draughts, chessmen and water clocks. We read of a table of solid emerald that was carried off by the Goths when they sacked the Eternal City, but it is now considered not to have been of precious stone—only fine green glass or jasper—yet deemed sufficiently valuable to be set with pearls and mounted in gold.

"These great builders—the most practical of antiquity—were not slow to realize the value of this transparent medium as a means for transmitting light into their palaces and temples; but their window-panes were only from 7 to 10 inches square, and the glass was more green than white, lacking the crystal clearness of our modern productions. Glass mirrors were known to the Egyptians and Romans. Specimens have been found in the tombs of the former, and documentary evidence from Pliny, Seneca Lucretius and others undoubtedly proves their possession by the latter. Glass was used for lamps in Pompeii, but we have no evidence of its being applied to such a purpose in Egypt, where it was appropriated more largely to ornamental and decorative rather than domestic purposes."

WHY HIS WIFE CAME BACK.

Hubby Out Five Dollars and In For a Frigid Home Atmosphere.

An Omaha man, whose business it is to write a great deal, and not in the shape of correspondence, would rather take quinine than write letters. His wife is a great letter-writer, and when she goes away she insists on receiving a daily letter from her husband. If he fails she comes home in short order, and for a time the atmosphere of the home is frigid.

A short time ago the wife went on a visit to her parents, and before leaving gave her husband explicit instructions to write every day. He promised to do so, and meant to keep the promise. He forgot the first day until too late, so he wired that he would write the following day. That night he secured the services of a stenographer and dictated a letter.

"Now I want you to use that letter as a model," he said to the stenographer, "and write twelve others, all differently worded, but containing about the same thing. Date each one a day ahead of the other, put each in an envelope properly addressed, and attend to mailing for me. Here's $5 for your trouble."

The stenographer who was young and inexperienced, agreed.

Three days later the husband received a telegram reading: "Will be home on first train. Meet me." The wife's name appeared at the bottom.

The husband was distressed, fearing that something had happened. Time passed slowly, but at last the train arrived. When his wife stepped from the train he grasped her and asked:

"What's the matter, my dear?"

The wife said not a word but walked into the depot. Then she opened her little grip and quietly handed her husband a bunch of letters.

The stenographer had followed her instructions, but she had mailed all the letters on the same day.—Omaha World-Herald.

When Reynolds Reigned Supreme.

An interesting anecdote is told of Sir Joshua Reynolds. The famous portrait painter used great quantities of snuff, and he would take it so freely when he was painting that it frequently inconvenienced those sitters who were not addicted to it. During the time he was engaged in painting the large picture of the Marlborough family, at Blenheim, the Duchess ordered a servant to bring a broom and to sweep up Sir Joshua's snuff from the carpet; but the painter, who always withstood the fantastic head tossings of some of his sitters, by never suffering any interruption to take place during his application to his art, ordered the man, when he entered the room to obey the Duchess's commands, to let the snuff remain till he had finished his picture, observing that the dust raised by the broom would do much more injury to his picture than the snuff could possibly do the carpet. The servant was, for the moment, quite bewildered, but regaining his wits, he appealed to his mistress, and, on receiving no sign from her, he retired silently from the room, leaving his task unaccomplished.

Little Willie—Pa, what is that saying about its being "better to have loved and lost"—

Mr. Hennypeck (feelingly)—It is better to have loved and lost than never to have lost at all.—Judge.

GOLF.

There will be individual play at golf on the course of the Park Golf Club today. It is not expected that any matches will be arranged for this year on this course.

It is not now believed that a golf match will be arranged between the Hillside team and the Harbor Hill team, as the dates for the balance of the season are nearly all filled.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

One of the events of the season will be the appearance of Downing and Sigmons comic opera and vaudeville company, which appears at Music Hall Friday and Saturday, with Saturday matinee, October 7th and 8th. They have twenty-five first-class performers, including a band and orchestra of ten soloists.

Arthur L. Titsworth, of Seventh street, has recovered from a severe affection of his right wrist, which interfered somewhat with his organ playing.

THE BADGER CREW.

May be Several Days Before They Will be Discharged.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Philadelphia, October 1.—The crew of the Badger, consisting principally of New Jersey Naval Reserves, Battalion of the East, are enjoying shore leave today. Many of them were very seasick on the tempestuous passage from Boston, and the change is most agreeable.

The sights of Philadelphia only serve to make officers and men more anxious than ever to get home to Newark and the other north Jersey eities. It is understood that they will leave for Hoboken today by rail, the muster-out to take place on board the Naval Reserves' training ship Portsmouth.

If this proves to be the case, it may be several days before the reserves will leave Uncle Sam's service. However, they will be able to go to their homes. All the Newark men are highly pleased at the prospects of being honored by a banquet, to be tendered by citizens.

The health of the men is excellent.

TO WAR ON SEWER BEDS.

Township Health Authorities Decide to Investigate Them.

A meeting of the North Plainfield Township Board of Health was held last night, Loftus Hollingsworth, Augustus Mobus, William Demler and Theodore Luerrson were elected members of the board. The board then organged with Mr. Luerrson as president and Robert M. Clark as secretary. Dr. D. C. Adams was elected as township physician, George N. Steard as inspector and Robert M. Clark as atrorney.

Charles Sebring, Wm. H. Smith and Robert M. Clark were appointed a committeee to visit the vicinity of the sewer beds with the inspector and investigate the alleged nuisance. If the committee deems it a nuisance, they will report the matter to the State Board of Health and take measurers to abate it.

Dr. Brett Will Be Present.

The anniversary of the Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will be held in the lecture room of the church next Thursday evening, and Dr. Brett, of Jersey City, president of the State Union, will be present rnd make an address.

—Charles E. Bicknell, the Somerset street fruit dealer, will have a special sale of oranges, bananas and pears tonight. Prices the lowest in the city. His place of business is "on the bridge."

—Doane & Edsall are offering some special bargains in shoes just now, and a little money will go a great way in purchases there. See samples in their window tonight, with prices ticketed on same.

Machinists Show Little Interest.

The machinists tried to get together and organize last night into a union, but there was such a little interest shown that the effort had to be abandoned. George G. Cameron, organizer of the International Association of Machinists, was in town and called a meeting in Washington Hall.

Although there are 700 machinists in town employed in the various shops, only half a dozen showed interest enough in the movement to come out. Another effort may be made to organize them later.

Lectured on Law.

Lawyer Robert M. Clark, of this city, gave a lecture before the Plainfield Business College yesterday on the subject of law. The lecture was so well received that the students unanimously requested him to give several more.

HOLIDAYS IN MANILA.

At One Time There Were Over Forty in Every Year.

Manila loves holidays. At one time there were over forty in each year. The number had been sadly diminished, though there are still thirteen left. Each pueblo has its saint, and on that saint's day the inhabitants give themselves over, as they do on the great holidays of the church, to music, fireworks, cockfighting, processions, etc.

Almost all these processions took place at night, and the effect was most picturesque. There would be a line of marchers, men, women, and children, walking in single file on each side of the street, every one with a lighted candle in his hand. At intervals, in the middle of the road, would come images of the Saviour, the Virgin, and the saints, borne on the shoulders of from ten to thirty men, surrounded by priests, and preceded by a band of music. Some of the images were covered with diamonds and other precious stones, said to be enormously valuable. In these cases there was always a guard of soldiers with fixed bayonets about the image. Often there would be thousands of people walking in these processions; and all the while it was moving, tens of thousands of rockets and bombs would be fired. These rockets and bombs are home-made. The rockets consist only of a joint of bamboo filled with powder, exploding with great noise, but with little light. The bombs are simply a handful of powder tightly wrapped with hemp. They cost a mere trifle, but make a great noise, and no fiesta is complete without plenty of them.

The most curious procession is participated in only by natives and the poorer mestizos. It takes place, if I remember rightly, during Holy Week, and is a high solemnity. Every one walking in the procession is robed in his grave-clothes. The garment is a long, loose gray robe with a hood, and it comes to the ground. The effect is very strange, and as the people go they repeat continually: "Santa Maria, Madre de Dios, ora pro nobis!" It may seem strange that grave-clothes are provided before they are needed; but in Manila they are considered a prime necessity, and every native owns those clothes, even if he is bare of all other. The ordinary dress of the native man is trousers and shirt of "piece-goods" (colico), the shirt being worn outside the trousers. On holidays they wear a shirt made of "pina," which is an expensive material. Native servants wear the same articles, but they must be of spotless white; and very suitable and nice-looking it is though I suppose that the idea of being driven by a coachman so dressed would shock the habitues of Central and Hyde Parks. A curious freak of custom was that native servants were required to serve bare-footed, while it was an insult if a Chinese servant appeared before his superior without his shoes.—Wallace Cummings, in Century.

FOR SALE BY LEADING DEALERS.

Greatest Slaughter of Fall and Winter
CLOTHING
ever held in Plainfield. Prices within the reach of everybody. Clothing marked regardless of cost or value, at No. 214 West Front Street, Plainfield, N. J. Next door to Music Hall. Sale begins Saturday, Oct. 1st, at 8 a. m.

Need of ready cash causes a sacrifice of Fine Clothing by manufacturers.

This is an honest disregard of values. Necessity compels this offer. This sale was organized by two wholesale clothiers by consolidating their surplus stock of fine Suits, Overcoats and Trousers, amounting to $10,000 worth of the very best products of their shops. These are sold regardless of their real value. Cash is what is wanted, and cash they will have, if low prices will sell goods. This is no humbug. Practical inspection is cheerfully invited. The firms who furnish these goods for sale are among the best known houses in the country. Each one pledges himself to be individually responsible for the statement made here. The display made is elegant. We guarantee that for $1.00 you get $3.00 worth of clothing.

A chance of a life-time to buy the finest, newest and most up to-date Fall Overcoats, Business Suits, Dress Suits, Coats and Vests, Winter Overcoats and Trousers, handsomely and elegantly made, equal to the best merchant tailor work, at prices never heard of before.

We deal only in reliable clothing and will not undertake to sell one dollar's worth of clothing unless we know that what we sell will give the wearer as good wear as if he paid us what the garment is worth, and here are prices that will prove a hard nut for competing stores to crack.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR BASKET BALL.

Inter-Association Contests to be Held.

FIRST TEAM BEGINS WORK.

ALL THE OLD PLAYERS ARE BACK AND WILL PLAY.

There Are Also Some Thirty Other Candidates Anxious to Show Try for Team—They Will be Given a Show in Other Teams—Season to Open October 10th—Practically Four Teams.

By long and persistant efforts during the past two years the basket ball team of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. has risen to a position among the leading teams of this section. Some of the best teams hereabouts have been defeated by the local team while with others, the Plainfield boys have made an excellent showing.

The only trouble with the game in Plainfield has been that there was comparatively little chance for the other members of the association who were not on the regular teams to get a chance to learn the points of the game in a personal acquaintance. Of course, they could play together but the first team had the benefit of all the coaching and the rest played as they wished.

There were practically four teams in the local gymnasium last season. There was the first or regular team that represented the association in all the matches with out-of-town clubs. Then the members of the Business Men's gymnastic class had a team that occasionally arranged games with other clubs. The two other teams were strictly local. They were the "Students" and the "Big Five." The two last teams and the Business Men played matches occasionally but there was no regular contest arranged among them.

This year, a new order of arrangements is in view. The six young men that made up the team, with one regular substitute, are all anxious to play again this year. They have now been together for the past two years and understand each other pretty thoroughly. Besides, there are some thirty other candidates for the first team. There is not much doubt, however, but that the team will be made up of the same players. They are Walter L. Long, Max Moraller, Eric Moraller, Berry Egan, George Proctor Smith and Fred Bonny.

The physical work committee of the Y. M. C. A. has a new plan in view to give the others interested in the game a chance to play as well as make the game more general among the members of the association, and train some of the lesser lights up to championship form so that they will be able to furnish new material for the regular team. There are to be three teams for inter-association contests. Each team will be under the direction of two of the players from the first team who will captain and coach the new men in all the points of the game that they have learned from experience. These three teams will arrange a regular schedule and play for the championship of the association. In this way, it is expected to greatly increase the interest in this sport.

Monday evening, October 10th, will see the opening of the class work at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. It is hoped to have the first game of basket ball on that occasion. Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood is arranging an excellent programme for that evening, part of which he hopes will be a game with a New York team. The regular team began practice Friday evening when all the regular team except Smith, who is out of town, appeared together with a number of other candidates. The practice will be continued now with regularity.

Walter L. Long was elected captain of the first team at the practice Friday night. The uniform of the team was also selected. It will consist of grey padded short trousers, a jersey of white, maroon or black, black stockings and white shoes. The object of the three colors for the jerseys is to enable the team to wear a color different from their opponents, whatever they happen to be.

AN APPROACHING MARRIAGE.

Dr. J. B. Probasco Will Wed Miss Edman Next Wednesday.

The approaching marriage of Dr. J. B. Probasco, of East Front street, to Miss Gertrude Edman, is announced. The event will be celebrated at the home of the bride's sister in New York Wednesday, and will be very quiet. Miss Edman was formerly one of the nurses at the hospital.

MISS COLGATE'S DEATH.

"ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING" IS THE RETURN MADE BY A DOCTOR.

Funeral of the Dead Girl Will be Held Today—She Was Heir to One of the Biggest Estates in Manchester, N. H

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Manchester, N. H., October 3.—"Accidental shooting" is the return made by Dr. J. Franklin Robinson on the tragic death of Elizabeth Eastman Colgate Thursday afternoon. The family accepts this theory and supposes that the young woman shot herself unintentionally while handling a revolver which was given her during the summer.

Others outside the family, including many who knew Miss Colgate intimately, incline to the belief that she committed suicide while temporarily unbalanced. Members of the family admit that at times Miss Colgate's mind was not right. Once before she had attempted suicide.

The funeral of the dead girl will be held today.

Miss Colgate, who was familiarly known as "Betsy," was twenty-two years old, and a daughter of the late Clinton G. Colgate, a New York broker, and Mrs. Fannie Eastman Colgate, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Arthur M. Eastman. Colonel Eastman was at one time associated with Cyrus W. Field in the Atlantic cable project.

Miss Colgate had made her home almost entirely with her grandmother in Manchester. Her grandparents were at one time the wealthiest family in Manchester, and she was the probable heir to most of the property. It is feared that Mrs. Eastman, who is about eighty-five years old, may not survive the shock.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL RALLY.

INTERESTING EXERCISES IN THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

Marked the Resumption of Active Work After the Summer Months—Services in First Methodist Church.

The annual rally of the members of the Sunday-school of the First Baptist church was held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and was attended by not only the scholars, but a large number of parents and friends. The Sunday-school room, especially about the platform, was prettily decorated with American flags and golden rod. The exercises were in charge of Acting Superintendent George H. Batchelor. They consisted of Scripture reading, singing by the school and prayers by the superintendent and Rev. Dr. Yerkes. Features of the programme was a vocal duet by Mr. and Mrs. L. Biglow, Jr.; soprano solo by Miss Harris; a recitation, "The Boyhood Dares," by Clarence Smalley; and a patriotic exercise by the members of the primary department under the direction of the superintendent, Mrs. Powlison. This exercise consisted of recitations and songs. During the afternoon an admirable and interesting address was made by the pastor of the church, Dr. Yerkes. He congratulated the scholars and teachers of the school, as well as the officers, for the excellent work accomplished during the past year. Acting Superintendent Batchelor also made a few remarks appropriate to the occasion. The rally throughout was one of great pleasure and profit to all.

Yesterday was Rally Day with the Sunday-school of the First M. E. church. The afternoon session of the school was resumed after the vacation season and there was a large gathering of scholars ready for the active work of the fall and winter. The attendance of pupils and teachers was large and very gratifying.

The platform and front of Vincent chapel were prettily decorated with wild flowers and autumn leaves. The superintendent, J. W. Jackson, was in charge. After a short period for the lesson, a roll-call was held. There were also short missionary exercises.

The roll of honor was announced and included the Misses Smalley, Bolsterli and Coddington, teachers; and the scholars, Harold Fenno, Mamie Devine, Clara Knight, Gertrude Sharp, Florence Taynor, Stryker Hoagland and Jennie Devine. The roll of honor included those who had not been absent more than three times in the last three months.

Business and Pleasure.

On Thursday evening the members of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church will meet at the home of Miss Florence G. Hawkins of La Grande avenue, and hold their annual election of officers. A sociable will follow the business session.

—The regular fall opening of fine millinery takes place at White's tomorrow. Stylish hats for ladies, at moderate prices, will be shown you.

WILD WOMEN ROAMED IN SOMERSET WOODS.

Both Tell Terrible Stories of Ill Treatment.

NOW CONFINED IN JAIL.

ONE OF THE CAPTIVES IS A THIRTEEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL.

She Was Found Wandering on the Mountain Near the Home of Freeholder Logan—Gave Her Name as Mary Nortice—Other Woman Found Wading in a Stream—Had Been Abused.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Oct. 3—The Somerset county officials have received reports during the past week from the Watchung mountain district of a wild women seen in the woods near Chimney Rock and in the valley near Pig Mountain. Chimney Rock is eight miles down the range from Pig Mountain, and the woman was variously described as young, scantily clad and barefooted and as middle-aged, of a repulsive appearance, wearing only a short tattered garment. The information puzzled the authorities. The mystery was solved Saturday by the capture of two women. W. J. Logan, president of the Somerset county Board of Freeholders, brought down from the mountain a barefooted girl, as brown as a berry, with a pretty face and dark eyes, whom he found wandering on the mountain near his home. He handed her over to Poormaster Michael Corcoran. The girl said her name was Mary Nortice, and that she was 13 years old. She looked much older. She stated that she was the daughter of a mountaineer living near the Washington Valley, who treated her so cruelly that she ran away from home and preferred to live in the woods. Nortice was sent for by the authorities. He said the girl's story of cruel treatment was false. She ran away from home and he had been searching for her. He believed she was slightly demented. He promised to take her home and care for her, and she was released.

The second woman was found wading in a stream in the woods near Bridgewater township poor farm. She remained in the water all day Friday. She was approached by a crowd of farmers, who tried to induce her to come out of the stream. She was clad in a tattered dress and her bare limbs and feet were cut and bruised. Her arms and face were red and greatly swollen, as if poisoned. She refused to give her name or utter a word. Farmer John Conover pulled her from the stream and induced her to go to his home nearby, where he locked her in a room overnight. She was brought to the county jail here today. Poormaster Michael Corcoran believed her to be an Italian and took an interpreter to her cell. It was a long time before she consented to talk. She said she was brought from New York city by a Frenchman who has a country place near Mount Bethel, twelve miles from here. He had four children, for whom she cared. She says the man beat her and drove her off into the woods. Her memory as to her own name and the name of the Frenchman, she says, is a blank. The authorities are investigating her story.

It is known that a Frenchman living near Mount Bethel employs a number of Italians. The woman is about twenty-five years old, with dark hair and eyes. She appears to understand all that is said to her, but will make no reponse. She will remain in the county jail under medical treatment while the officials are endeavoring to solve the mystery.

Back From the Klondike.

John Underhill, of Washingtonville, who has been searching the Klondike regions for sometime past, has returned home for a while. He expects to return to the gold fields in the near future. While away he had the pleasure of meeting Robert Wyckoff, of this city, who is also searching for gold. He reports that Mr. Wyckoff is doing very well.

Told a War Story.

The afternoon meeting at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday was addressed by Fred Kuehnle, a private of Co. D, 71st N. Y. Volunteers, who is now back in business again, after having been through the battle of Santiago. In the evening the soldier addressed the congregation in the First Presbyterian church.

At the Ice Works.

In a few days workmen will begin to build the smoke stack on the Hygeia Ice Plant. They would rather do this now than to wait two or three weeks and have to shut down after the works are in running order. They will begin to manufacture ice in about a week.

RETURNS TO HIS HOME, HIS MIND IS A BLANK.

Sad Condition of Thomas K. Leslie, of Front Street.

ABSENT FOR FOUR DAYS.

FOUND HIMSELF WANDERING AIMLESSLY IN NEWARK.

Former Sheriff Kyte Advertised for News of His Whereabouts in Sunday's Herald—Appeared at a Fanwood House Yesterday in a Pitiable Condition—Unable to Explain Where He Has Been.

MISSING since Sept. 27th. Thomas K. Leslie, aged 60; height 5 ft. 5 in., weight 175; gray hair and mustache, florid complexion, irregular teeth, one lower front missing; black shoes and Derby hat; yellow pyrites ring. Address GEORGE KYTE, Fanwood, N. J.

Thomas K. Leslie, a resident of West Front street, and a New York business man, now lies at his home in this city in a dazed condition, and perfectly unable to give any account of his life during the past week.

Last week Tuesday Mr. Leslie was in New York and went out to dinner with a friend. After dinner the two men parted at the corner of Fourteenth street and Fifth avenue. That was the last seen of Mr. Leslie until yesterday morning when he stopped at the home of Mr. Palmer, of Fanwood. His mind is a blank and he cannot tell what took place during his absence. He remained at Mr. Palmer's house during the day and was brought to his home last evening. Mr. Leslie has been questioned, but all he can tell is that he found himself in Newark and that he walked from that city to Fanwood.

When Mr. Leslie disappeared every effort was made to get a trace of his whereabouts without advertising the matter in the papers, but a small advertisement as above appeared in the New York Herald yesterday morning. Mr. Leslie is a relative of ex-Sheriff George Kyte, of Fanwood, and the latter devoted much time in searching for the missing man.

Mr. Leslie is engaged in the embossing business in New York, and has always stood high among business men. His mind has always been sound, and his relatives cannot account for his strange actions. It is hoped that within a few days his mind will return to him and that he will be able to tell something of his experience.

TROUBLE OVER A SHOVEL.

The Disputed Article Used as a Weapon on Victor's Head.

Two laborers, working in the brickyard on Maple avenue, had some trouble about the ownership of a shovel Saturday. The shovel was a new one and had just been given out by the foreman. Both men wanted it, and in the scuffle Victor Roach says that Alexander Smith struck him several blows over the head with it. Upon that Roach went before Justice Smalley and swore out a warrant for Smith's arrest.

Smith was arrested this side of the brook by Constable VanHorn, who hed the warrant indorsed by Justice Mosher. Smith retained Lawyer George Ball to defend him, and Justice Smalley reserved his decision in the case until today.

Sold Under a Mortgage.

Last April Benjamin D. Ford, of Malvern Hill, Va., commenced proceedings through George Ball, solicitor, to foreclose a purchase money mortgage on property located in Metuchen and owned by the late Harriet Markham. The suit was contested by a second mortgagee, F. M. Bacon, but Mr. Ball succeeded in having the answer stricken from the file, and the sale was held Wednesday, Sept. 21st. Wm. M. Cortwright, of West Fifth street, was the purchaser, and the deed will be delivered Oct. 5th.

To Tell of the Convention.

Delegates in attendance at the State Christian Endeavor convention at Asbury Park last week will tell what they saw and heard at the great gathering of young people and celebrated divines at the meeting tonight of the Trinity Reformed church society. Endeavorers and others are always welcome.

Father Murphy Transferred to Cranford.

Rev. Father Murphy, formerly an assistant to Rev. Father P. F. Smyth at St. Mary's church, this city, and later of St. John's church, Paterson, has been appointed to the rectorship of St. Michael's church at Cranford, to succeed Rev. James P. Smith. Father Murphy will assume his duties tomorrow.

Wanted in Several Places.

It is reported that Paul Metz, the piano tuner, who is now confined in the county jail on charges of theft, is wanted in several other Jersey cities on similar charges.

GOLF INTEREST IS GROWING RAPIDLY.

Saturday Was a Big Day at the Hillside Tennis Links.

PLAY FOR THE FISK CUP.

EVENTS SCHEDULED FOR REMAINDER OF THE SEASON.

At One Time There Were Sixty-seven Persons Playing Saturday Afternoon—Success of the Club Far Beyond Expectations—Many New Visitors Saturday Afternoon — The Scores Made.

Last Saturday afternoon was one of the liveliest in the history of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club and the course was occupied all of the afternoon with golf enthusiasts. At one time there were sixty-seven persons playing, and in all there were about two hundred people who visited the clubhouse and grounds. Especially noticeable were the number of private carriages present bringing many people, who were there for the first time.

Of course, everyone greatly admired the club's new house and grounds and were delighted with the situation. An informal tea was given by the women of the club, and in the evening dinner was served to a large number of people.

The success of the club is far ahead of anything heretofore dreamed of and if it continues to increase larger accommodations will have to be made. At present twenty-four additional lockers are being installed for the men and women of the club, and increased accomodations will have to be made to provide for the horses and carriages that are brought to the grounds.

It seems to be the general opinion of many golf lovers that the membership of the club has reached its limit. This is not the case and there is yet room for many more people.

The course is now in excellent condition and during the fall it will be used continually. Saturday afternoon play was continued for the Mrs. Fisk cup and quite a large number of players were contesting for honors. The following scores were turned in:

	Gross.	Handicap.	Net.
J. H. P. Wharton	98	10	88
C. Wharton, Jr.	123	14	104
O. Saugstaud	118	10	108

A. R. Fisk	103	14	89
H. C. Tracy	129	18	111
F. C. Ard	114	12	102

The following events are scheduled for the remainder of the season: Oct. 8th, Reinhart cup; Oct. 15th, team match with Dyker Meadow Golf Club at Brooklyn, Scoonmaker cup, 3 p. m., home grounds; Oct. 22d, monthly handicap; Oct. 29th, team match with Baltrusrol Golf Club, home grounds; Nov. 1st, girl's handicap; Nov. 5th, Chapman cup, preliminary rounds; Nov. 8th, Chapman cup, first round, 10 a.m., semi-finals, 3 p. m.; Nov. 12th, Chapman cup, finals, 3 p. m.; Nov. 19th, monthly handicap; Nov. 24th, mixed foursomes Gilbert cup, 10 a.m.; Nov. 26th, Fisk cup, 10 a. m., men's foursomes, 2:30 p. m.

BOWLING ON THE GREEN.

Last of the Pleasant Affairs at Christian Schepflin's.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, N. J., October 3.—What is scheduled to be the last bowling contest for this season on Schepflin's green, was begun Saturday afternoon. The bowling was among the men, and is for a prize offered by Mr. Booth, of New Brunswick, a handsome clock, surmounted by a bronze figure. The prize, like all the others offered this season, is well worth striving for.

There are seventeen contestants for the prize. The players roll in pairs, and the winners in the first set roll together in the second, and so on until there are only ten remaining. These two play together and the successful one wins the prize.

Only one-third of the players took part in Saturday's game, so it is expected that the contest will not be decided or the prize awarded until late in the month.

A Y. M. C. A. Event.

Every one is invited to the opening exercises of the Y. M. C. A. educational department tonight. They will be held in the large hall, and an interesting programme has been prepared. There will be vocal and instrumental music, and also an elocutionist present. Plans for the educational work for next year will be outlined at the meeting.

For the Children's Home.

At the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church yesterday a collection was taken up for the Children's Home. The amount secured was $142.

THE RIVER POLLUTED.

CRANFORD HEALTH OFFICIALS AFTER THE OFFENDERS.

Mills in the Orange Valley Said to be to Blame for the Condition of the Stream—They Will be Prosecuted.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, October 3.—The pollution of the waters of the Rahway river, and the means by which this pollution can be stopped, is being considered by the Cranford Board of Health. Game Warden Brown, of Roselle, states that he has made an investigation and located the source of the nuisance in the Diamond Paper Mills, the Fandango Mills, and six hat factories, all of which empty the contents of dye vats and other chemicals into the headwaters of the stream. He said that Superintendent VanGilder, of the Diamond Mill, at Millburn, agreed some time ago to filter this material, but had as yet failed to do so.

The warden had written twice to the health authorities of South Orange, where the hat factories are, and he read a reply to his second letter from the secretary of the Orange Health Board stating that if the cities using Rahway water for drinking purposes had any evidence of its pollution, they might present it to the Court of Chancery and obtain an injunction against the law-breakers.

President Hunt, of the Cranford board, read a number of complaints from farmers, stating that their cows could not drink the filthy river water, and said he had caused to be collected and preserved in bottles samples of water taken from the river near the factories complained of. The Cranford Township attorney was by resolution directed to present the facts to the State Board of Health.

BRUNSWICK MEN WON.

FIFTH COMPETITION FOR PETERS TROPHY HELD SATURDAY.

Dunellen Missed Some of Her Best Men—Winning Team Made Good Scores—T. H. Keller, of Plainfield, the Highest.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, October 3.—The team race of the Central New Jersey Trap-Shooters' League for the Peters Cartridge Company trophy, shot at the grounds of the Reservoir Gun Club, of this city, Saturday afternoon, was the fifth competition of the series. It resulted in a second victory for the Reservoir Club.

It was expected that Dunellen would make a hard fight for the prize, but two of their best men failed to put in an appearance. The Climax Club has also scored two wins for the trophy, and Dunellen one, so the next contest will be of unusual interest.

The score of the winners was exceptionally good, two of their members scoring 23 out of a possible 25. The highest score of the day was made by T. H. Keller, he scoring for the second time during the series a full score of 25. Darby, of the Climax team, was decidedly out of form which is accounted for by the fact that he has not shot any of late. "Tee Kay," Jr., seems to be a promising novice and shows improvement at each meeting. His score of 17 is above the average and particularly good for a beginner. The next shoot of the league will take place at Bound Brook Saturday, Oct. 15th. Dunellen will then make a strong bid for victory. Bound Brook will also put in a strong team, and it is to be hoped that one of these clubs will score a win and keep the leaders company. Several sweepstakes were also shot during the afternoon. The following are the individual scores:

RESERVOIR GUN CLUB, OF NEW BRUNSWICK.

Narrowly Escaped Drowning.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Berkley Heights, October 3—Peter Dickenson, while fishing a few days ago in the Passaic river, lost his balance in the boat which he was using and narrowly escaped being drowned. He cannot swim and it was with difficulty that he managed to reach the shore. He was finally able to get on shore and after awhile he recovered from his exciting experiences.

A BICYCLE THIEF CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

Started to Ride Away With Alpheus Stein's Wheel.

STEIN SERIOUSLY OBJECTED

CHARGED WITH ANOTHER CRIME HE FINALLY CONFESSED ALL.

Charles Ludy, of DeKalb Avenue, Now Awaiting Action of Grand Jury at Elizabeth—Confessed That He Took Tommy Timbo's Wheel—Police Were Sharp Cross-Questioners—Timbo Happy.

Tommy Timbo was jubilant this morning and sang the praises of the Plainfield police without reserve. He had his wheel back again, good as new, while the confessed thief of it now rests behind the bars at the county jail, charged with grand larceny.

Saturday evening, Alpheus M. Stein, of 52 Grandview avenue, rode up to the postoffice on his Cleveland wheel. Leaving it leaning against the curb, he walked a short distance away and stopped to speak to a friend. When he turned around he saw his wheel going down the street in the hands of a young man. Stein rushed after him and remarked that he thought there must be a mistake somewhere. The young man guessed maybe there was. He thought it was his wheel, he said, but now noticed that it wasn't. Then Patrolman Vanderweg appeared on the scene.

The young man told the officer that it was all a mistake and was for departing at once but Vanderweg said no. The young man grew persuasive but the patrolman was obdurate. The young man said his name was Charles Ludy and that he boarded with his sister at 91 Somerset street. Vanderweg locked him up despite his pleadings and investigated. No sister was found at the address. Instead, it was ascertained that Ludy lived with his parents on DeKalb avenue. They are respectable people. Young Ludy has been learning the trade of a mason.

Sergeant Kiely and Roundsman Flynn started an investigation. They found that Ludy had been seen riding an Eclipse wheel two weeks ago Sunday. Then they began to cross-question the prisoner. He soon entangled himself with his stories until he saw that it was hopeless and confessed that he had stolen Tommy Timbo's wheel from in front of the latter's store on North avenue two weeks ago.

Ludy told how he had gone riding that day with a lad named Clark from Liberty street out the Stelton road and returned by the way of New Market and Dunellen. Half way between those two places his tire punctured and he threw the wheel into a neighboring field and left it there.

Yesterday afternoon the Sergeant and Roundsman went out to find the wheel. After spending an hour in a fruitless search, they met a colored man named Henry Stevens. He had seen the missing wheel in a field and told John Wyncoup who lives nearby. Wyncoup is a locomotive engineer on the Jersey Central Railroad. They went to see Wyncoup and found the wheel at his house. He had repaired the puncture and cleaned up the wheel and was patiently waiting the arrival of the owner. In the evening Timbo identified the wheel and took possession.

This morning Ludy was arraigned before Justice Newcorn and admitted taking both of the wheels. He was committed to the county jail at Elizabeth to await the action of the Grand Jury.

The police believe that Ludy has been concerned in several of the other bicycle thefts that have occurred in this neighborhood lately. He was rigorously questioned but would not admit any more. After his confession he was greatly dejected and spent much of his time weeping. He asked for a Bible.

MAYOR WILSON DISPENSED JUSTICE.

Four Offenders Must Pay $10 or Go to Jail for 10 Days.

Mayor Wilson, of the borough, held court this morning and four men were arraigned before him. The charge in each case was drunk and disorderly. Charles Cashin and James Totten were arrested yesterday morning on Somerset street by Marshals Winn and Campbell, while Wm. Jeroloman and Albert Eyke were arrested about the same time by Marshals Wise and Winn on Somerset street and Greenbrook road. They were all causing a great deal of trouble and this morning His Honor gave them the choice of paying $10 each or going to jail for ten days. The prisoners have not yet decided what they will do, as they are trying to raise the money to pay their fines.

TO CURE NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Mean, Make a Test of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Interesting Experience of an Indianapolis Gentleman.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think that their nerves are to blame, are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines and spring remedies; the real seat of mischief is lost sight of; the stomach is the origin to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, not perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every other organ; in some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others, the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite, with the accumulation of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

Mr. A. W. Sharper, of No. 61 Prospect St., Indianapolis, Ind, writes as follows: "A motive of pure gratitude prompts me to write these few lines regarding the new and valuable medicine, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I have been a sufferer from nervous dyspepsia for the last four years; have used various patent medicines and other remedies without any favorable result. They sometimes gave temporary relief until the effects of the medicine wore off. I attributed this to my sedentary habits, being a bookkeeper with little physical exercise, but I am glad to state that the tablets have overcome all these obstacles, for I have gained in flesh, sleep better, and am better in every way. The above is written not for notoriety, but is based on actual facts."

Respectfully yours,
A. W. Sharper,
61 Prospect St., Indianapolis, Ind.

It is safe to say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headaches.

SAGASTA TRUSTS, M'KINLY

Madrid Believes That the Conditions of Peace Will Not Be Onerous

Madrid, Oct. 3.—Many reports have been sent out stating that the Spanish government had lodged a serious protest at Washington and ordered the Paris commission to stop negotiations, all on account of the course of events in the Philippines. There is no truth in all that.

The Spanish government does not propose making any reclamations whatever. Senor Sagasta says that by the protocol concluded at Washington, the United States engaged not to give assistance to the Lagalos, and he feels sure that President McKinley will keep his word.

In ministerial circles the spirit is optimistic. The talk is that the terms of peace will be less unfavorable to Spain than was anticipated; that the president will act in a generous spirit, and that Spain is not to be despoiled of the Philippines.

Admiral Cervera presented himself to General Polavieja Saturday and has joined the latter's political party for reform and pure government.

The members of the chamber of commerce of Barcelona have voted to protest against Senor Sagasta for not answering their urgent telegrams.

The Marquis de Camillas has gone to Paris to make arrangements for further transports to repatriate the troops and not for the purpose of negotiating a loan, as generally supposed.

The Imparcial says anything which suggests the continuation of the war should be rejected by Spain. This is said relative to the Philippines, which the leading papers of the country openly discuss the wisdom of relinquishing.

Porto Rico Ours by October 6

San Juan de Porto Rico, Oct. 3.—The Spanish transport Isla de Panay arrived here Saturday, and a second transport is expected to-day. These, with a hospital ship which will come from Havana to remove a number of sick troops, will carry away about 3,500 Spanish soldiers.

Sufficient vessels are said to be now on their way here to remove the remainder of the troops.

It is Admiral Schley's opinion that the evacuation by the Spaniards and the official delivery of the island to the American authorities will be completed by October 6.

The Spaniards are now engaged in perfecting the details of the evacuation and arranging for the transportation of officials and their families back to Spain.

New Camp Sites

Washington, Oct. 3.—General Schwan who has just returned to Washington, has made a report recommending that camps be located at these points:

In Georgia, at Augusta, Macon, Americus, Albany and Atlanta.

In South Carolina, at Columbia, Spartanburg and Greenville.

He recommends that in Alabama the camps at Anniston and Huntsville be retained.

It is thought that Gen. Schwan's recommendations will be approved, as they are the result of a long and thorough investigation of the subject.

TALKATIVE AGUINALDO

HIS SPEECH IS A SURPRISE

Aguinaldo Does Not Occupy a Very Firm Seat. Forced Into Malolos Demonstration by Hotheads Anxious to Have American Policy Defined. All Parties Are Awaiting the Result.

Manila, Oct. 3.—No change has been made in the situation here by Aguinaldo's Malolos demonstration. All parties are still awaiting the result of the Paris conference to determine the future of the islands.

Even if a delegation from the dictator does wait upon General Otis and offer him the protectorate over the new "republic" it is not likely the veteran commander will commit himself.

Aguinaldo has been forced into action by hot heads desirous of securing from the Americans some indication of the probable policy of the United States. The dictator president does not occupy a very firm seat, and unless some definite result to his actions can be shown soon he realizes that his own life will be endangered.

The Americans are settling down for a long occupation of the city of Manila. Several wives of officers arrived on the Arizona.

Great mortality continues among the Spanish prisoners in the walled city, despite the fact that the whole place is copiously sprinkled with disinfectants, the American sanitary corps making the most strenuous efforts to cleanse the place before the unhealthy season, now just opening, gets into full swing.

Private Edward J. O'Neil of Company E, First California volunteers, was not killed before Manila, as was reported. The man is still alive.

By order of Provost Marshal General Hughes every official of the Manila penitentiary was arrested Saturday. General Hughes declines to make the specific charges public, but the men are suspected of peculation and of using their office against the American interests here.

Aguinaldo's Speech.

Manila, Oct. 3.—There is considerable comment here upon Aguinaldo's speech at Malolos on Thursday. During the course of his remarks Aguinaldo said:

"Our friends the Americans came for the purpose of demonstrating the generosity and grandeur of their government and to assist in releasing the people from slavery without annexing the islands, thus setting a good example. We now understand and appreciate the famous Monroe doctrine of 'America for Americans,' and justice demands that they add 'the Philippines for the Ilipinos.'"

The insurgent officials express disappointment at the non-attendance of Americans at the festival of Malolos. The provincial government has declined to allow an American officer to inspect the Dagupan prisons and secure their plans without Aguinaldo's sanction. The half-caste interpreter used threats, and, consequently Aguinaldo instructed his troops at the railroad stations beyond Malolos not to allow any Americans to pass.

Mothers Congress at Utica

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 3.—The New York State Congress of mothers, held here last week, adjourned Saturday after a harmonious and pleasant session. The name was changed, and hereafter the organization will be known as the Association of Mothers.

Many valuable and instructive papers were read. The work of the congress is to be devoted to urging upon the mothers of the state the necessity of inquiring into the conditions surrounding the school life of their children and recommending a personal interest in the teachers under whose care the children were placed, and to securing adequate instruction of girls in the duties of motherhood.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. D. O. Mears of Albany; first vice president, Mrs. J. Calvin Meade of Oswego; second vice president, Mrs. E. H. Merrill of Syracuse; recording secretary, Mrs. Almon Hensley of New York; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Franklin H. Chase of Syracuse; treasurer, Mrs. Fannie Bailey of Syracuse.

About one hundred delegates were in attendance.

Filipinos at White House

Washington, Oct. 3.—The interview of the Filipinos delegates with the president was Saturday entirely informal, it being distinctly understood that the administration did no receive the representatives of the insurgents in any official character.

General F. V. Greene, who came from the Philippines with them, was present throughout the interview.

While the Filipinos refused to discuss the interview, claiming it to have been to pay their respects, it is presumed they informally talked over their mission, which is to secure representation on the Paris commission, if possible, if not, then to be heard by the commission as to the attitude and wishes of the insurgents. Assistant Secretary of State Adee was present at the interview.

Camps in Cuba.

Washington, Oct. 3.—The war department has decided to send boards of officers to Cuba to investigate and report upon locations for camps for the army of occupation in that island. Each board will consist of a quartermaster, a commissary and a surgeon. Havana, Cienfuegos, Matanzas and Mariel will be visited. There will be five posts established, including Manzanillo, and six counting Santiago.

Thousand Sick at Santiago

Washington, Oct. 3.—The following cable has been received at the war department:

Santiago, Sept. 30, 1898.

Fever cases of all kinds, 622; total sick, 1,062. Death, Paul Vincent, Ninth United States volunteer infantry, bilious fever; died September 29.

WONDERS IN WARSHIPS

Bids Received for Building Four Large Monitors.

WILL BE GOOD FIGHTERS

Lewis Nixon, Newport News, Bath and Union Iron Works Likely to Get the Contracts—The Bids Were Well Within the Limit Fixed by Congress—A List of Those Who Presented Bids

Washington, Oct. 3.—Bids were opened Saturday at the navy department for the construction of four harbor defense vessels of the monitor type, authorized by Congress at an expenditure of $1,250,000 for each monitor.

There were some limitations in the act, such, for instance, as that not more than two of the vessels should be built in one ship yard, while an allowance of four per cent. was made in favor of the Pacific coast shipbuilders in case they bid. The act also provides that the secretary of the navy shall award the contract to the "lowest best responsible bidder," which is unusual and seems to admit of the disregard of bids from any but the most responsible firms.

The act also directed the secretary to have in view "the best results and most expeditious delivery." Consequently the department in laying down its requirements made twenty-seven months the maximum time for the completion of the vessels providing a penalty ranging from $300 to $600 per day for any delay in their completion.

The bids were opened and announced by Judge Advocate General Lemly, examined by Chief Constructor Hichborn and Engineer-in-Chief Melville, and reported by Constructor Zahn and Passed Assistant McFarland.

All of these concerns submitted bids as follows:

Lewis Nixon, $825,000, to be completed in 27 months; Newport News, $860,000, in 27 months; Bath Iron Works, $862,000, in 27 months; Union Iron Works, $874,000, in 27 months; Maryland Steel Company, $876,000, in 26 months; Wolff & Zwicker, $937,500, in 27 months; the W. B. Fletcher Company, $927,000, in 21 months; Columbian Iron Works, $1,015,000, in 27 months, and John Dialogue, $1,171,000, in 26 months.

From the face of the bids it would appear that the lowest bidders for the four vessels were Nixon, Newport News, Bath and Union Iron Works. The last would seem to be entitled to a monitor even without the allowance of four per cent. which the law provides. This is made possible by the fact that all of the bidders, including the three who were lower than the Union Iron Works, limited their bids to one monitor each.

The bureau chiefs of the navy department are congratulating themselves that the bids are well within the limits fixed by Congress, and as there is little opportunity for irregularity in the bids, owing to the fact that only one set of plans were open, it is probable that there will be no difficulty in awarding the contracts.

The monitors are to be built strictly in accordance with the department's designs, no provision being made, as is usually the case, for the submission of contractors' plans. In type they have no duplicates in modern ship construction, and, more than anything else, resemble the little monitors which distinguished themselves in the civil war. The board of bureau chiefs would have liked much to have provided a more powerful class of vessel, but the small limit of cost fixed in the appropriation act prevented this, and they were obliged to content themselves with single turreted monitors of 2,700 tons displacement.

While resembling roughly the war monitors, these new vessels will be vastly superior to them in actual power. Their speed, for instance, will be twelve knots, about double that of the old vessels. Their batteries will consist of two twelve-inch breech loading rifles capable of piercing the side of nine-tenths of the naval vessels of the world; four four-inch rapid fire guns, and seven smaller calibred rapid fire guns like those that did such service in the destruction of Cervera's squadron.

The builders are not required to furnish either guns, armor or turrets. The turrets, by the way, are to be electrically controlled, like those on the cruiser Brooklyn. These turrets will be of the balanced type, ten inches thick, behind 11-inch barbettes, and a belt of armor eleven inches thick and five feet broad will be placed on the sides of the vessels.

The monitors will be 225 feet long, fifty feet broad, and draw about twelve and a half feet of water, enabling them to move freely in any of the shallow Atlantic coast harbors.

Forest Fires Spreading

Denver, Col., Oct. 3.—Forest fires on the west slope of the Rockies continue to spread, and only a heavy rain can stop them. In the vicinity of Steamboat Springs there has been a rainfall which checked the fires there, but they are still smouldering and will start into life again unless there is more rain soon. The local forecaster says no change in the weather is in sight, though the welcome prediction of the weather bureau in Washington is "showers."

Governor Adams said yesterday that from what he has been able to learn the fires are due wholly to accident. Within a day or two fires have appeared on the west slope of the Pike's Peak range, and large sections of timber are being destroyed.

The fires seem to be burning fiercely along the west side of Mount Baldy, which rises to an altitude of 13,000 feet, four miles south of Pike's peak. The people of Pitkin county are terrified at the havoc wrought by the fire raging near Aspen.

Porto Rico a Military Department

Washington, Oct. 3.—The president has issued an order creating a new military department, to be known as the department of Porto Rico, with Major General John R. Brooke in command. The headquarters of the department will be at Ponce until after the evacuation of the island by the Spanish army, when it will be transferred to San Juan.

I must say that I was very tired tramping from store to store without coming to a conclusion where to buy. We saw some things we liked in one store and other things we liked in other stores, but there didn't seem to be any one store in which we could buy to our entire satisfaction until we reached Hahne & Co.'s.

I never enjoyed such a half day in my life. Everything was so new and bright that I was afraid we would be hampered in making a choice. It's apt to be that way, you know, when so many good things are spread before you, but when we settled down to work, we found buying a real pleasure.

The choice of carpets puzzled us not a little. There were so many new and pretty patterns to choose from that we, Harry, Emma and I, were forced to take a vote on the carpet for each room. Sometimes I was on Harry's side and sometimes on Emma's.

For Emma's room we selected an all-wool filling cotton chain ingrain at forty-eight cents a yard, and for the spare room an all-wool ingrain, the best made, at sixty cents. For the parlor we decided upon a very pretty velvet carpet at eighty-five cents a yard, and for the dining-room a Smyrna rug at $18.95. For the hall and stairs we chose Brussels at sixty-five cents a yard.

I fairly went wild over Hahne & Co.'s upholstery department. I never had seen such a beautiful collection of curtains, and I don't believe another State in the world can match it. For the bedrooms we bought bright ruffled bobinet curtains at $2.75 a pair. We put them up in that fascinating cross style, using two rods, and drawing them back into silk loops that cost 10 cents a pair.

The curtains for the dining room were the Renaissance effect at $2.25 a pair. In the parlor we put up Irish Point Lace Curtains with an exceptionally deep heavy border in cushion work. They cost us $5.98 pair. We draped them with silk lambrequins at top, white corrugated pole and corrugated trimmings to match.

The furniture department next engaged our attention. When we stepped from the elevator into this beautiful section of Hahne & Co.'s store we were—well, I put it mildly by saying we were amazed. The arrangement of furniture is, as Hahne & Co. truthfully say, "The handsomes in the world."

For Harry's and Emma's room we picked out a bird's eye maple suit for $35. It is a gem. For the spare room we went a little higher and selected a lovely brass bed at $35, and made an exquisite contrast by adding a curly birch bureau at $22, and a toilet table at $20, a total of $77.

For the parlor we purchased a silk velour and inlaid mahogany frame suit of five pieces for which we paid only $50. For the dining room we bought an eight-foot oak extension table for $15, a sideboard for $25, a china closet for $15 and six leather seat chairs for $24, costing in all $79. A hall rack cost us $12, and $15 was the price we paid for a hall settee.

Last week Harry and Emma moved into their new home, and in honor of the event they gave a house warming. The Jiltons, the Graysons, the Petervilles and other fashionable people were there, and all declared that it was the prettiest, coziest little nest for a bride they had seen in many a long day.

AN ORDINANCE

to amend an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance Concerning Dogs," approved July 6th, 1887.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Sections 2 and 3 of the ordinance to which this is an amendment, shall be as follows:

Section 2. That there shall be established for the purpose of impounding dogs not muzzled as provided in Section 1st hereof, found running at large, a dog pound, to be in charge of a pound-master to be specially appointed. One suitable person shall also be specially appointed whose duty it shall be to seize and impound all dogs not muzzled as required by section 1st, which shall be found running at large in the streets of said City. Said person so appointed shall wear a shield as a badge of office, said shield to be provided by the City Clerk, and shall be entitled to receive as compensation for his services the sum of twenty-five cents for each dog delivered by him to the pound-master. Should any person appointed as aforesaid seize or impound any dog other than such as are not muzzled as required in section 1st, he shall upon conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding Five Dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding five days, either or both.

Section 3. That all dogs delivered to the pound-master shall be subject to a charge of Twenty-Five Cents per day or fraction of a day for their keep while in charge of the pound-master, and a penalty of One Dollar to be paid by the owner of the dog to the pound-master for its redemption in addition to the charge for keep. The poundmaster shall receive as compensation for his services, one half the penalties paid him, and shall be entitled further to the charges for keep before mentioned. All dogs unclaimed or unredeemed at the expiration of four days after their being impounded shall be put to death by said pound-master in the most merciful and humane manner possible.

Section 4. That the pound-master and dog catcher shall be under the supervision and control of the Board of Police.

Approved by the Mayor Sept. 1st, 1898.

MILES AND ALGER

Alleged Act of Discourtesy Shown to the Secretary by the General.

Washington, Oct. 3.—Army circles are considerably wrought up over what they claim has been a great act of discourtesy shown to Secretary Alger by General Miles.

It is said that General Miles has not held any intercourse whatever with the secretary since the latter's return to Washington and that he has not even made his official call upon the secretary in his office.

Both the men have their business offices within a few feet of each other, General Miles occupying a commodious suite of apartments on the first floor of the war department building, while the rooms of the secretary are on the second floor, just above those of the general commanding the army. The relations between the secretary and General Miles continue to be strained and there is no telling what will be the final result.

Military men, as a rule, think that General Miles is making a mistake in permitting his quarrel with the secretary to influence his business and official relations with him.

Cases are cited where well known officers have been on such unfriendly terms that they have not spoken to each other in private, but in all these cases, it is said, they have always taken great care to have their official relations remain cordial, so as not to attract public attention to their quarrel.

General Gomez is Grateful

Havana, Oct. 3.—General Maximo Gomez has left the Rojas camp and is retiring to the estate of Boarl-Yaguyay, near Remedios, province of Santa Clara. He has given his staff permission to visit their families. Gomez is only accompanied by General Luis and by the Dominican author, Senor Despradel.

Captain Page, General Butler's aide-de-camp, who has ben on a visit to General Gomez at the Rojas camp, says Gomez seems grateful to the United States and confident that the American authorities will be able to establish a stable and independent government.

Jose Thomas and Pedro Cano, representing the central committee of the Cuban workmen at Key West, arrived here yesterday morning on board the steamer Mascotte for thte purpose of collecting funds to relieve the necessities of poor families desirous of returning to Cuba in the month of October. It is reported that the Cuban junta has obtained from the American government a promise to furnish transports to bring back to Cuba the poor workmen who emigrated during the war.

Doesn't Like Their Looks.

Paris, Oct. 3.—The Paris correspondent of the Imparcial of Madrid has telegraphed to his paper that he is amazed at the appearance ot the American commission. He says:

"They do not appear as a delegation of diplomats, but as Cook's tourists. There are some of all sorts—ladies more or less young, children and even a nurse. Their luggage fills two omnibuses."

The correspondent then gives the biography of each American commissioner, and of Judge Day he has the following to say:

"He, unfortunately, is too well known politically. He is a small man, short, thin and careless in dress, with a sickly appearance, sallow cheeks and prominent cheek bones.

There is a total of the commission of thirty-four and not one of them brings a servant."

Severe Storm in Savannah.

Savannah, Oct. 3.—For fifteen hours, from 3 a. m. until 6 p. m., Sunday, Savannah was held in the grasp of a West Indian cyclone. During that time the wind blew steadily from fifty to seventy miles an hour.

While the city escaped with comparatively little damage, the loss of property among the sea islands of the Georgia and Souh Carolina coasts is believed to be heavy.

All telephones, telegraph, police, light and fire alarm wires are down, and the city is in darkness.

For miles in every direction around Savannah the lowlands along the rivers are submerged.

Caroline Miskel-Hoyt Dead.

New York, Oct. 3.—Mrs. Caroline Miskel-Hoyt, wife of Charles H. Hoyt, the actor and playwright, died yesterday afternoon at two o'clock, soon after giving birth to a daughter, at her home, No. 25 East Thirtieth street. The child survived the mother only a few hours.

Mr. Hoyt is bowed down with his great sorrow. Only two years ago he lost a little daughter. The mother at that time was desperately ill, and the words of sympathy that came to them from a large circle of friends showed the affection in which Caroline Miskel-Hoyt was held, for she was as charming and attractive a woman as she was a lovely actress.

Hohenstein Still Premier.

Vienna, Oct. 3.—The report that Count von Thun-Hohenstein, the Austrian premier, has resigned, is unfounded. The premier appeared in the Reichsrath, where he made two speeches.

The opposition demanded that he explain the agreement arranged with Baron Banffy, the Hungarian premier, in case of its being impossible to pass the Ausgleich constitutionally.

Count von Thun-Hohenstein refused whereupon the opposition demanded a division on the question, and the premier was defeated by ten votes. His defeat, however, does not entail his resignation.

Gen. Miles in Town

New York, Oct. 3.—Major General Miles arrived in this city Saturday and called at the Army building about 9 a. m. He was in Colonel Amos J. Kimball's office for a half hour, and left the city for Sandy Hook to witness ordnance tests. General Miles was accompanied by a member of his staff, Colonel Francis Michler.

After the tests the general went to Colgate Hoyt's country place out on Long Island. Mr. Hoyt is a relative of Mrs. Miles.

Generals Will Be Mustered Out.

Washington, Oct. 3.—Four major generals of volunteers and twenty-five brigadier generals of volunteers are to be mustered out of the United States service soon.

GRAVE CRISIS IN CHINA

Reports of the Emperor's Murder Confirmed. Horrible Details

PEKIN AMERICANS STONED

Reported Suicide Turns Out to Have Been Horrible Assassination. Executions were Barborous Torture. A Red Hot Iron Said to Have Been Run Through the Emperor's Body.

London, Oct. 3.—A special dispatch from Shanghai says the announcement of the death of the emperor is confirmed. The reports as to the means employed in his taking off differ.

One story has it that he died by poison and another that death was caused by strangulation, while a third states that he was subjected to frightful torture, a red hot iron being thrust through his bowels.

A special dispatch from Shanghai says it was semi-officially announced there that the emperor of China committed suicide on September 21.

An earlier special dispatch from that place says telegrams furnished by the Taotai, or local governor, to a Chinese paper there, allege that the emperor committed suicide on September 21, after signing the decrees which placed the empress dowager at the head of affairs in China.

This, it is added, is understood to mean that the emperor was assassinated.

All the English speaking secretaries and the principal membeds of the Chinese foreign office, it is further announced, have been seized and banished.

The British foreign office Saturday received a dispatch from her majesty's minister at Pekin saying that Mr. Mortimer, a member of the British legation, on returning home with a lady, was insulted and attacked by a mob, which stoned him and covered him with mud.

Later in the day, the dispatch says, some American missionaries were similarly attacked, as was the Chinese secretary of the United States legation. The latter's ribs were broken.

Sir Claude M. Macdonald, the British minister at Pekin, reports that there is dangerous feeling abroad. Steps have been taken to call the attention of the Chinese government to these outrages.

The chief interest here now centers on China, where it is the general opinion that the emperor has already been done to death by the empress dowager, Yehe, who now appears, was once a barmaid in a Chinese liquor shop.

The emperor is known to have lately shown leanings toward Christianity, and it was recently reported that he had burned the Confucian classics in the palace.

The man who will now ascend the throne of China is Yin, a grandson of Prince Kung. He is a good looking, intelligent young man of decidedly pro-foreign leanings. He is regarded by the Chinese as being the legitimate successor of the emperor's predecessor.

Englishmen who have met Yin declare he will not be a puppet like his predecessor. He has a stronger will, and, moreover, is not related to the empress dowager. A prominent resident of Pekin, Dr. Dudgeon, who is perhaps the only foreigner who ever dined with Yin, asserts that the empress dowager is not opposed to progress. He adds that she was responsible for the installation of electric lights in the palace and introduced a railroad and an electric launch into the palace grounds. She is also held to have favored other western ideas.

It is now said that the dismissal of Li Hung Chang, who was the ally of the empress dowager, and the strong pressure of Russia, which was alarmed at the probable results of the mission of the Marquis Ito to China, were the true causes of the Emperor's deposition.

The time, however, has gone by for a continuance of the old regime. The Young China party will not rest satisfied with the existing state of things. Kang Yuwei, the fugitive Cantonese reformer, is known as the modern sage of China. He is the leader of the reform party and the originator of the society formed in opposition to the custom of binding the feet of Chinese girls, which was organized in Canton with a membership of ten thousand.

Kang's daughter has never bound her feet and has published a treatise against foot binding.

Note Circulation Increased.

Washington, Oct. 3.—The monthly statement of the controller of the currency shows that at the close of business on September 30, 1898, the total circulation of national bank notes was $235,356,950, an increase for the month of $8,178,335, and an increase for the year of $4,631,459.

The circulation based on United States bonds amounted to $205,056,063, an increase for the month of $8,280,359, and a decrease for the year of $548,718.

The amount of circulation secured by lawful money was $30,300,887, a decrease for the month of $5,180,177. The amount of United States registered bonds on deposit to secure circulating notes was $229,986,129, and to secure public deposits $68,461,120.

Guns from the Oquendo

Playa del Este, Cuba, Oct. 3.—Naval Constructor Hobson has returned here from the wreck of the Almirante Oquendo, bringing with him ten of her guns.

Warning of the approach of a hurricane having been cabled here, all the ships sought shelter. The barometer is low, but there has been no blow as yet.

The bridge of the Infanta Maria Teresa has been decked. Some human bones were found in the inner bilge. A large force is now engaged in the wrecking.

Cable repair men on the Caubet have succeeded in repairing the cable at Caimanera.

Death of Mme. Carnot

Paris, Oct. 3.—Mme. Carnot, widow of President Carnot of France, who was assassinated by an Italian Anarchist at Lyons on June 24, 1894, died Saturday at thte Chateau de Preale.

A THOROUGH EXAMINATION

One Hundred and Fifty Already Called to Give Testimony.

Washington, Oct. 3.—A heavy week's work is ahead of the commission for the investigation of the conduct of the war.

Probably the most conspicuous witnesses will be called this week. Among them will be Generals Wheeler, Young, Kent, Hawkins, Chaffee, Shafter, Miles and Lee.

It is doubtful if there will be time enough during a week to examine them all, but that is the expectation at present.

It is feared, after inquiry into the subject, that as former Secretary Sherman's charges are based on hearsay he will be a valueless witness, but the development of the inquiry may render some statement from him necessary in which case he will be called.

General Lawton will be examined in Santiago on the visit of the commission to that city.

After the work here is done, the commission will go to New York cityF. It will devote its inquiry to the investigation of numerous complaints.

One hundred and fifty witnesses have been summoned and the committee will remain there for several weeks. Among the witnesses called is Miss Helen Gould, who will tell about the alleged hospital inadequacies of various kinds.

Every brigade and division commander at Santiago will be called. The cause of summoning these officers at once is that the greatest number of complaints is filed against Santiago, and they will therefore be first taken.

The complaints thus far are divided into five groups: Santiago, Camp Wikoff, Camp Thomas, transports and Tampa. What General Lee has to say will be classed under the general head of Tampa.

In the investigation of the transportation department, Colonel Hecker will be called upon for a statement clearing up complaints against his office.

For example, it has been charged that although General Wilson in his report pronounced Charleston to be a good harbor, regiments were taken hundreds of miles out of the way from Chickamauga to Newport News, causing both discomfort and expense. They were carried over the road of which M. E. Ingalls of Ohio is president. Against this action on the part of Colonel Hecker's department it is said he has just urged Charleston as a good place for the embarkation of troops to Cuba.

The inspector general's department will be looked into, and General Joseph C. Breckinridge will be put upon the stand. There has been a strange absence of officers from the inspector general's department in the camps. General Breckinridge only has been heard from, and he was first a staff officer and then in command at Chickamauga. The regular officers in this department have been used for other purposes and straw men have been added from political considerations.

Making Ready to Occupy Cuba.

Washington, Oct. 3.—Secretary Alger had an extended conference Saturday with Quartermaster Luddington, General Eagan, commissary of subsistence, and General Sternberg, surgeon general, regarding the preliminaries for the occupation of Cuba.

The conclusion was reached that a board of officers should be sent to Cuba to examine the various points where troops are to be stationed and to select sites for camps.

This board will consist of Colonel J. G. C. Lee, quartermaster; Lieutenant Colonel Lasker H. Bliss, commissary of subsistence; Colonel Robert N. Riley, surgeon, and Lieutenant Colonel Rogers Birney, ordnance bureau.

They will visit Havana, Cienfuegos, Matanzas and Mariel. There will be four United States military posts in Cuba, aside from those at Santiago and Manzanillo. The forts and military positions of the Spaniards will necessarily have to be garrisoned and stations of troops will be placed in such localities as will insure their availability for service.

Gen. Lee Talks.

New York, Oct. 3.—General Fitzhugh Lee arrived at the Fifth Avenue hotel Saturday night with Captain Algernon Sartoris, who is on his staff.

"I came up to see my son, who is at West Point, before I go to Cuba," said General Lee.

"My army corps will go about the middle of this month, I think, and I believe we shall land in Havana province."

This prospect of returning to the city of Havana at the head of American troops seemed to please General Lee.

"Our camp at Jacksonville is all right," he said. "Sanitary conditions are excellent, and we have been treated well by the commissary and medical departments. We have no complaints to make. I shall testify before the investigating commission next Wednesday."

The Great Battleship Illinois.

Washington, Oct. 3.—At 11 o'clock tomorrow there will glide off the ways at the yards of the Newport News Shipbuilding Company the biggest, most powerful and probably the most generally effective battleship in the United States navy. This will be the Illinois, which is expected by the naval designers to be a worthy godchild of the state whose name she bears. Larger by a thousand tons than the Oregon, larger than the Iowa, now the biggest battleship in the service, the Illinois is still so designed that she will be able to enter any harbor open to the smaller battleships, while in the matter of speed she will rank with the fastest afloat.

Safe Factory Closed Indefinitely.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 3.—The works of the Mosler Safe Company at Auburn have closed for an indefinite period, and the company will hereafter manufacture the Corliss safe at their works at Hamilton, Ohio.

The reason given for the change is that Corliss safes can be more economically manufactured at the Hamilton plant than at Auburn. Some of the more expert workmen will be sent from Auburn to Hamilton.

Shafter to Come to New York

Washington, Oct. 3.—Major General W. R. Shafter has been assigned temporarily to the command of the department of the east, relieving General Gillespie, who will resume his regular duties as engineer of that department.

Mayor Si's Sauce.

Mayor Silas D. Drake, of Lincoln, was waited upon by a delegation of Lincolnites a few days ago and urged to become a citizen of the place himself. Though the Mayor has used all his versatile arguments to secure residents for Lincoln during the past two years, he has failed to convince himself of the advantages of living there and has instead been a commuter to Bound Brook. As Hamlet wouldn't be Hamlet with Hamlet left out so Lincoln don't seem to be Lincoln with the irrepressible Drake left out, and therefore the citizens have performed the strange duty of asking the Mayor to live in the town he rules over. Silas concluded that what was sauce for the goose was sauce for the gander, and so he has announced his intention of removing to Lincoln immediately. To commemorate the event Mayor Drake has decided to give a dinner to newspaper men of this section.

New Jersey's Glory.

Though New Jersey gained but little glory out of the late unpleasantness with Spain, her business men are bound to figure conspicuously in the saying "in time of peace prepare for war." At the opening of bids in the Navy Department in Washington for the construction of the four new type of monitors, authorized by recent act of Congress, Lewis Nixon, of Elizabeth, was awarded the contract. With this great work to be executed in Elizabeth and the building of disappearing gun carriages at the Pond Machine Tool Company's works in this city, Union county is taking front rank in both military and naval construction.

As The Press Predicted.

When John Kean was awarded the franchise to build a trolley line along the proposed widened county boulevard The Daily Press commented that real difficulties of the enterprise had not yet been undertaken—that of securing consents from interested property owners. The news that John Keron, who has been employed by the Board of Freeholders to do this work, is meeting with a large number of property owners who want high prices for the right of way in front of their property, too high to be accepted and bring the improvement within the estimated cost, shows that The Daily Press' comment was not far out of the way.

Co-operation.

The National Co-operative festival held annually in Great Britain occurred several weeks since at the Crystal Palace, London, and the reports made on that occasion were full of interest and suggestion. The possibilities of co-operative enterprise as a solution, at least in part, of the clashing of capital and labor have been widely discussed and its experiments closely scrutinized. All the facts naturally command the attention of people on both sides of the Atlantic. The system has acquired a "locus standi" in political economy. It has failed in many instances. Yet it has been markedly successful in others. In England the success has been more distinctly in the line of distributive cooperation than that of productive. In the latter form indeed there have been only a few notable instances in England, with rather more on the continent perhaps, and these have not always lived to be more than temporary. But as an agency of effective and economical distribution co-operation shows a striking aggregate of achievement in Great Britain, demanding a few words of comment. Including both kinds of co-operation they have done a business within less than a generation of $272,000,000. The largest part of this was that of the distributive stores. In the period from 1885 to 1895 the societies increased in number from 1,441 to 1,966 and in membership from 850,659 to 1,430,340, the amount of capital from $55,785,465 to $106,656,995, the value of sales from $156,529,550 to $275,501,245, the value of profits from $14,948,450 to $26,945,355. It should be borne in mind that these figures have reference to distributive as well as productive co-operation societies. The capital of 84 productive societies in England, which represented the copartnership of labor, was only about $2,250,000.

The bonus on the total of the wages paid was 1¾ per cent. The distributive stores showed an average saving to the membership of about 5 per cent. The reason is not far to seek why distributive has been more successful than productive co-operation in that there is less temptation to depart from the pure doctrine. This is that the co-operator must take losses as well as accept profits. In distribution he is benefited as a customer, if he fails as a shareholder. But in case of production, should the year go wrong, he loses both as capitalist and as workman. It is said that the danger affecting both forms is that the highly successful societies begin to covet the profits after awhile and refuse further membership, though selling to all desiring to buy on equal terms. In other words, they tend to degenerate from the co-operative idea and become capitalistic in their methods. It is an interesting fact that the English Wholesale societies, which are both producers and distributors, do not pay any bonus on wages to the workmen employed. In other words, they are capitalistic in production and co-operative only in distribution.

These institutions have been of immense value to the English workman, and, while they have not solved the problem of capital and labor, they have gone a considerable way in alleviating some of its difficulties. Mr. Henry D. Lloyd, well known in the United States as an able writer on these subjects, in a recent book calls attention to one notable fact. On the continent democracy has found expression in attempts to topple over thrones and upset the established order of things. In England it has saved its sixpences, established methods of co-operation growing from small to large and striven to work out its own salvation.

Nearly everyone in Plainfield knows what a jolly, bright lot of people the Christian Endeavorers are, and at the recent State convention of the young Christians held at Asbury Park there were many little incidents that showed the genial characteristics of the members of the noble order. One of them was when Rev. Mr. Braker, of Scotch Plains, met one of the fair delegates who had forgotten his name.

"Another name for the waves," said the reverend gentleman, with a suggestive smile playing about his lips.

It was sometime before Mr. Braker could attempt to reply to this sally.

An observing Plainfielder who visited Trenton last week was struck with the numerous drinking fountains scattered about the city streets for the use of horses, and now he writes to The Daily Press asking why Plainfield cannot support one or two of these great instruments of humanity for the world's most faithful beast servants. Now here is a chance for some philanthropist to do a good work. Who will be the first to take the initiative?

Congressman Pitney has changed his mind about holding office for the next two or three years. But he will shun the National halls of legislation and will seek a seat in the State Senate as the representative from Morris county. It is said that he will get anything he asks for in that county. Evidently Mr. Pitney believes the quickest way to the Governor's chair is through a seat in the State Legislature.

William B. Gourlay, of Paterson, Chairman of the Democratic State Convention, has appointed the committee to notify Prosecutor Elvin W. Crane of his nomination for Governor. John D. Bartine, of Somerset county, is chairman of the committee. The notification will take place in the Jefferson Club rooms at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

One thing is certain, Prosecutor Elvin W. Crane will not hold his present office after March next, when his term expires. If he is elected Governor he must perforce resign before inaugurated in January, and if he is not elected Governor, Governor Voorhees will appoint a Republican to succeed him in March.

Daly, of Hudson, isn't eclipsed even if he failed to get the Democratic nomination for Governor. Hudson county politicians are studying whether to have Daly go to Congress or the State Senate. Daly's preference is for Trenton, it is said.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

The comic operetta, "Honolulu," to be preceded by a one-act comedy and six high class vaudeville acts, will be the attraction at Music Hall for two nights, commencing Friday, October 7th, with a ladies' and childrens' bargain matinee Saturday. There are twenty-five people with this company, including Prof. J. Simons' brass band and orchestra of ten soloists, who give a free concert at 12 o'clock in front of the theatre.

* * * * *

Manager Maze Edwards will have for an attraction Monday of next week George W. Peck's famous play, "Peck's Bad Boy." This is the fifteenth year of continued success of this bright and sparkling comedy, but like rare old wines it improves with age. There probably has never been any one play that has been kept up to the standard and improved from year to year as this piece. The play has been rewritten, and new scenery has been painted by Seavy, the well-known scenic artist, for this season. Great care has been taken in the selection of the cast, all of which has gained metropolitan fame.

* * * * *

The enjoyment of the audiences which attend the performances of "A Runaway Girl" at Daly's Theatre, New York, is testified by the surest of signs—the number of encores accorded the many pretty songs and dances. The clever manner in which they are treated by Virginia Earle, James T. Powers, Mabelle Gilman and others of Mr. Daly's company no doubt has the larger share in making them popular.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

A jury over in Plainfield, N. J., smoked a box of cigars from a lot on which payment had been refused and promptly decided that they were not worth the price charged. Should this practical test be extended to disputes over other articles jury duty might become more popular. Suits over wine bills would probably cause a rush for the now hated jury box.—New York Herald.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, Oct. 3—The Board of Education will meet tomorrow night.

Rev. D. C. S. Woodruff and wife, Rev. M. Kinsey, Rev. M. Simpson and Rev. M. Frazer have also been secured to address some of the services of the Methodist church during the anniversary week.

Mrs. M. Pittenger, of Buttsville, has been keeping house for her sister, Mrs. Adam Dealaman, while the latter was away to Niagara Falls.

William VanMiddlesworth and daughter, Miss Minnie, are enjoying a few days' wheeling trip through Monmouth county.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Neilor, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Silas Neilor, have returned to their home in New York.

Mrs. Harry L. Terry and daughter, Miss Helen, have returned from Flemington, where they have been on a visit.

Miss Bessie Benton, who has been visiting the Misses Marlow, has returned to her home in New York.

Miss Hattie Wilcox, who has been visiting Miss Maud Wilcox, has returned to her home in Westfield.

Mrs. W. H. Kuhn, who has been visiting her mother at Hampton Junction, has returned home.

Miss Oakley, who has been visiting friends in town, has returned to her home in Brooklyn.

The roller has returned from Harris Lane where it has been used to roll down the roadbed.

Mrs. George W. Day and son are spending a few days in Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor have been visiting relatives in Montville.

The regular meeting of the Borough Council will be held tonight.

Miss Lulu Adams is able to be out again after a long illness.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

New Market, Oct. 3.—Miss Lulu Davis left Saturday for Brooklyn where she goes to prepare herself to be a trained nurse.

The Ladies' Orchestra have resumed their rehearsals at the home of Mrs. Buckley, in Plainfield.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Oct. 3.—The boys, five-mile bicycle race over the Mountain avenue course Saturday afternoon drew quite a large crowd out and at the time of starting there were seven young boys ready to face the starter and all anxious for victory, as there has been quite as much rivalry among the small boys as there was among the larger ones. But the friends of each were out in full force to encourage their favorite, and help cheer him on. But the race shortly after being started narrowed down to three boys, Marsh, Nester and Douglass, who finised in the order named. Marsh's time was said to be 15½ minutes. This is considered fast riding for boys under fourteen years. An effort is being made to arrange a match between Chapin, winner of the race two weeks ago, and Duck, of Plainfield, winner of the grocers' five-mile race at Boynton Beach Labor Day. This would make a good race and would no doubt draw a large crowd. If match is made rade race will probably be run Saturday.

Funeral services of the late Orman Noble were held from the residence of his son, Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. J. H. Parks preached the funeral sermon, and during his remarks spoke feelingly of the past life of the deceased and offered words of consolation to the sorrowing relatives and friends. Wm. VanWalkenburg, John Robison, John Bornman and David Hand acted as pall-bearers. Interment was made in the family plot in the village cemetery.

A very pleasant Methodist sociable was held at the home of Mrs. Thomas Whitenack's Friday evening in honor of Rev. Mr. Woodruff and his friend, Rev. Mr. Lewis. Music, games and refreshments passed away an evening long to be remembered by all attending.

In the absence of Rev. J. S. Braker, George L. Dunn led the prayer meeting in the Baptist church last evening. Mr. Braker returns from Asbury Park today.

Edward Fields, of New York, who has been spending a week with his brother, Samuel Fields, returned to his home Friday.

Miss Carrie Bettmann led the union meeting of the Epworth League and C. E. Society, in the Methodist church Sunday evening.

The condition of Joseph Thys, who is very ill at his home on Terrill road with pneumonia, remains about the same.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Westfield, Oct. 3—Last Saturday afternoon Miss Jennie Hankins, of this place, sustained severe injuries by being thrown from her wheel while riding along Broad street. She was run into by a horse and wagon in charge of a Swede, whose name cannot be learned. Miss Hankins was assisted to the office of Dr. Fred A. Kinch, where her wounds, consisting of a deep cut in the head and several bruises about the body, were properly treated. Later she was removed to her home, where she seems to be improving nicely. An attempt will be made to learn the name and whereabouts of the Swede who caused the accident.

An exciting game of baseball was played in this place last Saturday afternoon between the married and single men. The former won by a score of 20 to 6. A large crowd witnessed the match.

Edward White.

A WINTER'S EVENING.

The short December day was closing in. The twilight mingled pleasantly with the ruddy glow of the fire, and the girl at the window could no longer see to read. She looked, instead, into the neighboring garden, bounded by low hedges and wind-bowed fir trees, sharply outlined against a glowing crimson sky. The thin, rasping voice of a mother roused the girl from the wintry thoughts which had saddened her large, dark eyes.

"Maisie," she began, hesitatingly, "I want to speak to you again about—" (the girl knew the particular tone of voice, and broke in quickly with "Oh, mother, please not that!") "My dear girl, it's positively ridiculous the way you always interrupt me and refuse to listen to reason," and, with a whine, "it makes my position exceedingly awkward and unpleasant. What am I to do with you? Do you realize your age, Maisie? Nearly 24. Why, your sisters were all married before they were your age, and Connie had two children.

"At present," the mother went on relentlessly, "I am besieged on all sides by men who wish to marry you, for you are a pretty girl, Maisie—prettier than any of your sisters, and more like your dear grandmother, who was quite a belle in her time—but in a few years nobody will look at you, your chances of happiness and of making a good match will be over forever. Percival Sutton"—("Ah, I knew that was coming," sighed the girl)—said he would come to tea this evening, and he is very anxious to speak to you."

After a pause she went on. "I want to know what stands in your way of doing as the others had sense enough to do—of setting my mind at rest about you, and of taking up a position in life as the wife of a good man."

"You mean of a rich man," the girl said languidly, folding her hands and again turning her eyes to the garden.

A tall man, with bowed head and hands clasped behind him, was walking restlessly over the little lawn, a few nches of freshly fallen snow deadening the sound of his quick footsteps, and the girl watched with unconscious fascination the dark shadowy prints left in the flat whiteness. The tall stranger with the grave face and athletic, though now stooping form, had never shown the slightest desire to make friends; indeed, had seemed determined to avoid any chance or risk of doing so. Years ago, when the girl's mother had called upon the lonely newcomer, she had found him at home, and he only acknowledged the visit by a polite note of thanks explaining that he never made or received calls, and lived a life of study and unbroken solitude. To-night, as her mother talked and the girl's attention wandered to the growing number of blue-gray footprints in the snow, an unusual circumstance arrested her thoughts and drew her still farther from the sordid and wearisome conversation. A servant came out of the house and handed to the man an orange colored envelope, which he did not open till he was again alone. Then he disappeared.

The girl returned to consciousness with a slight start, and became dimly aware of a question in her mother's face and voice. She risked, at random, the first answer that occurred to her: "Oh, yes, if you like, mother!" The reply was evidently appropriate.

"My dear good child, this is sweet of you! That poor young man will be so happy"

"And will you tell him so yourself, dearie; or shall I see him alone first? I expect you will both feel a little shy and constrained."

"I should like you to see him by yourself, mother," said the girl, rising and wondering with complete disinterest what would be the outcome of her mental aberration and wandering response.

"And I may tell him—" said the mother, eagerly.

"Anything you like," her daughter answered as she disappeared.

The servant entered with a tea tray, made up the fire, and lowered the blinds. The girl passed swiftly through the hall, wrapping a soft gray cloak about her as she went, and then, opening a side door and closing it quietly behind her, she slipped out into the snow covered garden. In the low hedge which divided it from the neighboring patch there was a broken space large enough to squeeze through and a moment later she was skimming across the very lawn where she had just seen the owner's footsteps multiplying in the snow. As she had expected, he had left his garden door open, and through this she made her way into the hall, and thence into the only room from which as yet a light emerged. A cozy fire and a red-shaded lamp showed her a charming study, lined from floor to ceiling with books, and in a deep arm-chair before the fire she beheld her three years' neighbor, the owner of this delightful sanctum.

On the threshold she stood still with astonishment. From what she had seen of his face she had not thought him remarkable in appearance—this man was without doubt singularly handsome. She had believed the bowed form belonged to a man of 50 at least, whereas this man could not have been more, and was probably less than 35. A vague sense of vexation filled her, and she wished she had not yielded to the ridiculous impulse which had brought her thither. Then, in a moment, a revulsion of feeling made her glad, with a great throb of gladness, that she had obeyed the dictates of her folly. He looked up from the fire, gazed at her abstractedly for half a second, and when he spoke his voice showed no surprise.

"Come in and shut the door," was his greeting. "I have been waiting for you."

"You are alone, as usual," she asked, drawing nearer.

"I am always alone. Why in the world did you come?"

"You had a telegram just now, in the garden," she explained; "I feared it might be bad news."

He gave a little hard, mirthless laugh. "Bad news has long ceased to be possible in my life," he said, coldly. Was that why you came?"

"Yes."

"Reason enough to keep most people away," he remarked, drily. At last she asked: "Why do you walk round and round your lawn every evening?"

He shrugged his shoulders. "Force of habit, I suppose; it is the way I think."

Then, hastily changing the subject, he inquired: "What will your mother say when you tell her where you've been?"

"I don't think it will occur to her to ask. Her thoughts are taken up at the present moment"—she glanced at the clock—"in accepting an offer of marriage on my behalf. She is an admirable woman; I am her sixth daughter, and when she has disposed of me we shall all have been married before the age of 24."

The girl was gazing at him steadily and without flinching; vaguely she found herself wondering if there had ever been a time in her life when she had not known him—when, in fact this stranger had not been her first and greatest thought, the supreme interest which completely filled the emptiness of her world. So had love come to her unsought, and as yet she knew it not by that name. When she spoke her voice was low and appealing: "Well, it can matter little how one works out one's destiny, if in the end all will infallibly turn out well. For instance, I shall marry this man of my mother's choice, and perhaps for a few years we will be miserable together; but at last death will free one of us and then life's object will become clear and I will view it from the impartiality of my last hour from the standpoint of age, experience or resignation, as a charming picture in a circular frame, and shall smile to see how well the colors blended." She laughed hopelessly.

"Poor little girl!" he muttered, rising, and, leaning against the mantlepiece, he looked down at her with yearning, dreamy eyes. "Shall I tell you the riddle of my life?" he asked. She assented

"Ten years ago I married the girl my father chose for me—an heiress, the only child of rich and indulgent parents. We did not love each other—a punishment which I doubtless deserved. Less than a year after our marriage I first noticed a strange expression in my wife's face, which day by day became more apparent, and then she began to talk strangely and to say senseless things. Vainly I strove to fight the fear which was fast growing to certainty, till at last the violence of a mad woman left me in doubt no longer as to the terrible thing which had come upon me.

"I won't describe to you the horror of the next few months, when the best brain doctors in London pronounced her case hopelessly incurable, and when I had done all I could to restore the balance of her disordered mind, without avail. I did not want to send the poor thing away; but the matter was taken out of my hands. When I was recovering from a knife wound in my left temple—you see I am destined to carry a reminder of her to my grave—the doctors insisted on removing her to an asylum, and there I have been obliged to leave her ever since."

The girl had drawn nearer to him; his story had been a shock to her, but her thoughts were not of herself. "How dreadful!" she said, "and how lonely you must often be! Why have you never let me know you all these years?"

"I—I dared not!"—he turned away. He did not see the glory of love and suffering that shone in her soft, dark eyes. Maybe he heard both in her voice, for there stole into his eyes the light of happiness.

"It was unkind of you," she said; "I might have been better than nothing."

She crept close to him, and shyly put her hands in one of his; he bent over them, holding them to his brow. "Little girl," you don't understand," he said softly. "Better than nothing! —it was just because you are better than everything that I could not say to you, 'Come!' Every day since I first came here I think I would have given my soul to see you come in at that door as you did to-night. I was often lonely, but it satisfied me to know that you were near. It amused me to wonder what we should say to each other if we ever met."

"Yet," said the girl, "I wonder that you can hold such happy theories about life! Do you really believe that your riddle will be solved?"

"I think," he answered gravely, "it was solved by the telegram you saw me open in the garden; it brought me the news of my poor wife's death—and you came to save me from the horror of my thoughts."

The girl would have drawn away her hands, but he detained them; she swayed a little, and he supported her with his arm. "I must go back," she said faintly. He folded her cloak about her tenderly. "I am going to take you home," he said.—Max Hamilton in St. James' Budget.

CASE FOR THE COURTS

"Are these your tickets?"

"Yes," said Dimpleton, examining them.

"They are not good," said the conductor.

It was 9.30 a. m. on the Wagner car that left Cleveland at 8.30, and it was the last day of the Dimpleton wedding trip. Dimpleton had bought his railroad tickets at the station in Cleveland the night before, and on entering the train had handed them to the parlor car conductor to give to the train conductor, in order to avoid further annoyance. It was this individual who now confronted him.

"What's the matter with them?"

"They are not stamped."

"That's not my fault. If the ticket agent failed to stamp them it's the company's negligence."

"I can't help that, sir. You will either have to pay your fare to New York or get off at the next station. Those are my orders."

That morning, after paying his bill, Dimpleton had seated himself in a remote corner of the hotel office and counted up the sum of six dollars and eighty-nine cents, the amount that was left in his pocket to see him and his bride into the Greater New York? This would be enough, said Dimpleton to himself, allowing for two moderate luncheons, two moderate dinners, the incidentals and the cab fare home. With the consciousness of these facts, and suddenly confronted by an unforseen dilemma, Dimpleton's pulse promptly rose to thirty points above par, and his heart sank to six eighty-nine. It was necessary for him, however, to assume a bold front. The passengers were becoming interested, and Mrs. Dimpleton's indignant glance at the conductor and her confident glance at him made this imperative.

"I'll do nothing of the sort," he said with a rising voice.

"Do pay him, dear," said Mrs. Dimpleton, laying her hand appealingly on his arm. "You can make them pay you back, I am sure, when the facts are ascertained."

"Certainly," said the conductor. "The company will telegraph on to the agent at Cleveland, and your money will be refunded. I have no doubt, of course, that it is all right, but I have no authority to act, and it would cost me my place to accept those tickets."

Dimpleton looked up and down the car at the line of faces, and promptly rose to his feet.

"No, sir!" he shouted. "Give me back those tickets and put us off, and be hanged to you! I can stand it if you can. You'll have the prettiest suit on your hands you've had in a long time."

At this point the man in the next section spoke.

"I admire your pluck, sir, and I believe you have a good case. But it isn't necessary for you to leave the train. Pay your fare over again, keep the tickets, and I shall be glad to be a witness to the transaction. I have suffered myself at the hands of this company," and he handed out his card.

"Do," said Mrs. Dimpleton.

"Never!" replied her indignant husband. "You are very kind, sir, but I am going to make a sure thing of it. I am longing to be put off this train at the next station, and I am going to be."

Thus it happened that an excited groom and a despondent bride stood on the platform at Buffalo, and saw their train roll out of the station.

"Oh dear!" exclaimed Mrs. Dimpleton, as she sank down into a seat in the waiting room. "This is dreadful! I did so want to get home to-night, and you know they expected us. What are you going to do now?"

"Do? said Dimpleton. "The first thing I am going to do is to telegraph on to the office for money."

"Money!"

Dimpleton smiled feebly.

"Yes, dear," he said. "I may as well confess. The fact is that I spent more than I expected to on this trip, and had only just enough left to get home with. I wouldn't have thought of getting off that train if it hadn't been for this."

Mrs. Dimpleton looked at him rather hopelessly for a moment and then her face flushed with surprise.

She was experiencing that first indignation, that first sudden ebb of confidence in her husband, which usually comes to every woman some time within three weeks after the ceremony.

"My dear," she said, with a strong effort at control, "you might have informed me of this before. It seemed quite unnecessary for me to tell you, but before we left, papa was thoughtful enough to put a hundred dollar bill in my purse."—Life.

A Bible Engraved on Stone.

In 1857 Mindon-min, King of Burma, erected a monument near Mandalay called the Kutho-daw. There he built 700 temples, in each of which there is a slab of white marble. Upon these 700 slabs is engraved the whole of the Buddhist Bible, a vast literature in itself, equal to about six copies of the Holy Scriptures.

This marble Bible is engraved in the Pali language, thought to be that spoken by Buddha himself 500 B. C. But, alas, for all this human ingenuity and perseverance! If his majesty, Mindon-min, thought to perpetuate the teachings of the Great Buddha by causing it to be graven on the rock he nourished a vain ambition.

The climate of Burma is moist, and its affects have already wrought havoc on the surface of the white marble.

This is certainly the largest known copy of any portion of literature. Even the National Encyclopedia of China, in 5,000 volumes, occupies a comparatively small space.—Boston Traveler.

FAMOUS LEES OF OLDEN TIMES.

The First of the Family to Come to America.

When Longfellow wrote "a thing for flouts and sneers and jeers is an American aristocracy" he could not have meant it in a literal sense. There are many families in the United States who can show as illustrious a descent, and whose achievements in peace or war would favorably compare with the renowned families of older nations were our institutions strained in order to nurture titles or kindred personal distinctions. Nor could the poet have intended that it was a bad or unbecoming thing to have come of good stock, or to have had famous forefathers. As we hope that our own deeds shall be sweet and inspiring in other ages, so we are all in duty bound to revere the memories of those who have gone before us. Burke who uttered so many wise aphorisms has truly said on this subject: "he will never look forward to posterity who never looks backward to his ancestors; and their deeds whether good or evil can never be a matter of indifference in the life of a nation."

And amongst those prominent families who have enriched the history of the United States, and whose records can never be a subject of indifference to our people is that of the Lees of Virginia. The family of Lee is probably among the most distinguished in martial deeds as well as in point of antiquity. And as illustrious public services will always rate higher than mere uneventful pedigrees, however long descended may be the line or numerous the quarterings, let us see how the Lees of Virginia measure up in this important respect.

The first to whom there is mention was the Richard Lee of Colonial times, who was Secretary of State for Virginia. He's said to have been six feet high with a handsome face denoting spirit and enterprise, and which appear to be characteristics that have impressed themselves upon all his descendants. In the time of King Charles he received large grants of land of Virginia where he died in 1663.

GEN. ROBERT E. LEE.

His son, Major Richard Lee, was sent to Oxford University, and when he returned was appointed Naval Officer for the Potomac River being succeeded in that capacity by his son. He was spoken of by the English Governor as a "loyal discreet person and a gentleman of as fair character as any in the country," the succession of the son being a mark of esteem for the father.

This son, Thomas, accordingly became president of the King's Council and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony and played a rather important part in the early annals of Virginia. He negotiated a treaty with the "Six Nations" or Indians which so advanced the King's interests that the Queen Caroline sent him a present of $80,000 on the occasion of the burning of the family mansion at Stratford. This was a mark of uncommon esteem, and when Sir William Gooch, the Governor of Virginia, died, he was appointed the first American Governor of his native state. He left six sons, whom John Adams alluded to as "that band of brothers, intrepid and unchangeable."

They were the neighbors and the earliest advisers of Washington whose home was only one mile distant. When the famous Westmoreland declaration against the Stamp Act was drawn up the official connections of the Lee family was severed with England. Four of these six brothers signed their names to the Westmoreland declaration and two, Richard Henry Lee and Francis Lightfoot Lee, also signed the Declaration of Independence. Indeed this Richard Henry Lee has a most intimate connection with the Revolution. Like others of his family he was sent to school to England and was so painfully reminded by the sons of England aristocrats of the inferiority of the colonists to themselves that he returned from England a pronounced Republican and henceforth resolved to make his country free. It was he who drew up in the Continental Congress the famous stirring resolution "that these united colonies are and of right ought to be free and independent states, that all political connection between them and Great Britain is and ought to be totally absolved." One of his sons was Washington's Attorney General and the other was the famous dashing "Light Horse Harry" Lee. He raised the independent corps of light cavalry which he commanded and which under the name of "Lee's Legion" became proverbial for the dash and bravery of its men in the Revolutionary War. In 1779 at the head of three hundred men he captured the British fort at Jersey City taking one hundred and sixty prisoners for which Congress also publicly thanked him, and also presented him with a medal and a commission in the army.

"Light Horse Harry" was renowned in war but it may not be generally known that he was no less renowned in peace and was the author of the phrase used by Washington: "First in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen," which occurs in the resolution he moved in Congress in 1799 when Washington died. Colonel Lee married his cousin Matilda Lee and succeeded to the family seat at Stratford, where, in 1807, General Robert Lee was born.

Another brother of "Light Horse Harry's" had been sent to school at Eton. He wrote an anonymous appeal to the English nation to deal justly and intelligently by the American Colonies and though the authorship was never suspected by his fellow students at the famous English school, the document was so able a presentation of the American case that it was said to be the production of Lord Chatham or of Edmund Burke, both of whom were staunch friends of America, when to be a friend of the Colonies meant ostracism from the drawing rooms of London.

The latest member of this prominent American family, and beside whose virtues and historic achievements those of a Howard or of a Prince of Conde or if a Platen of Germany would be honored by a comparison, is General Fitzhugh Lee, who has just been voted the thanks of a Congress for patriotic services to his country at Havana.

THE NAMING OF AMERICA.

A Short Sketch of the Man From Whom America Was Named.

The celebration of the four hundredth anniversary of the naming of America will probably bring once more into notice the claims of Columbus and of Amerigo Vespucci to the honor of discovery. At the time of the Columbian Exposition the controversy as to whether Columbus or Amerigo Vespucci was the original navigator raged in several learned geographical societies in Europe, while these rival claims of both were disputed in toto by the partisans of a third claimant, and a still earlier voyager named St. Brendan. As between the friends of Columbus and of Vespucci honors appear to be even. The former is embalmed in history as the real voyager, while those of the latter claim that his name is associated for all time with his deeds in the very name of the country itself. The fortune of the name of America is not a little singular as an instance of the fitness and the power of a name notwithstanding what the poet insinuated to the contrary.

The name of "American" has too become the symbol of an originality and prowess to which not even the majestic word "Roman" could aspire in its grandest and most triumphant period. Great oaks from little acorns grew, and it is worth knowing that the name Amerigo was first borne by a poor Italian whom his biographers dignify by coupling his birth with the era of Lorenzo the Magnificent; that this name was afterwards given to a single province of the New World, next spread over the whole southern continent, then passed to the Northern, later on became the distinguishing appellation of the whole vast continent and so grew and expanded until the word "American" has come to be universally accepted as the antithesis of everything that related to the traditions of the crowns and courts and chain of circumstances!

Amerigo Vespucci was born at Florence, March 9, 1451, and in youth was a studious young man, working out problems of a philosophical character. He therefore early attracted attention even from princes and nobles, and at the age of 40 years was induced to settle in Seville.

In his capacity as an officer of the city, Vespucci had to draw up a statement of the expeditions of Columbus and was requested by the King of Portugal to set out and discover a route to the "land of spices" as India was then called, further south than Brazil. In his letter to Lorenzo de Medici and to the Duke of Lorraine he gave an account of these voyages and of the condition of the Western World in one of which it was said that the torrid zone is habitable and inhabited.

The first city of the new world, he there also tells us consisted of forty-four bell shaped houses and was built on piles in the middle of a lake, the dwellings being connected together by drawbridges. Some of the inhabitants approached the galleons of Vespucci in canoes formed from the hollow trunk of a tree and after gazing at Vespucci and his sailors the natives paddled back to their insulated city with great precipitation. They soon returned, however, bringing with them sixteen young women and showed a disposition to get aboard the ships, a fact which in our fin-de-siecle way of looking at matters, would indicate that those on the mainland had met sailors before, or had at least understood their habits. Vespucci then sailed eight leagues farther along the coast, landing occasionally, and at last entering a sheltered haven, where he was received with hospitality and he and his crew spent nine days all having in the language of our day "a high old time." The country seemed quite populous and great multitudes assembled to admire the dress and complexions of the Europeans whom they entertained as if they were beings of a superior race. In short there is much ground for belief that Vespucci was the discoverer of the mainland while the credit of first seeing the islands of the West Indies probably belonged to Columbus.

The relative claims to the distinction of first discovering the west has caused a bitter contest over the character and exploits of Vespucci, who the haughty admirers of Columbus claim was only a beef contractor in Castille, and a master pilot instead of a navigator.

We are much obliged to Vespucci for giving the early inhabitants of this country so good a reputation in his annals and while we are the heirs of his name there is also on our part a strong temptation to keep his memory green in spite of the efforts of his detractors to wither or efface it.

NO FEAR IN THE NAVY.

ADMIRAL SAMPSON TALKS OF THE COURAGE OF CREWS.

After the Enemy's First Shot Their Daring is Reckless. All the Officers Fear Is Running the Ship Aground. Men Seem to Court Danger.

"No," said Rear Admiral Sampson, with decided emphasis, "the element of fear is an imperceptible quantity among our naval crews when in action."

"Indeed," he went on to say, in slow, carefully weighed words, "I can't tell whether it is braggadocio, or foolhardiness, or a plain passion to be always in the thick of it, but the men of our crews, all that I have ever seen in action, display an amazing propensity to hunt for danger unless it comes naturally their way. For instance, when only the starboard gunners are engaged the port men will deliberately seek the exposed decks, right in the line of shot and shell, instead of keeping below behind armored protection. All sense of danger seems to be paralyzed while the excitement of action is on. It pervades the entire crew as well as those engaged at the guns. And this accounts for the fact that, in most cases, the casualties reported were among those who had no business to be where they were at the time; but it is almost impossible, in moments of such great excitement, to restrain them."

"Possibly they might learn some discretion," suggested the reporter, "if they ran across gunners who could hit things better than the Spaniards."

"Yes," said the Admiral, with a smile, "perhaps they might; but I wouldn't like to be too sure of it, either. They lose their identity, and with it all sense of personal danger, in the wild stimulus of battle. But, let me say right here that a striking difference can be seen in the conduct of all crews between the first time they are under fire and all subsequent ones. It may not be fair to call it fear exactly, for we don't see that sort of thing in our men; caution, natural caution, would be a better word. In their first action they show a decided tendency to enjoy the benefits of all the protection afforded, but these principles of self-defense seem to evaporate with the smoke of the enemy's first fire, and, from that on, the most reckless daring takes their place. The only crews that came personally under my observation in this recent campaign were those of the Iowa and New York, but this sudden change in them from common sense caution under fire to the most reckless exposure, could very plainly be noticed, and I'm sure other officers have the same experience to give on this point. The ice of battle once broken, so to speak, the men are total strangers to anything resembling fear."

Here the reporter instanced the case where one of the compartments of the Texas was hit by a Spanish shell which killed one sailor and wounded a number more, and asked the Admiral whether such a calamity on a warship would cause any temporary stampede in a crew.

"Oh, no," he replied. "It wouldn't be human nature for a man to see one of his comrades torn to tatters by a shell and others badly wounded around him, without a shudder, but no American sailor would think of leaving his gun at such a sight. It is astonishing how cool and callous they become to such spectacles during the heat of action. We don't have stampedes in the navy."

"And now that you have disposed of the American crews, Admiral," the reporter said, "what about the officers on the bridge in action? Have they any acquaintance with fear?"

"Yes, they have, every man of them," he answered, as the care-worn furrows in his brow grew deeper, and his eyes rested on the questioner with unusual force, "but it isn't the fear of the shells or any of the accidents of battle. It's that awful, unspeakable fear of running his ship aground or getting her otherwise in bad position. This is the only dread that bothers the commanding officers. In an open sea-way there is none of this danger to keep their nerves in a tension, but it comes with consuming force when they begin an engagement with shore batteries, approaching nearer and nearer to get a more effective range, and menanced more and more, each moment, by the oppressive fear of striking a shoal or bar"—and the Admiral's face wore an expression of positive pain, as if the recollection of this great fear had come back to him vividly like a nightmare, and he was seeing shoal ripples in the rustling of the trees.

"In the matter of courage among the crews," the Admiral was asked, "is there any marked difference between our native-born sailors of American pedigree and those of foreign parentage?"

"I have not been able to detect any," he replied very heartily, "for they are all equally brave."—New York Mail and Express.

ON THE GRIDIRON.

Although a number of the players are either at college or in business, the Alls eleven is considering the advisability of getting together for preliminary practice. There are a number who are anxious to fill the places left vacant by the departure of several of the team, and there seems good material at hand for an excellent junior team.

It is to be regretted that Plainfield cannot support a strong football team the entire season, but such seems to be the case. The "big" eleven, as it is called, has arranged to play on Election Day with the San Remo team which is practically the New York Athletic Club. The San Remo boys are well-known here as a gentlemanly lot of players and are particularly evenly matched with the local contingent of players.

CYCLING COMMENT.

The bicycle squad of the Park Avenue Baptist C. E. Society are advocating holding another bicycle run soon. The nights are so pleasant that the riders in the society want to take one more run before disbanding for the season.

W. H. Rogers, the wheelman, and the Bard Company are showing a patent chain protector. The protector is manufactured of thin rubber, is clamped to the chain and revolves with it. It thus keeps the chain free from mud and rain. Fred Sebring, bookkeeper for Mr. Rogers, has one on his wheel, and is giving it a thorough test.

GOLF.

Contrary to the general belief the membership of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club has not reached its limit. There is still room for more. The management of the club is having additional lockers made for both the men and women, and other improvements are to be made to increase the efficiency and strength of the club.

THE COURTS.

JUSTICE MOFFETT.

Summons issued:—In the case of Prall against Boss, on contract, returnable October 10.

Smith's Remains Not Claimed.

No one has claimed the body of William Smith, who died in Muhlenberg Hospital Thursday morning, and this afternoon Morgue Keeper P. Casey will inter the remains. It was reported that Smith had two daughters in Long Island, but they have not been located, and there is doubt as to whether there is any truth in the report.

Special Officer McCarty turned over his badge and club to Chief Grant. He was found asleep on duty twice, the second offence occurring Saturday.

Dennis Kane, of this city, left last evening for Danbury, Conn., to attend the State Fair there.

William A. Stimpson, of West Sixth street, one of the enterprising young reporters on the staff of The Daily Press, spent Saturday afternoon and Sunday with friends in Philadelphia.

THE BOY WON'T STAY HOME.

Little Willie Frey Says That His Father Abuses Him.

Little Willie Frey made the city jail this morning ring with his sobs and cries. He didn't want to stay in jail, which was natural enough, but he didn't want to go home, either. Frey is a lad of barely twelve years, but he has seen considerable of life during that time. A week ago he ran away from home, and has been sleeping in barns about the city ever since and living on whatever he happened to pick up. His father is Charles Frey, of Madison avenue and West Second street.

Willie has a cut in the back of his head that he says his father made. He says that his father beat him and clubbed him until he could stand it no longer, so he ran away. He wept when he told of his father's cruelty. His mother brought him some clothing this morning. She said that Willie's story was not true. Willie was to come before the City Judge this morning, but that official went out of town and Willie will wait in jail until tomorrow.

ILLEGAL USE OF BEER BOTTLES.

Detective Peterson Found Sixty of Frank Linke's Bottles at Lawrence Currin's.

Detective Peterson, of the New Jersey State Bottlers' Association, was in this city last Saturday for the purpose of hunting up violators of the law who use beer bottles for other purposes than that for which they are intended. Frank Linke, of West Front street, requested Mr. Peterson to come to this city, as he has been missing a number of bottles of late.

The detective visited the place of Lawrence Currin, which is just outside of the city limits. He had with him a warrant issued by Justice Warden, of Dunellen. The detective found nearly sixty bottles belonging to Mr. Linke. Mr. Currin was taken before Justice Warden and given a hearing and was then released on his own cognizance. The Justice will give his decision in the case in a few days. Detective Peterson will again visit this city soon.

FUNERAL OF MRS. BUNTING.

Two Ministers Officiated at the Obsequies Saturday Afternoon.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Bunting, of 94 Mercer avenue, were held last Saturday afternoon from the house at 3 o'clock. There was a large attendance of friends and neighbors. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Sabine, pastor of the Reformed Episcopal church, of New York, assisted by Rev. Mr. Downey, pastor of the Church of the Redeemer, of the borough. Eloquent and comforting words were spoken by each minister and the services were very impressive. Interment will be made in a receiving vault in Greenwood Cemetery, upon arrival of the deceased's son, John Bunting, Jr., of California, who is expected today or tomorrow.

Sunday-school Officers Elected.

The annual election of officers in the Congregational church Sunday-school took place yesterday afternoon at the close of the regular session. The result was as follows: Superintendent, Joseph A. Robinson; associate superintendent, L. B. Morgan; secretary, Stacy Raynolds; assistant secretary, John W. Kirkner; treasurer, J. A. Powlison; librarian, Chas. E. Steiner; assistant librarian, George E. Fuller.

Heavy Sentences.

In the City Court yesterday Susan Harris, a vagrant, was given sixty days in jail. Michael McCarty, who was wanted for several troubles, was fined $100 and sentenced to fifty-nine days in jail. Michael Duncho, an old offender, was given $20 and sixty days.

LEE FAVORS MARIEL.

Says It Should Be the First City in Cuba Occupied by Americans

Washington, Oct. 3.—If the recommendations of Major General Fitzhugh Lee are adopted the first landing of troops comprising the Cuban army of occupation will be at Mariel, twenty miles west of Havana. During his conversation with Secretary Alger Saturday General Lee was asked by the former to state what city he thought should be first occupied by American soldiers.

General Lee replied that Mariel would be an excellent point to start in with, as the health conditions there are better than at almost any other place on the island.

Mariel is situated at the base of a ridge of mountains and is practically free from malaria and other fever.

When the war department was outlining the plan of campaign against Havana, early in the war, it was intended to capture this point and use it as a base of operations.

It is now regarded as practically certain that when troops embark for Cuba they will sail for Mariel and that this is the first Spanish city to be occupied by our soldiers.

Dr. Nancy Guilford Arrested

London, Oct. 3.—Dr. Nancy Guilford, the midwife of Bridgeport, Conn., who is wanted by the American police on the charge of having been connected with the death of Miss Emma Gill, the young woman whose body, cut into several pieces, was found several weeks ago, near Bridgeport, has been arrested.

Dr. Guilford was arrested by Inspector Freese of Scotland Yard, who has been on her track ever since she landed at Liverpool from Montreal, on last Tuesday, from the steamer Vancouver.

She was taken into custody at a middle class boarding house in Hampstead, and gave the name of McAllister, although on first arriving in London she declared her name was Catherine Wilbur. The prisoner was taken to the Bow street police court, where she was formally charged and remanded.

She will be taken before a magistrate to-day.

A Game Law Conviction.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, Oct. 3.—David Winans, aged 15 years, was again before Judge Mendell Saturday evening in answer to a charge made by Game Warden Benjamin Brown. Young Winans was charged with shooting a blue jay. When put on the stand he swore it was a pigeon, and five or six other boys testified the same way. Winans did shoot a pigeon on that same day, and he also shot a blue jay. After hearing both sides of the case Judge Mendell fined Winans $20 and costs, which his father paid, whereupon he was allowed to go.

State Convention Described.

At the consecration meeting of the Congregational Christian Endeavor Society, last night, which was led by Miss J. Louise Jenkins, a report of the State convention at Asbury Park was given by the society's delegate, Miss M. G. Morse. Instead of each session of the convention being reported separately, Miss Morse gave a brief account of it as a whole, from a social, intellectual and spiritual point of view. It was a well-prepared and very enthusiastic report, and was greatly enjoyed by the Endeavorers.

ever held in Plainfield. Prices within the reach of everybody. Clothing marked regardless of cost or value, at No. 214 West Front Street, Plainfield, N. J. Next door to Music Hall. Sale begins Saturday, Oct. 1st, at 8 a. m.

Need of ready cash causes a sacrifice of Fine Clothing by manufacturers.

This is an honest disregard of values. Necessity compels this offer. This sale was organized by two wholesale clothiers by consolidating their surplus stock of fine Suits, Overcoats and Trousers, amounting to $10,000 worth of the very best products of their shops. These are sold regardless of their real value. Cash is what is wanted, and cash they will have, if low prices will sell goods. This is no humbug. Practical inspection is cheerfully invited. The firms who furnish these goods for sale are among the best known houses in the country. Each one pledges himself to be individually responsible for the statement made here. The display made is elegant. We guarantee that for $1.00 you get $3.00 worth of clothing.

A chance of a life-time to buy the finest, newest and most up to-date Fall Overcoats, Business Suits, Dress Suits, Coats and Vests, Winter Overcoats and Trousers, handsomely and elegantly made, equal to the best merchant tailor work, at prices never heard of before.

We deal only in reliable clothing and will not undertake to sell one dollar's worth of clothing unless we know that what we sell will give the wearer as good wear as if he paid us what the garment is worth, and here are prices that will prove a hard nut for competing stores to crack.

Ordinance Authorizing the Improvement to be Introduced in the Council Friday Evening—Councilman Buckle Wants to Protect Positions of Men on Police Force—Other Matters Considered.

In the absence of City Clerk MacMurray from the Common Council meeting last evening, Geo. B. Wean was chosen to fill his place. The meeting was called to order after the usual hour, owing to the holding of the Republican city primaries. All of the members were present except Mr. Andrews, and the business of the evening was closely watched by a good sized audience in the lobby.

On a motion offered by Mr. Barrows, an opportunity was given to all present to make remarks for or against the extension of the trolley. There was no one present who desired to be heard on the subject, and further hearing was adjourned to Frievening of this week at 8 o'clock.

Mr. VanHerwerden at this time made a motion that the collector's books be examined to see whether certain changes ordered had been made, and that the books be returned to Collector Martin attested correct.

Mr. Barrows made a motion that when Council adjourn it be to meet Friday evening, October 7th, at 8 o'clock.

A communication was received from W. H. Moore and other residents of West End Park, asking the Council to erase from the map of that property the lines which provide for the opening of a street through the same, and the petitioners therefore asked the Council to vacate the property, as a street would be a detriment. The matter was referred to the Street committee and later the request was granted by the introduction of an ordinance, which provided for the vacation of the property.

A communication was received from the Town Improvement Association, in which the members asked the Council to append a section to the city ordinance which will impose a penalty of $1 on anyone who is guilty of sweeping or throwing refuse into the streets or on sidewalks. The matter was referred to the street committee.

Residents in the West End in the neighborhood of Grant avenue and Lee place petitioned the Council for four electric lights. A petition was received from T. O. Doane and others, asking that James Bulmer be appointed a special police.

Street Commissioner Gavett reported the granting of thirteen sewer permits, and Building Inspector Doane reported that nine building permits were granted during the past month.

The monthly report of City Judge DeMeza showed that 114 persons were before His Honor, and $165 was received from fines.

Special Patrolman Michael McCarthy tendered his resignation.

Mr. Runyon stated that the Corporation Counsel does not care to give the Council an opinion regarding the legality of changing the salary of First Assistant Chief J. W. Murray, unless the Council requests it by a resolution. Mr. Runyon then offered a resolution as requested by Mr. Marsh. The resolution provides that Mr. Marsh's opinion be presented next Friday evening.

On a motion of Mr. Runyon two fire hydrants were ordered to be located in the eastern part of the city in the vicinity of Leland avenue.

At this time Mr. Buckle presented an ordinarce which provides that no members of the police department shall be removed from office for political reasons, or so long as such members behave themselves, remain residents of the city, and do not violate stated rules as provided for the government of police. Mr. Buckle desired that the ordinance be adopted last evening, and expressed an opinion that the police are entitled to as much protection as the firemen in the city.

Mr. Hetfield took exception to to present adoption of the ordinance and questioned very much the legalty of such action. He had conferred with the Corporation Counsel and was not sure that the ordinance could be legally adopted. He desired that the ordinance be laid over till the regular November meeting.

Mr. Hetfield's objection was overruled and the ordinance will be intro-

GRAND JURORS NAMED.

THREE PROMINENT FLAINFIELDERS ARE ON THE LIST.

Grand Jury Will Consider the Case of Paul Metz at Once—Judge VanSyckel Will Re-Sentence Roesel to be Hung.

(Special To The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Oct. 4—The October term of the Circuit Court opened this morning with Judge VanSyckel on the bench. The first business was the appointment of Grand Jurors. The following persons from Plainfield were selected: F. A. Pope, H. E. Rider, J. A. Smith and James T. MacMurray.

With the opening of Court there was nothing to note of special significance except that one of the first cases to be considered will be that of Paul Metz, the man who was arrested at Fanwood last week on charges of theft.

Plainfield was very largely represented at the opening by most all of her lawyers, who took a deep interest in the proceedings.

The papers concerning the case of Louis Roesel, convicted murderer of Farmer Pitts, have been returned to this city from the upper court, and Roesel will now be sentenced again.

No date has yet been fixed for pronouncing sentence, but it is believed that Judge VanSyckel will soon set a date for that purpose. Prosecutor English has not received any new papers in the case, but there is a report that another effort will be made by Roerel's counsel to save the prisoner's life.

THE CLUB WOMEN AGAIN.

MONDAY AFTERNOON CLUB RESUME THEIR MEETINGS.

First Gathering Since the Summer Months—A Lecture by E. R. von Nardroff, of New York, on Electricity.

The members of the Monday Afternoon Club met yesterday afternoon for the first time this fall. There was a large attendance, showing that the members are quite anxious to return to the work of the fall and winter.

The subject of the meeting was electricity and a highly interesting illustrated lecture was given by E. R. von Nardroff, of New York. This expert gave a talk on "Electric Current: Its Properties and Uses," and he gave a number of very interesting experiments.

After the lecture the members of of the club were given the privilege of asking Mr. von Nardroff questions concerning the subject under discussion. Following this part of the programme, the club held a short routine business meeting.

On October 17th Mr. von Nardroff will return and give another illustrated lecture on the subject of "Recent Electrical Discoveries and Inventions.

ON HIS WAY TO A REFORMATORY.

Willie Frey Goes to the County Jail as a Matter of Formality.

Willie Frey, the twelve-year-old son of Charles Frey, of Madison avenue and West Second street, who was picked up by a policeman Saturday because he ran away from home, spent another night in the city jail. City Judge DeMeza gave the lad a hearing about 6 o'clock yesterday and sentenced him to pay a fine of $3 or be committed to the county jail for ten days. As it was so late Chief Grant left him until this morning before taking him to Elizabeth.

To one who is not acquainted with the way things are run in this county, the sentence of ten days which was imposed upon Willie seems hard. But it was not done to punish him. His mother has been urging Chief Grant for several months to get her son in the Reform School.

As the Reform school is a place for young criminals, the Judge of the Common Pleas does not have power to commit there unless the young person has been legally sent to jail for some offense. Now, as Willie has been committed, it is likely that he will soon find himself in the Reform School unless his mother repents, as she has done several times before, and pays the boy's fine.

A MAMMOTH SQUASH.

A Dunellen Farmer Raised One Weighing 108 Pounds.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Oct. 4—Somerville shows some large pumpkins and squashes this season, and at the fair there some were on exhibition that weighed nearly 100 pounds. But Fred Dunn, a farmer living near here, has raised a mammoth squash this season that weighs 108 pounds and measures 5 feet 7 inches around.

Mr. Dunn took the squash to Plainfield, where it is on exhibition at Smith Brothers' grocery store. It attracts much attention, although its size is deceiving, and one would think it weighed less than it does.

AFFAIRS OF SCHOOL RECEIVE ATTENTION.

Regular Meeting of the Board of Education Last Night.

A MONUMENT AND A FLAG.

SHAFT TO MEMORY OF LAFAYETTE AND FLAG FOR IRVING SCHOOL.

Medical Inspectors Report That all School Buildings are in Excellent Sanitary Condition—Large Enrollment of Pupils This Year—New Flag Pole to be Raised in the School Yard.

A monument in memory of General Lafayette and a new flag pole for the Irving School divided the attention of the Plainfield Board of Educatian last evening at the October meeting of the Board. The session was short and uneventful. All the members were present except Mr. Abbott.

After the usual batch of routine business came the report of Tax Collector J. A. Martin showing school taxes amounting to $708.45 had been collected, together with $95.88 interest, making a total of $804.33.

The report of the medical inspectors was very satisfactory. The inspectors had examined all the school buildings and found them in excellent sanitary condition. They found very little to criticise. They reported that after consulting with Superintendent Maxson they had decided not to begin the personal examination of pupils until October 1st.

A communication from some of the residents in the neighborhood of the Bryant school stated that they would use their best efforts to see that the children did not trespass on the lawn if the front fence to the school was taken down. The communication was signed by Mrs. A. W. Weseman, F. S. Templin, Mrs. Mary B. Hill, Willard M. Miner and George M. Rittenhouse.

Superintendent Maxson reported that there were now about 2,000 pupils enrolled in the public shools, making seventy more than were enrolled last year at this time. He also told of a letter he had received from the Lafayette Memorial Commission, composed of a number of prominent men, with the object of erecting a monument to cost $250,000 at Paris in memory of the great French General. Mr. Maxson was appointed on the advisory committee and the Board was invited to have the schools observe October 19th as Lafayette Day, and to allow the children to offer contributions for the monument which is to be built by the children of this country. The date selected is the anniversary of the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown.

Mr. Maxson suggested that the day be observed by the Plainfield schools, and the suggestion was followed out by a formal motion to the Board that was unanimously passed.

"Your exercises I thought particularly well arranged. In fact, your school management in Plainfield is refreshingly capable and adequate." This was a passage in a letter written by Dr. Hamilton W. Mabie, one of the editors of the Outlook who made the address at the last commencement, to Superintendent Maxson and was read to the Board and the reporters.

The flag pole was brought to the attention of the Board by Mr. Lounsbury, who was seconded by Mr. Maxson. He explained that the truck to the pole on top of the Irving school was split. Nobody could be found to climb the pole, so a scaffold would have to be erected. That would cost at least $25. Mr. Lounsbury thought the best thing to do was to put that money toward a new pole and stand it in the yard instead of on top of the building. The other members were apparently of the same mind for they all agreed and the building committee was empowered to get the new pole and have it set it the school yard. That over, the Board went into executive session.

At the executive meeting it was decided to make a trial for a time of abolishing the forenoon recess in the grammar classes and closing fifteen minutes earlier in the afternoon. There has been no afternoon recess for a long time, and since the Whittier School was started there has been no morning recess in that school. The teachers seem to be unanimous in the opinion that abolishing the recess is a great gain. There is much less roughness and rudeness among the children; there are fewer cases of discipline to be dealt with; there are fewer colds in consequence of the children getting heated by running while out of doors and then sitting in a cool school-room. Also much time is saved, since when

ECHOES OF CONVENTION.

ENDEAVOR DOINGS AT ASBURY PARK RECITED INTERESTINGLY.

Borace J. Martin Told the Trinity Church Society of the Great Assemblage of Young Christians—Election of Officers.

Those who did not attend the State Christian Endeavor convention at Asbury Park last week had the affair brought to them in an echo meeting which was held in Trinity Reformed church last night, and addressed by the president of Trinity's society, Horace J. Martin, who was also their delegate.

Mr. Martin picked out a few striking points in the two days' services and spoke upon them, trying, in his short address, to cover the entire ground without going very deeply into details. The speaker started with the arrival of the Plainfield delegation at the Park, and told how they were distributed at the hotels. Over a hundred Endeavorers were at the hotel where the Plainfield delegates were quartered.

Mr. Martin only attended the services held in the Auditorium and did not go near Educational Hall. He described the speakers at the Auditorium, the sunrise meeting Thursday morning, but held back the extracts from the addresses made at the convention for future use.

Mr. Martin described the prayer meeting held Thursday noon at Life Saving Station, No. 6, with the crew who had come out on the beach. After the service the crew gave an exhibition of their work, and from a mast erected some distance down the beach, provided with stays and cross arms, rescued supposed shipwrecked sailors for the amusement of the spectators.

Rev. T. S. Davis, vice president of the State organization, said that some one from the Endeavorers ought to be rescued, so climbing up the mast Mr. Davis got into the breeches buoy and came sliding down the rope to the beach. As Mr. Martin described the sight the reverend gentleman made with coattails flying and trousers legs hair way up to his knees, there was considerable quiet laughter at the thought of the dignified vice-president making such an exhibition of himself. Before his address Mr. Martin sang one of the hymns which was a great favorite at the convention, "I Know Not When Thou, Lord, Will Come." Mr. Martin led the singing at the Auditorium one day, the regular leader being ill.

Last night's meeting was also a business meeting at which officers were elected. Horace J. Martin was re-elected president, and the other officers were: First vice-president, Edgar Sheppard; second vice-president, Miss Lillie Remson; recording secretary, Harry F. Crawford; corresponding secretary, Miss Mabel A. Woodruff; treasurer, Miss Ella R. Fenner.

At the convention the president, Mr. Martin, pledged $5 to the State treasurery on behalf of his society, and last night this action was ratified. One new member was elected and Mrs. Martin was transferred from active to honorary membership.

The treasurer's report for September was as follows: General fund, receipts, $13.81; disbursements, $9.56; balance, $4.25. Sinking fund, receipts, $6.05; no disbursements. Missionary fund, $17.06; no disbursements.

MAY GET A DECENT BURIAL.

New Developments in the Death of William Smith.

Morgue Keeper Patrick Casey has not interred the remains of William Smith, who died at Muhlenberg Hospital last week, as he intended doing. Yesterday afternoon was the time set for burial, as none of the man's friends or relatives could be found, and Casey only awaited the return of County Physician Dr. F. W. Westcott with a permit for burial before placing the body in the city plot.

But when Dr. Westcott arrived he brought with him some papers which had been found in the man's clothes at Hand's brick yard, where Smith worked. These papers showed that Smith had been in the navy, and so no disposition will be made of the remains until word is received from Washington. It may be that instead of a pauper's grave, Smith may be laid to rest with all the honors of a dead sailor in Uncle Sam's service.

An Approaching Marriage.

The announcement of the marriage of Miss Laura Emmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Emmons, of Jackson avenue, to Gilbert Fletcher, of New York, is made. The wedding will be celebrated in Trinity Reformed church Wednesday evening, Oct. 19th.

HIGH NOON WEDDING AT GRACE CHURCH.

Fashionable Nuptials of Miss Dryden to Mr. Nolting.

EPISCOPAL SERVICE USED.

FLORAL DECORATIONS WERE ELABORATE AND PRETTY.

Rev. Dr. Rodman Tied the Nuptial Knot—Fair Members of the Bridal Party Were Exquisitely Gowned—Father Gave Away the Bride—After the Church Ceremony a Reception is Being Held.

Grace Protestant Episcopal church was thronged today noon with fashionable society folks from this city, Virginia and Maryland, who were present to witness the marriage of Miss Fanny Rutherford Dryden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Dryden, of Watchung avenue, to John Paul Nolting, of Richmond, Va. The wedding was one of the prettiest of the season and was performed by Rev. Dr. Rodman, pastor of the church. The Episcopal service was used throughout and was very impressive. Mrs. William A. Freeman presided at the organ, and while the guests were being escorted to seats by Robert W. Dryden, W. J. R. Thiers, Meredith Dryden and Frank Whitney French, ushers, she rendered a programme of choice classical music.

The church decorations were beautiful and around the altar there was arranged palms, rubber plants, and water myrtle. The latter was from the bride's sister, who resides at St. Michael's, Md. There were other decorations equally as beautiful and attractive.

Precisely at high noon the wedding party made its appearance and as the time-favored wedding march from Lohengrin was being played, the party proceeded up the centre aisle. First came the ushers, then followed the bridmaids, Miss K. Elise Nolting, sister of the groom, of Richmond, Va., and Miss Ethel Carey Green, of this city. They were exquisitely gowned in white-striped taffeta silk, and they wore black chip hats and gloves. They carried white carnations tied with pink silk ribbons.

Following the bridemaids came the bride, accompanied by her father, who gave her away in marriage. She was gowned richly in white satin trimmed with very old family lace. She also wore a tulle veil and carried a pearl covered prayerbook.

At the altar the party was met by the officiating clergyman, the groom and the best man, W. G. Nolting, brother of the groom, of Baltimore, all of whom entered the church from a front door. The ceremony was then performed while soft strains of music were being played on the organ Upon leaving the church the Mendelssohn wedding march was played, and as Mr. and Mrs. Nolting proceeded down the aisle they bestowed gracious smiles on their admiring friends.

After the ceremony a reception was given at the home of the bride's parents, to which only the relatives were invited. During the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Nolting left for a bridal trip through the scuth. On their return they will reside with the bride's parents on Watchung avenue. During the reception a delightful and dainty wedding dinner was served to the guests.

The bride's gifts to her bridesmaids were stick-pins of four-leaf clover and wish-bones, while the groom presented the ushers and best man with scarf pins of dragons set with pearls. The groom's gift to the bride is a close secret and would not be divulged by the giver. The costly and elegant gifts received by the bride and groom evidenced the very high regard in which they are held by their many friends. They included everything that is useful, ornamental and pretty.

Mr. Nolting's business is in Boston, and he prefers residing in this city so that he will be near his business and can give his attention to it.

A Bicycle Party.

A bicycle party was given by Clarence and Orra Rogers Saturday evening to some thirty of their friends. The party gathered at the home on Central avenue and enjoyed a very pleasurable moonlight spin out Park avenue to Pumptown and return. Friends who do not ride awaited their return at the house where the remainder of the evening passed very enjoyably with games, music and refreshments.

Held for the Grand Jury.

In Justice Smalley's court yesterday, Alexander Smith was held in $50 bonds to await the action of the Grand Jury on a charge of assaulting Victor Roach.

TO TEACH IN Y. M. C. A.

FORMAL OPENING OF EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT LAST NIGHT.

Addresses Made by H. C. Munger, W. S. Huson and I. W. Travell—Branches of Instruction and Instructors.

The formal opening of the educational department of the Y. M. C. A. was held last evening. H. C. Munger, chairman of the committee, presided. A short programme, consisting of violin selections by P. Ludwig Conde and recitations and readings by F. O. Bristol, was rendered, after which I. W. Travell, of the committee, in a few words presented the work of the department.

W. S. Huson, who is in charge of the three-year course in mechanical drawing, also spoke. At the close of these exercises opportunity was given to the men to meet and confer with the instructors and enroll their names in the classes.

The instructors of the various classes are as follows:

German—Rev. Geo. Hauser.

Bookkeeping and commercial course—Messrs. Max Moraller, Edwin H. Beckman, Clifford Braider.

Stenography—George Weeks Sanford.

Mechanical course—Messrs. W. S. Huson, Fletcher Hallock, Clarence Wilson, Joseph F.T. Fuller and Albert B. Meredith.

Spanish—To be announced later.

FIREMEN ARE ON PARADE

A BIG DAY IS THIS FOR NEW BRUNSWICK PEOPLE.

The Old Dutch City is in Holiday Attire—Ten Visiting Companies—Chief Doane, of Plainfield, One of the Guests.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, Oct. 4.—The biennial demonstration given under the auspices of the firemen of this city is being celebrated today. The city is attired in holiday fashion and business is practically suspended. The parade is one of the finest ever witnessed here. There are twenty-two apparatus in line, sixteen bands of music and drum corps and ten visiting fire companies. The Mayor and City Council reviewed the parade from a stand located at the corner of George and Paterson streets.

Chief T. O. Doane, of Plainfield, is an honored guest and marched with the visiting chiefs. There was also a large delegation of Plainfield firemen. Nathan Guttman's band, of Plainfield, had a position in line just ahead of Neptune Engine Co., No. 2, of this city.

WELCOMED THEIR PASTOR.

Formal Reception to Rev. W. C. Snodgrass by First M. E. Church.

The ladies of the First Methodist church gave a reception last night to their pastor, Rev. Winfield C. Snodgrass, who has returned from a trip abroad. A short programme of music was given, interspersed by remarks from Mr. Snodgrass describing his trip, after which an informal reception was held at which an opportunity was given all to shake the pastor's hand and tell him how glad they were to see him back again.

Miss Mary Collier and E. C. Howard played a duet together on the piano, and Miss Collier also rendered a piano solo. Miss Julia Ketchem favored the audience with vocal solos. Refreshments in the form of ice cream and cake were served towards the close.

The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. L. M. French, Mrs. G. Q. Packer, Mrs. N. W. Pike, Mrs. Whiting, Mrs. George Burgess, Mrs. H. A. McGee and Mrs. John Lewis. Mrs. French, the chairman, was absent, so Mrs. Packer took charge of the reception.

A SICK SOLDIER.

Prostrated on His Way Home From Porto Rico.

Charles Paterson, who has been very sick in the hospital at Fortress Monroe, is on his way home from Porto Rico and has been delirious several days, is on the mend.

His family in this city have received several kind letters from his nurse, a Miss Kenny, stating that he is receiving the best of care, and that they need not worry about him.

The nurse says he is always cheerful and is a good patient, and as soon as he is able to travel he will come home on a furlough.

Patrolmen Elect.

The following officers have been elected by the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association of this city: President, William Mattox; vice-president, Patrick Flanagan; secretary, G. W. Lunger; treasurer, James Saunders; financial secretary, J. Watson; sergeant-at-arms, Nick Myers.

THIRD WARD G. O. P. IS OPPOSED TO FOWLER.

But They Will Probably Vote for Him, Though.

HAVE NO OTHER CANDIDATE.

RESULTS OF REPUBLICAN PRIMARIES LAST NIGHT.

Third Ward Men Feel Sore Over the Postoffice Appointment, but the Lack of Another Congressional Aspirant Will Prevent Their Taking a Stand—Results of Voting in All the Wards.

A queer state of affairs exists with the delegates selected from the Third ward. It is known that every delegate selected not only signed J. Fred MacDonald's petition for postmaster, but also worked for it. These men naturally feel the "turn down" given to them by Congressman Fowler when the appointment of postmaster was made. It was openly stated last evening that if another man besides the present Congressman is presented the delegates from this ward will support him. If Mr. Fowler is the only candidate the delegates will very naturally stand by the nomination.

FIRST WARD.

In this ward George W. Moore acted as judge, William B. Ayres as inspector and J. B. Coward was clerk. There were 120 votes cast, and the following delegates were elected: H. C. Vanemburgh, 114; R. I Tolles, 114; C. J. Newman, 110; L. M. Dunavan, 108; E. J. Olisen received 18 votes.

SECOND WARD.

The contest in this ward was quite lively. In all seven candidates were in the field to be elected as delegates, although the ward is only entitled to four. There were 32 votes cast, divided as follows: O. S. Foote, 32; Robert Guttridge, 31; J. E. Keely, 31; Louis L. Croom, 31; John Venable, 1; C. A. Baynon, 1; G. H. Goddard, 1. The first four mentioned were elected. W. H. Drayton was selected as judge, while William P. Spangenberg was inspector and R. A. Frey was the clerk

THIRD WARD.

There were fewer votes cast in this ward than in any other, and there was no contest whatever worth mentioning. F. E. Marsh acted as judge. The inspector was J. Smith Garretson and A. I. Littell was the clerk. The delegates selected are Alexander Gilbert 26, J. Frank Hubbard 26, F. W. Runyon 20, F. E. Marsh 23. H. G. Runkle received 11 votes, while W. S. Lowry and Spencer Conway each received one vote.

FOURTH WARD.

This was the banner ward of the city for attendance, as there were 72 more people present than in all the other wards together, 249. Abe Angleman was elected judge, H. C. Runyon inspector and W. H. Abbott clerk. The straight Republican ticket for delegates was elected throughout. This ward being entitled to five delegates the following were chosen: William Newcorn, 186; H. C. Runyon, 187; William H. Abbott, 187; C. Shelton, 186; William Jeter, 186. The opposition ticket and the vote is as follows: Jacob Kriney, 62; Joseph Chapot, 62; George Rogers, 61; James Connett, 61; W. Downs, 61. There was one blank ticket and one split ticket.

SURPRISING FORMER PASTOR.

Young People From Centenary Church, Newark, Visited Dr. and Mrs. Snodgrass.

A party of young people from the choir of the Centenary M. E. church, arranged a delightful little surprise party for their former pastor, Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, of Central avenue, last Friday evening. Mrs. Snodgrass was let into the secret and invited some of the young people from the First M. E. church, where Dr. Snodgrass is now pastor. The little gathering was a complete surprise to Dr. Snodgrass. An enjoyable programme was rendered during the evening by the visitors, and a pleasant time was enjoyed by all.

Endeavorers Active.

The semi-annual business meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church will be held on Friday evening of this week at the home of Miss Alice Morgan, of Albert street. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance, as officers for the coming year are to be elected. The short business session will be followed by a social hour. All members of the society who can do so are requested to take the Front street trolley car leaving the station at 7:45, and proceed together to the meeting.

Somerset Grand Jury.

Somerville, Oct. 4—The Grand Jury will get through today with all cases and will probably come into court tomorrow with the indictments.

Children should always increase in weight. Not to grow, not to increase in flesh, belongs to old age.

Present and future health demands that this increase in weight should be steady and never failing.

To delicate children, Scott's Emulsion brings richer blood and firmer flesh. Better color comes to the cheeks and stronger muscles to the limbs. The gain in weight is substantial; it comes to stay.

GEN. MERRITT IN PARIS

CITY SEES STORMY TIMES

The Peace Commission Holds a Joint Meeting. The Proceedings Largely Devoted to Arranging Preliminary Details. Reception by President Faure.

Paris, Oct. 4.—The American Peace Commissioners yesterday, after being closeted for more than an hour with Gen. Merritt, who is in excellent health and spirits after his long journey, met their Spanish collegues in conference in the afternoon at two o'clock.

The day's proceedings, like those of Saturday, were devoted to formalities and details and to arranging in a way satisfactory to both commissions the most satisfactory way of conducting business. So far, the method of carrying on deliberations without having any presiding officer or chairman has worked very smoothly, affairs being discussed in a concersational way, as friends might talk over their after-dinner coffee. The interpreters, however, have a very busy time of it.

The plan of work directed to be prepared by the secretaries has not been perfected, as the Secretary of the Spanish Commission did not arrive here until yesterday.

At the second meeting of the Spanish and American Peace Commissioners, held yesterday, certain propositions were laid before the joint Commission which, it was agreed, should be discussed by each Commission seperately.

This action was taken with a view of hastening the proceedings. The next meeting of the Commissions will be held on Friday next.

While it is the general impression that the meeting was again devoted to preliminaries and that the adjournment to Friday was taken only to enable the secretaries to draw up a schedule of work, the representative of The Assaciated Press learns that the session was highly important, and that the Americans made a demand of such a character that the Spaniards found it necessary to ask for an adjournment in order to enable them to cousult the Government at Madrid.

It is believed that the question concerns the Philippines, and it is known that the Americans are highly pleased at having so soon reached what they consider a very important phase of the negotiations. They regard the two sessions thus far held as satisfactory to America. A member of the Commission expressed the belief that the work would be completed within a month.

The American Commissioners will be received by President Faure at five o'clock this afternoon.

Stormy Scenes.

Paris, Oct. 4.—Revisionists and anti-revisionists seem to be spoiling for a fight. Captain Dreyfus, whether guilty or innocent, has certainly caused a veritable cyclone of passion to be let loose.

Paris was in a turmoil all day Sunday. Crowds, scuffles, uproar and arrests formed the programme. At this moment the mounted Republican Guard is patrolling certain parts of the city, and all of the police force is on the alert.

About a score of persons are said to have been seriously wounded in the various free fights that have broken the monotony of the Parisian Sunday. In one quarter alone over forty arrests have been made. Of these thirteen have been kept and the others liberated.

Among the latter is M. Francis de Pressense, one of the first authorities on foreign politics in Frances and a leader writer of the Temps. With him were arrested M. Ernest Vaughan, director of the Aurore, and M. Morhardt, another of the Temps' editorial staff. All three were to have addressed a meeting in favor of revision in the Dreyfus case. This manifestation was announced to be held in Salle Wagram.

Sampson's Patriotic Grandson.

One of Admiral Sampson's married daughters, the wife of Lieutenant Roy Smith, lives in Norwich, and has a small American of her own at the public schools. The first time they sang "The Star Spangled Banner" in his room, the patriotic youngster rose to his feet, and there he stood reverently and resolutely till the song was over.

That's the naval rule, to stand uncovered when the grand national anthem is sung or played.

With a naval father and grandfather, he followed the laws of the service.

It was rather an unusual proceeding, and his playmates undertook to guy the little patriot about it, but he stood his ground like a hero.

The incident reached the ears of the local school board, and the order at once went out that all scholars of Norwich must stand while the national hymn is sung.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

LEAVING CAMP WIKOFF.

Only Three Regiments Now There.

Montauk Point, Oct. 4.—The second Cavalry, numbering 588 men, left Camp Wikoff early yesterday morning. The train was composed of two sections. With the first were about 300 men in command of Col. Noyes and Major Wallace. The second section got away at 8.40, and was expected to arrive in Long Island City about 12:30. The troopers were in good condition and spirits, and were anxious to get away from Montauk. There are now here only two vavalry regiments, the Sixth and the Tenth. The Seventh Infantry is also here, and will be the last to leave.

The Sixth and Tenth Cavalry are packing up their belongings, preparatory to leaving camp. The horses of the Sixth will leave for Huntsville today and the men will follow Wednesday. The horses of the Tenth wil depart on Thursday, and the men will get away the day following.

Gen. Shafter having left to take command of the Department of the East at Governor's Island, Gen. McClernand is in charge here to see to the closing of the camp. The morning atmosphere is damp and foggy and very disagreeable. The detention hospital is being closed by Major Elbert, and Major Brown is sending the convalescents to city hospitals as rapidly as possible.

SITUATION IN PEKIN.

No Serious Danger Yet, but Anxiety for the Future.

Washington, Oct. 4.—The State Department has received the following cable despatch from Minister Conger at Pekin:

"There is no serious danger yet, but considerable anxiety for the future. The foreign fleet is assembling at Tientsin. Some of the Ministers are ordering marines to Pekin for legation guard."

Secretary Long, upon advices received at the State Department, showing the existence of threatening conditions in China has ordered Rear-Admiral Dewey to send two warships immediately from Manila to a point as near the Chinese capital as possible for a war-ship to approach. The vessels selected for this undertaking are the cruiser Baltimore and the gunboat Petrel. The Baltimore will probably not be able to get beyond the Taku forts at the entrance of the Pei Ho River, upon which Pekin is situated, but the Petrel can at least go up to Tientsin, eighty miles above the mouth, and about the same distance below Pekin. The navy officials keenly regret that there is not now on the Asiatic station a light-draught gunboat of the Helena class, which could ascend the river as far as the Chinese capital.

Joint Commission's Plans.

Quebec, Oct. 4.—It has been definitely settled that the Anglo-American Commission will conclude its labors here on Friday, Oct. 14. The adjournment will last a month, when the negotiations will be resumed at Washington.

An American commissioner, while speaking guardedly, said the negotiations were proceeding more smoothly than he had anticipated. The future treaty has actually passed the troublous stage. The same authority vouchsafed the information that a reciprocity schedule involving natural and manufactured products was clearly in sight.

Battleships Sailing Delayed.

Washington, Oct. 4.—The Oregon and the Iowa may not start for Manila until next week. It was explained at the Navy Department that the fitting out of the distilling ship Iris and the supply ship Celtic might not be completed until Oct. 10, and this fact alone would be sufficient to delay the sailing of the battleships, since all the vessels are to go together. It was further explained that the Department had at no time believed that the naval reenforcements would see out before the early part of this month.

Strikers Capture a Town.

Washington, Oct. 4.—One hundred and fifty coal miners from Pana, Ill., came here last night and with the assistance of local white miners drove fifty negro miners out of town. They all wore masks to hide their identity and were heavily armed, ruling the town for over an hour. A fire alarm was turned in and many of the citizens who responded were deputized to assist the police. The masked miners then disappeared. Further trouble is expected.

Appointed by the President.

Washington, Oct. 4.—The President has made the following appointments: Joseph E. Lee, Collector of Internal Revenue, district of Florida; George H. Green, United States Marshal, district of Texas. Navy—Lieut.-Commanders John E. Pillsbury and William H. Reeder, to be commanders; Passed Assitant Engineer Frank W. Bartlett, to be chief engineer and acting gunner; Myles Joyce, to be gunner.

To Embark from Savannah.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Secretary Alger has announced that Savannah, Ga., had been selected as the point of embarkation of all troops which may hereafter be sent to Cuba or Porto Rico. It is stated at the War Department that Savannah was selected because it afforded the best facilities.

A Stage Robbery.

Empire City, Ore., Oct. 4.—About four o'clock Sunday morning the Roseburgh-Myrtle Point stage was robbed, one mile west of the latter place, by a highwayman. The robber secured the registered-mail sack, containing between eight hundred and one thousand dollars.

Gen. Shafter in Charge.

New York, Oct. 4.—Gen. William R. Shafter, who has been appointed to the head of the Department of the East, went to Governor's Island on the General Hancock, at eleven o'clock Monday morning to take charge. He was received with a Major-General's salute.

Tod Sloan Still Winning.

London, Oct. 4.—In the racing at the Nottingham Autumn Meeting yesterday, Tod Sloan rode two winners out of four mounts.

HAWAIIAN PROBLEMS

Congress Will Have a Difficult Task on Hand This Winter.

PROPERTY QUALIFICATION

The Plans Devised by the Commissioner is One Which Will Cause Much Debate in Congress. The Money Qualification is Desired Because it Will Lead to White Supremacy.

Washington, Oct. 4.—It is becoming plain that it will be no easy task for Congress next winter to provide a plan of government for the Hawaiian Islands. The scheme devised by the commissioners who have just returned, according to the reports received from San Francisco, is one which will not get through the Senate without a prolonged debate. It exhibits more clearly than anything has done up to date the marked change in our traditional theories and governmental principles involved in the new colonial departure.

The Hawaiian Islands, it seems, insist upon a property qualification for the electors who will choose the members of the upper house of the Legislature. According to the sentative draft of the bill, they place this money qualification at $1,000 assessed valuation, or $3,000 worth of property. It does not appear that the members of the Morgan commission have at all dissented from this programme. Nor is any one in doubt as to why the annexationists desire such a money qualification. It is the quickest way to whote supremacy, and no one who has actively championed the annexation of Hawaii could have seriously contemplated anything else.

In one respect the problem is simpler there than in our own Southern States. The poor whites of the South are almost as thirftless as the negroes, and hence the property qualification straight does not entirely meet the wishes of their leaders. The whites of Hawaii must be more uniformly well to do, and the colored races more uniformly thriftless, than in the Gulf States.

The proposal to make this group of islands a territory of the American Union cannot fail to occasion much debate. The territorial system is regarded as the anomaly, and only permissible on the theory that its operation is to be but temporary. Idaho and Wyoming would not be in the Union to-day but for the feeling on the part of many good Senators that statehood was the natural political condition, and the territorial form of government but a troublesome and unsatisfactory makeshift, and hence, since we had Idaho and Wyoming, we might as well make states of them first as last.

Suffering in Havana.

Washington, Oct. 4.—A private letter from an American citizen, in close touch with the Cuban Military Commission in Havana, states that great suffering exists in Havana for lack of food.

People are starving, some dying on the streets, and many others who are unable to go out and beg die in the houses. There are a great number of this latter class.

All the while this has gone on the authorities have refused to allow the Consul, with a million rations on board to enter the Havana harbor. The American Commissioner did a great deal of hard work to secure the entrance of the vessel and finally got permission to land her suplies at Matanzas.

The Commission, the letter states, is now making efforts to secure the admission of supplies sent by the Red Cross, so a portion of the suffering may be relieved. The Commission in this, as in everything else, find that they are dealing with procrastinating men who delay every move as loong as possible.

No fault is found with the treatment which the Commissioners receive personally, the Spanish authorities being very suave and polite, but in the matter of business plenty of time is taken.

Yellow fever is said to exist in the city, but little fear is expressed by the writer of the litter, who says it is not reported as dangerous.

To Walk Around the World.

New York, Oct. 4.—Eight young men of this city and Brooklyn left No. 102 Fulton street at eleven o'clock yesterday morning to walk around the world. Each had plenty of money and carried a small pack on his back.

When they left Fulton street the men went over to the City Hall and saw the Mayor, then took the Cortlandt street ferry to Jersey City. From there they took the plank walk to Newark. Rudolph De Zapp, who is the leader of the walkers, said he did notp ropose to go any further than Newark tonight. He said that after a few weeks they would be able to cover twice the distance. From Newark they will go to Trenton, from there to Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, where they wil call upon the President, and exchange letters.

The men intend to visit all the newspaper offices on their route in this and other countries and get an autograph from each. Mr. De Zapp expects the trip will take not less than three years. He said as they were not walking against time they would not hurry themselves.

Fell Into the Niagra River.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Charles Wicks, a painter, who came here from Philadelphia, to work on the new steel arch-bridge at Niagara Falls, fell from a scaffold on the bridge Sunday, 150 feet to the river. His body did not come to the surface, some under current having swept it into the rapids before it could rise.

Chicago's Busy Highwayman.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—Otto Jacobson was held up and robbed of $400 on a downtown street Sunday night by a negro in the presence of several persons, who were awed by the flourishing of the robber's revolver.

I must say that I was very tired tramping from store to store without coming to a conclusion where to buy. We saw some things we liked in one store and other things we liked in other stores, but there didn't seem to be any one store in which we could buy to our entire satisfaction until we reached Hahne & Co.'s.

I never enjoyed such a half day in my life. Everything was so new and bright that I was afraid we would be hampered in making a choice. It's apt to be that way, you know, when so many good things are spread before you, but when we settled down to work, we found buying a real pleasure.

The choice of carpets puzzled us not a little. There were so many new and pretty patterns to choose from that we, Harry, Emma and I, were forced to take a vote on the carpet for each room. Sometimes I was on Harry's side and sometimes on Emma's.

For Emma's room we selected an all-wool filling cotton chain ingrain at forty-eight cents a yard, and for the spare room an all-wool ingrain, the best made, at sixty cents. For the parlor we decided upon a very pretty velvet carpet at eighty-five cents a yard, and for the dining-room a Smyrna rug at $18.95. For the hall and stairs we chose Brussels at sixty-five cents a yard.

I fairly went wild over Hahne & Co.'s upholstery department. I never had seen such a beautiful collection of curtains, and I don't believe another State in the world can match it. For the bedrooms we bought bright ruffled bobinet curtains at $2.75 a pair. We put them up in that fascinating cross style, using two rods, and drawing them back into silk loops that cost 10 cents a pair.

The curtains for the dining room were the Renaissance effect at $2.25 a pair. In the parlor we put up Irish Point Lace Curtains with an exceptionally deep heavy border in cushion work. They cost us $5.98 pair. We draped them with silk lambrequins at top, white corrugated pole and corrugated trimmings to match.

The furniture department next engaged our attention. When we stepped from the elevator into this beautiful section of Hahne & Co.'s store we were—well, I put it mildly by saying we were amazed. The arrangement of furniture is, as Hahne & Co. truthfully say, "The handsomes in the world."

For Harry's and Emma's room we picked out a bird's eye maple suit for $35. It is a gem. For the spare room we went a little higher and selected a lovely brass bed at $35, and made an exquisite contrast by adding a curly birch bureau at $22, and a toilet table at $20, a total of $77.

For the parlor we purchased a silk velour and inlaid mahogany frame suit of five pieces for which we paid only $20. For the dining room we bought an eight-foot oak extension table for $15, a sideboard for $25, a china closet for $15 and six leather seat chairs for $24, costing in all $79. A hall rack cost us $12, and $15 was the price we paid for a hall settee.

Last week Harry and Emma moved into their new home, and in honor of the event they gave a house warming. The Jiltons, the Graysons, the Peterviles and other fashionable people were there, and all declared that it was the prettiest, coziest little nest for a bride they had seen in many a long day.

ARREST OF SENATOR QUAY.

Official Conformation of the Reported Issue of Warrants.

Philadelphia, Oct. 4.—Official confirmation was given yesterday to the rumors which have been in circulation that warrants have been issued for the arrest of United States Senator M. S. Quay and others prominent in state politics, charging minuse of state funds.

District Attorney Graham said that warrants has been issued charging United States Senator Quay; his son, Richard S. Quay; ex-State Treasurer Benjamin J. Haywood, and Charles B. McKee, with conspiracy with the late John S. Hopkins, formerly cashier of the People's Bank, to make use of the state's funds in stock speculation.

The affidavit upon which the warrants were sworn out was made by Detective Meyers who is an attache of the District Attorney's office.

Hopkins, who is named in the affidavit, committed suicide in March last, and an examination of the bank's condition then made showed that the bank's assets were impaired. The bank at once went into liquidation, and President James McManos agreed personally to protect all creditors.

At that time the deposit of state funds amounted to $605,000, which amount has since been paid into the state treasury by Mr. McManos.

AMERICAN PORK IN GERMANY.

A Discovery That it Has Entered Without Certificates.

Berlin, Oct. 4.—An important revelation regarding American pork has been made by the German government, which anounced in the semi-official press that it has received information showing that American pork has entered Germany without a certificate. Inquiry made at the United States embassy confirms the report that the discovery has been made. Thousands of tons of American pork have been imported through a number of custom houses, for years past, without certificates. The German government was ignorant of the fact, and denied its accuracy until overwhelming evidence was obtained and submitted by the embassy's scientific attache, Mr. Stiles. The embassy has requested the Foreign Office to instruct the custom houses to insist in every case upon a certificate.

No American firm is inplicated in these importations, which explains the alleged discoveries of trichinae in American pork. German dealers in American pork offered in July last a reward of a thousand marks for a case of human trichinosis due to American pork, and three months have passed without anybody's claiming the money.

Funeral of Dr. Hall.

New York, Oct. 4.—The funeral of Rev. Dr. John Hall, late pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, will be held at the church this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Arrangements have been approved by Mrs. Hall, who arrived with the body from Ireland on Saturday. The body will rest in the plain oak coffin in which it was brought from Ireland, and will be placed in front of the pulpit until time for the service. The only ornament on the coffin is a brass plate, on which is inscribed: "John Hall, died September 17, 1898."

There will be no demonstration, whatever, and no flowers will be accepted. No special music has been prepared for the ceremony. The singing will be done by the congregation, such as is customary at all church services.

Rev. Wallace Radcliffe, moderator of the General Assembly, and Rev. William M. Paxton, of Princeton Theological Seminary, assited by Rev. Hugh Pritchard, pastor of the King Street Mission, and Rev. I. H. Polhemus, pastor of the Sixty-third Street Mission of the Fifth Avenue Church, will conduct the service.

Dr. Paxton, a lifelong friend of Dr. Hall, who took part in his installation as pastor in 1867, and also in the ceremonies attending the opening of the present church in 1875, will deliver the principal address.

Floods in Georgia.

Baxley, Ga., Oct. 4.—Brunswick and its vicinity are flooded and inundated a thousand houses and stores are damaged, and there has been loss of property worth half a million. The list of dead is now small, but is increasing. Three thousand persons have sought refuage on the hills from the rising waters.

Thirty blocks in the heart of the city were under six feet of water for twelve hours.

This is the greatest flood since the Sea Island affair. A man arriving here last night passed through seventy miles of wrecked country.

Professor Commits Suicide.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 4.—Henry J. McDermott, aged twenty-five, a student of the Sheffield Scientific School, class of '96, and assitant professor in chemistry at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York City, committed suicide yesterday by taking poison. Despondency from ill health is supposed to have been the cause.

To Avoid Collisions.

Berlin, Oct. 4.—As a result of representations made by the Hamburg-American Steamship Line, the German Foreign Office intends to invite the governments of the maritime nations to come to an agreement to legally compel steamers to follow transatlantic lane routes, in order to avoid collision.

Henry George Declines.

Gold from the Klondike.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 4.—The steamer Fastnet has arrived from Skaguay with half a million in dust and with news that a million more was on the way. There will be but one more boat from Dawson, the Columbia, which will bring down a large amount of treasure.

MILES' PLANS REJECTED

Troops Will Not Be Quartered in Northern City Buildings.

GOING TO SOUTHERN CAMPS

During the Absence of the Secretary Miles Got the Assistant Secretary to Make Inquiries Regarding Accommodations in Big Northern Cities. Alger Rejected the Proposition.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—Secretary Alger rejected, in a firm manner, the proposition advanced by General Miles for taking care of the volunteers during the winter. General Miles believes that the troops should be quartered in permanent buildings during the cold period and is violently opposed to sending them to Southern camps to pass the time in tents. When Secretary Alger went to his home in Detroit a couple of weeks ago General Miles busied himself with a plan for housing the troops in the North. He suggested to Acting Secretary Meiklejohn that inquiries be made in the big Northern cities to see at what cost a number of large buildings, sufficient to accommodate the entire volunteer Army until next spring could be rented. Mr. Meiklejohn was persuaded that the scheme was a good one and the Quartermaster General was accordingly directed to investigate the matter. Telegrams were sent to New York, Brooklyn, Buffalo, Boston and a number of other cities to see what buildings were available. It is not known how far the matter went, but from what happened yesterday it was shown that Secretary Alger was not only entirely ignorant of General Miles' proposition, but also disaproved of it.

A delegation of citizens from Cincinnati called on the Secretary this morning and endeavored to have him select one of the suburbs of that city as a camp site for the troops over winter. During the winter it was brought out that Cincinnati was one of the places inspected by the Quartermaster's Department, while on the hunt for buildings to rent. The delegation secured a copy of the report on Cincinnati, which was read by Colonel Martin of the Quartermaster's Department. As Col. Martin started to point out the advantages of Cincinnati as a camp site, Secretary Alger interrupted him with an inquiry of where the information came from.

"It was collected by our department," said Colonel Martin, "for the purpose of seeing what cities could furnish big buildings that could be rented."

Secretary Alger pricked up his ears at this, and demanded sharply:

"By whose authority was this done?"

"By the orders of the Acting Secretary of War," replied Colonel Martin, who then explained the plan of General Miles to send the volunteers in the largest cities of their respective states, to be housed in buildings until the spring.

"What places have you inspected?" inquired the Secretary.

Colonel Martin named Cincinnati, Brooklyn, New York, Philadelphia, Buffalo and a number of other cities.

Secretary Alger clearly showed his displeasure.

"This is a nice plan," he explained, "for if it were carried out we might just as well furlough all the men at once. We would have a nice army if we should attempt to do this."

On hearing what Secretary Alger had to say of General Miles' scheme, Army officers immediately abandoned the idea of quartering soldiers in the big cities, and it is now certain that the men will be kept in small camps during the coming winter.

Bryan Leaves Washington.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Col. Williams Jennings Bryan of the 3d Nebraska Volunteer Infantry, who has been in Washington for ten days, left for Hot Springs, N. C., yesterday, accompanied by Mrs. Bryan. After a brief stay there Bryan will rejoin his regiment at Jacksonville.

His original ten-day leave, on which he came to Washington to spend, with Gov. Holcomb, for the discharge of the sick soldiers of his regiment, has been extended to permit him to avail himself of the healing qualities of the waters at Hot Springs.

Reports Spanish Victory.

Madrid, Oct. 4.—Gen. Rios, Governor-General of the Philippines, cables that the town of Bugason has surrendered to the Spanish, the insurgents fleeing, leaving twenty-seven dead and a quantity of guns and ammunition. The inhabitants of the Visayas, he says, are evidently disinclined to rebellion. Gen. Blanco cables that he is arranging to catch the insurgents between two fires. The insurgents attempted to make a landing at Tarlac, but were reputed by the Spanish with heavy loss.

Anti-Anarchist Movement.

London, Oct. 4.—A despatch to the Central News from Rome says that the interchanges of opinion among the Powers in regard to international measures against Anarchists have resulted in expressions favorable to such action, all of the Powers agreeing to the proposal.

An international conference will accordingly be summoned to meet in Rome to discuss the steps to be taken in the matter of common anti-Anarchistic action.

Decision on Banking Law Provision.

Albany, Oct. 4.—Attorney-General Hancock has written an opinion declaring that the provision of the banking law that a trust company shall not make loans directly or indirectly to any of its creditors, officers or stockholders, prohibits such a loan by a trust company to any firm or corporation in which any director, officer or stockholder of the trust company is interested.

The Fire on the Alexander.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 4.—The fire in the coal cargo of the collier Alexander is under control. About 2,000 tons of coal are ruined. Assistant Secretary Allen, who was here, to-day ordered an investigation into the cause of the fire.

DELAGOA BAY RAILWAY.

The Arbitrator's Decision Expected Hourly.

London, Oct. 4.—The decision of the Swiss arbitrators in the matter of the Delagoa Bay Railway has been prepared for some little time, and may be issued any day, possibly to-morrow.

I understand that the award to be paid by Portugal to the McMurdo concessionaries will certainly run into millions sterling, though one expert estimate, given me to-day, of five millions sterling, probably is an exaggeration.

Upon this award great international events hang. Portugal cannot herself find the money. She must sell something. Dr. Leyds's present mission to Europe is largely concerned with the Transvaal's desire herself to lend Portugal the necessary funds in return for the Delagoa Bay Railway, for President Kruger realizes that herein is the key to the South African position, but Dr. Leyds's rebuff at Berlin, last week, kills this project.

England will, as foreshadowed in my despatch of September 6, herself provide Portugal with the money in return for a long lease of the railway. The original idea of a joint Anglo-German guarantee seems to have been abandoned in favor of a solely British financial operation, Germany lending her moral support.

Other features of the Anglo-German deal are not yet ripe for public official announcement. Among other events they await the Kaiser's talk with the Sultan.

COL. ROOSEVELT'S TAXES.

No Judicial Action in the Matter. Payment Has Been Made.

New York, Oct. 4.—The application in behalf of Theodore Roosevelt for a discontinuance of his certiorari proceeding against the Tax Commissioners was not on the motion calendar of the Special Term, Part I., of the Supreme Court, before Justice Smyth yesterday. When the certiorari was called, before Justice Daly, in Special Term, Part III., it was adjourned until October 11.

A check for $995.28 was delivered to the Bureau for the Collection of Taxes by the Title Guaranty and Trust Company, acting in behalf of Col Roosevelt. This is the firt day on which such a payment could have been made, and the check was for the tax of $1,005, less a rebate of $972 for payment in advance.

War Investigation.

Washington, Oct. 4.—The members of the War Investigating Commission, at yesterday's session, took the position that under a strict construction the Commission had no authority to compel a witness to be sworn by a member of the Commission, but that witnesses would not raise technical objections.

It was decided, however, to inform witnesses frankly of the status of the Board and to afford them an oportunity to decline in case they so desire. It was suggested that the difficulty might be avoided by getting the President to appoint one of the officers of the Board a notary public, so as to have an officer capable of administering oaths present.

Major-Gen. Joseph Wheeler was notified to appear to-day before the Commission.

Big Woolen Failure.

Dover, N. H., Oct. 4.—The Sawyer Woollen Mills have assigned for the creditors, to Jeremiah Williams, a wool commission merchant, of Boston. Al. W. Sulloway of Franklin will arrive to-day to take charge of the plant. The corporation owns six mills and employs 600 workmen. The corporation also owns practically the whole of Sawyer's Mills settlement, a station on the Portsmouth & Dover branch of the Boston & Maine Railroad, consisting of more than 100 tenements. Mr. Williams, the assignee of the Sawyer Mills says that the liabilities are about $1,000,000 and the assets probably nearly as much.

Fatal Foot Ball.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 4.—The first fatal accident on the local football gridiron this season happened Sunday afternoon on Franklin Field. Robert Coveney, the seventeen-year-old son of the late Postmaster Jeremiah W. Coveney, received injuries to his spin which resulted in his death at the City Hospital this morning. The lad was playing end on the Hartfords, a local eleven, and the acident happened on a tackle play during a scrimmage, four or five men of his own and the opposing eleven coming down on top of him.

To Succeed John Bassett Moore.

Washington, Oct. 4.—The President has appointed David J. Hill of Rochester First Assistant Secretary of State to succeed John Bassett Moore, resigned. Dr. Hill is ex-President of Rochester university. He is versed in international law. He has taken a prominent part in New York politics, and has delivered many public addresses during recent campaigns. He is now in Holland, but is expected to return at once, having accepted the position tendered.

Germany and Dreyfus.

Berlin, Oct. 4.—A semi-official statement issued by the Cologne "Gazette" denies the assertion made in French newspapers that the German Minister of Foreign Affairs, Baron von Bulow, has been commanded by Emperor William to furnish the French Government with friendly explanations as to the role of Col. Schwartzkoppen in the Dreyfus affair.

New Pearl Fields Discovered.

Washington, Oct. 4.—New pearl fields of great richness have been discovered off the coast of New Caledonia, on the west side, according to United States Consul Wolf at Noumea. He says that one shell contained 256 pears, and one little boat of one and a half tons furnished last year twenty-two pounds of pearls.

Forty Seventh for Porto Rico.

It was anounced at the Army Building yesterday that the Forty-seventh Regiment of Brooklyn, which has been doing garrison duty at Fort Adams, Newport, R. I., had been ordered to Porto Rico, and would leave on either the Manitoba or Mississippi, probably Wednesday next.

COMING EVENTS.

October 9—Michael J. O'Reilly, the Bowery evangelist, will address the Y. M. C. A. meeting Sunday at 4:15 p. m. There will be vocal and cornet solos

To Choose a Senator Sure.

The first meeting of the Republican State committee, held since the State convention, was of particular interest to Union county in view of the fact that Governor Voorhees awaited its decision as to what he should do in reference to resigning the Senatorship from Union county.

Yesterday, the decision of the political mangers was that Governor Voorhees should resign immediately. The Republicans think it will be easier to elect a Senator from Union county at the approaching general election than at a special one later on. The Governor coincides with that opinion.

Though it was at first understood that Franklin Murphy, who has engineered the Republican campaign politics for several years past, would retire as chairman of the State committee, he was prevailed upon to reconsider his determination and remain the head of the organization of the party.

John Kean, of Union, however, declined to serve again as treasurer of the commitee, and his place will be filled by some other Republican.

A Permanent Pavement.

The need of a permanent pavement in the business district of this city is something that is recognized by everyone, and in taking the first definite steps to provide such an improvement, the Common Council last night did but its urgent duty.

Macadamized roadbeds are all very well for streets that carry but normal traffic, but with the number of conveyances that pass to and fro in a constant stream on Park avenue, Front street, Watchung avenue and Somerset street, the wear and tear is such that something more durable is essential.

In establishing such an improvement the cost will, of course, be greater than such work has been in the past experience of the city with its care of streets, but in the end it will be far more economical.

We cannot imagine that any sensible taxpayer will object to the proposed bonding of the city for the improvement contemplated.

The residents of North Plainfield township have been complaining about the arrangement of the electric lights out Somerset street near Washingtonville. The lights are all right but the surrounding growth of the trees are not. The lamps have been so placed that the branches from the trees have stretched out and hidden them. As a result, the light from the electric lamps is almost entirely shut off and while the artistic effect is most charming, yet the residents thereabout think that the township authorities should take measures at once to cut away the intervening branches and let the lights be put to the use that they were intended.

The Summit Record resents the statement made by the Elizabeth Journal that the opposition to the Bergen plan in Union county emanates from Democratic sources. The Journal, usually quite correct and honest in its opinions, was slightly off in making that statement. So far as we have been able to observe politics has figured but very little in the Bergen plan. The Journal's view certainly doesn't fit in nicely with the opposition to the plan in this end of the county. As a matter of fact, about the only serious opposition to the Bergen plan that developed in Plainfield was that of strong Republicans, but it was not opposition that resulted from party affiliation, however.

The installation of a local money order service in the Plainfield postoffice is one of the most up-to date improvements ever made in the local service. To those who do not have a bank account it will prove a handy and economical means of paying bills or transferring money to persons in different parts of the city who it is inconvenient to see personally. Uncle Sam has plenty of red tape to unwind in many instances, but yet he is an obliging fellow after all.

It was just as we said it would be. Those offenders in the borough police court yesterday would have done well to have heeded the advice of The Daily Press last Saturday and steered clear of the police while Mayor Wilson is on the bench. Ten dollar fines or ten days in the county jail are not pleasant ends for a passing toot. And the Mayor has plenty of such surprises up his sleeve for the borough sports.

The Children's Home is one of the most deserving charities of Plainfield—perhaps the one that could least be spared. When an appeal is made for funds for this institution it is gratifying to read that one church—the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian—contributed $142 for its support, Sunday. The Children's home ought never to be in want of the modest sum of money needed for it.

Editor Pearsall, of The Westfield Standard, was a welcome visitor at The Daily Press office yesterday. Brother Pearsall is as happy and jovial as ever, and claims he is still keeping the people guessing as to whether he is a full-fledged, hard-rock Democrat, or a Democrat with a little Republicanism mixed in.

Dr. Thomas J. Jackson, of Springfield, is Union county's member of the committee that will today formally notify E. W. Crane of his nomination for Governor by the Democrats. Dr. Jackson is a magnificent specimen of manhood, and adds dignity to any body or set of men with whom he mingles.

If the Rahway river is polluted as badly as it is said to be, and the offenders can be located and their guilt established, the local health officials should not hesitate about prosecuting at once. It is a nuisance that menaces the health and welfare of a large number of people.

Senator Reed says that he doesn't see anything so wonderful about golf. He never had a golf stick in his hands until yesterday and then he played the Park Club course of nine holes in 45 strokes, breaking the record. He used to be a cracker-jack at shinny and says golf is "easy."

The Democrats are getting mighty little consolation out of the New York Sun nowadays. It is interesting to read the Sun, though, if for nothing else than seeing what a political somersault a paper can make in a couple of years.

From the unanimity with which the Republican press accord Congressman Pitney the first call upon the Governorship nomination three years hence, it is very evident that Mr. Voornees need build no air castles about a second term.

There is one thing to be thankful for in the political campaign thus far anyway. The idiot who is taking a straw vote has not yet put in his appearance. But he'll be due later on.

If Congressman Fowler had to depend on the Third ward Republican delegates to the Congressional convention for renomination, he might be elected to stay at home.

The weather today is a poor apology for the cold, crisp air that everyone is longing for.

Good streets? Good!

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

James E. Martine has authorized the Plainfield Press to announce that "he is not and has not been a candidate for any office that the Democrats are to nominate for this fall. Mr. Martine is out of politics this fall so far as running for office is concerned." In certain ways this is to be regretted. Mr. Martine is an able man, a thorough gentleman, and a Democrat of the old school to which such men as Thomas Jefferson, Samuel J. Tilden, Grover Cleveland and Thomas Francis Bayard belonged. He never was at home in the free silver ranks, though loyally remaining with his party in its currency diversion. He has never been treated as he deserves by his party, nominations having been tendered him only when there was no hope of his being elected, and refused him when a promising opening presented. He always wages a vigorous campaign and a clean one, and is a foeman worthy to meet and not easily vanquished.—Elizabeth Journal.

TO ASPHALT STREETS.

duced next Friday evening for adoption.

The long looked for question of asphalting Park avenue, Somerset street, Front street and Watchung avenue, was introduced by Mr. Barrows. He quoted figures for doing the entire work at $24,395, and $2,245 for an adequate storm sewer for Park avenue and Somerset street. He recommended that the money for building the storm sewer come out of next year's tax receipts, and that bonds be issued for asphalting.

Mr. Hetfield objected to carrying over an indebtedness to the next Council, and said that he would not vote for that measure. President Baker agreed with Mr. Hetfield, and advised the issuance of bonds for the entire work. Mr. Hetfield, however, favored the permanent improvement of streets, and thought that the people of Plainfield need educating along the lines of securing permanent pavement. He did not think it policy to spend $15,000 or $20,000 every year and have nothing to show for it.

In connection with the above figures given by Mr. Barrows for asphalt work, it is understood that the Plainfield Street Railway Company shall pay their share for the work on Front street where their tracks are located.

By a vote of the Council it was unanimously agreed that the ordinance to provide for asphalting the streets already named should be introduced next Friday evening.

Mr. Barrows introduced three ordinances which provide for the macadamizing of East Ninth street, between Park avenue and Watchung avenue; East Sixth street, between Watchung avenue and Richmond street, and Franklin place, between Fifth street and LaGrande avenue. The ordinances were adopted, ordered engrossed and advertised.

Mr. Barrows offered a resolution requiring property owners to lay sidewalks and curbing where they have failed to do so according to law. The resolution was adopted, as was also one which leases to Wm. Golsbury a city property on West Third street for the sum of $5 per month.

Mr. Barrows called up the street railway extension ordinance and it was placed on its second reading. Then, by a unanimous vote of the Council the ordinance was rejected section by section. This action was taken so that a new ordinance can be introduced whereby the Council will be able to obtain more advantageous terms from the Plainfield Street Railway Company.

The Council then adjourned.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The local letter-carriers claim that there is at present an unusual amount of mailmatter being carried by them. They cannot account for the great rush, which has the appearance of holiday times.

* * * * *

The latest and one of the most interesting exchanges that comes to The Press office is The Daily Hammer, published at Pompton Lake, N. J. W. H. Pancoast, of Company A, is one of the editors, and associated with him is Mr. Strauss. The Hammer is a single sheet, 10x13 inches, and printed by means of the mimeograph, a little duplicating machine that the company finds very valuable. The price is 50 cents a month or 2 cents a copy. All the matter is first written on a waxed sheet, and when this is put upon the mimeograph as many copies as neceessary can be printed in duplicate.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

The counters of all the large establishments are now piled high with a large assortment of handsome fall fabrics arrayed to tempt the eye of the busy feminine shopper, and although no startling novelty in the way of autumn attire has as yet made its appearance, she will find much to interest her in the gowns, hats, and wraps suitable for all occasions which are exhibited.

The street or walking costume is the principal one to decide on at this season of the year and as there are quite a number of models to choose from it is rather difficult to make a choice. The redingotes and cutaway jackets are innovations and will prove very popular while the tailor made suit still holds full sway.

As for the materials shown so far this season, their name is legion. For autumn wear we have all light weight cloths, and cashmere, tweed, serge, cheviot, bourette weaves, silk and wool textiles and fancy wool goods will be extensively employed for street toilets. Many new shades are in the market, among others petunia, heliotrope, a beautiful shade of greenish gray, biscuit color, Russian green and many handsome tones in red and blue.

Velvet is effectively employed in combination with rich fabrics on many of the models and "let in" ornamentation of a different cloth promises to be another form of trimming greatly in vogue during the fall and winter. Figured and changeable silks are also used in this manner to brighten up an otherwise dark costume and cloth skirts with the front cut in an inverted V of a contrasting color and material is one of the novelties of the moment.

Taffetas, especially the light shades, continues to play a prominent part in the dressmaking world and it is a material which will probably remain popular for a long time to come. Tailor-made, reception and dinner gowns and even wedding frocks are fashioned of the different varieties of this lovely material and all with modish effect.

A lovely creation is an autumn gown of gray smooth faced cloth, showing a let in front of a lovely shade of blue taffeta, adorned across the foot with groups of three bias folds of white satin. The bodice of gray cloth is prettily made in bolero fashion, quite short in back and over the hips, and pointed in front.

Capes, though not as high in favor for general wear as in former years, have not been entirely discarded and this season come in many pretty styles. The latest mode fits closely about the shoulders and the fronts are usually rounded and finished with a shaped flounce around the bottom. The shawl shaped cape is also favored with stole or scarf shaped fronts. Handsome capes for fall days are made in velvet, the models of colored silk velvet being quite as popular as those built of the standard black, the various shades of plum, dahlia, Cuban red, violet and other rich shades being employed.

A chic outdoor garment turned out recently by a swell dressmaker combines both style and originality. The material employed is fawn colored satin cloth, fashioned on the lines of an Eton jacket, double breasted, with the front portion extending slightly below the belt. The jacket is finished with revers of the cloth while over these are superimposed revers of rich brown velvet. The sleeves are close fitting with a slight fullness at the top. The charming hat which accompanies this jacket is a dainty affair of shirred brown velvet, to match the revers, turned back from the face and trimmed with fluffy black tips.

A stylish storm coat seen at a large establishment is built of navy blue serge and lined throughout with black satin. The coat is cut with an attached flounce, is tight fitting at the waist line in back and loose in front, fastening invisibly. Pointed revers finish the top and three small overlapping capse with storm collar adorn the shoulders. The sleeves are close fitting, finished with a circular cuff.

A Safe Precaution.

Persons who have spent time in the waiting-rooms of medical specialists, must have remarked the general absence of reading matter to while away the time. In point of fact, there is an important reason for this. The most careful physicians do not permit any literature in their offices, for the handling of patients, for fear of contagion. One uptown doctor, who leaves two or three daily papers lying in his waiting-room, to be taken out each day, never allows a member of his family to touch the papers after they have been in the office. It is wise to give these instances of possible danger from contact the widest publicity. They should be a lesson to every one toward cultivating the habit of touching things as little as possible. It was found not long ago that serious diseases were communicated through the medium of a speaking-tube used in a manufactory by a number of persons. The mouthpiece of a public telephone is, when under proper care, frequently disinfected. The danger of the moment to the physical world is contact, and the more complete the pratice of personal isolation can be made the better for everybody.

Smart Gray Serge Jacket.

A jacket turned out by a fashionable courturiere, for a dainty blonde, combines both style and originality and is certainly worthy of mention.

This smart little coat is built of serge in a pale gray shade. The back, made tight fitting, and with a short basque, overlaps the front with a stitched seam and two tabs. The fronts are long and loose fitting and roll back with collar and revers of white taffeta, striped at regular intervals with black velvet ribbon. This is worn over a soft silk blouse with a scarf of white mousselaine de soie about the neck, tieing in a four in hand in front.

Puncture Yarns.

The manager of a comparatively small but very comfortable and celebrated seaside hotel averred the other day to the writer that in his opinion bicycle-tyre "puncture" yarns have quite superseded angling stories as an exercise for vivid smoking-room imaginations.

"Guests here often go on till two and three o'clock in the morning telling bicycle stories, and how they have miraculously mended impossible punctures miles away from anywhere. One begins about how many miles he travelled on a stony road after using a bit of postage-stamp edging; then another extolls, with a yarn, the virtues of court-plaster; and after that a third tells how he won a race with a tyre that he had mended with a gelatine jujube. Someone else effected his purpose—all details given—with a bit of chewing gum that his little girl was using; then a quiet man speaks up as to his having discovered the virtues of Hungarian pomade for waxing his moustache, which he happened to have in his pocket.

"By this time their blood is up, and an elderly man tells how, having to travel on as a matter of life or death, he tore a bit of skin from his arm; then another man happened to be passing a cherry orchard, mending the puncture with the gum from the trees; but he is transcended by a gentleman who passed a hive of bees and mended up with beeswax. I once heard a man tell, just before the meeting broke up, about having a rent in his tyre, but the latter the next second picked up a three-penny-piece edgeways that filled up the hole for hours."

Up-to-Date Medicines.

Persons addicted to medicines must appreciate the advance in the preparation of drugs. In the old-fashioned way, prescriptions were pounded up in a mortar, and the mixture divided into the portions designated; but this by no means insured that the safe proportion of some powerful drug was in each pill or powder. Nowadays, however, so accurately is the process managed that a tablet of morphine, for example, contains to the fraction of a grain just what is stated of it. The condensation of disagreeable liquid concoctions into tablets or capsules that can be instantly swallowed is another interesting story. Castor oil has been reduced to its lowest terms of disagreeableness, and is no longer the bete noire of the sick person. These merely by way of the illustration of what modern pharmaceutic skill has accomplished.

The Complexion.

The complexion depends largely upon the general health, and systematic exercise, with good, nourishing food, will do wonders toward giving a bright, healthful hue to the skin. The daily bath is also one of the best skin medicines. If the skin has no tendency to greasiness a little cold cream or other emolient rubbed well into the skin, after the bath, will destroy the tendency to wrinkles or roughness.

Fancifully shaped yoke backs are seen upon some of the newest shirt-waists.

NEEDS OF OUR NAVY.

CONSTRUCTOR HICHBORN WRITES ON LESSONS OF THE WAR.

Oregon and Brooklyn Are the Most Effective Types. Foreign Nations Are Likely to Model After Our Best Battle-Ships and Cruisers.

The war has taught us what some of us has already held, that the torpedo-boat is not the formidable engine of war which it has been credited with being The naval battles of the future, as of the past, will be fought by the most powerful engines of naval warfare that can be constructed. The battle-ship, in spite of its great cost, will continue to occupy the prominent place. The torpedo boat will have its uses, but they will not be the important uses of a naval engagement. During the war just closed the torpedo boat was practically of no use at all. Just before the outbreak of hostilities there was a great scare on account of the flotilla of torpedo-boats and torpedo-boat destroyers which was said to be on its way across the Atlantic from the Cape Verde Islands. When the war actually came, we heard nothing more about them until they were destroyed. In fact, torpedo-boats were not used by either combatant, except occasionally for dispatch boats, a duty to which other craft might be more advantageously assigned. The Winslow, it is true, was sent into the harbor of Cardenas to reconnoiter, but this was gunboat service and not the work for which a torpedo-boat is intended.

As for the Spanish boats, there was really nothing to fear from them Sigsbee made quick work of the Terror off San Juan, although the St. Paul which he commanded, was exactly the kind of a vessel, unarmored, and presenting a full side, that torpedoes might be expected to inflict damage on.

The Furor and the Pluton were among the very best and the most modern of the destroyer class, and yet the Gloucester, which is merely a converted yacht, defeated them both.

The war has taught us to rely on our great battle-ships and cruisers with absolute confidence. Hitherto the question has been open to fair discussion in the absence of any practical illustration of their work in actual warfare. But now we know what they can do.

The two vessels which, as ships-of-war, have given the best account of themselves, without regard to the manner in which they were handled, although that, of course, was above criticism with all our ships, are the Oregon and Brooklyn, and these are types of vessels which are likely to become more and more in vogue, not only in the American navy, but in the navies of foreign powers. The Brooklyn, for instance, with only four inches of armor on her sides, was far more than a match for the Viscaya, with a twelve-inch armor belt. This type of vessel combines speed with efficiency to a most desirable degree.

As for the Oregon, she combines great strength of armament with a reasonable amount of speed and coal carrying capacity in a proportion which seems to be eminently desirable. Battle-ships will be built more and more on the Oregon plan, with greater speed if possible, without interference with their effectiveness as fighting machines.

The navy will have to be supplied with vessels particularly adapted to the work for which, at the beginning of the war, we were compelled to buy all sorts of vessels at all sorts of prices. When the war broke out we were practically without ships suitable for auxiliary service. We had no patrol-boats and hardly any dispatch-boats. So that steam yachts, tugboats, and even ocean liners had to be bought or chartered for the use of the navy. The result was highly gratifying when it is considered with what sort of material we had to deal. But in preparing for the possibility of another war, the United States will have to build ships especially adapted for this auxiliary work. Some of the ships which were bought for this emergency can doubtless be made to answer the purpose permanently very well, but as a rule the auxiliary fleet ought to be constructed from specially prepared plans.

Perhaps the most important lesson which we have learned is the necessity of making our fighting ships fireproof. You remember that at Manila and at Santiago the Spanish ships took fire and they suffered as much or more from this cause as from the impact of our shells.

The war has demonstrated also the value of the rapid-fire guns and the eight-inch guns as compared with the guns of larger calibre. At Santiago the secondary batteries of the Brooklyn and the Oregon are reported to have been more effective than any other portion of their armament. The Manila and Santiago battles also have shown that smokeless powder is an invaluable part of a ship's equipment.

It is rather curious that no good demonstration has been given during the war of the value of the experimental craft which the government has been interested in. The ram Katahdin has had no opportunity to display its merits and the submarine boat has been ignored. The Vesuvius, it is true, had a chance at Santiago, but it does not appear that the results were at all decisive as to its surpassing value in naval operations.

PHILIP HICHBORN, U. S. N.

"Remember," said the good man, "that there are sermons in stones."

"Not in those that you run against with your bike," retorted the cynic, and the argument was, necessarily, at an end.—Chicago News.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Elsaß-Lothringen.

Straßburg. In Lampertheim bei Siltigheim unweit Straßburg ist jüngst ein dem Großherzog Friedrich von Baden errichtetes Denkmal enthüllt worden.

Hagenau. Während der Manöver fand hier der Ulanenrittmeister Leonhard Graf zu Stolberg-Wernigerode Veranlassung, das seinen Leuten gelieferte Essen zu tadeln. Er gerieth dabei mit dem Sergeanten Robert Scheinhardt, der für die Verpflegung zu sorgen hatte, in einen Wortwechsel und ließ sich soweit hinreißen, denselben zu ohrfeigen. Als der Mann darauf Miene machte, sich zu wehren, zog der Rittmeister seinen Säbel und stach den Sergeanten nieder. Der Rittmeister wurde verhaftet.

Metz. Nach einer Mittheilung der „Metzer Zeitung" ist auf der Gemarkung Jouy-aux-Arches, gegenüber der großen Moselbrücke an der Straße nach Metz, ein neuer Reblausherd aufgefunden worden.

Oesterreich.

Wien. Zwei junge Engländer, der 17jährige Bankbeamte James Hope Pankinson und sein Freund, der 18jährige Student Kenneth Crockett, die nach Unterschlagung von £1000 flüchtig geworden waren, sind, der erste hier, der zweite in Budapest, verhaftet worden.—Der Führer der konservativen Partei des Herrenhauses und der Präsident der Gesellschaft vom Rothen Kreuz, Graf Franz Falkenhayn, ist kürzlich Abends auf Gut Ottenschlag gestorben.

Brünn. Dieser Tage hat im Bade Luhatschowitz ein Duell zwischen einem czechischen Lehrer und einem Kadetten aus Brünn stattgefunden. Das Motiv war ein nationales. Der Lehrer fühlte sich durch den Deutschen beleidigt. Beide Gegner trugen Verwundungen davon, der Lehrer am Kopfe und an der rechten Hand, der Kadett im Gesicht.

Graz. Bei den Neuwahlen für den Gemeinderath, der vor einiger Zeit in Verbindung mit den Vorgängen, welche sich bei der Versetzung des früheren Justizministers Grafen Gleispach als Landesgerichtspräsident nach Graz abspielten, aufgelöst wurde, sind im dritten Wahlkörper zur allgemeinen Ueberraschung keine Christlichsozialen wiedergewählt worden, sondern die Deutschnationalen siegreich gewesen.

Hartberg. In Wolfsgrub spielten neulich die Kinder „Räuber und Pandur" und hängten scherzweise einen 13jährigen Knaben auf einem Gartenzaune auf. Sie vergaßen im Spiele auf den Hängenden, der nach einiger Zeit als Leiche gefunden wurde.

Klagenfurt. In Folge wolkenbruchartigen Regens haben zwei neue Bergrutschungen in Rapponiggraben stattgefunden, durch welche der Markt Obervelba im Möllthale in höchste Gefahr gekommen ist.

Laibach. Die Nachricht von der Ermordung der Kaiserin führte hier zu bedenklichen Angriffen auf italienische Arbeiter, so daß 300 derselben mit einem Sonderzug nach ihrer Heimath abreisten. Die Leute weinten bei der Abfahrt wegen Verlust ihrer Arbeit.

Schweiz.

Bern. Frankreich und Brasilien haben einen Streitfall zu erledigen, der ein von den beiden Staaten beanspruchtes Territorium an der Grenze zwischen Brasilien und Französisch-Guyana betrifft. Zur gütigen Beilegung des Streites wurde der schweizerische Bundespräsident um schiedsrichterliche Entscheidung ersucht.—Das Ueberlassen der sogenannten Nothmunition an die Wehrpflichtigen gab öfters Anlaß, daß die Munition mißbraucht wurde. Es wurde daher mehrfach das Verlangen geäußert, die Einrichtung abzuschaffen. Diesem Verlangen ist nun auch der Bundesrath nachgekommen, indem er die bisherigen Bestimmungen über die Nothmunition aufhob, die also nicht mehr verabfolgt wird.

Luzern. In den Hotels und Pensionen Luzerns sind im Monat August 31,439 Fremde abgestiegen, gegenüber 29,707 im gleichen Monat des Vorjahres. Total seit 1. Mai 80,753, gegen 76,216 im Vorjahre. Auch die Hotels aller Uferorte des Vierwaldstättersees waren größtentheils vollständig besetzt, und die Dampfschiffe und Bergbahnen hatten den größten Verkehr aufzuweisen.

Basel. Die Zionisten, welche neulich in Basel ihren Kongreß abhielten, haben die Absicht, sich daselbst häuslich niederzulassen. Ein Mitglied des Aktionskomites, Ingenieur Marmorek in Wien, hat bereits einen Plan für ein Kongreßhaus in Basel ausgearbeitet. Das künftige Kongreßhaus ist ein einstöckiger Säulenbau in maurischem Stil. Es soll enthalten einen großen Sitzungssaal, die Bureaus und die Restaurations-Räumlichkeiten und ein großes Bibliothekzimmer für die Unterbringung der vom Aktionskomite angelegten jüdischen Nationalbibliothek.

YOU'RE READING THIS?

CERTAINLY!

Well, Mr. Merchant-who-thinks-of-advertising, this is only one of the many corners in THE DAILY PRESS—it isn't the best located one, either; we can give you better—and if this attracts your attention in our endeavor to tell you how good advertising will get you a hearing before the purchasing public, doesn't common sense teach you that if you were having people reading your trade story instead of you're reading our argument about it, that it would be better for your business. THE DAILY PRESS reaches the purchasing public that makes the profits for the merchant.

We can give you big or little space—but in advertising it is'nt always economy to be sparing in your appropriation.

Cant Deny It.

When The Facts Are Brought Home To Us And By Our Neighbors Too.

They Are Plainfield Facts

A wholesome suspicion is one of our characteristics as a people. In matters worthy of investigation we want real, tangible facts regarding it. The word of those we know, the nearby evidence obtainable, are generally what we most desire. When we call on a neighbor, a man of business at that, and say, "You have had some experience with so-and-so, what do you think of it?" and he answers "Just the thing, I know because I have tried it." It goes a long way in helping our decision. This is always the case with Doan's Kidney Pills. Everybody who has used them for any kidney complaint will tell you, 'they are just the thing.' Why? Because they do the work every time and in all disordered conditions of the kidneys. The proof lies with your neighbor. Many have been cured in Plainfield and are ready to tell you or anyone enquiring.

Mr. Robert Love, of 44 Duer street, member of the firm of Love Bros., Grocers, at 267 West Front street, says:— "I suffered from kidney complaint for the last 8 or 9 years. My chief trouble was pain across the back and a lameness over the kidneys. Colds always settled there and aggravated the pain and lameness. At last my back grew weaker and any heavy lifting or too much standing or sitting gave me additional pain. In the mornings my back bothered me greatly until I moved about and took some exercise when it became better to a certain extent. I doctored and used different kinds of so-called kidney cures but it was like throwing my money away. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in our paper and being in bad shape at the time I got a box from L. W. Randolph's drug store. Before taking half of it my condition was greatly improved and continuing their use all the pain left me. I have felt slight signs of it since but a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills always drives it away. I always keep them on hand to use if occasion requires. I consider Doan's Kidney Pills a grand medicine for kidney trouble and it gives me pleasure to recommend them whenever an opportunity presents itself."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents per box or sent by mail on receipt of price by Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name Doan's, and take no substitute.

A WONDERFUL COUNTRY.

There is a country that I know
Where all the year the roses grow,
And when it rains outside I play
In that fair country all the day.

And often in the evening, too,
Among the roses, pink and blue,
I gather 'round me all my band,
For I'm the King of Carpet Land.

Sometimes I build a fort of books
And from its wall my army looks,
To bravely meet its awful doom
When Fido charges down the room.

And auntie says she doesn't know
Another place blue roses grow,
And when she sees my sword so bright
She says I am her carpet knight.

JAMIE'S BEAR TAMING.

His Unsuccessful Attempt to Follow the Story Book Method.

There was once a small boy who had a perfect passion for taming bears. Not that he ever tamed any, as he was only seven years old; but his interest in bears began when he was only five, and to please him he was fitted out with a little hunting-suit when the family went to the country for the summer. Almost as soon as they arrived Jamie would take his bow and arrows and begin to look for a bear. He also kept one eye out for Indians, but so far he had seen neither bear nor savages.

No one told him that he would never find one, because he seemed to take so much comfort in looking for them; but when he had been hunting for three summers without seeing even the shadow of a bear, let alone an Indian, it appeared to him to be quite time for something to happen.

Papa and mamma and Jamie, who were all the family, went to Maine that summer, and it looked so delightfully wild all around the country hotel where they were to stay that the young hunter felt quite sure of finding a bear this time. He intended to tame one, and lead it home in triumph. It was getting a little tiresome to be asked so often, "Found a bear yet, Jamie?"

Besides, Jamie had formed some very clear notions of his own during these years of hunting of just what he intended to do with the bear when once it was caught and tamed. Whenever story-telling time came around in the past winter he would always coax his mamma to read him over and over again from the Jungle Book the story of the big black bear that was so kind to Mowgli; how it taught him to hunt, and guarded him while he slept.

Now, if an untamed jungle bear could be so good to a little forest boy, Jamie reasoned that greater wonders and docility could be shown by his bear after it understood he meant it no harm, but only kindness. He would teach it to draw his blue-wheeled cart next autumn when he went a-nutting, and when school-days came Bruin could trot along beside him and carry his book-satchel between his great strong teeth. Then to think of the fun he would have when the snow fell, with Bruin hitched to his double-runner sled! While planning these good times Jamie fell fast asleep the night they arrived at the hotel.

Bright and early the next morning, before any other member of the party was up, Master Jamie went out to explore the premises. All the ground in the county seemed to belong to that one house. But he was not dressed yet for hunting, and when he came suddenly upon his long-desired bear it was something of a shock. Not so much so, however, as if the bear had come upon him.

Fortunately the bear was chained. But he was not a pleasant creature to meet. His puffed-out cheeks, pointed nose, dull little eyes and short ears were the reverse of pretty, and his clumsy body made him look like a great brown pig, except for the thick, strong paws.

The animal's low growl as Jamie approached him was rather threatening, for he had eaten nothing since the middle of the day before. He did not seem to know how to live on his own fat, as the bears in books do, and he glared ferociously at what he believed to be his breakfast coming toward him. But Jamie was a boy not easily discouraged, and he made up his mind quickly that if the bear was not as handsome as the bears he had read about, yet it might be made as pleasant a playfellow.

It was a brave little fellow, though, who was venturing into the jaws of danger, and thinking that the bear was chained there to be tamed, he reminded himself of what he had read, that the first step toward doing this was to look the creature steadily in the eyes and approach it very slowly. The bear did not mind being stared at, and he just stared steadily back. But while Jamie said to himself that he was getting almost near enough to pat his head and make him his friend forever, Bruin was gloating over the attractive meal before him.

Fortunately the pat was never given, for a startlingly loud voice called Jamie to come to his mother at once; and dropping the bear (figuratively speaking, as he had not picked him up) he flew to the house to see what had happened to his beloved parent. The hungry animal was furious as his anticipated prey vanished from his sight, and he tried to break his chain; but his keeper, who was leading him about the country in a half-tamed condition, now appeared upon the scene and silenced him for the time with a blow on the head.

There was nothing whatever the matter with Jamie's mamma, but the hotel-keeper, who saw the boy's danger, had summoned him in this way as most likely to bring him quickly. There was a great deal the matter with Jamie, though, for in his haste he fell and sprained his ankle, and this accident kept them all at the country tavern much longer than they had expected to stay.

But during all that time the little hunter never got a glimpse of a bear, except the one he didn't tame.

The Balanced Pail.

To support a pail of water by a stick, only half of which, or less, rests upon the table. Let A B be the top of the table, and C D the stick which is to support the bucket. Place the handle of the bucket on the stick in such a manner that it may rest on it in an inclined position, as H i, and let the middle of the bucket be a little within the edge of the table; to keep this apparatus properly in its situation, place another stick, E F G, with the end resting against the bucket at the bottom, its middle, F, resting on the opposite top edge of the bucket, and its other extremity, E, against the first stick, C D, in which a notch must be cut to retain it. The bucket will thus be kept in its situation, without inclining to either side, and, if not already filled with water, it may be filled with safety.

How Monkeys Are Caught.

In capturing monkeys it is said that their curiosity is the thing that makes them an easy prey. Nearly all of the monkeys that we see in this country come from Gornona, a little village situated a short distance from the Panama railroad.

The inhabitants of this district are mostly native negroes, for few white men could bear the climate. The whole region is marshy, and covered with tropical vegetation. At night there arises a thick vapor laden with fever, which hangs over the woods like a cloud.

This region of woods is the paradise of the monkeys. They travel in troops, led by an older monkey. When the people receive information that the "traveling monkey troops" are near the village they go to the woods in crowds to chase them.

Their plan is very simple. They cut a hole in a cocoanut large enough for a monkey's paw to enter. The nut is then hollowed out, and a piece of sugar then fastened to it, and it is placed in the road of the approaching monkeys.

It is well known that monkeys are very inquisitive. When they see the cocoanut in the grass they hurry to examine it. It does not take them long to find out that the inner part contains a piece of sugar. One of the boldest and greediest sticks a paw into the nut to get the sugar, and grasps it as firmly as he can. But his fist is so large that he cannot draw it out of the hole again with the sugar, to which he holds fast, cost what it may.

The natives now pull the string until nut and monkey arrive in the vicinity of their ambuscade. In the meantime the other monkeys wonder what is the matter with their comrade. They hurry to see where he is being pulled to with his paw in the cocoanut. They crowd around him, chattering and gesticulating, and the natives, who have a large net ready, cast it over them, and before they know it all are made prisoners. They are sold to the employes of the Panama Railroad, and reach the North American markets through commercial dealers.—Philadelphia Times.

The Real Will-o'-the-Wisp.

Into a small retort place about an ounce of strong liquor of potash; that is, pure potash dissolved in water, together with about a drachm of phosphorus. Let the neck or beak of the retort dip into a saucer of water, say half an inch deep; now very gently heat the liquid in the retort with a spirit-lamp until it boils. In a few minutes the retort will be filled with a white cloud; then the gas generated will begin to bubble at the end of the saucer; a minute more, each bubble, as it issues from the boiling fluid, will spontaneously take fire as it comes into the air, forming at the same time the philosopher's ring of phosphoric acid. Care is required in handling phosphorus; but our young chemical readers will, we think, not forego this wonderful experiment for the want of due attention; for, without proper care on their part, we must give up showing them wonders even greater than these.

CLYDE FITCH'S NEW PLAY.

A Strong Society Drama Interpreted by the Kelsey-Shannon Combination.

The Kelsey-Shannon Company are presenting this season a new society drama by Clyde Fitch, entitled "The Moth and the Flame." The play tells an ingenious story, possessing sharp contrasts of emotion and comedy. It is said to be a striking as well as a delightful combination of the serious as well as lighter sides of American society life, mainly as it is observed in New York. It is a story of deep heart interest, brightened with delicate touches of comedy.

EFFIE SHANNON.

The story of the play deals with a love affair of Marion Wolton, the daughter of a supposedly wealthy New Yorker, and Edward Fletcher. The former is a rather serious young woman, who devotes herself to severe duties in life, even though she is very fond of the gay world of society. The latter is rich and handsome, but certain events in his past have made him the subject of somewhat extensive unpleasant gossip among society people. This very gossip in regard to his past attracts the interest of the young woman, and she defends him against those who accuse him. She does not believe the stories of his past, and thinks, at any rate, that she may reform him. The beautiful moth flutters in the flame. He proposes to her and is accepted on the night of the fancy dress party in her father's home, at which the guests dress in the picturesque costumes of the children in nursery tales, fiction, etc. This episode is said to have been suggested by the famous Beckwith party about a year or so ago, which excited so much comment and which was the forerunner of the numerous costume parties which have since been so much in vogue among New York's four hundred. In the midst of the festivities the father of the heroine, who is supposedly a wealthy man, kills himself in his own room to avoid the exposure which is threatened on the morrow for his misuse of large sums of money which have been entrusted to him.

Fletcher proves a friend in need to the family, and a year later leads Marion to the altar. The wedding is interrupted by a woman who accuses Fletcher of having wronged her in the past. The rest of the story is developed on very powerful and original lines, and the interest is splendidly sustained to the very end in a very ingenious manner.

A Matter of Words.

Few men have been shrewder than Disraeli in detecting the subtle, hair-breadth distinctions which are made to pass muster as essential differences in matters of form or ceremony, says the Youth's Companion.

In the days of the public worship regulation act in England Sir William Harcourt was invited to visit Lord Beaconsfield at Hughenden Manor.

On Sunday, states the London News, which prints the story, the young politician accompanied his host to the village church, and on the way thither was warned that some hints of the high-church movement had penetrated even that sylvan fortitude.

"My friend, the vicar," said the lord of the manor, "will take what I call a collection and he calls an offertory, and afterward what I call a plate and he calls an alms-dish will be placed on what I call a table and he cals an altar."

Good As His Word.

"Paw, didn't you say that if ever a school teacher whipped a boy of yours there'd be trouble?"

"I did."

"Well, the teacher whipped me this afternoon and I wasn't doin' nothin' but throwin' paper wads agin' the wall."

"I never fail to keep a promise, my boy. There's going to be trouble. Take off your coat."—Chicago Tribune.

"Nobody ought ever to undertake to teach school who doesn't love children."

"Oh, but I did love children until after I began to teach school."—Chicago Tribune.

CYCLING COMMENT.

J. P. Mosher, of East Fifth street, has started on his vacation which will be spent awheel in company with L. W. Miles.

Those who have not enjoyed a spin on their wheels one of these fine moonlight nights have missed one of the greatest pleasures that bicycling affords. The bright moon, good roads and the air, just chilly enough to be enervating, all combine to give the cyclists splendid sport.

The season for bicycle racing is now practically over as far as Plainfield is concerned. It is to be regretted that Robert C. Wood, head of the Riverdale Field Club, did not start his effort to make bicycle racing popular once more at an earlier date. The local interest was greatly on the increase when the fall weather arrived and now precludes the possibility of any more race meets this season.

David Demarest and Edward H. Young, of Englewood, left the home of W. W. Warnock, on North avenue, Wednesday evening at 10 o'clock for home. They started from Englewood September 19th and spent their vacation awheel, touring through Philadelphia, Atlantic City, Baltimore and Washington. South of Philadelphia they found the road in very poor condition but, nevertheless, had a very enjoyable trip. When they reached Plainfield Wednesday evening they had covered over 700 miles on their bicycles.

GOLF.

Morris Dumont, of Seventh street, went to Summit last week and played golf on the course of the Baltusrol Golf Club. While playing he fortunately found several golf balls that were almost new.

The membership of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club continues to grow steadily. The regular meeting of the trustees was held last night and John T. S. Hunn, Henry C. Munger and Henry M. Maxson were elected as active members, C. C. Butler as a non-resident member, and the following as associate members: Mrs. Charles A. Stover, Mrs. W. H. Murray, Mrs. W. A. Pinto, Mrs. S. F. Kimball and Mrs. L. Dennis, the Misses Pauline F. Humphrey, Margaret Goddard, Joanna H. Shepard, Dolores R. H. Hunn, Jessie Munger and Ruth P. Maxson, and Gordon W. Abbott.

BASKET BALL.

Friday evening a meeting of the candidates for the Y. M. C. A. basket ball team was held. There were thirty present, all eager to get on the regular team, but the men who upheld the honors of the association so nobly last year were the ones chosen, much to the disappointment of some of the others. Walter L. Long was first elected captain and then chose his team as follows: Eric and Max Moraller, Fred Bonny, George P. Smith and Berry Egan. Later in the season the regular team will be divided into twos, and these pairs will each select four more players from among the candidates, these last named teams to play only in the Plainfield gymnasium for local honors.

ON THE GRIDIRON.

The Football League, fathered by the Elizabeth Journal, is on the field once more, but the chances of a Plainfield team in it are very dubious. Several of the younger players of the city are trying to work out a plan for an eleven to take part in the League contests, but it is very uncertain just what will be done. Meanwhile the affairs of the League are going rapidly forward, and Plainfield will have to hustle if she wants to be represented there.

there is a recess, considerable time is taken in going out and coming in, and it takes some time for the pupils to cool off and settle down to work when the recess is over. The new plan will begin Wednesday and will be watched carefully by Superintendent Maxson and the Board of Education to see whether it works as satisfactorily as is anticipated. The schools will close at a quarter of twelve, and at the middle of the morning session there will be calisthenic exercises to afford the pupils a change of position and a relief from continuous study.

JOTTINGS OF THE DAY.

ENTERPRISINGLY GATHERED AND CONCISELY TOLD BY REPORTERS.

Newsy Notes of More or Less Importance Bunched Together for the Ready Reference of Press Readers

—The regular quarterly meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church will be held Friday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock in the church parlors. Miss Josephine Petrie will give an account of visit to the schools in the South. All the ladies of the congregation are cordially invited to attend.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Jensen, of West Front street, are happy over the birth of a little son, who came Monday.

Miss Sadie J. Flack, of Barbertown, N. J., recently visited Miss Elizabeth D. Kepler, of Manning avenue.

Mrs. Fred R. Haberle, of West Front street, attended the musicale last evening given by Baroness M. De Packer, at her studio, Lexington avenue, New York city.

Mr. Bacon Explains.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Relative to a foreclosure suit between Benjamin D. Ford and the estate of Harriott Markham, your reporter got things a little mixed. It was not a purchase-money mortgage. I did not contest the foreclosure, but advised Ford to immediately commence foreclosure, and referred him to Mr. Ball, as he was administrator for the estate. Rather an an unusual thing for an administrator to do, but I knew that all he would get out of the estate would be the fee of foreclosure. As to my claims, they could only come in as a second mortgage after paying off the first mortgage. But by an error of my attorney in filing his answer, my claims were stricken out of the decree. Then my only defense was to buy in the property for some one else, which I believe was satisfactorily done.

F. M. Bacon.

A Pleasant Surprise.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Whiteley, of Steiner place, was the scene last evening of a happy gathering. The affair was a surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Whiteley and was arranged by their many friends. The evening was passed in sociability, interspersed with music and the serving of refreshments.

CALLED FOR TWO PLACES.

Misunderstanding Over the Eighth District Congressional Convention.

Through a misunderstanding, two conventions have been called by the Democrats in the Eighth Congressional District. Last Thursday James E. Martine, as chairman of the last convention, issued a call for a convention to be held in Bayonne Oct. 17th, to nominate a Democratic candidate for Congress in the district. Saturday J. J. Lane, W. F. Hamilton and Andrew Donnelly, a committee appointed at the last convention, issued a call for the convention to be held in Elizabeth at the Armory building, Oct. 12th.

There will be 145 delegates in the convention—75 from Union county; 19 from Bayonne and 51 from the Essex county townships as follows: Belleville, 4; Bloomfield, 5; Caldwell, 2; Millburn, 2; Montclair, 7; Orange, 17; South Orange, 5; West Orange, 4; Franklin, Glen Ridge, Livingston, Vailsburgh and Verona, 1 each.

DREW A REVOLVER.

A Discharged Railroad Detective Caused a Scrap at South Plainfield.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

South Plainfield, N. J., Oct. 4.—T. A. Lindabury, night yard master at the Lehigh Valley yards here, and Charles Perrine, of Cottage place, Plainfield, had a fight Friday night near George Harrison's place.

Perrine, who was a detective for the railroad, had been discharged that day, and blamed Lindabury for the loss of his position. Meeting the yard master Perrine, who was intoxicated, struck at him, then he was severely punished by Lindabury who was much the larger of the two.

In the encounter it is said Perrine drew out a revolver and ordered Lindabury to leave him. Perrine says the revolver was empty. A warrant is out for Perrine's arrest.

TO SUCCEED MOORE.

Dr. Hill, President of Rochester University, is Assistant Premier.

The President has appointed David J. Hill, of Rochester, First Assistant Secretary of State to succeed John Bassett Moore, resigned. Dr. Hill is president of the Rochester University.

David Jayne Hill was born June 10, 1850, at Plainfield. He is the son of the Rev. Daniel T. Hill, a Baptist minister. He received his early education in the public schools at Glens Falls, N. Y., and at Plainfield, N. J. He prepared for college at Suffield, Conn., and at Cooperstown, N. Y. In 1874 he was graduated from Bucknell University.

A Complete Surprise.

A complete surprise was given to Miss Kizzie DeMott, of Somerset street, last evening in honor of the seventeenth anniversary of her birthday. The young celebrant was wholly unaware of the event, and when about forty of her friends entered her home she did not know what to say. An evening of song and music, together with the playing of games and dancing, was enjoyed by all, and at a late hour refreshments were served in abundance.

Dissolved Partnership.

The partnership which has existed between Benjamin F. Crane and Benj. C. Mundy, the West Front street butchers, was dissolved Saturday night by the withdrawal of Mr. Crane. Mundy has taken a new partner and will continue to conduct the business as before. Mr. Crane will leave for Idaho in a few weeks.

Corner Stone to Be Laid.

In about two weeks the corner-stone of the new Calvary Baptist church (colored) on Central avenue will be laid. The pastor, Rev. Scott Wallace, says he will invite all the pastors in the town to participate in the exercises, the Masons, Knights of Pythias, etc., and intends to make the occasion a memorable one.

Fractured Her Wrist.

Gertrude Anderson, aged thirteen years, of West Sixth street, fell down in the street this morning and fractured her wrist in trying to save herself from falling. The young lady went to the hospital, where she is now under treatment for the injury.

Couldn't Raise Their Fine.

Charles Cashin, Wm. Jeroloman, James Totes and Albert Dike, of the borough, who were arrested last Sunday morning for being drunk and disorderly, were taken to Somerville last evening to spend ten days in default of paying a fine of $10 each.

DIED AT SEA.

E. Z Penfield Dies While on His Way Home from Honduras.

S. R. Struthers received word this afternoon of the death and burial at sea of E. Z. Penfield, son of Mrs Rachael Penfield, while returning to this country from Puerto Cortez, Honduras, on the steamship Arden Rose. The dead man was manager for the immense interests of the Astor syndicate in Honduras. He was born in New York fifty three years ago.

He was formerly secretary and treasurer of the Panama Railway until the company was bought up by French interests.

Green Peas for Dinner.

George O. Stevens, of the West End, had green peas for dinner Friday. The peas were planted August 10th and were just right to eat Friday. Thursday Mr. Stevens picked some strawberries off his vines.

INDIANS GROWING GOOD.

The Policy of the Government to Make Them Self-supporting.

It is rumored in department headquarters that there will be a rattling of dry bones at some of the older Western posts in the near future. As a result of the shake-up, predictions are that a number of them will be stricken from the list of necessary stations and either sold at auction or turned over to the Indian service for agencies.

Five years ago it was thought the height of folly to think of abandoning any of the Arizona military posts, which are in the region infested with Apaches, but to-day it seems to be the settled policy of the Government to make these men self-supporting, and therefore safe citizens. As rapidly as the Dawes bill requirements are complied with the Indians are admitted to the rights of suffrage. These requirements are "the severance of all tribal relationship and the adoption of the modes and habits of civilization." This will soon cover the whole Apache tribe, once so bloodthirsty, and it is not improbable that the next five months will see the abandonment of Forts Apache, Grant and Huachuca, in Arizona, and Wingate and Union, in New Mexico. The only reason why the Government keeps troops in these God-forsaken regions now is because of fancied fear of the Indians.

It is also the policy of the Government to turn over all abandoned military posts in the Indian country to the redmen, to be used as agencies: thus, in Utah, can be seen the Onray agency, once the site of old Fort Roubidoux; in Montana can be seen the Fort Peck agency, once the site of a military cantonment of that name, and in Arizona the Fort Defiance agency flourishes where once stood that sentinel of the advance of civilization westward, Fort Defiance.

In speaking of the Apaches recently, Gen. Sumner said: "It is generally misunderstood, this question of the Apache Indians. They are generally looked upon as being bloodthirsty, fierce warriors. On the contrary, I never dealt with easier Indians to handle. They are making as rapid strides toward civilization as any band in the United States, and no more need watching than many of the tribes of the Indian Territory. The Utes are vastly more turbulent and troublesome."

From this it can be seen that the prediction that the above-mentioned posts will soon be reminiscences has good foundation on logic; all of them are mainly maintained for the purpose of keeping the Apaches in check.—Denver Times.

Surgery on Snakes.

Snakes in captivity, it seems, sometimes find difficulty in getting rid of the skin which is shed every year. An Australian diamond snake in the Bombay Museum, which appeared likely to succumb, was quite blind and refused all food. A European sympathizer therefore pressed the native snake keeper into service to hold the snake, and himself, with a pair of sharp-pointed scissors, performed the delicate and risky operation of clipping away the membrane which adhered to the eyes.

J. M. Phipson, editor of the Journal of the Bombay Natual History Society, performed a far more dangerous operation a couple of years ago. His patient was a large hamadryad, or king cobra, the most vicious and poisonous of all Indian snakes, and a most powerful creature to boot. Mr. Phipson gripped the king cobra round the neck and a native literally held on for his life further down, and when the reptiles struggles were over a third man, armed with a surgeon's scalpel, removed eight layers of membrane from each eye.—London Sketch.

HYMEN MAKES HIS BOW IN FAITH CHAPEL.

Celebration of the First Wedding Ever Held There.

MISS KYLE WEDS MR. JOMNI.

THE CHAPEL PRETTILY DECORATED FOR THE OCCASION.

Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes Performed the Ceremony—An Impressive Scene Was the Singing by the Guests of "God Be With You Till We Meet Again"—The Young Couple Will Live in the West.

Faith chapel, East Third street, was filled with admiring friends last evening at 6:30 o'clock, when Miss Anna Kyle and Alfred Jomini, both residents of this city, were united in marriage by Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church. There was a special significance attached to the event owing to the fact that it was the first wedding in the new chapel.

The chapel was decorated in an attractive manner by Mrs. L. J. Denton. The entire front of the main room was occupied with palms, rubber plants, and other kinds of green foliage, while a broad band of white satin ribbon was suspended directly in front of the pulpit.

Clifford Braider presided at the piano and rendered several classical selections while the guests were waiting for the bridal party. At the appointed hour the signal was given and Miss Kyle and Mr. Jomini entered the chapel together, while the Mendelssohn wedding march was being played. When they reached the front of the chapel they were met by the officiating clergyman. The ceremony was a simple one and much admired. Following it Mr. and Mrs. Jomini reversed their position and for a short time received the best wishes of their friends.

During congratulations Mr. Braider entertained the guests with favorite selections. A feature of the affair was the singing of "God be With You 'till We Meet Again," by the friends of the bride and groom. After the reception the happy couple left for South Plainfield, where they took a train on the Lehigh Valley Railroad for the west. Their destination is Spokane, Washington, where Mr. Jomini will engage in business. As they left the chapel they were showered with an abundance of rice. The large number of useful and pretty gifts received by the couple testified to their popularity.

The bride's gown was a Yale blue cloth, trimmed with white satin and lace. She carried a beautiful bouquet of bridal roses and maiden-hair-fern.

Those who acted as ushers at the wedding were Robert Schreiner and Irving Brady, intimate friends of the contracting parties.

CONTEMPT OF COURT.

Jacob Sadosky Will Have One More Chance to Clear Himself.

A short time ago judgment was rendered in Justice Mosher's court against Jacob Sadosky, a Pole, for about $25. The constable returned the execution unsatisfied, and Counsellor W. K. McClure then began supplementary proceedings before Judge Vail to compel Sadosky to appear before William M. Stillman, a Supreme Court commissioner on September 21st, and explain where he had placed his property and money. This Sadosky failed to do, so proceedings were begun against Sadosky for contempt.

This case was to have come before Judge Vail today, but the court wishing to be lenient with the Pole gave him until next Wednesday before passing sentence upon him, and ordered him to appear before Supreme Court Commissioner Stillman Wednesday afternoon.

INDUSTRIAL HOME FOOD.

A Disinterested Visitor Says That Inmates Are Well Cared For.

Certain reports injurious to the reputation of the Industrial Home having been circulated, it seems but justice to Mr. TenEyck to say that the attention of one fully competent to judge in regard to such matters, was called to these reports and she writes: "I can truthfully say that the inmates of the home are treated very well. The food they have is nourishing—they have plenty of it and it is nicely prepared. I have been going to the home off and on ever since last January, and often arrive unexpectedly just at meal time, so that I very often see what they have to eat."

AFTER THE "PHENOM."

NEWARK POLICE SAY HE CANNOT EVADE THE LAW.

Evidence of the Advertisting Claims Made in Public is Against Him—He Will be Prosecuted in a Vigorous Manner.

(Special To The Daily Press.)

Newark, N. J., Oct. 5.—It is the belief of the police that when the "Boy Phenomenon" comes into court this week to answer to the charge of practicing medicine without a licence, he will find that the method of escape which has enable him to evade the law in Camden, Plainfield and other cities will fail him here.

The law says that no one shall practice medicine or healing for compensation without a license, and that all forms of "faith cure", or so-called magnetic healing are illegal when employed in a professional way or in cases which require medical treatment. The "Phenomenon" says that he is not a physician, but a remedy, and that he is prescribed in a perfectly regular way by a licensed physician, a man named Starkweather, who accompanies him.

In the mass of evidence in the possession of the police is the letter paper used by the boy's manager, I. Sherman, when he writes to prospective dupes or those who, having been duped, write to demand their money back. On the heading of this paper the boy is exploited as "The Magnetic Wonder of the Century in the Scientific, Magnetic, Manipulative, Medical and Mechanical Treatment of all Chronic Diseases."

According to this, say the police and the medical authorities who are prosecuting him, he is not a simple remedy but treats diseases, and any one who thus advertises violates the law. It is marvelous, the authorities say, how so many persons can be duped when the utter worthlessness of the alleged remedy is so evident.

STOLE WATERMELONS.

Then Carted Them Off to Treat His Friends With.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, N. J., Oct. 5.—S. Sorenson, a farmer living near Green Brook, has had considerable trouble with watermelon thieves lately. It got to be so annoying that Sorenson decided to keep a watch on his patch to detect the thief.

Monday he saw a wagon drive up to the patch, and soon a man jumped out and began to fill a bag he carried with melons. Then he drove away. Sorenson followed him and says that the man was Lyman Peters, whose drives for Charles Sebring. Peters drove to a stone crusher back in the mountains and it is said distributed the melons to the men there and all enjoyed a feast.

That night Sebring swore out a warrant for Peters' arrest, and he was taken before Justice Smalley. He pleaded guilty, and agreed to settle the matter by paying for the melons, the damage done, and the costs. Constable VanHorn made the arrest.

GOT DRUNK INSTEAD OF WORK.

Foolish Practices of a Jersey City Painter.

Frederick Wilson, a Jersey City painter, came to Plainfield yesterday to look for work. He couldn't get that, so he got drunk instead. Sergeant Kiely found him wandering around on West Front street late last night, and as Wilson couldn't give any account of himself, he locked him up.

When arrested the prisoner gave his name as John Henderson, but when arraigned before the City Judge this morning said he had made a mistake and that it was Frederick Wilson. Wilson was able to talk quite intelligently when brought into court, so the Judge suspended sentence in his case.

Met For the First Time.

John Fitch, a resident of Millersburg, Ohio, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Harry C. Selden, at present residing in Brooklyn, spent the day yesterday in Plainfield visiting their aunt, Mrs. Mary L. Force, of 201 Watchung avenue, and their cousin, A. L. Force, of Duer street. It was the first time they had ever seen each other and the day was very pleasantly spent together. They were strong in their praise of Plainfield as a beautiful city, one in which they would like to reside.

TWO SERIOUS RUNAWAYS

DRIVER OF A MEAT WAGON THROWN OUT AND MADE UNCONSCIOUS.

The Meat Was Strewn Along the Road For a Mile or So—Driver Not Seriously Hurt—Two Other Rigs Collided.

An exciting runaway was witnessed yesterday morning between Smalleytown and Mt. Bethel on the road to Stirling. A horse and wagon owned by Mundy & Co., the butchers, of this city, and in charge of one of their drivers, was on its way to Stirling with a load of meat for the market at that place. Between the two places there is a long hill, and in going down the horse struck his feet against the wheel of the wagon. This frightened the animal and he ran away.

All of the meat in the wagon was thrown out and scattered along the road, and the driver was pitched out and for over an hour lay in an unconscious condition along the road. The horse broke away from the wagon and ran a long distance before he was caught near Mt. Bethel.

The people who captured the horse returned along the same road and finally found the driver and wagon. The driver was taken to a nearby house and given proper treatment, and later in the afternoon continued his journey his journey. The wagon was repaired and made ready for use. Some of the meat was picked up and taken on to Stirling, while some of it was unfit for use and was given away. The driver was not seriously injured.

A team of horses and a large truck owned by the Plainfield Kindling Wood Company got mixed up last evening at Washingtonville with another rig owned by a farmer residing near Mt. Bethel. The driver of the kindling wood wagon left his rig near Finger's Hotel while he went inside. The other rig from over the mountains came down the mountain on a trot and collided with the kindling wood wagon.

The team to the wood wagon ran away and an exciting time was the result. Both wagons were somewhat damaged, and the horses were greatly frightened. In the course of an hour the rigs were straightened out and after the drivers had had their say they went on their way rejoicing.

A LUCKY ESCAPE

Thomas Cuming Rode Pell Mell Into a Fire Horse.

Manager Thomas A. Cuming, of the Eldridge Bicycle Company, met with an accident last night that might have cost him his life. As it is his left side feels numb and lame, and it will be several days before he can use it.

Mr. Cuming had been to New York and returned on the 10:15 train, arriving here about 11:30 o'clock. Just as the train pulled in the fire gong sounded and Mr. Cuming ran down the street to the bicycle store after a wheel and rode to the fire.

On his way back Mr. Cuming rode quite fast and came down the hill by McNabb's house ringing his bell. Everyone got out of the way and the rider supposed he had a clear track, not noticing that the fire engine horses had been unhitched from the engine and were being walked up and down the road in the shadow of the trees. He crashed into one of them.

The shock threw Mr. Cuming to the ground and bent his wheel a little. The handle-bars struck the animal in the breast, and he reared and fell back on his mate. Everyone thought that the wheelman was badly hurt, if not killed, but he was able to pick himself up, found no bones broken, and rode home.

INSPECTED SEWER BEDS.

North Plainfield Township Health Officials Made a Visit.

The North Plainfield Township Board of Health spent last evening inspecting Plainfield's sewage beds and from all accounts they had a pleasant time. Several hours were spent in going over the beds and inspecting everything of interest. That the member of the Board detected bad smells goes without saying. They refuse to give out anything for publication, but state that a report will be made soon. It is quite likely, however, that action will be brought against Plainfield by the Board. After the inspection the members all adjourned to Taylor's Hotel, where a sumptuous repast was served.

An Official Visit.

Last evening an official visit was paid to Iroquois Tribe, I. O. R. M., of Trenton, and among the State officers present were Great Sachem Smyth, Great Senior Sagamore Stiles and Great Junior Sagamore William Newcorn, the latter of this city. There were five tribes present and a general good time was had.

MINISTER GONE WITH CONTRIBUTION BOOK

Strange Proceedings of Rev. W. B. G. Costor in Plainfield.

STATEMENT OF THE FACTS.

MADE BY LEONARD SPANGENBURG OF THE FINANCE COMMITTEE.

It is Intimated That the Colored Minister Was Not as Straight-forward as He Should Have Been—Church Edifice Reverted to Mr. McClure on Account of Failure to Make Payments as Agreed.

The affairs of St. Peter's A. M. E. church are such that Leonard Spangenberg, who acted as chairman of the church finance committee, has deemed it wise to make a statement.

On May 1st, 1898, Rev. W. B. G. Costor, of Newark, came to this city and represented himself as the selected pastor for the above church, and stated that he had been sent here by Bishop Walters, of the A. M. E. Zion church of America. He said that he wanted to buy the Fillmore avenue church property of Lawyer W. K. McClure, and a contract was made with the church, May 11th, 1898. On August 11th the first payment was due, but the pastor let it pass by default and through the courtesy of Mr. McClure the time was extended to Sept. 12th. Again the pastor failed to make a payment and again the time was extended to Sept. 22d. On the latter date Mr. Costor failing to pay, Mr. McClure took possession of the property.

Mr. Costor came to this city highly recommended by Bishop Walters, and at a rally service held on June 10th, the Bishop was in Plainfield and formally introduced the new pastor. It was the desire of Pastor Costor that some prominent white person assume the chairmanship of the finance committee and Mr. Spangenberg very reluctantly accepted the position for the purpose of helping the colored race. He says that if everything had gone right a self-supporting church would have been established in this city.

Through Mr. Spangenberg's influence many of the best people of the city were persuaded to contribute to the church. The rally held on June 10th was a failure owing to the fact that no support was given. A circular was issued to seventy-six churches by Bishop Walters, but the church at Red Bank was the only one to respond. They sent $5 toward establishing the new church and buying the property on Fillmore anenue.

While Mr. Costor was holding camp meetings in Netherwood the Plainfield Street Railway Company contributed $35, of which $27.50 was for the benefit of the new church and $7.50 for Pastor Costor. The latter, under his own signature, made a statement of the finances and reported receipts to the amount of $183.26. This money was used for floating debts and none of it for the benefit of the church. On the afternoon of August 14th Rev. Madison Peters, of New York, spoke at the camp meeting and members of the church state that $60 was received from those present, and that $20 was received in the evening of the same day. Pastor Costor reported $46 as the collections for that day.

Pastor Costor has led Mr. Spangenberg to believe that he has a large acquaintance of wealthy people and that he could secure a sufficient amount to pay off the indebtedness, but thus far he has failed to collect the money. The pastor left town with the contribution book to secure money. Up to now he has not been heard from. The money received by Mr. Spangenberg has been used to go toward paying a debt of $100 back rent due Mr. McClure. Mr. Spangenberg cannot make up his account as the contribution book is out of his hands.

In all he handled $119.66 and that he can account for. Mr. Costor has no more authority to collect money for the church. The denomination represented by Mr. Costor has 2,100 churches in the United States and Canada, with property worth $6,000,000 and a membership of 700,000.

Mr. Costor's brother was in Plainfield yesterday and attended to the moving of the goods of the pastor out of town. Where Mr. Costor is now no one knows. He resided at 302 East Third street. He owes house rent and bills to the amount of $50 or $60.

Mr. Spangenberg desires to warn all people against paying Mr. Costor any money on behalf of the contribution book he has in his possession, as he has no authority to collect on the same.

A BLAZE AT MIDNIGHT.

A SMALL HOUSE ON WOODLAND AVENUE TOTALLY DESTROYED.

Located on the Farm of Henry Clay Randolph—Supposed to Have Been of Incendiary Origin—Firemen's Long Run.

Last evening a few minutes before 11:30 o'clock Frank Schuck, of Vine street, pulled fire alarm box No. 29 at the corner of Watchung and Woodland avenues. Just before that he saw a bright illumination not far from where he was standing. The fire department turned out in its usual quick manner, but were of little use as was afterward discovered.

The fire was in a small house on Rahway road not far from the home of Henry Clay Randolph. The house was owned by Mr. Randolph, and was occupied for a long time by Louis Miller and family. Two weeks ago the family moved out. Since that time the house has been vacant. The firemen laid about fifteen hundred feet of hose and used some water, but they directed their efforts more especially to the houses in the immediate vicinity to save property.

The house was undoubtedly set on fire, and was nearly burned down when the firemen reached the place. All of the apparatus was taken out except No. 1 hose carriage. It is not known whether the house was insured or not, but the loss was not a heavy one.

The reason that Frank Schuck happened to pull the box was that he was calling on some friends in that vicinity. He secured a key from a neighbor.

GRAND JURY REPORTS.

Somerset Body Brought in Twenty-six Indictments.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Oct. 5—The Somerset County Grand Jury concluded its work yesterday afternoon and was discharged with the thanks of the court. In all twenty-six indictments were found and it is said that some of them are of interest to North Plainfield. It is also stated that indictments were found against Constable Waller, Thos. Shine and Thomas Wright, the three men implicated in the assualt of the late Henry Jones, of East Millstone, Jeremiah Washington, the other person implicated in the same affair, turned State's evidence.

The case of Dr. A. D. Warde was thrown out by the Jury on the grounds that the punishment does not fit the crime. The punishment for such crime is $100 or one year's imprisonment in jail, or both. The Grand Jury adjourned to next Tuesday when the several cases on the docket will be taken up for trial.

LIBRARY DIRECTORS

New Appointments Made by Mayor Fisk Last Night.

At the meeting of the Library Board held last evening a letter from Mayor Fisk was was read nominating the following to serve for three years: Alexander Gilbert, Joseph W. Yates, H. P. Talmadge, to succeed members whose terms had expired. Election of officers for the ensuing year were then made.

The secretary was directed to extend the thanks of the board to the State Historian of the State of New York for his valuable gift of the fifteenth report of the N. Y. State Geologist; to Mrs. R. K. Case for her valuable gift of twenty volumes of the general orders and circulars of the Adjutant-General, the property of her late husband, Col. Rufus K. Case; and to the Hon. Charles N. Fowler for his valuable services in securing mnny valuable Government publications for the library.

Youthful Debaters.

The second meeting of the Plainfield Law Debating Society was held last night in the office of V. W. Nash. The following officers were elected: President, Charles Dolliver; vice-president, Rufus C. Larew; secretary, V. William Nash; treasurer, Fred VanLew; sergeant-at-arms, Howard Drake. Two new members were elected, Fred Dunavan and Douglass Drake. The first debate will be held next week upon the subject, "Whether North Plainfield ought to be annexed to Plainfield.

Cut His Foot With an Axe.

Mr. Myers, of Mt. Bethel, was brought to Plainfield this morning to have a severely-injured foot treated. Mr. Myers was using a large axe at his home and the instrument slipped and cut his foot to a considerable depth. He was taken to the home of Dr. Zeglio, where the latter assisted by Dr. Buchanan, looked after the injured man. No serious results are feared.

WOMAN'S PATHETIC PLEA

WILLIAM STANBERY VISITED BY MRS. PAUL METZ.

The Woman Urged Leniency Towards Her Recreant Husband, but Mr. Stanbery Was Unable to Give Consolation.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Fanwood, October 5.—William Stanbery, whose house was robbed of $125 worth of jewels and other articles two weeks ago by a sneak-thief who visited the place in the absence of Stanbery and his wife, and told the servant girl that he was sent there to tune a piano, acted as a host under strange circumstances when the wife and seven months' old daughter of Paul Metz, whom he charges with the crime and now languishes in the Union county jail, visited Fanwood.

Mrs. Metz lives at 209 East Sixty-first street, New York, and she came to Fanwood for the purpose of pleading with Stanbery not to prosecute her husband, but to allow him to return to his family and have one more chance at leading an honorable life. Mrs. Metz carried the baby in her arms, and urged her claims with a pathetic devotion to her husband that was sad to see.

Stanbery was touched by Mrs. Metz sorrowful entreaties for her husband, but told the wife that it was a duty to the community that he owed to see that Metz was severely punished for his alleged thievery. Every rebuff that Mrs. Metz received was met with a tearful plea for her recreant husband until her interview with Stanbery reached until the time for dinner. Then Mr. Stanberry acted graciously and invited Mrs. Metz and her child to a seat at the family table. After having exhausted her arguments Mrs. Metz left for home. The Metz case was one of the first considered by the Grand Jury, which was called yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanbery and servant were in Elizabeth yesterday testifying before the Grand Jury.

A COSTLY SPREE.

It Will Deprive a Woman of Her Liberty for Three Months.

A fine of $25 and sixty days in the county jail is what it cost Mrs. Mary Rothenhouse, of East Front street, this morning, for a spree she went on yesterday. Addie Lowrie, a colored woman, was the complaining witness against Mrs. Rothenhouse, and accused her of swearing and beating two colored children while in an intoxicated condition on West Third street.

The prisoner said she had taken a little beer, but denied being intoxicated, and as for abusing the children, why. "It's agin my nature Judge to do anything like that," was her answer. Mrs. Rothenhouse begged the Judge to be "as easy on her as he could," and thanked him when he put the sentence on her. Roundsman Frederickson and Patrolman Mattox arrested the woman on a warrant at her home last evening.

NEW SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT.

William H. Shearer Succeeds Mr. Holmes in Union Court.

Governor Voorhees yesterday appointed George W. Howell, of Morristown, to succeed Stephen Pearson, as the Morris County representative on the State Board of Education. Mr. Pearson resigned.

The State Board of Education named the following county school superintendents yesterday:

Atlantic County—Senator Samuel D. Hoffman.

Cumberland—John M. Glasbell.

Union—William J. Shearer.

With the exception of Mr. Shearer, all are reappointments.

Jersey Officers Resigning.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Pompton Lake, October 4.—Another resignation, that of Captain Bickle, of Company K, Third New Jersey Volunteers, was sent in to take effect on the 15th of October, but it has been accepted as having taken place on the 1st, and when the captain, who is on a furlough, returns he will find himself minus his command. It is rumored that Captain Mudgel, of A, and Worley, of G, will be the next to resign. A bugle corps of eight men has just been organized and six additional fifers are to be put in the drum corps.

A Convention Rally.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, Oct. 5.—An Asbury Park convention rally will be held Friday night at 8 o'clock in the Presbyterian chapel at Bound Brook. Interesting addresses will be made by Endeavorers who attended the convention, among them being Rev. Mr. Dawson, of New Brunswick; Rev. W. E. Davis, of Lebanon; Rev. H. B. Hibshman, of Mt. Pleasant; E. E. Anthony, of Plainfield, and others. Horace J. Martin, of Plainfield, will have charge of the meeting.

ACKERMAN AND THE SENATORIAL HONOR.

Plainfielders Believe That They Can Nominate Him.

SUPPORT FROM HOUSTON.

ELIZABETH MAN WANTS TO BE THE NEXT SHERIFF.

Judge Cross' Efforts to Secure the Nomination May Be Euchred By "Bob" Houston Throwing a Few Votes in Ackerman's Way and Get Plainfield's Aid for Nomination of Sheriff.

Early in the fall there was some talk to the effect that Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, would attempt a campaign to secure the Republican nomination for Congress from the Eighth District. The sentiment has been almost entirely for the present incumbent, Charles N. Fowler, however, and the Ackerman boom was early killed by the announcement that that same gentleman would ask the G. O. P. to make him their choice for the State Senatorship left vacant by the resignation of Foster M. Voorhees.

Judge Cross, of Elizabeth, was early in the field after the Senatorial nomination and was considered a likely candidate. Then, however, it was announced that a rousing boom had been started by the friends of Mr. Ackerman in his favor as against Judge Cross. Also it was said that J. Martin Roll was after the nomination. He doesn't seem to cut much of a figure in the chase.

At first glance it looks as if the Plainfielder has very little chance to win against the Elizabeth man, but there is a view that is not apparent at first sight. Elizabeth is going to have her share of political plums this fall. First, there is the candidate for Governor with a good show of election. If "Bob" Houston is nominated for the Assembly, and there is not much doubt but that he will be, Elizabeth will have another candidate in him. The Surrogate is already an Elizabethan and so are a small army of the minor offices that the county has to offer.

If Elizabeth wants the Senator, too, the Plainfielders consider that she is having a little more than her share of the plums. Her present honors are sufficient. There is another reason. "Bob" Houston wants to be sheriff when Kirk's term expires. He has a big backing in his native city and his followers will be glad to swap their support for a Plainfield man for Senator for a Plainfield backing for Houston for the shrievalty candidacy.

With all her present honors, Elizabeth is pretty well provided for. The backers of Mr. Ackerman fully realize this state of affairs and are quite confident that if the claims of the Plainfielder are asserted with strength that Elizabeth will request her candidate to withdraw and leave the way clear for his co-worker from Plainfield. Of course there is a possibility that the friends of Judge Cross will resent any dictation from the rest of the Republican townsfolk. That would probably result in a split in the delegation from the county seat. The rest of the county is sure to be rather jealous of Elizabeth for fear that she will get more than her share and there will be an inclination to help her principal rival in the division of the spoils.

RECEPTION FOR MRS. LEWIS.

Pleasant Social Event in Honor of a Former Plainfield Girl.

A delightfully informal and impromptu reception was given yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. John Clapp, 84 Mercer avenue, when former neigbors and many friends greeted Mrs. David Lewis, of Ilion, N. Y., extending hearty congratulations. The two daughters of Mrs. Lewis, Misses Francis and Helen Weir, shared in the congratulatory welcome. Mrs. Lewis has been stopping during her brief stay in town at Mrs. Wests on Crescent avenue, but will leave today for her home in Ilion, N. Y.

State of City Health.

The meeting of the Board of Health was held last night. Only routine business was transacted, a few bills paid, etc. There are a few cases of contageous disease in the city. One house has three diphtheria cases and another one a case of scarlet fever. Otherwise the health of the city is good.

TO CURE NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Mean, Make a Test of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Interesting Experience of an Indianapolis Gentleman.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think that their nerves are to blame, are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines and spring remedies; the real seat of mischief is lost sight of; the stomach is the origin to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, not perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every other organ; in some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others, the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite, with the accumulation of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

Mr. A. W. Sharper, of No. 61 Prospect St., Indianapolis, Ind., writes as follows: "A motive of pure gratitude prompts me to write these few lines regarding the new and valuable medicine, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I have been a sufferer from nervous dyspepsia for the last four years; have used various patent medicines and other remedies without any favorable result. They sometimes gave temporary relief until the effects of the medicine wore off. I attributed this to my sedentary habits, being a bookkeeper with little physical exercise, but I am glad to state that the tablets have overcome all these obstacles, for I have gained in flesh, sleep better, and am better in every way. The above is written not for notoriety, but is based on actual facts."

Respectfully yours,
A. W. Sharper,
61 Prospect St., Indianapolis, Ind.

It is safe to say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headaches.

CANDIDATES NOTIFIED

Col. Roosevelt and Judge Van Wyck Officially Informed.

OTHER NOMINEES ARE SEEN

Oyster Bay the Scene of a Pleasant Gathering. The Van Wyck Home in Brooklyn Also Has Distinguished Guests. Now the Fight Will Begin.

Oyster Bay, L. I., Oct. 5.—The candidates on the state Republican ticket, and the members of the notification committee arrived here yesterday on a special train from New York at 12.43 p. m.

There were several carriages awaiting the party at the depot and all were driven to the residence of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, where the official ceremony of notifying the candidates of being nominated at the Saratoga convention took place.

Colonel Roosevelt had arrived earlier in the day and met the visitors at the house. Of the candidates John T. McDonough was the only absentee, as he had to remain in Albany, where he was in the court of appeals yesterday. Nine members of the notification committee were on hand, the other two, Thomas C. Platt and George R. Malby, having been prevented from attending through indisposition.

The special train was made up of two parlor cars. The majority of the members occupied the rear car, and as the train dashed through the wayside stations there were crowds of enthusiastic people at each station, who cheered and waved their hats and handkerchiefs.

After half an hour's drive the party arrived at the residence of the colonel of the Rough Riders, situated on top of a hill, which is reached by a winding road.

As the occupants of the vehicles alighted at the main entrance Colonel Roosevelt shook the hand of each man and bade him welcome. Standing on the piazza were Mrs. Roosevelt and some women, who watched the arrival of the visitors with interest.

As soon as the whole of the party had arrived, Benjamin B. Odell, chairman of the Republican state committee, called them together to the east side of the house, where the piazza is widest.

Here Colonel Roosevelt stood beside his wife and the other candidates. The members of the committee and the visitors and guests took their places around them in a semi-circle.

Mr. Odell introduced Mr. Depew, who delivered the notification address. The speaker was often interrupted by applause.

In accepting the nomination Colonel Roosevelt said he would abide by the platform laid down at Saratoga. He held national issues to be paramount, and promised a proper administration of the National Guard.

At the close of the speech luncheon was served.

INVESTIGATION BEGINS

Gen. Wheeler on the Stand. He Praises Shafter at Santiago.

THE SUPPLIES WERE AMPLE

Story of the Experiences of His Command The Witness Intimates He Felt Hurt Because His Was the Fourth Command to Be Ordered to Land.

Washington, Oct. 5.—The war investigation commission began its examination of witnesses yesterday by placing General Joseph Wheeler on the stand.

General Wheeler stated that he left Tampa for Cuba on the 14th of June, but that he had no knowledge of the plan of campaign before going aboard the transport.

"I ought to say," said the general in the course of his testimony, "that it was magnificent to see officers of high rank go ashore with their packs on their backs, accepting all the fortunes of war with their men. They slept on the ground with the soldiers. None of us were mounted, and we were without tents for seven days."

The supplies he considered sufficient except in a few instances, and in those instances the deficiency was only temporary.

"General Shafter," he said, "deserves great credit for the zeal he displayed in this respect. He devoted himself to this task and I think there is no doubt that he succeeded."

Discussing the plan of campaign he said he doubted whether any more effective plan could have been adopted. Speaking of the medical department, he said that at times there were complaints, but that they were not serious. On occasions there was a shortage of surgeons, some of the surgeons being sick or wounded.

According to General Wheeler's belief, the wounded in battle were promptly cared for by the surgeons. After the fight of July 1 all the wounded were carried from the field that night. The witness had heard that there was more complaint of the shortage of medicine among the infantry than in the cavalry arm of the service.

Going back to Tampa, he said that at the season he was there, the first half of June, the site was without objection, but he had felt that it would be bad later in the summer.

It was his impression that Tampa had been selected as a camp site after the beginning of the war, and was incidental to the intended movement on Havana. There was, he said, at times some shortage of supplies at the camp, "but nothing," he added, "that a soldier could complain of."

They had comfortable tents and the commissary supplies were sufficient. The water supply also was good. He said the men in his command were well taken care of. However, very few men were at that time sick. He had himself gone into the hospitals and had found the men doing well.

General Wheeler took up the common report that the Cubans stole goods. It was not fair, he said, to thus accuse the natives for there was so much of this flotsam and jetsam that, hungry and poorly clothed as the Cubans were, they were not to be blamed for helping themselves.

In reply to questions, he stated that he never had heard of any shortage of commissary or ordnance supplies at Santiago, but he had been told that the medical supplies were short. Yet he had no personal knowledge on this point. He had seen some wounded men crawling to the rear in the engagements, but as a rule as soon as a man fell in battle he was carried to the hospitals by the medical corps.

The spirit of the army was such, he said, that there was no disposition to complain. "They were all proud to be there and willing to undergo hardships."

General Wheeler said the regulars had shown a greater ability to take care of themselves than the volunteers. The volunteers were more careless. The volunteer cavalrymen were not so negligent as the other volunteers, because they were generally men who had been used to camping. He thought this fact had a strong influence in keeping the regulars in better health than the volunteers.

Captain Howell asked to what he attributed the development of disease after the capitulation of Santiago, and General Wheeler replied that it was due to the climate and the necessary exposure. He had known of no instance of a sick or wounded man dying from want of care from the physicians. So far as he knew there was general commendation of the medical corps, except that on one or two occasions there had been some grumbling.

He thought there was a deficiency in the number of ambulances, but this was due to the exigencies of the campaign. General Wheeler said that he knew of no confusion in shipping supplies from Tampa. He was not acquainted with a case in which the body of a vehicle was shipped on one vessel and the wheels on another. His memory was not distinct as to complaints from officers in his command as to the scarcity of medical supplies, but he thought there were some such complaints, and in such cases he had them supplied as promptly as possible. There had been difficulty in getting the transports to lie as near inshore as was desirable, rendering it difficult to get at supplies promptly.

General Wheeler revealed the fact that he had felt somewhat hurt that his had been the fourth command ordered to be landed when he thought his rank entitled him to the first landing. General Shafter had given the order.

Coming back from Santiago to Montauk General Wheeler had sailed on the Miami, having chosen it because it was said to be the worst of the transports. He found it very comfortable, and when they landed there were only thirty-four sick, and only three or four of these were too ill to stand up for inspection. There was plenty of water on the vessel and ice for the sick, although not for others.

After the destruction of Cervera's fleet, and there was no danger on the sea, the army was more abundantly supplied than any army in the field had ever been.

Asked if he thought there had been any neglect in preparing for the campaign, he said he had been so busily occupied that he had not given the matter great attention, but he thought at the time that no precaution had been negleced.

He said that the tents had been left on the transports because it was desired to waste no time removing them. "We were there for business," he said, "and we felt that prompt disembarkation and a speedy movement to the front would impress the enemy more than anything else we could do."

DEMOCRATS FOR SILVER.

Massachusetts Convention Declares Emphatically for Chicago Platform.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 5.—The Democratic state convention of Massachusetts assembled here at 10.30 o'clock yesterday morning.

The silver men had everything their own way.

Temporary Chairman Christopher T. Callaway, in his speech, declared continued allegiance to Bryan and the Chicago platform; denounced expansion and imperialism and scored alleged army mismanagement.

Permanent Chairman Philip J. Doherty made a long address, beginning with a eulogy of Bryan and an argument for free silver. He called attention to the alleged bad condition of the manufacturing interests of the country, the lower wages, the strikes, etc., and pleaded for the opening of the mints to silver, saying that "those who favor the single gold standard, no matter what their past services in the old party, are no longer Democrats."

Mr. Doherty then quoted at length from official reports on Secretary Alger's conduct during the civil war, and arraigned the abuses in the war department during the past few months. He declared the president responsible for much of the neglect of the soldiers.

The platform, as reported and passed, declared emphatically for the Chicago platform, denounced imperialism and favored public ownership of street railways and similar anti-corporation measures.

Ex-Mayor Alexander B. Bruce of Lawrence was nominated by acclamation for governor.

Edward J. Slattery of Framingham was named by acclamation for lieutenant governor.

Hon. George Fred Williams then addressed the convention.

EPISCOPAL COUNCIL.

Triennial Session to Begin To-day in Washington.

Washington, Oct. 5.—A notable assemblage of the clergy and laity of the Protestant Episcopal church will be brought together at the Triennial council of that church organization, which begins here to-day and continues for three weeks.

The council is made up of two bodies, a house of bishops, comprising all the Episcopal bishops here and on missionary service from this country, and a house of clerical and lay delegates, four of each of the latter coming from each of the fifty-eight dioceses. The last council was held at Minneapolis three years ago.

The council this year aggregates about 580 delegates, including bishops, clergy and laity. The Woman's Auxiliary and the Board of Missions hold their sessions at the same time. Many of the delegates will be accompanied by their wives and families, about three thousand persons all told being expected.

Zola Said to Be in Paris.

Paris, Oct. 5.—Le Petit Journal asserts that M. Emile Zola is living quietly at his home in Paris.

Le Gaulois publishes a report of an interview with Grant Richards, the London publisher, who is to issue Esterhazy's book, in which he says that the book will be published simultaneously in London and New York before December 31.

Le Siecle accuses Lieutenant Colonel du Paty de Clam of having devised the forged documents in the Dreyfus case, signed "Speranza," and "Blanche," and also of having invented the story of the veiled lady.

Surrendered After Five Years.

New York, Oct. 5.—Henry Kevlin, Jr., who swindled his employes, French & Word, woolen importers, of 95 Franklin street, out of thousands of dollars by forging checks, and who disappeared in 1893, walked into the firm's office and gave himself up to-day.

He said that his conscience would give him no rest. A member of the firm went with him to the district attorney's office, where he was placed under arrest and subsequently committed by Judge Fitzgerald to the Tombs to await trial.

Colonel Sanger to Testify.

Covington, Ky., Oct. 5.—Gen. Sanger will leave Camp Hamilton for Washington to-day. He will appear before the investigating commission in response to a summons from the adjutant general. During his absence General Wiley of the First brigade will assume command of the troops stationed here.

Murderer Clemmer Must Be Hanged.

Norristown, Pa., Oct. 5.—The court has refused to grant a new trial to James E. Clemmer, convicted of complicity in the murder of Mrs. Charles O. Kaiser. Before the death sentence was passed Clemmer protested his innocence. The governor will fix the day for the execution of the sentence.

D'Aubigny to Succeed Cambon.

Paris, Oct. 5.—Figaro states that the Count d'Aubigny, now French charge d'affaires at Munich, will replace M. Cambon as minister to the United States, and that M. Cambon will go to Madrid. These changes, the paper says, were decided upon at yesterday's cabinet council.

B. J. Haywood Released.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 5.—B. J. Haywood of Harrisburg, former state treasurer of Pennsylvania, who was arrested in connection with the charges against Senator Quay, was released at noon yesterday on instruction from District Attorney Graham of Philadelphia.

I must say that I was very tired tramping from store to store without coming to a conclusion where to buy. We saw some things we liked in one store and other things we liked in other stores, but there didn't seem to be any one store in which we could buy to our entire satisfaction until we reached Hahne & Co.'s.

I never enjoyed such a half day in my life. Everything was so new and bright that I was afraid we would be hampered in making a choice. It's apt to be that way, you know, when so many good things are spread before you, but when we settled down to work, we found buying a real pleasure.

The choice of carpets puzzled us not a little. There were so many new and pretty patterns to choose from that we, Harry, Emma and I, were forced to take a vote on the carpet for each room. Sometimes I was on Harry's side and sometimes on Emma's.

For Emma's room we selected an all-wool filling cotton chain ingrain at forty-eight cents a yard, and for the spare room an all-wool ingrain, the best made, at sixty cents. For the parlor we decided upon a very pretty velvet carpet at eighty-five cents a yard, and for the dining-room a Smyrna rug at $18.95. For the hall and stairs we chose Brussels at sixty-five cents a yard.

I fairly went wild over Hahne & Co.'s upholstery department. I never had seen such a beautiful collection of curtains, and I don't believe another State in the world can match it. For the bedrooms we bought bright ruffled bobinet curtains at $2.75 a pair. We put them up in that fascinating cross style, using two rods, and drawing them back into silk loops that cost 10 cents a pair.

The curtains for the dining room were the Renaissance effect at $2.25 a pair. In the parlor we put up Irish Point Lace Curtains with an exceptionally deep heavy border in cushion work. They cost us $5.98 pair. We draped them with silk lambrequins at top, white corrugated pole and corrugated trimmings to match.

The furniture department next engaged our attention. When we stepped from the elevator into this beautiful section of Hahne & Co.'s store we were—well, I put it mildly by saying we wer amazed. The arrangement of furniture is, as Hahne & Co. truthfully say, "The handsomes in the world."

For Harry's and Emma's room we picked out a bird's eye maple suit for $35. It is a gem. For the spare room we went a little higher and selected a lovely brass bed at $35, and made an exquisite contrast by adding a curly birch bureau at $22, and a toilet table at $20, a total of $77.

For the parlor we purchased a silk velour and inlaid mahogany frame suit of five pieces for which we paid only $50. For the dining room we bought an eight-foot oak extension table for $15, a sideboard for $25, a china closet for $15 and six leather seat chairs for $24, costing in all $79. A hall rack cost us $12, and $15 was the price we paid for a hall settee.

Last week Harry and Emma moved into their new home, and in honor of the event they gave a house warming. The Jiltons, the Graysons, the Petervilles and other fashionable people were there, and all declared that it was the prettiest, coziest little nest for a bride they had seen in many a long day.

GENERAL GARCIA'S ERRAND

He is Sent Out to Pacify the Cuban Insurgents.

Santiago de Cuba, Oct. 5.—General Calixto Garcia, his son, Carlos Garcia, and three or four other prominent Cubans, have left for the interior to endeavor to allay the restlessness among the Cuban armed forces, which is daily becoming more menacing to the peace of the province.

The party has received rations from the American commissary, and it is said by persons whose sources of information are good that General Garcia goes as an American commissioner. The party has rations for a three weeks' trip, and will keep in communication with General Lawton and General Wood.

General Garcia believes that through his great personal influence he can allay the popular clamor against the Americans. His plan is to visit Guantanamo, Jiguani, Gibara, Baracoa, El Cobre and other places where large bodies of Cuban soldiers are congregated and tell these men of a plan he has decided upon of going to the United States later in the fall to endeavor to induce the Washington government to secure a Cuban loan sufficiently large to pay them some of the money due them for their three years' service in the field.

General Lawton and General Wood have assurances from good sources that the payment of $1,500,000 to the Cubas troops throughout the island will satisfy the many recalcitrants and cause them to return to their homes and go to work.

FALSE REPORTS ABOUT GEN. MILES

Not Summoned Before the Commission as Reported.

Washington, Oct. 5.—It is a mystery to General Miles and all his friends how any report should have got out representing that he had been called before the war investigating commission, and had tried to keep out of the way.

Nothing of the kind has occurred. He had never been summoned or even invited formally. If he were summoned it would not be either his place or disposition to put any obstacles in the way. If the president wants him to go before the commission he will go, as a matter of course.

Meanwhile, the circulation of reports putting the general in the attitude of a recusant witness, and representing members of the commission as representing themselves in condemnation of his course, seem to be merely parts of a carefully calculated scheme to make trouble for him with the commission, and discredit him with the country. They are on a par with the stories set on their travels a few weeks ago, in which the president was represented as proposing to degrade General Miles by abolishing his present official position. This report failed of its effect because there was neither fact nor law to support it, but it was evidently planned simply to make mischief.

THE YELLOW FEVER

The Situation in Louisiana and Mississippi.

New Orleans, Oct. 5.—Dr. Souchon has announced the following as the daily report of yellow fever for Louisiana:

New Orleans—Six new cases and one death.

Franklin—Twelve new cases and two deaths.

Lutcher—Two new cases.

Baton Rouge—Four new cases and one death.

Wilson—Twenty new cases and one death.

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 5.—Only one new case of yellow fever developed here yesterday. At Madison, twelve miles north of here, a Mr. Todd died Monday.

Practically all the 250 inhabitants have been exposed. Other reports are as follows:

Oxford—Sixteen new cases and one death.

Water Valley—Two new cases.

Woodville—Two new cases.

Port Gibson—Two new cases.

Minister Wu at the State Department

Washington, Oct. 5.—The Chinese minister was at the state department yesterday and had a short talk with Secretary Hay. The secretary said afterwards that there was no change in the condition of Chinese affairs so far as he knew, and no late official dispatches.

It was thought that the minister's call might have had some relation to the critical condition of affairs in China, and the dispatch of American warships to American ports.

But Mr. Wu said his visit had no connection with the general situation in China, but related to pending routine affairs. He had received an official dispatch, but it brought no news concerning the reported death of the emperer or of the disturbed condition of the foreign element at Pekin.

Forty Seventh for Porto Rico.

It was anounced at the Army Building yesterday that the Forty-seventh Regiment of Brooklyn, which has been doing garrison duty at Fort Adams, Newport, R. I., had been ordered to Porto Rico, and would leave on either the Manitoba or Mississippi, probably Wednesday next.

Sloop Crocodile Ashore.

Westerly, R. I., Oct. 5.—The sloop yacht Crocodile, New York, from Newport to Port Jefferson, is stranded half a mile south-southeast of Quenocontaug life saving station, in a bad position.

She went on in a fog Monday evening. Her crew of two men were rescued.

Gold from the Klondike.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 4.—The steamer Fastnet has arrived from Skaguay with half a million in dust and with news that a million more was on the way. There will be but one more boat from Dawson, the Columbia, which will bring down a large amount of treasure.

LAUNCHING THE ILLINOIS.

A Great Crowd Present at Newport News to witness it

Newport News, Va., Oct. 5.—Newport News was thronged with visitors from far and near yesterday, who came to witness the launching of the battleship Illinois.

Chicago and Washington were represented by large delegations of prominent men and women, and the nearby cities and villages sent thousands of spectators.

A conservative estimate placed the crowds of visitors at fully twenty thousand, and it was believed that fully thirty thousand persons witnessed the ceremonies. The battleship was put in the water at about 12.30 p. m.

Among the prominent persons from Washington was Assistant Secretary of the Navy Allen, who came from Portsmouth, where he had been inspecting the navy yard. He was on board the dispatch boat Dolphin.

The steamer Newport News brought down from Washington the following invited guests: Commodore and Mrs. M. T. Endicott, Captain A. S. Crowninshield, Paymaster General Edwin Stewart, Engineer-in-Chief George W. Melville, Surgeon General W. K. Van Reypen and wife, Chief Constructor Philip Hichborn and wife, Captain Samuel C. Lemley and Mrs. Lemley, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and his daughter, Assistant Secretary of War George D. Meikeljohn, Martin Knapp and J. D. Yoeman and their wives.

The preliminaries began at ten o'clock and the official party passed through the immense throng gathered around the red hull of the Illinois at 10.30. The weather was fair. The hour set for the launching was 11 a. m., but it was 12.33 p. m., before the vessel slid from the ways. Miss Nancy Leiter of Chicago named it the Illinois.

The dimensions of the Illinois are as follows: Length on load water line, 368 feet; beam, extreme, 72 feet 2 1-2 inches; draught on normal displacement of 11,525 tons, 23 feet six inches; maximum displacement, all ammunition and stores on board, 12,325 tons; maximum indicated horse power (estimated), 10,000; probable speed, 16 1-2 knots; normal coal supply, 800 tons; coal supply, loose storage, 1,200 tons; full bunker capacity, 1,400 to 1,500 tons; complement of officers, 40; seamen, marines, etc., 449.

The main battery will consist of four thirteen-inch breech loading rifles, in Hichborn balanced turrets, oval in shape, and placed in the center line of the vessel, and fourteen six-inch rapid fire guns. The secondary battery will consist of sixteen six-pounder rapid-fire guns, four one-pounder rapid-fire guns, and two field guns. She will carry four torpedo tubes.

The armor belt, which extends from the stem to abaft the after turret, is to be 16 1-2 inches thick at the top and 9 1-2 inches thick at the bottom, except at the forward end, where it will be tapered to four inches at the stem.

CHINESE EMPEROR'S PLOT!

It is Reported That He Planned to Have the Dowager Empress Removed.

London, Oct. 5.—A dispatch to the Central News from Shanghai says that the emperor, trusting to the loyalty of Yuan Shiskai; gave written orders, which he placed in Yuan's hands, to have troops brought from Tien-Tsin to surround the palace of the empress dowager and remove her to a place where she would be unable to interfere with his majesty's reforms.

Yuan showed the orders to the viceroy of Tien-Tsin, who immediately informed the empress.

Her majesty immediately ordered the emperor into her presence. She accused him of want of filial piety and of ingratitude, concluding her denunciation of his conduct by showing him the order which he had given for her abduction.

The emperor was crestfallen and ashamed to say a word in his own defence.

The empress told him there was only one way to clear himself, pointing at the same time to a cup on a stand nearby.

The emperor took the cup and swallowed its contents. It is presumed the cup contained poison.

This is one of the numerous stories of the alleged suicide or assassination of the emperor, but it is still as impossible as it has been from the first to say whether the emperor is alive or dead.

Saw the Battle of Manila Bay

New York, Oct. 5.—The Nova Scotian ship Jane Burrill arrived yesterday from Manila. Captain Robertson said that his ship was at anchor in the harbor of Manila on the morning of May 1 when Dewey sunk the Spanish fleet.

"We had no intimation of war," said the captain, "but we were awakened early in the morning by the boom of a gun. Rushing on deck, we saw the American fleet steaming toward the Spanish men of war. It was a grand sight to see the Yankees polish them off. They battered away until breakfast time, after which they went at them again hammer and tongs, and soon finished them. I heard afterwards that only one Spanish shell struck. That hit the Boston's funnel, but failed to explode."

Filipinos Make Their Request.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Agoncillo, the delegate of Aguinaldo's so-called republic, called at the state department yesterday, accompanied by his secretary, Lopez. They wanted to see Secretary Hay, but he was at the cabinet meeting, so they sent their names to Second Assistant Secretary Adee.

Mr. Adee and the Filipinos had a long talk about the request of the delegates to be permitted to represent Aguinaldo before the Paris peace commission, but the result of the effort cannot be ascertained.

Kaiser Frederick Lowers Record.

Southampton, Oct. 5.—The steamship Kaiser Frederick of the North German Lloyd line arrived at this port yesterday and proceeded to Bremen.

She made the voyage in about six days and ten hours, against her previous best time of nine days, two hours and six minutes. The officers were greatly pleased that the ship had developed something like her true speed.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS

Our Commissioners Listen to Gen. Merritt's Report.

PRES. FAURE'S RECEPTION

Reception of the American and Spanish Commissions by President Faure. President McKinley's Thanks for French Courtesies.

Paris, Oct. 5.—The American peace commissioners devoted yesterday's session to a conference with Major General Merritt, who arrived at the offices of the commission at ten o'clock, just as our commissioners were assembling.

The session lasted until one o'clock p. m. General Merritt gave the commissioners his personal views and those of Rear Admiral Dewey, regarding the geographical, physical, moral and political conditions prevailing in the Philippine islands. His exposition of his personal views and judgment about the islands was not finished yesterday, and he will meet the commission today.

President Montero Rios of the Spanish commission and his colleagues were busy yesterday with telegraphic and other correspondence. The commissioners denied themselves to all callers.

A newspaper, Le Petit Bleu, this morning declares that it has authority for the statement that it has been decided that "an adjustment relative to Cuba will be first discussed at the next meeting, owing to incidents which have recently taken place in the Philippine islands."

The same newspaper remarks that Senor Rios yesterday "bought three copies of a work on international law by one of our most eminent jurists." The paper does not accept the view that the work of the commission will be concluded before December.

United States Ambassador Porter will give a dinner in honor of the American commission this afternoon, and next week General Porter will give a dinner in honor of both commissions at the United States embassy.

The Spanish peace commissioners were received at four o'clock by President Faure, at the Elysee Palace. The members of the commission were presented by the Spanish ambassador, Senor Leon y Castillo, and Senor Rios expressed the gratification of the commission at meeting the president of France.

At 4.45 p. m., immediately following the reception of the Spaniards, the members of the American peace commission were received by President Faure at the palace.

General Porter met the commissioners on the steps of the Court of Honor, and they proceeded to the Grand Salon, where General Porter presented the commissioners to the president, after which Judge Day presented President Faure with a cable message from President McKinley. It was dated September 30, and read as follows:

"On this occasion, when the commissions of the United States and Spain are about to assemble at the capital of France to negotiate peace, and when the representatives of this government are receiving the hospitality and good will of the republic, I beg to tender you my most friendly personal greeting and the assurances of my grateful appreciation of your kind courtesies to the American commissioners."

President Faure, in replying, courteously expressed his appreciation of the cordial sentiments uttered and heartily reciprocated them.

Leaving Porto Rico.

San Juan, Island of Porto Rico, Oct. 5.—The transport P. de Satrustegue arrived here on Sunday from Spain. She sailed yesterday with troops.

The transport Isla de Panay sailed for Spain in the morning with 1,200 troops on board.

It is rumored that Captain General Macias will leave here on the Alicante, which is expected daily at this port from Havana.

The Spanish troops are evacuating Caguasay, and Arecibo was delivered over to the Americans yesterday.

The troops are closing in rapidly and the Spaniards are concentrating in large numbers at this place.

The Spanish government's offer of free transportation home to the families of officers has resulted in many marriages of departing officers and officials.

Government for Porto Rico.

Washington, Oct. 5.—The report of Major General Wilson upon the political, social, educational and financial conditions of Porto Rico, is in the hands of the president, who is giving it careful consideration as his time allows, in order to gather information for his recommendations to Congress in the matter of the government of that island. The early evacuation of the island by the Spanish and its complete control by the United States makes it important that a system of government for it should be inaugurated at an early day.

Tradesmen's Bank Closed.

New York, Oct. 5.—The Tradesmens' National Bank, at West Broadway and Beach street (Wool Exchange building), did not open for business yesterday morning.

As a result of an examination Monday evening by the clearing house committee, the bank examiner, W. H. Kimball, took possession of it, pending the receipt of instructions from the comptroller of the currency.

One Hundred Drowned.

London, Oct. 5.—A special dispatch from Bombay states that a ferry boat was capsized yesterday while crossing the Indus at Mittunkote, a town of the Punjaub, on the west bank of the river, and one hundred passengers drowned.

Act Against Anarchists.

Rome, Oct. 5.—The powers having accepted Italy's proposal to call an international conference to devise measures of common action against anarchists, Venice has been decided upon as the place of meeting.

In The Third.

The New York Herald has the following political gossip of interest in this section:

The campaign in the Third district is still in a formative state. There is no doubt that Representative Howell is to be put afield again by the Republicans. The Democrats feel assured they could have beaten him with Millard Fillmore Ross, but Mr. Ross is not in a consenting frame of mind. They still have hopes, however, and are canvassing the field with a careful eye. They have before them, as more or less available timber, George Helme, of Helmetta; Henry S. Terhune, once Senator from Monmouth, and a grandson of "Staff" Little; James F. Deshler, a son of Postmaster Deshler, of New Brunswick; former Senator William J. Keyes, of Somerville, and John F. Wilson, the Mayor of North Plainfield.

How Modest They Are.

Elizabeth is entitled to the nomination for State Senator because, as already shown, it has not its full proportion of the county offices. But there is still another claim, and a very strong one. The present Senator is an Elizabeth man, and his term will not expire for another year. It is perfectly proper to insist that an Elizabeth man be named to fill the unexpired term, and next year allow the new conditions to govern this and the other nominations.—Elizabeth Journal.

Oh, the modesty of Elizabeth Republicans.

Ten years ago last Saturday, October 1st, 1888, W. L. Force, then posimaster of the city, established the free delivery system in the postoffice. The carriers were Solomon F. Flaig, Joseph Shepperd, Peter Flynn, John Mackey, E. T. VanWinkle and Wm. Demarest. The two latter are the only carriers now on duty out of the list mentioned.

The Fourth Congressional district is likely to swing back into the Democratic column this year, and this is causing a lively scramble among prospective candidates in Democratic ranks. The friends of Johnston Cornish, who was retired from Congress by the great slump in 1896 to make way for Mahlon Pitney, are urging that he is entitled to another nomination now.

Those people who think that Union county is unquestionably Republican now at all times, received a rude shock the other day when the State committee decided it wouldn't do to risk the Senatorship to a special election, but that if the G. O. P. elected a successor to Foster Voorhees the best chance of success would be at the regular election.

Between wondering if he will be compelled to perform the grewsome task of dispatching life from the body of Roesel, the convicted murderer, and trying to placate Summit Republicans who have been deprived of a constabulary representive at the county seat, Sheriff Kirk has plenty to occupy his mind.

It has been stated on excellent authority that Thomas Cuming, of Putnam avenue, will be a candidate for councilmanic honors in the next city election to represent the Second ward. Mr. Cuming is very popular and would undoubtedly poll a strong vote.

The good feeling among Union county Republicans at the nomination of their favorite son for the highest office in the State seems likely to be rudely disturbed by the scramble for the vacant office which is created as a result of the selection.

MISS NANCY LEITER.

Miss Nancy Leiter, chosen by Governor Tanner, of Illinois, to christen the new battleship named for that state, is one of Chicago's fairest daughters. There were two rusty nails in the Leiter horseshoe, both on the feminine side. Mrs. George Curzon, nee Mary Leiter, whose husband was recently elevated to the peerage, is now Lady Curzon.

The Republican county convention in Middlesex will be held at New Brunswick tomorrow afternoon. We warn the confiding citizens of Dunellen and Piscataway to look out for the bunco men when they visit Middlesex's capital.

The lecture that the Grand Jurors of Middlesex county received from Justice Collins yesterday for having failed to indict the gamblers and excise law violators, will not cause a very exalted opinion of the jurors.

A new style of postage stamps is now being sold at the postoffice. For the benefit of Press readers, however, we desire to state that the price remains the same.

Among those being spoken of for Assembly nominations in Union county by the Republicans is George Ball, of Fanwood.

The Cranford Chronicle is pushing the name of Louis L. Coudert for a Democratic nomination of Assemblyman.

Governor Voorhees says that he will positively resign from the Senatorship this week—possibly today or tomorrow.

"All things come to him who waits"—even arrest. Thus sorrowfully soliloquizes Senator Quay.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

"No cause of action" was the verdict rendered by a Plainfield jury the other day in a suit brought to recover the alleged value of certain cigars. The jurors were given a box of the cigars to sample, and returned a verdict for the defendant five minutes afterward. It is a rule of law that the best evidence must always be produced, and there seems no doubt that this was done in this case.—Newark News.

* * * * *

Out in Bayonne a little handful of republicans are kicking up a great rumpus about Representative Charles N. Fowler's renomination for Congress. Their dissatisfaction grows out of the fact that Mr. Fowler did not select one of the number for the Bayonne postmastership. That Melville, whom he selected, was indorsed by all the local committees in Bayonne counts for nothing with them. And yet, with these indorsements the Representative could have chosen no one else. A member of Congress can know what the people of a given locality in his district desire only through the organizations they select to speak for them; and Mr. Fowler would have set all the laws of politics at defiance if he had disregarded the organized voice of the local republicans and given heed to the mouthings of the more ambitious than popular few. It is gratifying to be assured that the opposition of the disappointed handful will not create so much as a ripple in the convention which is to renominate him. He is one of the really valuable members of the House of Representatives.—New York Herald.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Charles Sylvester Cook, familiarly known to all Plainfielders as "Cookie," who has been billposter, compositor, wit, philosopher and general utility man for these thirty-two years in The Constitutionalist and Daily Press office, is now enjoying his first vacation from work. Yesterday the old war horse left for Navesink Highlands, where he will spend a week with Mr. and Mrs. John Watkins. "Cookie's" friends miss his familiar face, but they all wish him a great and glorious time on this his first vacation.

F. Kuehnle, of the Seventy-first N. Y. Regiment, who spoke at the First Presbyterian church and the Y. M. C. A. Hall last Sunday, is in business in New York city, and is also engaged in mission work in the same city. The Y. M. C. A. committee who first got Mr. Kuehnle to Plainfield learned that he had lost his Bible on the battlefield of Santiago, and at his suggestion a handsome Bible was presented to him at the meeting last Sunday afternoon. This Bible was paid for by the offering received at the meeting, thus giving those present a chance of participating in this pleasant feature.

For some time the owners of Collier's Weekly, of New York, have been desirous of having George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place, assume control of the art department of the paper. Mr. Edwards has at last yielded to their solicitations, and began his new work October 1st. The number of the paper bearing that date contains an article on the coronation of Queen Wilhelmina, of Holland, written by a special correspondent, and exquisitely illustrated by Mr. Edwards. The delicate sketches of Dutch men and women, and of scenes in that quaintest of countries, all of which Mr. Edwards knows so well, and the artistic setting given to Carroll Beckwith's picture of the young queen, will be quickly recognized as coming from the practiced hand of the gifted Plainfielder who stands in the front rank of American illustrators.

White's Millinery Opening.

The opening of fall millinery at White's yesterday was the most successful they have ever had and Miss Daly was congratulated by every one on the beauty of the hats, as they are all her own work. It was a puzzle to many ladies how so many different styles could be thought of as among the many hats there are no two alike. The arrangement of the department was particularly pleasing to the customers as they have in connection with the department private rooms for showing and fitting. The opening will continue today and tomorrow.

An Editor's Daughter's Dolls.

The editor of Harper's Magazine, Mr. Henry M. Alden, has a daughter who has made a collection of over 100 dolls, each doll representing a different nation and being made in that country. The collection is said to be the most unique and finest of its kind in existence. Miss Alden is now to show the world her dolls, and explain them, and in the next issue of The Ladies' Home Journal she will show pictures of the first twenty. In following issues she will show the others.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, Oct. 5—Brakemen and conductors are being laid off on the Central. Monday seventeen were told that their services could be dispensed with, and more will be laid off this week.

Mrs. Elias Milliken's suit against the city of Plainfield for $10,000 damages was to have come up at Elizabeth yesterday, but owing to her illness it was laid over.

The monthly meeting of the Epworth League of the Methodist church was held last night.

Mr. and Mrs. George Brower and son, of Newark, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Randolph.

Mrs. J. B. Wright and daughter, of St. Simon's Mills, Ga., are visiting Mrs. A. F. Warden.

Wm. Howatt, of Plainfield, spent yesterday afternoon with friends in the borough.

Mrs. Elias Milliken is very ill at her home. Dr. Brakeley is in attendance.

Miss Mabel Jamison is entertaining Miss Sadie Davis, of Newark.

Mrs. A. I. Martine and daughter spent Monday in New York.

Miss Elizabeth Hunt has returned from a visit in Bayonne.

Mrs. S. Z. Dickson has gone back to her home in Maine.

Rev. A. I. Martine spent Monday in New York.

Irving Martine has moved to New York.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

New Market, Oct. 5.—Mrs. F. E. Peterson entertained the reading circle connected with the Seventh-Day Baptist Church last night.

Mrs. Booth, a returned missionary from Africa, will address the Ladies' Aid Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church in the lecture room this afternoon.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Oct. 5.—August Klemeer will shortly break ground for a dwelling he intends building on Stout avenue.

The entertainment given in Excelsior Hall last evening for the benefit of Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company, was a financial success, and drew one of the largest audiences ever assembled in the hall. It seemed as though the whole town had bought tickets and before 8 o'clock standing room only was obtainable.

Several new electric lights are to be placed on Grand street and Stout avenue. This will do much to make that part of the villiage look a little brighter upon a dark night.

The boys are practicing every night at football and from the material developing a strong team will represent Scotch Plains on the gridiron this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicolli and daughter, who have been spending the summer at Mrs. Flanders, returned to their home in New York Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grant, of Plainfield, were the guests Sunday of Mrs. Grant's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Paff, Sr.

James Patterson who has been spending a week in town with relatives returned to his home in Morris Plains yesterday.

The Township Committee met in the town rooms Monday evening. Routine business only was transacted.

Miss Gertrude McNair, who has been spending a week with Miss Lily Gibbs, has returned to her home.

Mrs. Joseph Clark and son, Clinton, were the guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Smith, of Lincoln.

Wm. Jamison, of Lyons Farms, spent Monday with her sister, Mrs. Abram Wade.

Cory Johnston has returned from a short business trip through New York State.

Miss Kittie Buckley spent Sunday with friends in Lincoln, N. J.

Miss Sadie Riger spent Sunday with her sister in Westfield.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Friday and Saturday evenings of this week Downing & Sigmon will present to the music-loving public of Plainfield the musical operetta, "Honolulu," together with comedy and vaudeville acts of the highest order. There are twenty-five people with the company, including Prof. J. Simons and his brass band and orchestra of ten soloists. Others in the company are Carter and Gates, Mountney and Niff, Kennedy and Hayes, Walter P. Lewis, Miss Ethel LeVan, Mattie Downing, Grace Hamilton and the great Darrells. There will be a ladies and children's matinee Saturday afternoon next, at which the prices will be: Children, 10 cents; adults, 25 cts.

* * * * *

There is probably no medicine in the world that cures a case of the blues, melancholia or overwork as quickly as a dose of that popular musical farce comedy, "Peck's Bad Boy," by the Atkinson Comedy Company, at Music Hall next Monday evening. It is pleasant to take and relief is instantaneous, for you will laugh and scream until the blues are a thing of the past. The piece has been rewritten and brought up to date, until hardly a vestige of the old play remains. The cast is said to be one of the best ever seen in the piece. Each artist does a strong specialty. The piece is replete with quartettes, duetts and medleys of all the latest popular airs, and staged with new scenery and beautiful costumes.

* * * * *

There is a very entertaining and polite vaudeville bill this week at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre in New York. The Rossow Midgets spar and give imitations of Anna Held and other stars. Press Eldridge has a budget of new and up-to-date witticisms, and excellent music is rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilczek and Clinton Elder

NEW CHURCH MEMBERS.

Twelve Acquisitions to the Mt Olive Church Rolls.

Last Sunday there were twelve accessions to the Mt. Olive Baptist church. Two persons were baptized, the hand of fellowship was given to eight, and four persons, previously members, were taken again into the church. The services all day were largely attended and nearly five hundred people witnessed the baptism. At a meeting in the church last evening two persons confessed Christ and they will be baptized next Sunday. The meetings of late have been very spiritual and Pastor Jackson is doing a good work. He tells the Gospel truth in a plain way and his people seem to understand it perfectly.

Miantonomoh's Ninth Year.

Next Friday evening Miantonomoh Tribe, I. O. R. M., will celebrate its ninth anniversary in Red Men's Hall. All of the Great Chiefs of the State and many visiting Tribes will be present, including many pale faces. Those holding postponed tickets for the tribe's picnic can use them for next Friday evening.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Westfield, Oct. 5.—A. A. Gaddis, of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company, who makes his headquarters in this town, is very much interested in the storm that swept the southern states yesterday, as his wife and two daughters are living in the heart of Brunswick, Ga., where the worst of the storm was. He has been trying all day to get a telegram through but the wires are down for seventy miles and no news can be had.

At the meeting of the Board of Education held last evening the president and clerk were empowered to discount a note for $1500 and one for $1200, the last to pay the teachers salaries for the month of September. The board rejected 5,000 writing pads as they were not up to the sample.

Rev. Father Murphy, who has been assistant priest at St. Mary's church in Plainfield for several years, will be the new pastor of the Catholic church in this place. He will also have charge of the parish at Cranford and that at Roselle.

The Democrats Notify.

Brooklyn, Oct. 5.—Last evening the formal notification was made by the official committee duly appointed at the state convention to Judge Van Wyck, the Democratic candidate for governor.

The ceremony was a simple one and took place at the Van Wyck residence on Hancock street. The committee consisted of Senator McCarren, Frederick C. Schraub, Perry Belmont and John F. Carroll. Mr. Schraub, who came down from his home in Lowville Monday night, and who was chairman of the Syracuse convention, made the notification speech, and it was a very creditable effort.

Judge Van Wyck replied briefly, accepting the trust and responsibility imposed. He expressed himself as being in full accord with the platform promulgated at Syracuse.

Upon the return of the committee to Manhattan the nominees on the state ticket were gahered at the Hoffman house and received formal announcement of their nominations from Chairman Schraub and his colleagues.

The campaign will now open with vigor and the struggle bids fair to be one of the most intense ever witnessed in the Empire state.

Miss Nellie Rockfellow, of Park avenue, has returned from Weston.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Postler, of Somerset street, is brightened by the arrival of twin girls, and the parents are receiving the congratulations of friends.

Evening Gown for Girl.

All dotted fabrics are fashionable this season, and will continue to be popular for evening gowns after the days grow too cool for donning thin afternoon frocks.

Pale pink organdie, with white silk dots, makes a charming and youthful evening gown for a young girl. The skirt is the fashionable sheath like model, trimmed with bouillones of the material. The blouse, made round and full, is cut with a square decolletetage, outlined with a fall of fine lace. A girdle of black velvet encircles the waist and long white mousequataire gloves reach to the shoulders.

Death in Ice Cream.

We seem now to have reached the physiological moment when the matter of ice creams vended to children in the street by itinerant Italian confectioners is to be seriously taken in hand. More than one inquest has been held upon the victims of the craving for this cheap rubbish, often poisonous owing to decomposition, and always swarming with microbes. In one case lately a verdict of "death from irritant poisoning" was rendered. The Paddington Vestry have now instructed their medical officer of health to cause samples of ice cream and other similar insidious mixtures to be taken from itinerant vendors in the parish in order that they may be subjected to a chemical analysis, and have voted a sum of 25 guineas to procure a bacteriological examination also. Similar instructions have been given in Clerkenwell and Holborn, and the chemical and bacteriological examinations are now in progress. It is hoped that should the results of these examinations be of such a nature as to give grounds for prosecution, the authorities will be able to proceed against the real offenders, for in many cases the persons who actually sell the ice creams from the barrows are only the agents of persons in a larger way of business.—British Medical Journal.

To Refresh Faded Flowers.

Flowers which have been so long without water that they are in a drooping condition, or that appear faded after being picked only a day, usually revive with the following treatment: Cut the ends of the stalks and place them in a jug containing a small quantity of boiling water, and sprinkle the heads of the flowers with cold water. By the time the boiling water is cold the flowers should appear refreshed; if, however, they are really withered it may be necessary to place them in hot water a second time, but this is seldom required. The portion of the stalks which is discoloured from having touched the boiling water must be cut off, and the flowers may then be arranged in their respective vases, which should be filled with cold water. Changing the water in the vases every second day, and just nipping the stalks will prolong the life of cut flowers.

Hard to Answer.

"Teacher, I cannot answer that question."

"Robert, your reasons for this surprising refusal to answer me! Did Thomas Jones throw that marble?"

It was a thrilling moment. Across the desk the tall, powerful master glared sternly at the pale, determined face of the little fellow before him. From their seats the scholars watched the scene with bated breath. An investigative youth in the back of the room dropped a pin, and was frightened at the noise it made. The big, green fly stopped buzzing against the window pane. The boughs of the old elm beside the door ceased their rustling to catch the brave boy's answer. At last it came. The noble little fellow burst into tears:

"I don't want to," he sobbed, "'cause Tommy Jones says if I blab on him, he'll lick de stuffin' outer me."

Trimmings for Light Dresses.

Tucking, milliners' folds, and rows of galloon or ribbon trim many of the new light-wool gowns for general wear. These are all simple modes of garnishing a dress; none the less are they really desirable from a decorative point of view, and to all present appearances are likely to be as popular this autumn as they have been for several seasons past.

Provinz Brandenburg.

Berlin. Auf Verfügung des Ministers des Innern, Freiherrn von der Recke, ist der hiesige tschechische Turnverein „Sokol" aufgelöst worden. —Mit 3524 Mark, die er im Auftrag seiner Firma einkassirt hatte, ist ein Kassenbote des Bankgeschäfts „Gebrüder Kroner," der erst 24jährige Adalbert Behnke, durchgebrannt. Der Mann galt bisher für vertrauenswürdig, war sehr ruhig und führte, so weit man weiß, ein bescheidenes Leben.—Der Bau einer Arbeiterkolonie in Plötzensee ist in diesen Tagen begonnen worden. Es wird ein stattlicher Bau, zunächst für 50 Personen berechnet, aber mit allen Neben- und Arbeitsräumen gleich von vornherein so groß angelegt, daß eine Erweiterung auf etwa 120 Personen sich nur auf Schlafräume zu erstrecken hat, die ohne jegliche Schwierigkeit angebaut werden können. Die Gesammtkosten für Terrainerwerbung, Bau und Umwährung des Gartenlandes u. s. w. werden sich auf etwa 175,000 Mark belaufen, etwa 35,000 Mark sind bereits gesammelt.

Flatow. An Blutvergiftung durch Milzbrand ist der 50jährige Schlächtermeister Weber eines qualvollen Todes gestorben. Er hatte an einer kranken Kuh, bei der später Milzbrand konstatirt wurde, die Nothschlachtung vorgenommen. Bald darauf erkrankte er schwer und verschied an den Symptomen schwerer Milzbrandvergiftung.

Geestemünde. Neulich Abends entstand an einem Bauplatze durch spielende Kinder hier ein großer Brand. Sieben kleine Häuser und ein großes, zur Tekenborg'schen Schiffswerft gehöriges Haus sind niedergebrannt, sowie zwei große Holzplätze. Der Schaden wird auf 1,500,000 Mark geschätzt. Ein Feuerwehrmann ist umgekommen, zwei Feuerwehrleute sind verletzt.

Kassel. Aufsehen erregt die Verhaftung des ehemaligen Handelskammer-Sekretärs Bromeis, der in den letzten Jahren als Konkursverwalter und Bücher-Revisor vielfach fungirte und häufig als kaufmännischer Sachverständiger vor Gericht auftrat. Ihm werden Unterschlagungen zur Last gelegt, die er als Konkursverwalter in der bekannten Borkner Sparkassen-Affaire begangen haben soll. Er war aber immer nicht zur Rechnungslegung zu bewegen, so daß schließlich das Mittel der Haftertennung gegen ihn angewendet werden mußte. Nachdem er einen Theil der Haft verbüßt, legte er Rechnung ab, wobei sich ein Fehlbetrag von 4000 Mark ergab.

to amend an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance Relating to the Construction of Buildings," approved January 3d, 1896; amended December 8th, 1896; amended December 31st, 1897.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the second paragraph of Section 2 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Frame buildings to be occupied or used as a stable, workshop or manufactory shall not be built or so used if more than thirty (30) feet in total height above foundation.

Section 2. That the fifth paragraph of Section 2 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Where two (2) or more frame houses are built continuously, each dividing wall is to be filled in with not less than two (2) inches of brick above foundation wall to a point up to the under side of the roof.

Section 3. That the first paragraph of Section 4 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

All cellar or basement walls for frame buildings, outside of the fire limits, shall not be less than eight (8) inches thick, if of brick, to a depth of eight (8) feet below grade on street; and to be not less than eighteen (18) inches thick and well bonded if of stone. If of greater depth than above, or if carried up twelve (12) feet or more above grade to frame, the foundation wall is to be not less than twelve (12) inches thick if of brick, and not less than twenty (20) inches thick and well bonded if of stone.

Section 4. That the first paragraph of Section 5 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

All frame and wooden buildings exceeding a height of fifteen (15) feet shall be built with sills, posts, interties or ribbon strips, plates and rafters, all of suitable and sufficient size, to be properly braced and framed, and with suitable studs set at proper distances apart, with fire cut-off at each floor. The floor beams shall be not less than two (2) inches in thickness and ten (10) inches in depth, or of equal supporting capacity, except thick story or attic beams which may be two (2) inches in thickness and eight (8) inches in depth, well bridged.

Section 5. That Section 7 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

The fire limits of the City of Plainfield are hereby established so as to include all that district of said City contained within the following bounderies, and also within the space of one hundred (100) feet beyond and parallel to the centre lines of the streets or avenues constituting the said boundaries: Beginning at the point of intersection of the centre line of Grove street with the City line in Green Brook; thence along the centre line of Grove street to the centre line of West Front Street; thence along the centre line of West Front Street to the centre line of Watchung avenue; thence along the centre line of Watchung avenue to the centre line of the continuation of East Fourth street; thence along the centre line of said continuation of East Fourth street to the centre line of Church street; thence along the centre line of Church street to the centre line of East Front street; thence along the centre line of East Front street to the centre line of Elm place; thence along the centre line of Elm place to its intersection with the City line in Green Brook; thence along the centre line in Green Brook to the place of beginning.

Section 6. That the sixth paragraph of Sect on 11 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Piazzas or balconies of wood, not to extend in height more than three (3) feet above the second story floor beams may be erected upon any dwelling house.

Section 7. That the ninth paragraph of Section 11 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

If of any greater height or dimensions, or more than one is desired on any one side or face, it or they shall be covered with metal and such other means taken to insure slow burning as the Inspector of Buildings may require.

Section 8. That the following paragraph be and the same is hereby added to Section 12 of said ordinance.

Whenever any store building within the fire limits is divided by stud partition walls, such walls are to be filled in with brick or such other fire proof material as the Inspector of Buildings may direct.

Section 9. That the first and second paragraphs of Section 18 of said ordinance be and the same are hereby amended so as to read as follows:

All outside walls of dwelling houses within the City limits shall be not less than eight (8) inches thick, if under and not more than twenty-five (25) feet above foundation.

If over twenty-five (25) feet and not over fifty (50) feet above foundation, the walls shall be not less than twelve (12) inches thick.

Section 10. That the first and second paragraphs of Section 20 of said ordinance be and the same are hereby amended so as to read as follows:

All the walls of dwellings not more than twenty-two (22) feet wide, forty-five (45) feet deep, and not more than thirty (30) feet or two stories in height, may be built not less than eight (8) inches thick above foundation.

One story structures not over twenty-two (22) feet in height, may be built with all the walls not less than eight (8) inches in thickness.

Section 11. That the following paragraph be and the same is hereby added to Section 20 of said ordinance.

Store fronts in one story structures may be built of wood and covered with metal, above the show windows, provided suitable fire stops are placed between buildings.

Section 12. That the following paragraph be and the same is hereby added to Section 23 of said ordinance:

Store buildings shall be construed to mean all buildings, any part of which is to be used as a store.

Section 13. That the twelfth paragraph of Section 25 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

In all buildings, any portion of which is used for any other purpose than a dwelling, the hall partitions of the first story and basement shall be of brick or other fire-proof material and underside of staircases covered with metal lathing and plaster, as Inspector of Buildings may direct.

Section 14. That the second paragraph of Section 30 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

All header and trimmer beams, unless to be supported by partitions, shall be double or one inch thicker than the beams, and where more than six feet long shall be hung in stirrup irons.

Section 15. That the third paragraph of Section 31 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

The interior of all elevator, dumb-waiter or light shafts to be lined with metal or covered with metal lathing and plaster, the doors at each story to be covered with metal on the inside, and the walls thereof to be carried to under side of roof.

Section 16. That the fifth paragraph of Section 32 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

The roofs of all buildings within the fire limits shall have a scuttle or bulkhead, covered with approved fire-proof material, and fixed ladders or stairs of iron or wood leading thereto. No scuttle is to be less than two by three feet in size, and the frames of all bulkheads are to be filled with brick or fire-proof block.

Section 17. That the fifth paragraph of Section 33 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

All stud partitions back of portable kitchen ranges shall be framed sixteen (16) inches higher than smoke pipe opening and one (1) foot wider each side of range, and the opening filled in with brick or fire-proof blocks. No stove shall come within two (2) feet of any wooden partition unless said partition be covered with zinc. No woodwork shall cross the brick breast of any portable range.

Section 18. That the second paragraph of Section 38 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby stricken out and the following substituted in place thereof:

Where hot-air pipes are placed in stud partitions, the sides of the studs are to be lined with metal, with suitable air space left between the studs and the metal, and the metal and the pipes.

Section 19. That the following paragraph be and the same is hereby added to Section 39 of said ordinance:

No work of the character described in this section shall be covered until the Inspector of Buildings shall have duly inspected and approved the same.

Section 20. That the following section be and the same hereby is added to said ordinance, and numbered Section 45:

That with respect to any of the requirements or provisions of this ordinance, it shall be lawful for the Common Council by resolution upon report submitted by the Committee on Fire and Buildings, to specify a substitutionary method or plan of construction, or a substitute in material in the place and stead of that specified in said ordinance, provided that the risk from fire will not thereby be increased and in every such case the owner or builder may adopt such method plan or material specified in such resolution; provided further that no such resolution shall be adopted without there being first presented to the Common Council a petition specifying in detail the changes desired, the reasons therefor, and the location and character of the building in question.

Section 21. That the section of said ordinance now numbered and known as Section 45 be and the same shall henceforth be numbered and known as Section 46.

Approved by the Mayor Sept. 14th, 1898.

CHAS J. FISK, Mayor.

Attest: J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

GOOD JOB WORK.
THE DAILY PRESS office can do it—anything from a milk ticket to an auction bill; even larger, too.
The job department of THE DAILY PRESS office is the largest and best equipped in Plainfield or vicinity. The workmen employed are experienced and capable and possess the knack of producing neat products. The prices are reasonable. When work is promised for a certain time the customer gets it without the aggravating delay common to many printeries.
If you need job printing at all you need the kind that reflects credit for neatness and style on you. You can get that kind
AT THE DAILY PRESS.

YOU'RE READING THIS?

CERTAINLY!

Well, Mr. Merchant-who-thinks-of-advertising, this is only one of the many corners in THE DAILY PRESS—it isn't the best located one, either; we can give you better—and if this attracts your attention in our endeavor to tell you how good advertising will get you a hearing before the purchasing public, doesn't common sense teach you that if you were having people reading your trade story instead of you're reading our argument about it, that it would be better for your business. THE DAILY PRESS reaches the purchasing public that makes the profits for the merchant.

We can give you big or little space—but in advertising it is'nt always economy to be sparing in your appropriation.

Our Young Folks

HUNTING THE FAIRIES.

I've hunted the fairies the whole day long,
In wood and valley and brook;
I've listened to hear the hulder-song,
And the Erl-king pass where the alders shook;
But I never saw even a troll or a fay,
Or a naughty elf that had lost his way,
Though I hunted the livelong day.

Perhaps it was only the wind that stirred
The rustling leaves and the grass;
Perhaps it was only the song of a bird
That called to me as I tried to pass
The tangled path where the branches meet;
But it seemed like the tripping of fairy feet,
And elf songs, silvery sweet.

And so I hurried and came at last
Out on an open space
To the brook that rushes and babbles past;
And there I caught a glimpse of a face.
So I clambered in haste on a rocky shelf,
And looked in the waves again for the elf;
But the face was only myself.

I think it is funny that boys like me
Can't find where the fairies go;
And I really think I would like to be
A boy with the boys of the long ago;
When all the wonderful tales came true,
The magic lamp and the little glass shoe,
And the awful bug-a-boo.

But though they could fly to the moon and stars
When the fairies gave them wings,
They hadn't the train nor electric cars,
Nor Christmas and lots of other things;
And so I guess it is better here,
And I think I'll stay at least this year,
Since Fourth of July is near.

A FISH THAT FISHES.

The Fishing Frog and the Manner in Which He Secures Food.

"Would you think, Tommy, that a fish would be cruel enough to fish for other fishes?"

"Why not, mother, he has got to make a living?"

"But why does he not catch worms and bugs and snails and live on seaweeds, instead of catching little fishes?"

"How does he catch them, mother, and what is his name? I never heard of such a fish."

"One thing at a time. There are many things, Tommy, that you know now, that you did not know a year ago. It is a very silly thing to say, as many girls and boys do, when they are told anything, 'I never heard of that before!' Why should they have heard of it? If they don't inquire and read, and use their eyes, how are they to learn anything they did not learn before."

"Yes, mother, but do not many fish catch and devour other fish?"

"Yes, Tommy, but this fish that I was about to tell you of, is a fisherman, and does not chase fishes, but catches them as you do."

"What, does he go out with a fish-pole, and an angleworm to fish?"

"Pretty nearly! He is called the Lophius or Fishing Frog, or by some the Frog Fish. It is a sea-fish, which is shaped like a bull head, or catfish, and sometimes grows to the length of two feet, but its head is more than half the length of the fish. Its broad mouth is armed with sharp, curved teeth, and it catches its food in a very curious way. It will settle down at the bottom of the sea, where the water is shallow, and lie in wait with its mouth wide open. On the front of its head are antennae, or 'horns,' I suppose you would call them, being long flexible spikes, shaped like a whip, which end in a silvery ornament like the cracker on the whip. Then, as he lies there, almost invisible in the mud, he sees with his half shut eyes, a small fish come playing along, like a boy going to school and looking in the windows to find goodies."

"Mama, does he go to a school of fishes?"

"Tommy, you must listen; when the little fish sees this silvery bait dangling in the water, he thinks it must be something good to eat, and says to himself, 'O here is a chance to get my dinner cheaply.' So he plays about it awhile, as the Lophius or 'loafer,' as we had better call him, watches the little fellow through half-shut eyes. Then the little fish rushes at the bait, and tries to swallow it, when Frog Fish jumps forward and catches the little fish in his big mouth, and devours him, while the mud stirred up at the bottom spreads in a yellow cloud through the water and hides the murder."

It Never Pays to Be Bad.

There was a little boy
By the name of Le Roy—
Oh, what a handsome litttle fellow!
But, alas! one day,
While he was at play,
He stole an apple large and mellow
And he ate it and he ate it,
Till the apple was all gone,
And then he got a very bitter pain;
And I know the little boy
By the name of Le Roy
Will never steal apples again.

GIRLS, DON'T USE SLANG.

It Shows a Lack of Intellect and is Unpleasant to Hear.

I have often had to blush to hear girls use slang, or at least attempt to, catching up the bye-words of the street, and using them as if they were the familiar speech of home. It shows first, that the person is not accomplished in speech, and has a limited range of words, which does her no credit. The use of right words comes from the association with other minds, either in books or in society or home. A girl's mind can be judged by her choice of words, and that choice is influenced by her associates largely. But the great and overwhelming reason for the girl's not using slang is, that often, perhaps one should say generally, slang originates in some anecdote, oftentimes exceedingly vulgar, and of evil intent. I have heard girls use slang phrases, that if a stranger heard, he would conclude that they were familiar with obscene and vile stories, so vile that gentlemen would not repeat them to each other. Yet they had heard men use these expressions, and had used them themselves, entirely unconscious of their meaning. They would have shrunk back with horror from the use of such words, if they had known in what they originated. The language of concert halls, saloons and low resorts, of the vilest places oftentimes filters into the public speech, and is taken up by the press, and girls are apt to adopt these expressions, when, if they knew the origin of them, they would not for the world make use of them. Good, clean, clear, wholesome English, as musical as Irving and Goldsmith and Addison could write, is the proper language of girls, and whenever they use slang to brighten language with, they tread on dangerous ground. I once heard a pretty girl, as good as she was pretty, use some slang phrases, very much in vogue with certain people, at that time. After she had stepped aside, a young man said to another: "Is it possible that she has the slightest comprehension of the origin of the words she has been using?" The other said: "I know she has not, she is a clean-minded girl, and will be shocked if she were told that she was using the familiar talk of places of low resort." Suppose there had been no kind friend to thus apologize for her. Girls, don't use slang.

Stories of Alfonso.

All sorts of stories are now being told about the little King of Spain, who, according to Queen Victoria's proclamation of neutrality, is the actual person at war with the United States. His little Majesty is daily informed, and in language fitted to his comprehension, the exact condition of the state of affairs. He amuses himself by drilling a company of guards in the grounds of the palace, and in one of the apartments are top models to the extent of a hundred or more of men and officers of the various regiments of the Spanish forces. These are placed in formations by two or three veteran officers, detailed to impress the delights of warfare upon the young monarch, and often they are presented as fighting troops and practice various maneuvers and perform sham battles against another crowd of toy soldiers supposed to be Americans, and which, of course, have to suffer severe defeat at the hands of the baby King. He has also models of different war ships floating in one of the palace lakes, and, in fact, every possible means is being taken to instill into the mind of the royal child that his mission is to defend, and some day, if possible, avenge his country.

When the little King becomes fractious, and even royal boys can be naughty, he is punished by being forced to witness the American dummy soldiers inflict a thrashing on the Spanish, carefully arranged, of course, by the aforementioned veterans in attendance. The little King also likes to trot at the head of a company of boy soldiers sent from time to time to play with him in the palace grounds, and he is happiest when permitted, as a special concession, to beat a drum as they march past.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

One of the results of the successful field games held by the Plainfield High School Athletic Association last Friday has been a decided wish on the part of the athletes of Leal's School to arrange joint games to be held in the spring. This plan is favorably looked upon by some of the High School boys and there seems to be a good prospect that such a meet will be held. The athletic talent is pretty fairly divided between the two schools and a joint meeting would be closely contested.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The bowling team of the Plainfield Catholic Club will turn up this fall as usual. The members will roll a number of games during the winter but have not yet decided whether they will enter the Diocesan Union this year.

The bowling alleys at the Y.M.C.A. have been put in condition and bowling will be resumed on the alleys this fall. Already there are a number who have shown much interest in the game. A team will be organized and a contest is now being arranged with the New Brunswick Y. M. C. A. to roll a series of games.

GRANTED A DIVORCE.

James Macaboy Gets a Legal Seperation on Statutory Grounds.

Chancellor McGill has granted a final decree of divorce in the case of James Macaboy against Ellen Macaboy on statutory grounds. Lawyer Wm. Newcorn, of this city, represented the plaintiff, while a lawyer from Connecticut represented the defendant, who resides in that State at present. The case was opened last October and the decision has just been given. Mr. and Mrs. Macaboy were former residents of Bound Brook. They lived in this city for a time. Mr. Macaboy is still a resident of Plainfield.

PARK CLUB ELECTION.

MEMBERS OF BOARD OF GOVERNORS CHOSEN FOR A YEAR.

The Office of President Will be Filled at a Later Meeting—From Now on the Members of the Club Will be Very Active

Last evening the annual meeting of the Park Club was held, at which time officers for the ensuing term were elected. The board of governors, consisting of five members, was elected as follows: F. H. Ball, one year; H. D. Hibbard, two years; B. A. Hegeman, Jr., J. C. Peck and E. T. Wilson, three pears.

Immediately afterward the governors organized by electing the following officers: Vice-president, Elston M. French; secretary, F. H. Ball; treasurer, G. P. Dupee. The office of president was left open last evening for certain reason, and will be filled later. The announcement of committees will also be made later. From now on there will be considerable life at the Park Club and the season bids fair to be a successful one.

Hydrant Bursted.

Last evening at a late hour a fire hydrant located at the corner of Grandview avenue and Somerset street burst and the streets were flooded for a time. Word was immediately sent to the water company and the damage was repaired at once.

Y. M. C. A. Day Coming.

Sunday, October 16th, will be observed in this city as Y. M. C. A. day. The Y. M. C. A. here will then celebrate its thirty-first anniversary, and special meetings, with speakers, will be held in all the churches in the evening.

Important Case Settled.

The case of Miss Phelps against R. O. Howell, the grocer, for damages for injuries received by the former in a collision with the latter's delivery wagon a year ago, which has received a good deal of attention, has been settled. It is understood that Miss Phelps receives $150 and drops the case.

Tommy's Pets May Die.

The alligators in Tommy Timbo's show windows are still alive and apparently in as good health as when sporting around in the lagoons of Florida. But when cold weather comes Timbo is afraid that the little fellows will die. As yet they have shown no signs of feeling the cold.

Jim Haggarty, of East Front street, has moved to Easton, Pa.

RESERVES COMING HOME.

Expected That They Will Leave Philadelphia Tomorrow Morning

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Philadelphia, Oct. 5.—It is expected that the New Jersey Naval Reserves, Battalion of the East, who have been on the Badger since the late war commenced, will leave this city tomorrow for home. They will probably go as far as Newark on the Pennsylvania Railroad and there transfer to the D. L. & W. R. R., to go to Hoboken, where they will be muftered out on the training ship Portsmouth. The reserves expect to be warmly welcomed home.

No Indictments for Gambling.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, October 5.—The Middlesex county Grand Jury brought in thirty-three indictments yesterday afternoon, but failed to indict the men guilty of having nicket-in-the-slot machines or the violators of the Sunday closing law.

Judge Gilbert Collins went to the unusual extremity of sending the jury back. Later in the afternoon the jury sent word to Judge Woodbridge Strong that it could not change its opinion, and it was discharged.

Roesel to Be Sentenced Tomorrow.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, October 5.—Owing to a number of cases not being ready for trial the court adjourned this morning till tomorrow. Judge VanSyckel will pronounce sentence on Louis Roesel, the murderer, tomorrow at 1 o'clock.

Member (gruffly): "But I don't feel very cheerful over it!"

Minister: "No matter—the church is not very exacting."—Twinkles.

The Savage and the Bird Cage.

A gentleman who went out with Stanley to Africa took with him a number of bird cages, in which he hoped to bring back some specimens of the rarer birds of the interior. Owing to the death of his carriers he was obliged o throw away the bird cages with a number of other articles. These were seized by the natives in great glee, though they did not know what to do with them; but they eventually decided that the small circular cages were a kind of head gear, and, knocking off the bottoms, the chiefs strutted about in them with evident pride. One chief thinking himself more wise than the others, and having seen the white men eat at tables out of dishes, thought they were receptacles for food, and took his meals from one, ceremoniously opening and shutting the door between each mouthful.—Washington Star.

A Howler but Not a Fighter.

A Student of the University of Virginia, writing to the Petersburg Index-Appeal, says: "An editorial in the Index on the fighting qualities of the fire-eaters in the late war puts me in mind of a conversation I had with one of our professors some time ago. He told me an anecdote of General Early who signed the secession papers with tears in his eyes. Near him was an old fellow from Charlottesville who was just howling for secession. Turning to him Early said: 'You'll never spill a drop of blood for the cause,' and sure enough about six months later General Early came upon this fire-eater driving a wagon loaded with shoes which he was selling. 'Help yourselves, boys!' said the general to his troops, and they did it."

BRILLIANT WELCOME FOR THE SIR KNIGHTS.

Pittsburg to Fairly Outdo Herself for the Conclave.

THREE DAYS OF PLEASURE.

TRINITY COMMANDERY WILL GO ON A SPECIAL TRAIN.

The Train to Leave Jersey City Sunday Night at 8 o'Clock—Electricity to be Harnessed in Every Conceivable Shape by the Pittsburg People—A Mammoth Convention Hall Built.

Next week the twenty-seventh triannual conclave of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States will be held at Pittsburg. Pittsburg, long known as the home of electricity, will fairly out do itself in the reception that will be accorded the Sir Knights and ladies, for electricity will be harnessed in every conceivable shape, and the entire city will blaze with a brilliancy never before attempted anywhere.

The Sir Knights and their friends will begin to arrive Monday morning. The programme for the three days of the encampment is as follows:

Monday will be devoted to welcoming and receiving the visiting commandries from various parts of the United States. In the evening the various grand commandries will hold receptions at their headquarters.

Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock the grand parade will start. There will be about 24,000 uniformed Knights in line. General Joe Wheeler will be in command of the mounted division, and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, with about 250 Rough Riders, who are Sir Knights, will take part in the parade. The line of march will be over the grand boulevard. At 9 o'clock Tuesday night the grand ball will be held in Duquesne Hall.

The hall, a temporary structure, is a marvel of engineering. It is about 800 feet by 400 feet, and there is not a column in it. Wednesday forenoon will be given up to sight seeing, visiting the oil and gas wells, and in the afternoon there will be competitive drills at Schenley Park.

On Tuesday and Wednesday evenings each grand commandry will hold a reception.

Three years ago the tri-annual encampment was held in Boston, but the grandeur of the affair did not equal what the citizens of Pittsburg will do. Electric lights will illuminate the whole city at night, and will be arranged in all kinds of shapes. An immense American flag, composed of 24,000 electric lights, is to be displayed on the front of one of the hotels. The lights are to be interchangable so as to give the banner a waving appearance. Another set of figuers, showing two mounted Knights in deadly combat, will be shown. In this there will be 10,000 lights.

Immense sums of money have been donated by the citizens. Souvenirs will be given to each Sir Knight and lady, and the encampment will be the grandest and most elaborate entertainment ever attempted.

Trinity Commandery, of this city, will attend and will go on a special train via the Pennsylvania Railroad, leaving Jersey City Sunday night at 8 o'clock. The train will stop at Newark, Elizabeth, New Brunswick, Princeton Junction, Trenton and Philadelphia, arriving at Pittsburg about 8:30 o'clock Monday morning.

The train will be composed of four sleepers, a dining, baggage and smoking cars. It will leave Pittsburg at midnight Wednesday night and arrive at Gettysburg the next morning at 8 o'clock. There the party will be met with carriages and taken over the battlefield by an officer on the staff of General Hancock, and who served through the Civil War. This officer will explain the points of interest. At night the party will leave for Jersey City, arriving there Friday morning.

The Plainfield commandery will go with commandries from a few other places. The train will accommodate about 125, and there is still room for a few more Sir Knights, their ladies and friends. The cost of joining this excursion is $32.50 for the round trip, and this includes everything, carriages, meals, guides, etc. Any who desire to join can secure full particulars from W. H. Sebring, Grand Commander, Eminent Sir J. Kirkner, or Sir Knight S. Burgaman. Applications must be made by Friday night.

No Improvement.

The latest reports concerning Thomas K. Leslie, of West Front street, who lately became demented, is that his condition is about the same. There are fears that his mind may not come around all right.

WANT POLES TO STAY UP.

TROUBLE OF STATE TELEPHONE COMPANY AT BOUND BROOK.

Henry J. Garretson Restrained From Taking Down the Poles Till Company Can Begin Condemnation Proceedings.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Newark, Oct 6—An application was made before Vice-Chancellor Emery in Chancery Chambers yesterday afternoon by J. W. Atkinson, for an order to restrain Henry J. Garretson, of Bound Brook, from removing the poles which the State Telephone Company has erected in front of his property.

The poles were erected in March and nearly two months later the wires were strung. Garretson, who owns a farm on the road along which the line was run, now declares that the poles were erected without his permission and that several of his trees had been injured. A few days ago, through his counsel, H. K. Gaston, he served notice on the company that, unless the poles and wires were removed, he would cut down the poles. It was to prevent him from doing this that the application was made in Chancery yesterday.

Mr. Atkinson stated that the company was willing to compensate Garretson for any damages done. He contended that, while the company had failed to take condemnation proceedings, Mr. Garretson was equally at fault for having failed to file a protest when the poles were first erected.

The Vice-Chancellor granted a temporary injunction against the removal of the poles with the understanding that the company would begin condemnation proceedings within ten days and pay the defendant's expenses in opposing the application.

W. C. T. U. CONVENTION.

State Temperance Women Will Meet in Elizabeth Next Week.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Oct. 6—The twenty-fifth annual convention of the New Jersey Women's Christion Temperance Union will be held in this city at the First Presbyterian church, from October 11th to October 14th. The programme will be as follows:

Tuesday, October 11, 3 p. m.—Meeting of the executive committee. Delegates' prayer service led by Mrs. Jennie Fowler Willing, of New York.

Tuesday evening—Address by Colonel George W. Bain, of Kentucky, on "Government, Civil and National."

Wednesday night—Address by Miss Belle Kearney, of Mississippi.

Thursday evening—Demonstration. Forty one-minute speeches.

Sunday-School Workers to Meet.

The eighteenth annual convention of the Union County Sunday-school Association will be held in Greystone Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, Thursday, October 13th, with morning, afternoon and evening sessions. Miss Nettie Beeching, of Washingtonville, will take part and speak on "The Primary Teacher." In the afternoon Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, of this city, will make an address on "The Personal Element in Divine Revelation." There will also be greeting from the Plainfield Union in the afternoon. In the evening Congressman C. N. Fowler will make an address.

University Extension Course.

Announcement is made of the University Extension Course of lectures. They will be held this year in the Y. M. C. A. building. The first six lectures will be on the subject of "American Literature," and will be given by Prof. Albert H. Smyth, Tuesdays, November 8th, 15th, 22d and 29th, and December 6th and 13th, '98. The last six lectures will be on "American History," and will be given by Prof. William H. Mace, Tuesdays, January 10th, 17th, 24th and 31st, and February 7th and 14th, '99. The course tickets are $1.50.

A Chance To Do Good.

As at this time of the year many people are making changes in their homes, the members of the Young Women's Club desire to make a plea for furniture. Almost anything in that line would be acceptable, but the articles most needed at this time are a sewing machine, blackboard, clock, small tables for games, large round or square table for library and chairs of any kind.

Endeavor Anniversary.

This evening in Trinity Reformed church Rev. Cornelius Brett, D.D., president of the State Christian Endeavor Society, will deliver an address, the occasion being the thirteenth anniversary of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church. A cordial invitation is extended to all persons interested.

—A local union Christian Endeavor rally will be held soon. Notice of the time and place will be given in a few days.

GREAT DOINGS AT TROLLEY OPENING.

Some of the Great Things That Lincoln Proposes To Do.

WOMAN TO TURN THE MOTOR

AND THE LINCOLN STATUE TO BE TURNED DIRECTLY AROUND.

Mayor Drake Proposes to Eclipse All Other Celebrations of a Like Nature—He Has Done Other Wonderful Things in Lincoln and This Time He Will Simply Astonish an Expectant World.

[Special to The Daily Press.]

Lincoln, October 6.—It is announced that the Brunswick Traction Company will probably formally open their extension from Bound Brook to this city Saturday next, crossing Peter's Brook, which has been a stumbling block in the progress of the road for several weeks, on a temporary trestle. The opening of the road will mark one of the most important trolley connections yet made in New Jersey, which is gradually being covered with a network of the trolley wires to provide transit for its suburban as well as city residents. In Lincoln, which has already attained considerable celebrity by electing women to the Common Council, it will be made the occasion of a great celebration by the townspeople, in which the fair office-holders will take a conspicuous part. The arrangements are being perfected by Silas D. Drake, who may be said to be a master hand at such things.

It is planned to have the Councilwomen, headed by Miss Emma Egel, president of the Council, board the front platform of the first car that runs over the new line and manipulate the crank that controls the motor of the car. After running the car over the new line as far as Dunellen or the Plainfield city limits, the return trip will be to Lincoln and the car will stop directly in front of the statue of Abraham Lincoln, which was unveiled July Fourth last, and one of the Councilwomen will grasp a heavy maul and with her supreme strength drive a silver spike into one of the ties that support the rails.

At the same time it is calculated to have the Lincoln statue turned around so as to face the trolley car on north. At present the statue faces the Central Railroad of New Jersey toward the south. As the monument is thirty feet high and weighs several tons this latter job will be quite a big undertaking, but Mayor Drake says that if he can emancipate the women from their oppression of the sterner sex at the ballot box, he certainly will find the turning of a shaft of the colored man's emancipator a trifling job. At any rate it will be a great day for Lincoln.

PARK CLUB PRESIDENT.

George P. Dupee to Succeed Senator Reed in That Place.

George P. Dupee, of Washington Park, has been elected president of the Park Club to succeed Senator Charles A. Reed. Mr. Dupee is the only member of the board of governors who has served the club as such from the organization of the club. He has been a faithful and zealous member of the club and this honor bestowed on him is one which he richly deserves. The members of the club have reason to feel proud of the selection, for they have a man at the head whose excellent judgment and wisdom will certainly carry the club to great success.

DWINDEL'S CASE GOES OVER.

Witnesses Say They Employed the Healer, But Were No Better.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Newark, Oct. 6—Dwindel, the "Boy Phenomenon," who claims to heal by laying on hands, but who was arrested on the complaint of Chief of Police Hopper for working without a medical license, had a hearing before Judge Lambert last evening.

Several witnesses testified that they had paid the boy for treating them, but had derived no benefit. Argument was postponed until Saturday morning.

To Read a Paper on the Commandments.

Next Monday afternoon the Plainfield Ministers' Association will hold their first fall meeting at the home of Rev. Dr. Lowry, of Madison avenue. Rev. Floyd Appleton, curate of Grace P. E. church, will present a paper on "The Ten Commandments."

To Elect a Superintendent.

The officers and teachers of the Sunday-school of the First Baptist church will hold a meeting this evening to elect a superintendent to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Rufus K. Case.

BANQUET FOR DOCTORS

MEDICAL ASSOCIATION MEMBERS ENJOY THEMSELVES LAST NIGHT.

The Menu Served in McVey's Best Style—Dr. J. T. Fritts Read a Paper on a Medical Subject—Those Who Were Present

The quarterly meeting and dinner of the Plainfield Medical Association took place last evening at J. H. McVey's Hotel on North avenue, and was in every way a success. The dining table was the admiration of all present. It was set to represent several stars, and in the centre was a beautiful basket of roses arranged in a pyramid style, which was the work of Miss Lincoln, the florist. Banquet lamps also added to the general beauty of the decorations, while palms were arranged about the room in a pleasing fashion. The menu was all to be desired and was served in metropolitan style by Mr. McVey's excellent corps of assistants.

After the dinner Dr. J. T. Fritts presented a very interesting paper on "Whooping-caugh," which related the author's own method of treating the disease. It was a creditable paper and was well received. Following the reading of the paper, an informal discussion took place which was very helpful to all who took part.

The following members of the association were present: Drs. T. H. Tomlinson, J. T. Fritts, M. B. Long, G. W. Endicott, E. W. Hedges, B. VanD. Hedges, William H. Murray, T. S. Davis, O. L. Jenkins, Kempton Browning, Marc L. Clawson, J. H. Buchanan, Albert Pittis, John H. Carman and A. F. VanHorn.

DEMOCRATIC CAMPAIGN.

STATE COMMITTEE TO PLAN A VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN.

Old State Committee to Meet Tomorrow—Somerset Has Not Yet Named Her Representative on New Committee.

Wm K. Devereux, secretary of the New Jersey Democratic State Committee, has filed with the Secretary of State the certificate of Elvin W. Crane's nomination for Governor by the Democratic party. He has also called a meeting of the old State committee, to be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow in the rooms of the Jeffersonian Club, West Park street, Newark. The old committee will merely meet and adjourn sine die, and the new State committee will then organize.

William B. Gourley, of Paterson, who was chairman of the recent State Convention, will announce tomorrow the names of the four members-at-large of the new State Committee. Colonel E. Livingston Price, the present chairman of the State Committee, will be one of the four. The member of the State Committee from Essex has not yet been named, but ex State Treasurer George R. Gray, of Newark, will probably be designated. The counties of Morris, Somerset and Sussex have not named their representatives on the State Commitee, but the vacancies will be filled before the new committee meets on Friday.

The State committee will establish headquarters next Monday in the Newark City National Bank building, on Broad and Clinton sts., Newark. Secretary Devereux will be in charge. It is the intention of the committee to institute a vigorous campaign at once. Meetings will be held in every city, town and borough in the State. Secretary Devereux has already organized a speakers' bureau, and the list contains the names of over three hundred well-known Democrats, who have promised to stump the State for the ticket. A ratification meeting will probably be held in Newark next week.

Good Luck at Fishing.

Counselor William K. McClure returned from Greenwood Lake this morning, where he has been on a fishing expedition for several days. He brought a large basket full of bass—thirty-eight in all—which he distributed among his friends and made their hearts glad. He left one at The Press office weighing four and a half pounds.

Smith's Remains Not Interred Yet.

Morgue-keeper Patrick Casey still has the remains of William Smith, who died in Muhlenberg Hospital last Thursday, awaiting word from Washington. Counsellor W. S. Angleman has taken charge of the case and is corresponding with the authorities at the capital. Meanwhile Smith's body has been embalmed.

A Sacred Concert.

A sacred concert will be given in St. Joseph church, in the borough, on the evening of Thursday, October 20th. A feature will be the appearance of double quartette of the priests of this dioces, who will take part.

Rev. Father Miller, of the borough, who has been quite ill, has left the city in hopes that a change may benefit him.

HUSBAND ON THE SEA, HIS WIFE DIED TODAY.

Sad Circumstances of the Death of Mrs. Auguste Saltzman.

HER DEATH UNEXPECTED.

PASSED AWAY AT THE HOME OF HER DAUGHTER.

Mr. Saltzman Sailed For Home October 1st and Did Not Even Know That His Wife Was Ill—Her Son One of the Badger Crew—She Had Been a Resident of Plainfield For About Twenty Years.

Word was received in this city this morning of the death of Mrs. Auguste Saltzman, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Andrew Suydam Fritts, at Hawley, Wayne county, Pa. Her death was wholly unexpected to her friends here, but the saddest feature of all is that the husband is on the ocean, and knows nothing about his wife's illness even, and when he reaches this side side nent Tuesday or Wednesday, will be confronted with the heart-breaking news of his wife's death.

Mrs. Saltzman went to her daughter's about September 1st. Three weeks ago she contracted pneumonia, which soon assumed a typhoid character, and developed into typhoid pneumonia. Her heart was weak and after a few days' serious illness Mrs. Saltzman died early this morning.

Mrs. Saltzman was well-known here. The wife of a wealthy New York jeweler and exempt fireman, a man popular with not only the citizens of his own town, but of the county and State, she was acknowledged a leader in her circle. The family first came to this city about twenty years ago. Mr. Saltzman came from Geneva, Switzerland, where his mother is now living. They were married in this country.

They first took up their residence on Central avenue, below Ninth street, and moved to Sandford avenue and lately have been boarding on East Sixth street. In July Mr. Saltzman started on a trip to Europe, and later Mrs. Saltzman went to Hawley to visit her daughter. The husband left Antwerp for New York on October 1st.

Mrs. Saltzman leaves a husband and two children, August, a graduate of Lehigh University, who is now on board the Badger, and Maud, who married Dr. Andrew Suydam Fritts.

No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral. The remains will be brought to this city and will arrive tonight. They will be taken to the home of Dr. Fritts. The deceased was about 45 or 50 years old, stout, had dark hair and eyes, and was everywhere liked. She had heart trouble for many years, and this was the cause of her death.

THEIR FIRST SOCIABLE.

Helping Hand Society Arranged a Pleasant Event.

In the parish building of Grace P. E. church last evening the Helping Hand Society of the church held its first sociable of the season. There was an excellent attendance, notwithstanding the inclement weather, and everyone present had a thoroughly enjoyable time. The main feature of the evening was sociability, while Mr. Moore was present with his phonograph and entertained the guests with several pleasing selections, including the "Chimes of Trinity." The building was decorated in an attractive manner by members of the society, and some of the decorations used at the Dryden-Nolting wedding were utilised. During the evening refreshments were served by a committee, of which Mrs. Thomas Minford was the chairman.

FATHER MURPHY IN CRANFORD.

St. Mary's Former Assistant Rector Now in Charge of a Parish.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, Oct. 6.—The Rev. Fr. Murphy, formerly an assistant to Rev. Father P. E. Smyth, at St. Mary's church, Plainfield, and later of St. John's church, of Paterson, has been appointed to the rectorship of St. Michael's church at Cranford to succeed Rev. Jams P. Smith. Father Murphy assumed his duties yesterday.

Lecture on Music.

W. J. Colville, a Boston editor, will deliver a lecture in the Grace church guild room Saturday evening at 8 o'clock under the auspices of the Monday Afternoon Club. The subject will be "Music and Its Relation to Health; Harmony and Health Inseparable."

Alarm Caused By Repairs.

The several blows of the fire-alarm whistle last evening was occasioned by repairs being made in the battery room at fire headquarters.

DR PROBASCO MARRIED

MISS GERTRUDE EDMAN, OF WATCHUNG AVENUE, THE BRIDE.

The Event Celebrated at the Home of the Groom on East Front Street—Bride's Mother Present From Paris.

The marriage of Dr. J. B. Probasco, of East Front street, to Miss Gertrude Edman, of Watchung avenue, took place yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the doctor's home. Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated.

The wedding was attended only by the immediate relatives of both parties. Among the guests were the bride's mother from Paris, who came across the water to attend the event, and the bride's sister from New York. The mother gave away the daughter in marriage. The groom's sister, Mrs. Tustin, of Philadelphia, and his brother, of Bridgeton, this State, also witnessed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of the late Frank B. Edman, of Stockholm, Sweden, and her grandfather was the late Hon. Samuel Shirley, of England. The doctor made Miss Edman's acquaintance at the Muhlenberg Hospital, where she served in the capacity as nurse. She graduated from one of the training classes, but soon left the hospital and took up her residence on Watchung avenue.

After a short trip the couple will return and take up their residence on East Front street.

RESULT OF A SPREE.

George Ryno Awarded $15 for Damages Done to His Rig.

George A. Ryno, of Samptown, brought suit through City Judge DeMeza, in Justice Mosher's court, last month against James McCarthy, of this city, for damages done to him while out driving August 30th. The case was tried yesterday before the Justice and a jury, and a verdict of $15 and costs awarded the plaintiff.

Ryno met McCarthy and his brother on the afternoon of August 30th on the railroad crossing at Samptown. Ryno says that the McCarthy brothers crowded him far over on the right side of the road and ran him down, breaking the wheels of his buggy. Both men, he claimed, were intoxicated.

McCarthy admitted taking a few drinks, but said he was not intoxicated. The heavy surrey he drove was not hurt at all in the collision. Councilman Hetfield represented the defendant.

The twelve jurymen were Albert Rogers, Charles Runyon, Percy Ohl, George Lyons, Henry Apgar, David Arthur, W. H. Abbott, Frank H. Clarkson, Henry Haurand, John Neighbor, Louis Garthwait and Wm. B. Ayres.

A CHURCH CONCERT.

Calvary Baptist Women Work to Aid the Church Society.

The members of the Flower and Fruit Club of the Calvary Baptist church held a sacred concert at Reform Hall last night, and will continue it tonight with a different programme. Last night the entertainers were entirely local and some good singing was heard.

The officers are Mrs. Phillip Johnson, president; Miss Maria Lumpkins, vice-president; Miss Lulu Lewis, secretary; Forne Johnson, treasurer. The committe of arrangements are Mrs. Scott, Mrs. B. Turner, Mrs. S. Thornton, Mrs. M. Rodgers, Mrs. A. Robinson, John Perkins, Rev. Scott Wallace. The entertainment will be concluded tonight.

COLLECTED MONEY AND SKIPPED.

New Market Coal Dealer's Hired Man Trusted Too Much.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, Oct. 6—Abner Coriell, the veteran coal dealer, and one of the oldest residents of the village, is looking for his hired man, Frank Getti, who disappeared Tuesday night with $4.50 of Mr. Coriell's money.

Getti had put a load of coal into Herbert Pierce's cellar and collected the money for it. When he got back to the house Getti told Mr. Coriell that Pierce had not paid, so the proprietor went after it. Upon his return Getti had gone.

Reunion of Veterans.

A reunion of the 30th N. J. Volunteers was held at Newark yesterday. Among those who went from this city were J. Frank Hubbard, Peter V. Weaver, David R. Weaver, Garrett Eick, Samuel Moore and T. J. Carey. The members of Lincoln Post threw open their rooms to the old soldiers, and made them comfortable in every way, with a banquet and entertainment.

George Ball, of the First National Bank building, is attending the Congressional convention at Elizabeth today.

DEMOCRATS HAVE A FIELD TO PICK FROM.

Four Congressional Aspirants In the Third District.

LITTLE FREE SILVER TALK.

LEADERS TRY TO KEEP THE ISSUE CUT OF CONVENTION.

Four Candidates in the Field, One From Middlesex, One From Monmouth and Two From Somerset County—Congressman Howell Will Be Given a Renomination by the Republicans If He Wants It.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, October 6—In the Third Congressional District the Congressional conventions of both parties are still to be held and political prophets are chary of giving any extended or detailed forecasts. The Democratic leaders, however, assert that the Republican nominee for Congress will have a much harder time pulling off a victory than Mr. Howell, the present Republican incumbent, had on either of the two occasions when he ran, in 1894 and again in 1896. Republicans concede that the majority will be reduced, and Democrats claim that if a strong candidate can be secured, the Democratic Congressional candidate will carry all three counties in the district—Somerset, Monmouth and Middlesex.

The Democratic Congressional convention will be held at the Courthouse, Freehold, Wednesday, October 12th. This date was settled upon after a little confusion of interesting origin. The present convention is called by a committee appointed by the last convention. That convention, on adjourning, appointed a committee of three, one from each county. Under the terms of the resolution the committee was "to call the next Congressional convention and to recommend to the convention the name of a suitable candidate for Congress for the indorsement of the convention." No one objected to the calling of the next convention by the committee, but things have changed so materially that it not likely that the committee will make any effort to arrogate to itself the powers of the convention and name the candidate. The committee consisted of John P. Flannagan, Middlesex; A. C. Hartshorne, Monmouth, and Henry Reimer, Somerset.

Without the consent or approbation of his colleagues, the member from Somerset issued a call for the convention to be held at New Brunswick on October 3d. This call was published in several of the papers of Somerset county, and copied by a number of others in the other counties of the district. It brought forth angry protests from the other members of the committee, and they made no secret of their belief that it was an effort on the part of the Somerset county faction to "snap" the convention in the interests of former Congressman Alvah Clark, of Somerville. Mr. Clark made no secret of his Congressional aspirations. It was also his plan to have a voice in the formation of the platform.

The convention was not held at New Brunswick, and the papers that printed the call took it back in their next issues. The call has been finally made for Freehold on October 12th, and this call has received the sanction of all three members of the committee, Mr. Reimer explaining that his error had been due simply to over-zealousness.

There is still considerable uncertainty as to who will get the Democratic nomination. There are a number of booms launched, however, and a few days may suffice to create a strong movement in favor of some particular candidate. For some months prior to October Milliard F. Ross, of New Brunswick, a son of Miles Ross, the "boss" of Middlesex, was considered as the only available candidate. But a week ago he announced positively that he was not a candidate for the nomination.

Another possibility is Edward H. Radell, of New Brunswick. He is the general manager of the Brunswick Traction Company. He claims to have no Congressional aspirations, and it is true that his friends have launched his boom without consulting him, but if he decides to enter the race he will make a high bid for the nomination and a good run after he gets it.

Harry S. Terhune, of Monmouth, is another man who will probably be mentioned in the convention. Mr. Terhune was formerly Senator from Monmouth.

Somerset has two representatives in the list of "possibilites" in the persons of ex-Speaker Bergen and Alvah Clark.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S REPORT.

Large Mass of Documents Prepared for the War Investigating Commission.

Washington, Oct. 6.—The adjutant general of the army has prepared a large mass of documents for submission to the war investigating committee, and is ready to be handed in when called for. It consists of three parts. The first part consists of all correspondence, telegraphic and otherwise, which has passed through the adjutant general's office in connection with the campaign in Santiago.

The second consists of similar correspondence in regard to the Philippines, and the third contains all the correspondence relating to the operations in Porto Rico.

General Corbin makes no comment on the correspondence submitted, and his letter of transmissal is very brief. He says:

"I a newspaper says that I find fault with Admiral Sampson or anybody else in regard to the Santiago campaign or any other campaign, the report is a lie. It does me great injustice. Even if I did accuse anybody in my report, no newspaper would be able to say in advance that I would do so."

THE SITUATION IN CHINA.

Assertion of the Chinese Embassy in London.

London, Oct. 6.—The Chinese embassy here is in receipt of a dispatch from Pekin, dated October 5, saying that the greatest harmony prevails between the emperor and dowager empress.

The dispatch says that the latter, seeing the danger of rushing sweeping reforms, consented to advise the emperor in the general management of affairs and as to the best way of introducing reforms.

Circumstances have shown it to be necessary, the dispatch says, that six councillors who were urging the emperor to undertake inopportune reforms be put to death.

After referring to the punishment of the others, the dispatch says that since his dismissal from the Tsung-li-Yamen Li Hung hang has abstained from participating in public affairs.

Washout Delays Travel.

Amsterdam, N. Y., Oct. 6.—A heavy rain storm raged here for two hours yesterday afternoon, causing much damage. The West Shore Railroad is washed out in two places.

The Central Railroad tracks are washed out at Aikin, three miles west of here.

The washout on the West Shore at this place is 200 feet wide at one point and thirty feet wide at another in the Yankee Hill Cut, two miles west of here.

The washout on the Central at Aikin is ninety feet wide and four and a half feet deep.

Track No. 4 has been repaired so as to allow the passage of trains.

These are the biggest washouts since the great one of 1887 at Hoffman's.

Sixth Cavalry Leaves Wikoff.

Camp Wikoff, Oct. 6.—The Sixth cavalry left yesterday for Huntsville, 680 men, under the command of Major Labo.

General Sumners, who was the colonel of the regiment, twelve officers and the rest of the men of the command are ill at different points.

The Red Cross hospital established at the railroad station by Mrs. Hammond, has been disbanded.

The yacht Red Cross took fifteen sick across the Sound. Two companies of the Second volunteer engineers have been ordered to the Huntsville camp in Alabama.

The horses for the Tenth cavalry will get away to-day, and the men will depart on Friday.

Ellsworth Renominated

Albion, N. Y., Oct. 6.—The Republican senatorial convention of the Forty-fifth district met here yesterday to nominate a successor to Timothy Ellsworth, the father of the press gag bill introduced at the last two sessions of the legislature.

The district includes the three counties of Niagara, Orleans and Genesee.

It took but thirty minutes to renominate Ellsworth. The convention was a cut and dried affair, the nomination being made after three formal and indecisive ballots.

Promotion for Dewey.

Washington, Oct. 6.—The administration will recommend to Congress the revival of the grade of admiral, and the promotion to that rank of Rear Admiral George Dewey, now in command of the Asiatic squadron.

Secretary Long made the announcement yesterday. The president indorses this idea.

Snow Storm in Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 6.—Reports from Crookston, Fosston, Hallock, Aitkin and a dozen Northern Minnesota points indicate that a heavy snow storm is in progress. Threshing has been suspended. There was a light snow fall in this city.

NAVY TO VISIT SPAIN

According to Rumors Prevailing at the Navy Yard.

IT DEPENDS UPON SAGASTA

If His Peace Commission Are Refractory it is Believed That the United States Will Send a Squadron to Europe Including the Oregon, Iowa, the New York and the Brooklyn.

Brooklyn, Oct. 6.—A widely circulated rumor is going the rounds at the navy yard to the effect that the administration is preparing a strong fleet of warships for the purpose of making a naval demonstration if necessary on the coast of Spain.

The fact that the battleships Iowa and Oregon were originally ordered to sail from here for Manila some weeks ago, and even now, while they are all in readiness for sea, are being delayed, is thought to give substance to the above rumor, and in naval circles the fact is generally accepteid as true.

The fleet, according to the naval men, will consist of the two first class battleships named, and the cruisers New York and Brooklyn.

All four ships are now at this station and in the course of a short time all of them will have beenoverhauled and put in the finest possible condition for active service.

In addition to these the battleships Indiana and Massachusetts are here and are rapidly being put in shape. Of cruisers there is also a variety to pick and choose from and if the administration is resolved on making the demonstration on the Spanish coast there is plenty of material at hand and immediately available.

The fact that the administration is far from being pleased at the progress made by the peace commission now negotiating at Paris is well known, as also is the fact that this feeling has been aggravated by Sagasta's instructions to his commissioners to positively insist on the retention of Spain's sovereignty over the entire Philippine group.

According to the cable dispatches from abroad these instructions have been couched in positive terms, and if carried out by the Spanish peace commission, or not modified, it is feared that the present negotiations for peace will be terminated and that a state of war may exist again between the United States and Spain as the result.

It is to prevent this contingency that the aforesaid fleet and demonstration is said at the navy yard to be prepared.

Desolate Jamaica.

Kingston, Jamaica, Oct. 6.—The industrial outlook here grows gloomier daily.

Yesterday a leading newspaper announced that many well to do colonists, besides poorer ones, are deserting the island.

This is owing to the government's arbitrary action in enforcing the tobacco and excise law passed last year, in spite of popular protests and a memorial.

Most of the tobacco cultivators have given up that business, including all the Cuban exiles, who are returning to Cuba.

Many factories are closed and the government has now hastily appointed a commission to meet to-day to inquire into the matter.

Boston Goes to Tien Tsin.

Washington, Oct. 6.—A dispatch from Admiral Dewey, dated Manila, October 5, informs the navy department that the cruiser Boston and the gunboat Petrel left Manila for Tien-Tsin to furnish protection to the American interests.

The navy department ordered the admiral to send the Baltimore and the Petrel, but discretion is allowed to naval officers in such matters and the Boston was substituted.

Admiral Dewey did not explain why he sent the Boston instead of the Baltimore.

Lynching at Annapolis.

Annapolis, Oct. 6.—Wright Smith, colored, who a month ago attacked Mrs. Morrison, wife of Captain James Morrison of the Third district, living near Jones Station, was taken from the jail in this city shortly after two o'clock yesterday morning and shot by a mob.

The lynching party went to the jail, pointed guns at Night Watchman Duvall and taking the prisoner to Sanders' lot, near the city cemetery, they riddled the body with bullets.

Count A. Von Goetzen Reports

Berlin, Oct. 6.—Count A. Von Goetzen, a cavalry officer on the general staff and formerly military attache to the German embassy at Washington, who was commissioned by Emperor William to accompany the United States army during the Hispano-American war, made his report to the emperor yesterday.

Afterwards the count dined at the imperial palace.

Discovery About Our Bullets.

Birmingham, Oct. 6.—The London correspondent of the Post says he is informed upon high Spanish authority that it has been fully proved by the Spanish government naval and military commission that the bullets and shells used by the United States in the war were filled with horsehair, wool and other improper materials.

Will Fight in Syracuse.

Buffalo, Oct. 6.—C. M. Wilson, secretary of the Hawthorne Club, in an interview said:

"You can say for me, as secretary of the Hawthorne Club, that the Corbett-McCoy match will take place in Syracuse."

Spanish Warships for Sale.

Madrid, Oct. 6.—The government has authorized aptain Aunon, minister of marine, to sell the Spanish war vessels in Cuban waters to the Dominican or other republics desiring to purchase such craft.

SLOW WORK AT HAVANA

Spanish Commissioners Haggle Over Evacuation.

AMERICA DEMANDS HASTE

Our Representatives Will Not Yield to Further Postponement. Deadlock Also Over Form and Details of the Evacuation. Embarkation of Manzanillo Troops Delayed.

Havana, Oct. 6.—The American and Spanish evacuation commissioners met in joint session in the hall of the colonial parliament yesterday morning. There was a large crowd outside the building, but only the commissioners and their secretaries and stenographers were allowed to enter.

The first point discussed was the time for the evacuation. The Americans persisted in their demand that the Spanish troops be all out of the island about November 30.

The Spaniards insisted that a longer time be allowed to them.

Speeches were made on both sides, but no agreement was reached and the matter was left for further discussion.

Another point discussed was the form of evacuation, whether it was to take place gradually and from the east to the west of the island, or whether the island should be evacuated as a whole. No agreement was reached, and this matter was also left for further discussion.

The third point, about the property the Spanish army was entitled to carry bac kto Spain, also resulted in a deadlock.

The Spanish commissioners notified the Americans in the name of Captain General Blanco that on account of bad weather the steamship Porto Rico would not arrive at Manzanillo in time for the embarkation of the Spanish troops there on October 7, as was agreed, but they added that the Spanish were ready to encamp outside the city until the transport arrived and surrender the town immediately to the Americans.

The American commissioners replied that there would be no trouble about that, as for the present the American troops would encamp outside the city for sanitary reasons.

Speeches were made by General Parrado and Marquis Montoro on the Spanish side, and Generals Butler and Ilous on the American side.

Many Cuban officers and deputies left yesterday for Santa Cruz del Sur to take part in the congress to be held on October 10 to elect a Cuban government.

U. S. TROOPS AND INDIANS FIGHT.

Unconfirmed Report of the Massacre of the Soldiers.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 6.—An unconfirmed rumor has reached here that about one hundred regular soldiers under General Bacon have been massacred by the Indians at Leech Lake. Fierce fighting has been going on 20 miles from Walker, Minn.

An operator at Brainerd says the report of a massacre is true.

Walker, Minn., Oct. 6.—A terrific fight occurred at 11 a. m., yesterday, thirty miles from Walker, at Bog-ah-me-geshirks Point, close to Bear island, between Indians and a detachment of the Third Infantrymen, under General Bacon.

Intercollegiate Tennis.

New Haven, Oct. 6.—Malcolm Whitmar, the lawn tennis champion of America, was beaten here yesterday in the intercollegiate championship tournament at the Lawn Club courts.

Fortunately for Harvard his conqueror was Davis, another member of his own team.

Davis will probably meet Ware, the third member of tthe Harvard representatives, in the finals.

Davis beat Whitman 2-6, 9-7, 6-0. Ware beat Little of Princeton, 6-1, 6-0.

$60,000 Bank Robbery.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 6.—The branch of the Molson bank, in this city, was robbed of a large sum of money, said to be over $60,000, during Tuesday evening.

Officials and police refuse to talk of the affair, but it is generally supposed that entrance to the vault was effected by some one who had knowledge of the combination. The money taken was in bank bills and coin.

Provisions on the Yukon.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 6.—An estimate of the amount of provisions on the Yukon river indicates that there will be no need of a government relief expedition this winter. The two big transportation companies have at least twenty thousand tons at various points on the river.

Trading posts have recently been established on the Koyukok river.

Secured Judgment for $400.

Brooklyn, Oct. 6.—Judgment for $400 was given by a jury in the supreme court of Brooklyn yesterday to John Jenkins of 2,307 Pacific street, against the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company for damages he sustained by being ejected from one of the Fulton street cars on December 14, 1895.

Fourteen Houses Burned.

Crown Point, Ind., Oct. 6.—Fourteen houses, comprising the greater portion of the business district of Lowell, 11 miles south of this city, were entirely destroyed by fire yesterday.

The loss will reach $40,000, with limited insurance.

Big Fire in Tennessee.

Clarksville, Oct. 6.—Fire in the Grange tobacco warehouse, occupied by Gill and Turnley, burned the building and about 4,500 hogsheads of tobacco. The total loss is estimated at $500,000; insurance about $300,000.

A Life Senatorship for Admiral Cervera

Madrid, Oct. 6.—It is announced that Admiral Cervera will be appointed a life senator.

I must say that I was very tired tramping from store to store without coming to a conclusion where to buy. We saw some things we liked in one store and other things we liked in other stores, but there didn't seem to be any one store in which we could buy to our entire satisfaction until we reached Hahne & Co.'s.

I never enjoyed such a half day in my life. Everything was so new and bright that I was afraid we would be hampered in making a choice. It's apt to be that way, you know, when so many good things are spread before you, but when we settled down to work, we found buying a real pleasure.

The choice of carpets puzzled us not a little. There were so many new and pretty patterns to choose from that we, Harry, Emma and I, were forced to take a vote on the carpet for each room. Sometimes I was on Harry's side and sometimes on Emma's.

For Emma's room we selected an all-wool filling cotton chain ingrain at forty-eight cents a yard, and for the spare room an all-wool ingrain, the best made, at sixty cents. For the parlor we decided upon a very pretty velvet carpet at eighty-five cents a yard, and for the dining-room a Smyrna rug at $18.95. For the hall and stairs we chose Brussels at sixty-five cents a yard.

I fairly went wild over Hahne & Co.'s upholstery department. I never had seen such a beautiful collection of curtains, and I don't believe another State in the world can match it. For the bedrooms we bought bright ruffled bobinet curtains at $2.75 a pair. We put them up in that fascinating cross style, using two rods, and drawing them back into silk loops that cost 10 cents a pair.

The curtains for the dining room were the Renaissance effect at $2.25 a pair. In the parlor we put up Irish Point Lace Curtains with an exceptionally deep heavy border in cushion work. They cost us $5.98 pair. We draped them with silk lambrequins at top white corrugated pole and corrugated trimmings to match.

The furniture department next engaged our attention. When we stepped from the elevator into this beautiful section of Hahne & Co.'s store we were—well, I put it mildly by saying we were amazed. The arrangement of furniture is, as Hahne & Co. truthfully say, "The handsomes in the world."

For Harry's and Emma's room we picked out a bird's eye maple suit for $35. It is a gem. For the spare room we went a little higher and selected a lovely brass bed at $35, and made an exquisite contrast by adding a curly birch bureau at $22, and a toilet table at $20, a total of $77.

For the parlor we purchased a silk velour and inlaid mahogany frame suit of five pieces for which we paid only $50. For the dining room we bought an eight-foot oak extension table for $15, a sideboard for $25, a china closet for $15 and six leather seat chairs for $24, costing in all $79. A hall rack cost us $12, and $15 was the price we paid for a hall settee.

Last week Harry and Emma moved into their new home, and in honor of the event they gave a house warming. The Jiltons, the Graysons, the Petervilles and other fashionable people were there, and all declared that it was the prettiest, coziest little nest for a bride they had seen in many a long day.

WHEELER AGAIN ON THE STAND.

The General Resumes His Testimony. Condition at Camp Wikoff

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—General wheeler resumed his testimony before the war investigating commission yesterday.

The examination on the line of the New York World charges was resumed. He said that if there were any "camp horrors" on the 27th of August, as charged, the commander of the camp was responsible, for he had full power to furnish relief. There probably were individual cases of suffering, but as a rule he knew the soldiers were well cared for. There was certainly no lack of food.

The surgeons were authorized to expend sixty cents a day on each individual soldier. In addition to this supply there were his own purchases and the contributions of the good women by whom the tents were filled with edibles.

Furthermore, many individuals forwarded sums of money to him. As many as thirty checks were sent to him, the largest being for $5,000. He had in each case returned the checks, because no obstacles in securing such supplies as he had made requests for existed. In addition to using the money allowed to buy provisions, he had used it for other purposes to add to the comfort of the men, buying clothing, blankets, tents, bed sheets, putting up the laundry, etc. He thought there were tents enough to make 50,000 men comfortable, while there were never more than twenty thousand men at one time.

General Wheeler said in reply to a question from General Wilson that he had heard of but one instance in which a surgeon had become intoxicated. The man was relieved from duty, but there was no court martial, as it was impossible to procure testimony bearing on the case.

General Dodge asked witness for a general expression of his opinion as to the conduct of the various bureaus of the war department.

Replying, he praised the work of all the supply departments, saying they were actuated by zeal and characterized by intelligence.

He had found the medical department, from General Sternberg down, to be efficient and anxious to promote the best interests of his department. The same was also true of the ordnance, commissary and other departments. General Wheeler spoke of the mortality among the Spanish soldiers, saying it was quite equal to that among the American troops.

This completed General Wheeler's testimony, and the commission then adjourned for luncheon.

The next witness will be General H. V. Boynton.

Firing the Ten Inch Gun.

Willets Point, L. I., Oct. 6.—The boys of Battery K, Seventh United States regular artillery, in camp here under command of Captain Hamilton, handled the big disappearing rifles with much accuracy yesterday.

A triangular target was anchored in the Sound 8,500 yards from Fort Totten. Four shots were fired from the ten-inch disappearing rifle.

The first two shots were loaded with 138 pounds of smokeless powder and a solid projectile, weighing 575 pounds. The last two were loaded with 206 pounds of brown powder and a 575-pound projectile. The fourth and last shot was the best of the day. It passed twenty-two yards over the target and five yards to the right of it.

The heavy explosions shook the earth for three miles, broke all the windows in the post, made horses rear and tremble and startled the nervous.

It is thought that many such thundering reports would shake the frame buildings to the ground.

The loading of the disappearing rifles is done by trucks, which are flush with the breech of the rifle. The ammunition is rolled on these from the magazine; the projectile is slid off and home with dispatch; the powder bags follow; the breech is closed; the lever is moved; the gun rises up and over the parapet; the order to fire is given; the electric button is pressed and then comes the thunderous report. The gun working by mechanism, under the power of the recoil returns to its former position, ready to be reloaded.

Rally for Roosevelt

New York, Oct. 6.—Many thousand Republicans gathered at arnegie hall last evening to ratify the work of the Saratoga convention.

Several overflow meetings were held, the seating capacity of Carnegie hall being totally inadequate to accommodate those who wished to attend the meeting.

President Quigg called the meeting to order at eight o'clock and named General Stewart L. Woodford for presiding officer. The general's brief address was heartily applauded.

Addresses were also made by Hon. Seth Low, Joseph H. Choate, Lieutenant Governor Woodruff and Colonel Roosevelt. Much enthusiasm prevailed.

Found Bones of Mastodons.

Vancouver, Oct. 6.—Alexander Stafford of Lethbridge, Alberta, has reached Vancouver from the Klondike, and reports finding on his claim tusks and bones of mammoths and mastodons.

One pair of tusks was nearly seven feet long and seven inches in diameter. The socket of a hip bone was eight inches across the top.

Blind People in Convention

St. Louis, Oct. 6.—The American Blind People's Higher Education and General Improvement association, with 150 men and women delegates present, is holding a convention here. They will advocate a uniform style of print for the blind and ask Congress to encourage the establishment of a national school for the blind.

Spanish Postmasters Take Records.

Washington, Oct. 6.—hairman Stuart of the postal committee sent to Porto Rico, reports that the Spanish postmasters have decamped at many places, taking all supplies and records.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS

Our Commission's Stand on the Philippine Question.

GENERAL MERRITT'S VIEWS

Canvass of the Situation With Gen. Merritt Practically Concluded. Rear Admiral Dewey's Views Submitted With His Own. Spanish Views Regarding Our Government's Intentions.

Paris, Oct. 6.—The United States peace commission held its usual session yesterday from ten a. m. to one p. m. The commissioners continued their conference with Major General Merritt, and practically concluded an extended canvass of the Philippine situation.

The members of the commission refused to disclose the views of General Merritt or Rear Admiral Dewey in regard to the policy to be pursued towards the people of the Philippines.

Nothing could be learned as to whether the general or rear admiral had recommended the retention or the evacuation of the Philippine islands by the American forces. It was learned, however, that Rear Admiral Dewey handed to General Merritt a communication setting forth his judgment on the subject, and that the general submitted this to the commission, with reports from the American military officers at Manila touching on the condition prevailing in the islands.

General Merritt concluded with a declaration of his judgment in the catter, and it may be stated that he arrived in Paris hoping that the United States commission would press for the possession of the Philippine archipelago.

The disposition of the troops in the Philippine islands before Gen. Merritt's departure was so ordered as to warrant the view that a large or complete holding of the Philippine islands by the United States was contemplated.

Two Spanish senate stenographers will arrive here from Madrid on Thursday, their presence having been requested by Senor Montero Rios, who, in addition to being president of the Spanish peace commission, is also president of the Spanish senate.

Madrid, Oct. 6.—A newspaper having declared that Major General Merritt has asserted that the Philippine islands must be annexed to the United States, Premier Sagasta, in an interview, has replied, saying he does not believe the general made the statement attributed to him, which, the premier says, is not in conformity with the peace protocol.

The Imparcial declares that the naval demonstration, which is beginning in hinese waters, is not only a menace to France and Russia, but implies an Anglo-American understanding to prevent the powers from opposing American designs in the Philippine islands. This fact, the paper says, will influence the Paris deliberations.

Long Cipher Despatch

Washington, Oct. 6.—A long dispatch in cipher was received at the war department yesterday. It is said to have come from Major General Otis, in command of the United States land forces at Manila, but the war department officers decline to give any information about it. The message covered eleven pages.

The translation of the dispatch was finished shortly after ten o'clock, and then Secretary Alger took it to the White House.

The secretary was accompanied by Adjutant General Corbin. They spent more than two hours in conference with the president.

Col. Roosevelt's Report.

Washington, Oct. 6.—It is quite certain that the report of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt in regard to military operations in Santiago will never be made public by the war department.

Adjutant General Corbin was indignant over a published hint that the Roosevelt report had been purposely lost in the war department, presumably in his office.

"You can say," said General orbin, tapping one of the drawers in his desk, "that Roosevelt's report is in that drawer, under a strong lock; that it has not been lost and won't be lost. You can say, also, that it will never be published."

Will Help Spain Borrow.

London, Oct. 6.—The correspondent of the Financial News in Madrid learns that a banking company is to be formed for the purpose of facilitating the commercial interests of Spain in England.

The name of the new concern is to be the Anglo-Spanish Banking Company, Manchester, which city is chiefly supposed to furnish the capital—one million pounds in Spanish money—has already subscribed ten per cent. of the total amount.

The Bridgeport Case.

Bridgeport, onn., Oct. 6.—Coroner harles A. Doten has completed his inquest into the death of Emma Gill of Southington, whose dismembered body was found in the Yellow Mill pond a few weeks ago, and rendered his finding.

He finds that she came to her death by felonious homicide at the hands of Nancy A. Guilford, assisted and abetted by Alfred H. Oxley and Rose Drayton.

Threatened to Shoot Foragers.

San Francisco, Oct. 6.—Soldiers who returned from Honolulu on the steamer Senator tell of drastic measures to prevent foraging.

General King policed Honolulu with one hundred mounted men and ordered that any soldier caught foraging would be ordered court martialed and shot There have been no more offenders.

A Steel Company Incorporated.

Trenton, Oct. 6.—The American Iron and Steel Company filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state yesterday.

The company has an authorized capital of one million dollars, and is empowered to do all kinds of mining and manufacturing.

ALGER SUBMITS HIS REPLY.

Answers the Commission's Six Questions About Conduct of the War.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Secretary Alger yesterday handed to the president for transmission to the war department commission of inquiry his answers to the six questions asked him by the commission.

The answers are very briefly given and cover only three typewritten pages, but there are a number of reports appended to the communication to which the secretary refers the commission for information concerning its queries.

As to the reasons for the delay in starting the Santiago expedition from Tampa, the secretary says that thte delay was due to the failure of the navy to provide convoys for the transports.

He appends telegrams to and from the navy department and naval officers to show that the report of the sighting of a Spanish fleet was the cause of the six days' delay.

The questions as to the reasons for the selection of the camps at Tampa and other places are answered by referring the commission to reports from the boards of officers sent to inspect the camp sites. These reports are appended.

In answer to the question as to the time at which the administration decided to begin operations in Cuba, Secretary Alger says that a campaign against Havana was first decided on, but that it was afterwards determined to take Santiago first.

He says that the Santiago campaign was not considered until Admiral Sampson asked for troops to capture Santiago so that Cervera's fleet could be driven out of the harbor or destroyed inside.

Telegrams from Admiral Sampson to that effect are also submitted to the board.

100 LIVES LOST IN THE STORM.

Belived That That Number Was Lost in the Coast Hurrianes.

Savannah, Ga., Oct. 6.—News from the storm stricken districts along the coast is coming in gradually, and it is probable that a hundred lives have been lost.

News by way of a boat which arrived yesterday is that fifty people were drowned at Fernandina.

From Campbell island, inhabited by about forty colored people, it is reported that all but three were drowned. At Brunswick four people lost their lives and at Jessup, one hundred miles from the coast, one man was killed in a building which was blown down by the storm.

At Sterling Station Charles A. Bright, a merchant, reports the disasters from the flood great to lives and property in the rice field districts of Glynn and McIntosh.

There are a number of small islands at various points around Brunswick, Fernandina and Darien, in which small groups of families live.

It will be some days before accurate reports are heard from these points. At Darien the water is reported high and the town badly damaged.

There are many rumors of loss of life, but all of the reports that have been received thus far are believed to be exaggerated.

The Obdam Delayed

New York, Oct. 6.—Major D. M. Appel, surgeon of the United States army, who has charge of the care and disposition of the sick men of the army arriving here, has learned that the transport Obdam, on her way here with sick from the West Indies, had to put back into Santiago with her coal on fire.

The Obdam is not now expected until the 12th inst. Major Appel had been making arrangements to take care of the sick that were expected to arrive on the transport, which was due here to-day.

The Red ross yacht is expected here to-day with a small number of sick and convalescent soldiers from Montauk Point. A hospital car is expected to arrive this afternoon at Long Island City.

Religion is the Origin of Disturbances.

San Francisco, Oct. 6.—In a signed interview regarding the recent disturbances near Pekin, Ho Yow, the Chinese consul here, says:

"I believe that the recent trouble in China is due to religion; to efforts of the missionaries to carry on their work and the antagonistic relations existing between the Chinese, who still cling to their faith of centuries past, and those who have adopted the ideas of the Christian religion. I do not think it will result seriously owing to the fact that they have a lack of co-operation."

Fitzsimmons's Father Dead.

New York, Oct. 6.—James Fitzsimmons, father of Robert Fitzsimmons, the champion heavyweight boxer of the world, died on August 29, at Timaru, New Zealand, at the age of ninety years.

Robert Fitzsimmons received the first information of his father's death through a brief cable dispatch a few days ago.

Secretary Sherman Fatally Injured

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Secretary Augustus Sherman of the state prison commission, whose skull was fractured as a result of an accident last night in New Baltimore, is not expected to live. Mr. Sherman lives in New Baltimore.

German Marines Going to Pekin.

Berlin, Oct. 6.—The German warship Kaiserin Augusta has left Kiao-Chau for Taku, at the entrance of the Pei-Ho river, with thirty marines, who will be sent to Pekin to act as a guard for the German legation there.

Minister Straus at Constantinople.

A Matter of Assessment.

Over in Bergen county the assessors have been on the tip-toe of uncertainty for several months as to what the Grand Jury was going to do to those who did not place actual values on their assessments. The Grand Jury returned Tuesday and brought in four presentments, the text of which was as follows:

"That the various properties have been assessed for the taxes at less than the actual value, and not by uniform rules as provided by the Constitution, which improper assessments have worked manifest injustice and hardship to taxpayers of other boroughs and townships in the county of Bergen, who have been assessed at actual value, and to persons where property has been assessed at actual value, which improper assessment is due to the fact that the assessor did not properly view the properties possessed as required by law."

This action of the Grand Jury created a sensation among the taxpayers, while those assessors who escaped this censure are patting each other on the back.

From time almost immemorial it has been the custom of assessors to estimate values for taxable purposes at a point far below the actual worth, but very recently a number of Supreme Court Judges, among whom Judge Dixon seems to have taken the lead, have taken it upon themselves to call the attention of the grand juries to the fact shat such action was a violation of the oath of office on the part of the assessors. It will be remembered that Judge Dixon advised a previous Bergen county grand jury to that effect, and soon after there was a general skurrying of assessors throughout the State to get within the strict lines of the law. Evidently there are four Bergen county assessors who failed to do so, but now wish that they had.

At the best, an assessor's job is a thankless one on the part of the public they serve.

Chinese Scholarship.

All of us have heard much about the lofty esteem bestowed on scholarship in China and that it is the passport to the highest honors of the empire. It is worth while to examine into just what the Celestials mean by scholarship. In one sense no home staying Chinaman is ever educated. The most erudite man is absolutely ignorant of the current problems of the world, both in practice and theory, unless knowledge is knocked into his skull by contact with foreigners. Yet the race is unique on one side in its scholarly spirit—that is, in its reverence for Chinese classical literature; in its devotion to a style steeped in classical allusion, and in the ardor with which candidates attempt the examination, year after year, even to old age, in the hope of acquiring an honorary degree. It was the passionate revulsion of feeling which accompanied repeated failure and finally curdled into hate of the whole system which inspired Hung Tsu Suen, the Hakka schoolmaster, to teach the new religious and political cult on which the terrible Taiping rebellion was founded.

The Chinese system of teaching is based entirely on memory and the abnormal reverence for the dead sages. All that needs to be said has been said, according to this theory of education. The boy learns by rote and does not understand what he recites in a mechanical singsong. As he grows older and comes before the examination boards for promotion memory of the sayings of the great dead authors and periphrastic restatement of them in a great variety of forms, from which original comment is excluded by the lack of real intellectual knowledge and acumen, still furnish the test of his ability, which opens the door to political promotion.

It can be readily seen then that what is called knowledge is a mountain mass of rubbish in resonant phrases. This furnishes the political equipment of the mandarin official. The scientific spirit, the wish to investigate, the sense of the unknown, which have been at the bottom of all western progress, are absolutely unknown to Chinese education. This petrifaction of intellect is the root of Chinese life, society, knowledge and politics. With a dead root a dead people has resulted. The only gleam of light that now shines on China is that preparatory schools on the western principle have been inaugurated and that a university of the same model has been established in Peking. But the effect on a dense and hardened mass for many years to come will be like the picking at a huge bowlder with a geologist's hammer.

COLONEL THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

In or out of office, in time of peace or in time of war, whether he lives in New York, Oyster Bay or Washington, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is always interesting. And whatever may be his political fortunes, the people will never cease to be proud of the gallant commander of the Rough Riders.

The State Constitution merely provides that "in case of the death, resignation or removal from office of the Governor, the powers, duties and emoluments of the office shall devolve upon the president of the Senate, and in case of his death, resignation or removal, then upon the speaker of the house of Assembly," and no further provision is made.—Trenton Times.

The best that we can hope for is that "Davy" Watkins will like his job in the chief executive's chair well enough to stay there till January. If David goes back on the good old Ship of State this continuous show business on the Gubernatorial stage will smack of a tragedy—for the Republicans.

Wm. J. Logan, chairman of the Democratic county executive committee, has called the county convention for the nomination of a Sheriff, an Assemblyman and three coroners, to be held in Somerville Thursday, Oct. 20th. The primaries will be held in all the towns except North Plainfield Saturday afternoon of next week. In North Plainfield it will be the night previous.

From the unanimity with which the Republican press accord Congressman Pitney the first call upon the Governorship nomination three years hence, it is very evident that Mr. Voorhees need build no air castles about a second term.—Plainfield Press.

The Constitution of New Jersey prohibits the re-election of a Governor as his own successor.—New York Tribune.

Thank you, very kindly.

The candidate's smile now may mean a cold shoulder after the votes are cast. Never depend upon the ante-election graciousness of a politician for attention after he has been either defeated or elected.

Governor Voorhees has appointed Dr. Henry M. Mitchell, of Asbury Park, as a member of the State Board of Health to succeed Dr. Cornelius Shepherd, of Trenton, whose term has expired.

The Bergen County Grand Jury had to throw out 300 cases that were brought before it by Justices of the Peace. A sad commentary on the word justice.

Plainfield papers tell of a big squash grown near that city. There are lots of big squashes in Plainfield, and they don't all grow on vines.—New Brunswick Times.

Whew, what sarcasm.

Congressman Fowler's renomination will be accomplished by a love feast, so to speak.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Reassuring evidence of Republican harmony are springing up in Somerset county, where recently Sanford Snyder, of Franklin township, has retired from the race for Sheriff in the interest of C. V. N. Suydam, former tax collector of Franklin. Mr. Suydam is a progressing farmer. While collector he won the esteem of property owners by a conscientious performance of his duty, coupled with an admirable exhibition of sympathy for the poor who could not meet their tax obligations promptly. Where he could have legally charged interest on such arrearages and pocketed the money, he refused to do so, and thus relieved many of burdens which otherwise they would had to bear. The bringing out of Mr. Suydam is due to the superior generalship of Lewis A. Thompson, Clerk of the Court of Chancery, to whose leadership in Somerset is due to the turning over of the county from Democratic to Republican supremacy and the betterment of all the local forms of government. Somerset will make a good showing, too, when the returns for Governor are counted.—New York Press.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The house that was burned last Tuesday evening on the Rahway road, and which was the property of Henry Clay Randolph, was built in 1814 by John Randolph, of Chestnut Hill, this State, and was occupied by a man employed by Mr. Randolph. Mr. Randolph was the father of Mrs. Eden L. Boice, of West Third street, corner of Central avenue. Since the house was built it has changed hands a number of times.

A "want ad" in a New York morning newspaper called for a man to act as public executioner for a South American State, salary $3,000 per year. Applicants were asked to enclose photograph and state qualifications. When the "ad" was shown to James H. Van-Hise, of Newark, who has hanged more murderers than any other man in America, and who endeavored two years ago to have a law enacted making him State executioner for New Jersey, he said the inducement was not sufficient to take him so far away from home. "There are two or three cases in Jersey City and another in Elizabeth," he added, "which will eventually come my way. Of course, there may be stays, but the end will be the same. This South American place may be a good job for some man, but it is too far away, and I guess I don't want it."

Stories of the passing of the Indian from New Jersey are recalled by the presentation of a bow to Hamilton Lodge of Odd Fellows by William H. Mount, postmaster at Yardville. The bow was found behind the plastering in the old Beck farmhouse, which has existed a little less than a century and a half. The bow is of hickory and in good condition. There were three arrows with it, but they fell into dust when handled. At the time that the Peck house was erected there were still quite a number of Indians scattered over the State. On March 24th, 1746, Missionary David Brainerd counted 130 of them who attended services conducted by him at Croswicks. He gathered them afterward at Plainboro and they claimed pieces of land thereabouts. Their title being disputed, commissioners were appointed to treat with them. The State, under the provincial government, bought a tract of land in Burlington county for the aborigines. They were not satisfied with this and finally emigrated to the Lake region. Even a few years after the Revolution, however, there were several Indians living in the limits of New Jersey.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Oct. 6—George MacCauley and Joe Schmidt, stationed at Fort Slocum, are home on a forty-eight-hour furlough.

A birthday party was given Henry Schawlback by his many friends at the home of his mother, on Bartle avenue, Tuesday evening. Mr. Frazee, of Plainfield, furnished the music and the evening was spent in dancing and singing, and various games were played. It lasted until two o'clock, and all were sorry when the time came to go home. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ruby, of Westfield; Mr. and Mrs. Pangborn, Mr. and Mrs. Peck, John Radin, Miss Kittie Buckley, Samuel Radin, Charles Schellen and Philip Radin, of this place.

The public school will soon be the proud possessor of a new upright piano. The money has been raised by subscription. Miss Riger, one of the corps of teachers, has worked hard for a new piano and her efforts are soon to be crowned with success.

Scotch Plains is still looking toward Plainfield for that promised trolley, and notwithstanding the action of the Plainfield Council on Monday evening we still hope.

"Under the Red Robe" comes to the Star Theatre in Elizabeth tonight after its phenomenal run of two years at the Empire Theatre, New York city. In the present fashion of romantic drama we have had no new work of such excellence as is declared by "Under the Red Robe." It has an absorbing story, quick human interest, a certain quaint humor, frequent situations of thrilling interest, plentiful action, a brave hero, a trusting hereoine, an honest love between them, well written dialogue, bold characterization, picturesque costumes, handsome scenery and not a dull moment from the rise to the fall of the curtain.

The Atkinson Comedy Company will present the only authorized version of "Peck's Bad Boy," at Music Hall next Monday night. The sketches were written by the Hon. George W. Peck, Ex-Gov. of Wisconsin, and dramatized by Chas. F. Pidgin. It has been re-written for this season and is replete with new scenery, new costumes. The company this year has been engaged with great care and each artist is a star in their particular line. New songs, graceful dancers, funny comedians, etc., combine to make it one of the most enjoyable attractions on the road.

Mrs. Daniel Polhemus, of Somerville, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. P. B. Hodge, of Plainfield avenue, returned home yesterday.

Mrs. John Ward Stimson and her daughter, Miss Eleanor Stimson, sailed for Europe yesterday on the Friesland in company with Mrs. Ames and Mrs. Brooks.

Edward Vail, a former resident of Plainfield, son of the late Samuel Vail, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Cottrell, of East Second street, after an absense of over ten years.

Stephen Rushmore, of Park avenue, who started on his wheel for Baltimore Wednesday, reached his destination Friday. He met with an accident Thursday which delayed him a little. He has now resumed his studies in the medical department of the John Hopkins University there.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

Dame Fashion continues her onward march, and although the change from last season's styles came on so gradually as to be hardly noticeable, they have now obtained a strong foothold and the close fitting skirt and skin tight sleeves are in marked contrast to the modes of former years, while rumors from over the sea declare that the popular blouse bodice which has so long held a high and favored place in the feminine wardrobe, has been superseded by long basque and jacket effects which tend to show every outline and curve of the figure and give the long-waisted effect so becoming to many figures. But in spite of this decree it is safe to say that many models of the round, blouse waist in guises innumerable and attractive will appear on many of the toilettes, especially those designed for evening wear.

While all the latest skirts fit closely to the figure at the top, the lower portion must have the proper flare, and the best means by which to obtain this effect is the circular flounce, which promises to continue in popular favor in every shape and form throughout the fall and winter. Other skirts are made perfectly straight and flaring about the feet. Soft finished taffetas are employed exclusively when a silk lining is desired, as clinging effects are now all the rage, the rustle of a stiff, silk petticoat being a thing of the past. Elaborate trimmings play an important part on fall and early winter costumes, even the strictly tailor made being rarely seen without some form of ornamentation.

Over-skirts are now seen on many of the newest models, and when made up in soft materials with a combination of two contrasting colors, forms a pretty dress. This style, however, is more suited to the tall, slender maiden than to her short, plump sister and should therefore be carefully avoided by the latter.

At this season visiting and afternoon receptions are the general order of the day, and for these occasions many handsome gowns have been turned out by the fashionable couturieres for their swell patrons, many of the recent importations being beautiful creations of the dressmaker's art.

A lovely gown of silver gray silk and embroidered velvet is made with a tight fitting corsage cut double-breasted in front and princesse in back. Embroidered velvet is employed for this garment, while the yoke, collar and upper part of sleeves are of embossed satin. Jeweled buttons adorn the front.

The corsage is worn over a silk skirt, cut with a flounce and lined throughout with soft finished taffeta, and is trimmed with a wide band of rich embroidery. A charming little hat of chenille and black straw, adorned with featners and long drooping plumes gives the finishing touch to the elegant costume.

Another handsome gown, built of heliotrope silk, is elaborately trimmed with velvet and lace. The circular skirt mounted over a foundation skirt of the same material, has a band of cream insertion about the foot, outlined with two narrow ruffles trimmed with velvet ribbon. The bodice made perfectly tight-fitting, fastens in the back, and in front is trimmed with lace and ribbon to simulate a bolero, while five bands of narrow ribbon encircle the waist. Folds of black velvet drape the top of the corsage beneath the pointed collar of rich guipure lace, which latter textile also forms the top of the close fitting sleeves down to the elbow, the lower portion being of velvet, finished with a ruffle of lace. A dainty capote of black velvet, made very full and adorned with rosettes of heliotrope colored silk and a curling black rosette, accompanies this fetching toilette.

Very effective are the frocks of black or white lace net mounted over bright colored taffeta linings and trimmed with lace. A smart gown of white lace net, over an underskirt of turquoise blue taffeta is elaborately trimmed with insertions of fine lace. The waist is made with a shirred vest, outlined with the insertion and is worn over a guimpe of plain blue silk, while the tight fitting sleeves are of the net adorned with bands of insertion. Turquoise blue taffeta forms the stock collar and girdle belt.

Fawn colored broadcloth is the material employed for a stylish autumn frock designed recently. The skirt cut with the popular circular flounce is trimmed about five inches from the bottom with a wide band of guipure insertion. With this is donned a short Eton jacket, with large embroidered velvet revers, which is worn over a dainty vest of chiffon and lace. The sleeves are slightly fulled at the top.

The Children's Room.

In the pleasant library and living room of a dear old home is a nook devoted to the children. These are now of the second generation, who come to grandma's house as to a Mecca of delights that never pall. A low bookcase slipped in a corner next to the big old-fashioned one holds the gayest and dearest of children's books, including those classics "Alice in Wonderland" and "Jungle Tales." A child's chair is always in front of the collection in expectant welcome. The lower part of the big mahogany case that comes next has ample cupboards to hold fascinating toys and games to tempt when books pall. A folded sheet is also in the cupboard, and all the little cousins who troop in know just how to play at grandma's. The sheet is spread out, and all litter of games kept upon it, the toys returned to their place, the sheet rid of bits, folded, and put away when play is over.

About 15,000 artificial limbs are turned out in England every year.

BRIDAL AND BRIDESMAIDS' GOWNS.

The Attendants Dressed In Pairs, Each Couple in a Different Color.

(By special arrangement with the N. Y. Sun.)

Materials for bridal toilets, bridesmaids' gowns, and wedding reception costumes were never before so rich and varied as they are to-day. Ivory satin duchesse is still the favorite material for bridal gowns, though a rich, heavy, white gros grain silk, such as our grandmothers took their marriage vows in, is bidding for favor. White satin is exceedingly unbecoming to a plain woman and not at all suited to a very young bride unless draped with lace chiffon or tulle. Gros de Londres is an old weave returned under a new name and is being utilized to some extent, and so are heavy corded silks in rep and bayadere effect.

Bridesmaids' dresses change so constantly in fashion that it can rarely be said that any one style is the thing. Usually bridesmaids' gowns depend upon the individual taste of the bride, who decides this question. Just now it is the proper thing to have the bridesmaids dressed in pairs, each couple being in a different color. Gros grain silk, which is softer and wears better than taffeta, has to a large extent superseded this material, and of course the delicate shades are the ones usually selected. At noon and afternoon weddings, the attendants do not wear decollete gowns, though they not infrequently appear in transparent yoke and sleeves. Big picture hats or poke bonnets covered with feathers or flowers or short veils of tulle or lace are worn as a headdress.

Black silk gowns will be more worn than they have been since the time when the black silk gown was considered the swellest of all. This calls for a return of jet, which promises to be also much used on gowns other than black silk. As a matter of fact trimmings for reception gowns and other elaborate toilets are a match for fashionable materials when it comes to magnificence. Garnitures, in blouse effects, handsomely spangled or embroidered with dazzling jewels are employed on both day and evening gowns, and the bands of trimming to match are so exquisitely wrought that they cost almost as much as if worked with precious stones.

Tailor-made gowns will be rendered less severe by means of braid and cloth applique trimmings and some very handsome garnitures made entirely of mohair or silk braid are assigned to cover capes of cloth, silk or velvet. Black chenille, with jet, or with black or colored spangles, is quite effective on dressy black gowns of a wool and silk mixture, and perhaps no color is more generally introduced into trimmings of all sorts for gowns of every style than national blue, which, strange to say, in most cases has a decidedly purple cast about it.

OUR FRIEND, LORD HOUGHTON.

He Thoroughly Appreciated and Enjoyed Americans.

What such a man was in London one can imagine, with his large human interests and sympathies, never forgetting anybody, as hospitable as he could be. Lord Houghton's breakfasts became the most desirable of exchanges for the wanderers of all nations. With his good heart and his sense of right, he maintained the cause of the North in the House of Lords when all the rest of England would have gladly seen us ruined, and he was through his whole life the most admirable and useful friend to Americans. No wonder that on his unpretending visit to America Lord Houghton was received everywhere with the warmest cordiality. He was one of the new Englishman who had sufficient breadth to know and appreciate our civilization. No insular narrowness cramped his brain, no spirit of detraction limited his powers of comprehension.

He had no selfish purpose to serve, so that he was not disappointed in what he saw here, and that peculiar deference and delicacy of mind, which is so marked in his verse, saved us in his case from "a certain condescension in foreigners" which sometimes makes us regret that we have thrown our pearls and our good dinners before swine. He enjoyed, appreciated, and respected America. He was always full of kindness for any of us who had shown him the slightest attention.—Mrs. Sherwood in Lippincotts.

HORSES IN MANILA.

They Range in Height From Forty-Eight To Fifty-Two Inches.

Among the first things to impress a stranger are the horses, says a writer in The Century. Descended from horses brought from Mexico, they have become much smaller, while they are also much more shapely. In fact, I have never seen a better looking breed. There is nothing of the pony about their shape, though in size they range between forty-eight and fifty-two inches. At first it looked absurd to see them ridden by big men, whose stirrups hung down to the horses' knees, but I soon found out that they easily carried a rider weighing 200 pounds.

The foreigners have a jockey club, which holds two meetings a year at the beautiful turf track at Santa Mesa. To avoid sharp practices members of the club only are allowed to ride. This necessitates a scale of weights starting at 132 pounds and rising to 154 pounds. It demonstrates the speed and strength of these miniature horses, that a mile has been run in two minutes and ten seconds by a pony carrying 150 pounds. Only stallions are used. Mares cannot even be brought into the city. Nobody walks; everybody rides; and on any special fiesta thousands of carriages fill the streets. I doubt if there is a city in the world that can turn out half the number of private vehicles in proportion to the population.

The Little Things Great Men Do.

I like to hear stories of the littleness of great men. I like to think that Shakespeare was fond of his glass. I even cling to the tale of that disgraceful final orgie with friend Ben Jonson. Possibly the story may not be true, but I hope it was. I like to think of him as poacher, as village ne'er-do-well, denounced by the local grammar school master, preached at by the local J. P. of the period. I like to reflect that Cromwell had a wart on his nose; the thought makes me more contented with my own features. I like to think that he put sweets upon the chairs, to see finely dressed ladies spoil their frocks; to tell myself that he roared at the silly jest, like any East End 'Arry with his Bank Holiday squirt of dirty water. I like to read that Carlyle threw bacon at his wife, and occasionally made himself highly ridiculous over small annoyances, that would have been smiled at by a man of well balanced mind. I think of the fifty foolish things a week I do, and say to myself, "I too, am a literary man."—Jerome K. Jerome in The Second Thoughts of an Idle Fellow.

Fine Behavior of the Rough Riders.

The prophets of evil of the Tampa Bay hotel had foretold that the cowboys would shoot as they choose, and, in the field, would act independently of their officers. As it turned out, the cowboys were the very men who waited most patiently for the officers to give the word of command. At all times the movement was without rest, breathless and fierce, like a cane-rush, or a street fight. After the first three minutes every man had stripped as though for a wrestling match, throwing off all his impedimenta but his cartridge belt and canteen. Even then the sun handicapped their strength cruelly.

The enemy were hid in the shade of the jungle, while they had to fight in the open for every thicket they gained, crawling through grass that was as hot as a steam bath, and with their flesh and clothing torn by thorns and the sword-like blade of the Spanish bayonet. The glare of the sun was full in their eyes and as fierce as a lime-light.—Richard Harding Davis in Scribners.

Kiel. Ein großes englisches Geschwader, unter dem Oberbefehl des Commodores Poe und aus den Kreuzern „Raleigh," „Bolage," „Cleopatra" und „Champion" zusammengesetzt, weilte vier Tage im hiesigen Hafen zu Besuch. Von der deutschen Marine wurden große Festlichkeiten veranstaltet.

Lauenburg. In Friedrichsruh sind die Fundamentirungsarbeiten für das Mausoleum schon beendet. Die Länge beträgt 27 Meter bei entsprechender Breite. Die Mauern sind sehr stark. Es wird eine Haupt- und Nebengruft angelegt. Die Höhe des Oberbaues soll 7 bis 9 Meter betragen, die des Kuppelbaues entsprechend mehr. Der Bau wird in der oberen linken Ecke des freien Ackers auf der waldumsäumten Höhe errichtet, die sich dem Schlosse gegenüber, jenseit des Bahndammes, rechts vom Hohlwege erhebt. Das Bauwerk dürfte bis zum Spätherbst so weit fertig sein, daß die Beisetzung erfolgen kann, wenn auch die Ausschmückung durch Malerei u. s. w. dann noch nicht vollendet sein kann.

Provinz Westfalen.

Dortmund. Die Rieselfelderanlage in der Dahler Heide, die den städtischen Behörden viel Schwierigkeiten gemacht hat, wird demnächst in Betrieb genommen werden. Die Gesammtkosten für die Anlage in dem jetzt geplanten Umfange (2970 Morgen) werden 3,900,000 Mark betragen, darunter 523,324 Mark für den 16 Kilometer langen Zuleitungskanal; an Grunderwerbskosten sind bis jetzt 1,470,000 Mark verausgabt. Das Gelände wird seitens der Stadt an Unternehmer verpachtet, die in dem Gebiete ihren Wohnsitz haben. Die erste Ernte konnte auf einer kleinen Fläche bereits eingeheimst werden; sie war gut gerathen. Es sind etwa 1500 Morgen zum Berieseln fertiggestellt.

GOOD JOB WORK.

THE DAILY PRESS office can do it—anything from a milk ticket to an auction bill; even larger, too.

The job department of THE DAILY PRESS office is the largest and best equipped in Plainfield or vicinity. The workmen employed are experienced and capable and possess the knack of producing neat products. The prices are reasonable. When work is promised for a certain time the customer gets it without the aggravating delay common to many printeries.

If you need job printing at all you need the kind that reflects credit for neatness and style on you. You can get that kind

AT THE DAILY PRESS.

YOU'RE READING THIS?

CERTAINLY!

Well, Mr. Merchant-who-thinks-of-advertising, this is only one of the many corners in THE DAILY PRESS—it isn't the best located one, either; we can give you better—and if this attracts your attention in our endeavor to tell you how good advertising will get you a hearing before the purchasing public, doesn't common sense teach you that if you were having people reading your trade story instead of you're reading our argument about it, that it would be better for your business. THE DAILY PRESS reaches the purchasing public that makes the profits for the merchant.

We can give you big or little space—but in advertising it is'nt always economy to be sparing in your appropriation.

Cant Deny It.

When The Facts Are Brought Home To Us And By Our Neighbors Too.

They Are Plainfield Facts.

A wholesome suspicion is one of our characteristics as a people. In matters worthy of investigation we want real, tangible facts regarding it. The word of those we know, the nearby evidence obtainable, are generally what we most desire. When we call on a neighbor, a man of business at that, and say, "You have had some experience with so-and-so, what do you think of it?" and he answers "Just the thing, I know because I have tried it." It goes a long way in helping our decision. This is always the case with Doan's Kidney Pills. Everybody who has used them for any kidney complaint will tell you, 'they are just the thing.' Why? Because they do the work every time and in all disordered conditions of the kidneys. The proof lies with your neighbor. Many have been cured in Plainfield and are ready to tell you or anyone enquiring.

Mr. Robert Love, of 44 Duer street, member of the firm of Love Bros., Grocers, at 267 West Front street, says:— "I suffered from kidney complaint for the last 8 or 9 years. My chief trouble was pain across the back and a lameness over the kidneys. Colds always settled there and aggravated the pain and lameness. At last my back grew weaker and any heavy lifting or too much standing or sitting gave me additional pain. In the mornings my back bothered me greatly until I moved about and took some exercise when it became better to a certain extent. I doctored and used different kinds of so-called kidney cures but it was like throwing my money away. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in our paper and being in bad shape at the time I got a box from L W. Randolph's drug store. Before taking half of it my condition was greatly improved and continuing their use all the pain left me. I have felt slight signs of it since but a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills always drives it away. I always keep them on hand to use if occasion requires. I consider Doan's Kidney Pills a grand medicine for kidney trouble and it gives me pleasure to recommend them whenever an opportunity presents itself."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents per box or sent by mail on receipt of price by Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name Doan's, and take no substitute.

RIGHTS OF CATHOLICS IN CUBA AND PORTO RICO.

Archbishop Ireland Says They Will Be Amply Protected After Annexation. Church Needs No State Aid—A New Ecclesiastical Province Will Be Formed.

Archbishop Ireland, who was in Washington for several days, left recently. During his stay he had several conferences with President McKinley, with whom his relations are of the most cordial character. The archbishop has declined to discuss the significance of his calls upon the president, but it has been generally understood that he was acting in the interest of the Catholic church as to its protection in our new possessions. Archbishop Ireland dismisses as without foundation the statements that church matters are liable to cause dissensions. In an interview the other night he made the statements which follow:

"The church question in our new possessions offers no difficulty whatever. Two principles are already settled by the constitution and laws of America. There will be no union of church and state, such as is established by custom or concordat in certain Catholic countries of Europe. There will be a complete protection of all properties and of all persons. With such principles Catholics in the United States are satisfied, and Catholics in our new possessions will be satisfied.

"The so called church question need not be considered by military or peace commissions. It is fully regulated the moment the flag of the United States is raised over a territory. The people of our new possessions understand, I am sure, this matter very well, and will loyally accept the situation. It may not be very easy for them at first to adopt themselves in all cases to this situation, but the embarrassments felt will be but temporary.

"The people will soon realize that it is their duty to support religion by voluntary and personal contributions. In the greater number of parishes, moreover, church properties yield ample revenue to meet all expenses. The church everywhere in our new possessions is thoroughly organized. It wears no missionary or experimental aspect, but has the full form and the full strength of complete organization and is well prepared to care for all her interests without the help of state or charitable aid. It demands no favor, no privilege—naught but liberty and legal protection of the national and civil rights of its members.

"Certain people who talk of those territories as fields for missionary efforts from the United States do not know what they are talking about. They might with as much sense organize missions for the conversion of the Catholics of Washington as for the conversion of the Catholics of Santiago, Havana or San Juan, and their labors would have as much prospect of success in Washington as in those cities of Cuba or Porto Rico. The separation of the countries of South America from Spain and Portugal brought no change of religion, nor will the separation of Cuba and Porto Rico from Spain bring any. Indeed the Catholic church will flourish better in Cuba and Porto Rico than in other territories formerly colonies of Spain, because in Cuba and Porto Rico there will be for her the liberty and the stability of order which our flag guarantees.

"Cuba and Porto Rico form an ecclesiastical province, with the archbishop of Santiago as metropolitan and suffragan bishops at San Juan and Havana. This province will take its place in the American hierarchy, just as do the provinces of Baltimore and that of St. Paul, making the fifteenth ecclesiastical province in the United States and bringing to our Catholic population an addition of 2,500,000, not to talk of the islands in the Pacific. So, whatever else will come to America from the late war, considerable increase of numbers and power will come from it to the Catholic church.

"As a Catholic I am very much satisfied with the way things have been going, and as an American I am of course thoroughly satisfied. But if I were to speak at length of my feelings as an American the interview would be too lengthy, and I will stop at the religious feature of the situation."—Washington Post.

A Catholic Miracle.

The following special from Biddeford, Me., appears in the Boston Globe of July 26:

Amanda Romeo, aged 26, daughter of Anthony Romeo of 4 King street, discarded her crutches at the altar of St. Joseph's church yesterday and walked to her home unaided for the first time in two years. The case is one of the most remarkable on record, and the people of St. Joseph's fully believe that a miracle was performed in the sacred edifice yesterday morning. Miss Romeo ascribes her cure to the grace of St. Anne, the patron saint of St. Anne de Beaupre, to whom she made a solemn vow weeks ago that if she was cured she would make a journey to the shrine in the far Canadian city and make an offering to the saint, who is credited with the performance of many miracles.

Archbishops' Meeting.

On Wednesday, Oct. 12, the archbishops of the United States hold their annual meeting at Washington. The meeting will be composed of the following eminent church men: Most Rev. Sebastian Martinelli, His Eminence Cardinal Gibbons and Archbishops Williams of Boston, Feehan of Chicago, Elder of Cincinnati, Hennessy of Dubuque, Katzer of Milwaukee, Chapelle of New Orleans, Corrigan of New York, Grose of Oregon City, Ryan of Philadelphia, Kain of St. Louis, Ireland of St. Paul and Riordan of San Francisco.

A JESUIT ASTRONOMER.

Scientific Achievements of Father Braun, Formerly of Kalocsa, Hungary.

Not a little interesting is the testimony borne in the June number of Himmel und Erde, the organ of the Urania society of Berlin, to the scientific achievements of a Jesuit astronomer, Father Braun. Herr Ginzel of the Royal Astronomical Calculation institute of Berlin writes:

Among the most ingenious attempts of recent times to determine the density of the earth and its gravitation constants must be reckoned the labor of the Jesuit father, Dr. C. Braun, the former able director of the Archiepiscopal observatory at Kalocsa in Hungary. The preliminary studies of his apparatus—for a very complicated apparatus was necessary—were begun by Father Braun as far back as 1886. He was not, however, in the favorable position of other physicists, who have at their disposal large pecuniary resources from the government and physical laboratories. He was obliged to make pecuniary sacrifices himself and construct a considerable part of the complicated instrument with his own hand. Under these difficult circumstances Father Braun was not able to begin his observations till 1892. In 1894 they were completed and submitted to calculations.

The reduction has been carried on with minutest accuracy and with due regard to possible sources of error in the apparatus. The final result after all calculations for correction gives the mean density of the earth as 5.52725, and consequently its weight as five quadrillions, 987,047 trillions of kilograms, thus approaching very near to the results of De Bays, which have already been looked upon as the best. When it is remembered that Father Braun is already advanced in years and that his health leaves much to be desired, we shall command assent when we say that his labors afford a rare proof of scientific energy and ideal self sacrifice on the part of a remarkable man.

PART OF SANTIAGO DIOCESE.

Missouri Was Once Under the Jurisdiction of a Cuban Bishop.

Very few people in Missouri are aware of the fact that the bishop of Santiago de Cuba once held jurisdiction over this state. Father William Dalton of Kansas City says that on Feb. 18, 1776, the bishop of Santiago de Cuba appointed Father Bernard de Lympach pastor of St. Louis.

It was in 1776 that the bishop of Santiago was given jurisdiction over not only Missouri, but Louisiana, the Floridas and all the territory west of there. His jurisdiction was extended by special permission to all this territory by virtue of the bull from Pope Julius II to the king of Spain. This territory was made a part of the district of Santiago de Cuba. The bishop was given the right to decide as to the erection of a new diocese in Spanish America, and as to its limits. In 1787 the diocese of Santiago was divided and a new diocese created, embracing the Floridas, Louisiana and Havana. The bishop of Quebec was given charge of all the territory east of the Mississippi and the bishop of Santiago all the territory west of the Mississippi. Since then a new race has sprung up, which by force of arms has seized possession of the island bishopric, from where over a century ago the religion of the forefathers of these conquerors was dominated.—Kansas City Times.

SISTERS OF MERCY.

Their Work In the Hospitals Among the Wounded Soldiers.

As Joe Emmet, an actor, once remarked, "Who would not be ill if he had a sweet voiced sister of mercy to nurse him." A number of these devoted women are now in the military camps, nursing the sick and wounded soldiers. They are all trained nurses of experience, and the ministrations have resulted beneficially to the invalids. Disease or hardships have no terrors for these heroines of the hospitals. Their lives are immolated on the altar of self sacrifice, and their mission is one of humanity without glory seeking or without the stimulus of worldly praise.

Many of these sisters of mercy are women whose early life was one of ease and luxury, yet the past is set aside for the work they have undertaken. In wars at home and abroad they have volunteered their services, and many a veteran of the civil war recalls with joy the tender nursing of these white capped angels on the battlefield and in the trenches and hospitals. No sect or creed is known to them in their work of mercy; they are messengers of the God of war rendering service regardless of person or religious belief.—Saturday Review.

A Faithful Traitor

A STORY OF MAYFAIR

CHAPTER I.

As the last chime of the clock in its high old-fashioned wooden case sounded the hour of ten, one of the three people sitting in the half-lighted drawing-room of a house in Bloomsbury Square gave a little sigh that sounded suspiciously like an expression of relief, and rose with a rustle of her dainty garments to take her departure.

"I must say 'Good night,' grannie dear—I had no idea it was so late; I have to rush away. It has been so pleasant this quiet evening with you and Elizabeth; I have enjoyed it so much!"

Old Mrs. Latimar looked up from reading the Evening Standard, and, with cold keen eyes, glanced at the pretty speaker.

"I will spare you the remainder of the conventional untruths, Feodorowna," she said, with a grim smile. "You have been thoroughly wretched, and you know it! However, as you have been counting the minutes for the last hour, your time has not been entirely wasted. Good night! Elizabeth, ring the bell for Fedorowna's cloak."

"Oh, I will go and get it! Don't trouble, Elizabeth dear; it is in the hall. But perhaps you will come and help me to put it on."

When once the door was safely closed behind her, and she found herself alone with Elizabeth on the wide landing, with its shabby carpet and dingy walls, Lady Feo gave a deep sign of relief.

"Oh, Elizabeth, how she does frighten me! She gets worse every time. And you—you don't seem to mind her in the least. Why, if I had to live with her, as you do, I should be dead in a week! You are a brave girl!"—in tones of amazement and enthusiasm; and then Lady Feo grew furious as they went down-stairs. "The next time Gregory wants to propitiate his grandmother, he shall come and dine with her himself! I will certainly never come again—never!"

Elizabeth bent and kissed the pretty flushed cheek.

"Oh, yes, you will!" she said gently. "Although she speaks so sharply and seems so cross, believe me, Feo dear, grannie is in reality pleased and gratified whenever you come."

"Here is your cloak," she said, "fit for a princess; and your carriage has been waiting ever so long!"

Looking quite fairylike in her costly white wraps, Lady Feodora clung a moment longer to the little girl, whose dingy black grenadine gown offered such a strong contrast to her own brilliant attire.

Elizabeth stood in the doorway and watched the carriage roll out of sight. After a few moments' enjoyment of the cool fresh night-air, she closed the door with a half-smile and a sigh.

"Dear little Feo," she said to herself tenderly—"how good she is! She has a heart of gold. There is no pinchbeck or sham about her!"

As Elizabeth shut the door a letter slipped out of the letter-box and fell upon the ground at her feet; it had evidently come by the last post, and had been caught by the lid of the box and so escaped notice. The girl picked it up, then stood upon a chair, put out the gas, and, after she had peeped into several rooms on the hall floor to see that similar economy had been practised within them also, she turned and went wearily up the stairs to the drawing-room again.

Old Mrs. Latimar was sitting in exactly the same position, with the newspaper held rigidly in front of her, but Elizabeth knew perfectly well that the eyes fixed upon the printed page had been quietly closed in sleep for the past ten minutes, although the owner of the eyes glanced up keenly at her as she re-entered the room.

"So you have packed off the gadabout! You have been a long time over it!"

Elizabeth gave Mrs. Latimar the letter she had picked up. At that moment she did not feel equal to a long disquisition upon Gregory Latimar's charming little wife.

"From Richard Saville," the old lady said promptly. "Read it!"

Elizabeth obediently opened the letter. It was addressed from some chambers in the Temple, and was an acceptance of an invitation to dinner for the following evening. There was a slight flush on the girl's face as she read out the few courteous words.

Mrs. Latimar nodded her head approvingly.

"We will have the shoulder of mutton for dinner instead of for luncheon," said she; "and you must go to the stores in the morning, Elizabeth, and get a bottle of sherry. If that fool Martha had not been so careless as to break the last bottle, we should have had enough for to-morrow!"

Elizabeth was moving slowly about the room folding up the shabby antimacassars and covering the cushions and the chairs with some old sheets she produced from a cupboard.

"I did not know Mr. Saville was back in England, grannie," she said, as Mrs. Latimar ceased speaking.

"I do not find it necessary to inform you of everything, Elizabeth."

"So it seems," the girl said, smiling faintly. "Are you ready for bed?" she asked, when she had finished covering the furniture and closing the shutters.

Mrs. Latimar glanced at her sharply.

"No—I am not," she answered curtly. "You can sit down, Elizabeth; I shall not go up-stairs for another half-hour."

Mrs. Latimar seemed this evening to be in a mood for cross-examination.

"And you don't feel jealous of that fine little bird?" she asked, with the slight sneer that was almost habitual with her.

Elizabeth looked round again—quickly this time.

"Jealous of Feo? Oh, no, no! I love her too well!"

A shadow passed over the old woman's face, the sneer on her lips becoming more marked.

"Feodorowna is to be congratulated. You are not prodigal of your affections, Elizabeth, but you are sincere. Where you like, you like, and where you dislike, you dislike—as for instance in the case of Richard Saville. You dislike him most cordially, and you take no pains to hide the feeling."

Elizabeth's lips curled, exhibiting a strong likeness to the lips of the speaker opposite to her.

"Dear grannie, am I not your pupil?" she asked half wearily, half amusedly.

"I certainly never taught you to dislike Richard Saville," Mrs. Latimar said very sharply, "for he is one of the few men I really respect—one of the very few I care to call a friend. I presume it is because of that you choose to be as disagreeable to him as you can well be."

Elizabeth drew up a low chair and sat down. She was accustomed to these nightly discussions; and, judging by her grandmother's brisk manner, it might be a matter of another hour or even more before there would be a move upstairs to bed.

"I treat Mr. Saville exactly as I treat every one else who comes here," she said coldly. "If my manner lacks cordiality, I am afraid it must be the result of so much close companionship with you, grannie. You set me such a bad example, you know."

"'I treat Mr. Saville exactly as I treat everyone else who comes here,' she said."

Mrs. Latimar, however, did not appreciate her grandchild's retorts as warmly as usual. She moved her hands about fretfully, a sure sign to Elizabeth that she was annoyed and, it might be, a little anxious too.

"What a torment one's relations are!" the old lady cried shrilly. "If one wishes for ingratitude or trouble, one has only to turn to some one of one's own kin and one will never be disappointed."

Elizabeth's face flushed and then grew very pale.

"Do you accuse me of being ungrateful, grannie?" she asked, still coldly, but with a tremor in her voice which she could not repress.

"I hope you do not mean to imply that I am ungrateful, grannie?" she again asked, after a long pause, during which Mrs. Latimar had sat fidgeting with the newspaper in her thin fingers.

The girl's voice was gentle, almost suppliant at that moment. Her beautiful eyes fixed themselves upon the erect figure of the old white-haired woman who had been the nearest approach to a mother she had ever known. The old cry that she had thought successfully stifled, the old yearning she imagined she had crushed, broke from her chilled young heart once again. Oh, if those two thin white hands could only be lovingly outstretched to her! If she could but be drawn into a tender embrace! If the clear hard tones could grow soft for once, and whisper of appreciation, of affection, fall upon her ears, how vast a difference it would make even now, even after all these long years of starvation, of girlish loneliness and repression! Her eyes were illumined by a new beauty as these thoughts rose to almost a passionate utterance. But Mrs. Latimar was not looking at the girl; she was picking up various little articles about her—her spectacles, her letters, her small work-basket, and other things.

"You are no better and no worse than any one else," she said, still fretful; "and, as to ingratitude, I suppose you are not such a fool as to do anything to risk losing the only home you can call your own. I am bound to confess," Mrs. Latimar continued, rising slowly from her chair, "that I never expect much gratitude, such as you may have in your nature to give me, Elizabeth, I accept as my just due and at its real value. I have had the care and the expense of you for many years, and, if you were not thankful up to a certain point, why, you would prove yourself to be a fool, which you certainly are not, my dear, whatever else you may be!"

"Fool or no fool," she said, in the abrupt way she had found by long experience was that which her grandmother appreciated most, "I am extremely sleepy, and I consider it is high time we were both in bed."

SPORTING.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood of the Y. M. C. A. is planning an athletic contest for the members of the association which will begin during the latter part of January. It will include twelve events, which will be run off two every week Medals will be awarded to those making the best showing. In order to encourage the novices, Mr. Heywood has decided that the contest shall not be open to those who have won medals in previous contests.

The Cuming family seem to have a faculty of riding fast on a wheel. Several years ago Thomas A. Cuming, now manager of the local branch of the Eldridge Bicycle Company, distinguished himself on the bicycle track where he won numerous medals and did some fast moving. Now his younger brother comes to the fore as a rider. His time in the one-mile bicycle race rece at the High School games was remarkable. He rode the mile in 2:31 and loafed for nearly a lap. Considering the condition of the track, the performance was particularly meritorious.

CYCLING COMMENT

J. Jules Labodie has just finished a wonderful ride from Lookout Mountain, Tenn. Monday, a week ago, he left Chattanooga and rode a wheel geared to 104 across the Cumberland Mountains up the Shenonadoah Valley of Virginia. The distance is nearly 1100 miles.

Harry K. Lister is deserving of much credit for the excellent manner in which he conducted the two race meets of the Riverdale Field Club If that organization decides to return to Plainfield next year, Lister will probably have charge of its wheeling contests. His former successes points out a bright future for the sport.

The wheelmen who are employed at the Pond Tool Works have informally organized a bicycle squad with the idea in view of arranging a team race with teams from the other manufactories in Plainfield. They are very anxious that some such wheeling contests should be arranged for this fall and wish to hear from the cyclists in the other establishments at once.

WHIST

Last evening in New York the whist season for the New York and New Jersey associations was opened in an auspicious manner. The celebrated "Big Four," of the Park Club, Messrs. McCutchen, Rogers, Townsend and Howell, were present. Twelve tables were used and the play was interesting. Next week Saturday the first big match of the season will be played in Brooklyn, when the Brooklyn association will contest with the New Jersey association for the trophy now held by the New York State Association.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Central New Jersey Bowling League held a meeting at Elizabeth last Tuesday evening. F. J. Pope, of the N. J. A. C., was elected president, and F. O. Ball, of this city, was selected as secretary. There were present representatives from the different teams in the league, and there is a possibility that other clubs, heretofore not in the league, may join. Arrangements will soon be made to start the fall and winter series of games, and President Pope will call a meeting in a short time. The games may start November 15th.

ROD AND GUN.

Through a recent act of Governor Voorhees in signing a certain measure the members of the Fish and Game Protective Association of this State will probably in the future be able to purchase game from the State instead of from private individuals. Governor Voorhees has given his consent to favor the measure and no doubt the same will go through.

GOLF.

Next Saturdey afternoon there will be play for the Reinhart cup on the course of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club.

THE DEMOCRATIC FIELD.

Clark has secured a number of pledges.

Whatever the Congressional convention may do in the matter of candidates, it is certain it will not declare for free silver. It is likely that the platform will imitate that of the State Democracy in the attempted avoidance of the issue. But the candidate will be a sound money Democrat, if the leaders' wishes are followed out.

The Republican convention will be held at Somerville Tuesday, October 18th, nearly an entire week after the Democratic. Congressman Howell can have the nomination if he wants it.

RETURN OF NAVAL RESERVES

Battalion of the East Left for Hoboken this Morning.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Philadelphia, October 6.—The two hundred and fifty members of the Battalion of the East, New Jersey Naval Reserve, were discharged from the auxiliary cruiser Badger at the League Island Navy Yard this morning. The crew left the Badger at 9:30 o'clock and at 11 o'clock took a special train at the Pennsylvania Railroad station, at Washington avenue and Broad street, They will arrive at 1 o'clock at Newark, where they will disembark and be reviewed by Mayor Seymour. From Newark they will proceed to Jersey City, to be reviewed by Mayor Hoos, and from there they will go to their headquarters on the Portsmouth, at Hoboken. In Hoboken Mayor Fagan and the Common Council and Governor Voorhees will review the Reserves.

Word was received from one of the Plainfield boys that they would arrive home Friday or Saturday morning.

ENGINEER KNOCKED FROM CAR.

Nieman's Head Struck an Iron Pipe While Passing Through Elizabeth.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Oct. 6.—Frank Nieman, an engineer of a freight train on the Jersey Central, was passing through Elizabeth yesterday morning, bound west, with his train, when the caboose broke loose. Nieman leaned to far out of the cab window to look after the caboose, when his head came in contact with an iron leader pipe that ran from the roof of the shed adjoining the Elizabeth station. He was knocked completely out of the cab and fell on the asphalt payment in front of the station.

Nieman received a frightful wound in the head and part of his scalp was torn off. He was taken to the Elizabeth General Hospital, where his injury was dressed. He will be confined there for some time. He is thirty-one years old and his home is in Jersey City.

AT THE STATE CAPITOL.

Governor Voorhees to Make His Last Official Visit Friday.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Oct. 6—Governor Voorhees came to the State House yesterday expecting to clear up matters that he has on hand in the executive department, and resign at once, but there were so many callers that he was unable to carry out his expectations. He will not be able to come to the capitol again until Friday.

Speaker David O. Watkins will be sworn in as acting-governor, probably in the early part of next week. This induction of the Gloucester assemblyman into the highest office of the State will be attended by very simple ceremonies. Chief Justice Magie will administer the oath of office to him, and he will at once take hold of the business of the office.

THIS IS FOWLER'S DAY.

Congressman Will Receive Unanimous Republican Nominations.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Oct. 6—The Union County delegates to the Congress District Convention of the Republican party, which will be held this afternoon in the Lyceum Theatre, will be unanimous for the renomination of Congressman Fowler, and it is said that the remainder of the district will also be solid for him. He will be named by acclamation and with much enthusiasm.

Temperance Crusade in Summit.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Summit, Oct. 6—A vigorous temperance crusade has been inaugurated here, and at the opening of court Town Counsel Williams appeared before Judge Vail and objected to the granting of any of the five applications for license. Some were renewals of old licenses. Judge Vail postponed decision until Saturday.

ROESEL TO DIE OCTOBER 28TH.

Sentenced to Death for the Third Time by Judge VanSyckel.

(Special to the Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, October 6.—Louis Roesel, the convicted murderer of Farmer James Pitts, of Summit, was brought into court this afternoon at 1:15 o'clock for the third time since his conviction for the sentence of death.

With few words Judge VanSyckel sentenced Roesel to be hanged on the 28th, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 1 p. m.

The prisoner looked haggard and careworn, the result of his long confinement and worriment over his chances of evading the result of his crime. He received the sentence without outward expression of anguish.

He was led back to jail and will now be closely watched till the date of his execution.

Frank Bergen, Roesel's counsel, may possibly carry the case to the United States Supreme court, but this is not certain.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Schenck, of Manning avenue, is entertaining company from out of town.

W. A. Woodruff, of East Second street, was in Flemington yesterday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Wells, of Plainfield, are registered at the Hotel Bartholdi in New York.

Miss Sadie Dean, of Newark, has returned home after spending a pleasant week with the Misses Lunger, of Watchung avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Barton Groendyke, of West Front street, have returned from a delightful visit with friends at Lebanon, Hunterdon county.

Miss Julia G. Shinn, of Seventh street, made an address yesterday morning before the meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society held in connection with the Trenton association at the Central Baptist church, Trenton.

—There will be a meeting of interest at Reform Hall this evening.

AN EARNEST PAINTER.

Sir Frederick Leighton Taught One of Our Artists a Valuable Lesson.

An eminent American artist, who is now an old man, has never forgotten the lesson he learned from Sir Frederick Leighton in his youth. Leighton was then a brilliant and fascinating young painter, whose future was still before him. He was at work upon an Italian landscape, or upon a picture with an Italian background. In that background he was anxious to introduce an olive tree. He remembered a tree which he had seen in the south of Italy, and remembered it quite distinctly enough to reproduce it, but he was not content to trust his memory.

The American artist remembers how Leighton came into a cafe in Rome on his way to southern Italy, making the long journey from England for the express purpose of studying that olive tree and of taking home an exact sketch of it, and he remebers also now, four or five weeks later, the ardent young Englishman, brilliant, enthusiastic, versatile, but with a capacity for taking pains, reappeared with a wonderful sketch of the olive tree, upon which he had spent days of unbroken observation and work. From this little incident the American student learned a lesson, which he never forgot, and which went far to secure the success which came to him later in life. The story illustrates the great quality which lies behind all real success, alike for the man of genius and the man of talent.—Outlook.

INJURIOUS BLACKBOARDS.

White Ones Coming Into Use—Considered Better for the Children's Eye's.

War is being made in some quarters on the abominable blackboards in use in public schools very generally. It is a well-established fact that the worst color on the eyes is black, and even tailors, when men's clothing used to be made by hand, were accustomed to charge more for making a suit of black clothes than any other, for the reason that the color was so much more injurious to the eyes.

Experiment, in the color of so-called blackboards have been made with a view of determining what color is least injurious to the eyes of children, and it has been proved that some shade of cream white, a dead surface of soft, mellow tint, varied in its degree of whiteness to suit the quality and quantity of light, is preferable to all or any other. The crayons to be used on such boards should be of a clear, sky-blue color, a canary orange of a clear dark green.

In schools where this modern board has been introduced in place of the old black surface, with its white chalk, there has been not only an improvement in the eyes of the children who have had to use such boards, but a great increase in the amount of attention they have given to exercises on the board, by reason of the greater ease with which their interest could be retained. When so much can be so easily accomplished it seems almost criminal to retain in use the old blackboard It has done injury enough to entitle it to be retired.—Chicago News

ANOTHER GOVERNOR.

VOORHEES' RESIGNATION ON THE PROGRAMME THIS WEEK.

Speaker Watkins Will be Acting Governor Till a New President of the Senate is Chosen After Legislature Convenes.

(Spec'al to the Daily Press.)

Trenton, October 6—Next week David O. Watkins, of Gloucester county, will probably be Acting Governor of New Jersey. Acting Governor Voorhees was at the State House yesterday and said that he would resign as Senator from Union county the latter part of this week, his resignation to take effect at once.

He will take this step in accordance with the suggestion of the Republican State Committee. Attorney General Grey having expressed the opinion that if the resignation took effect next January, the duty of ordering the election of a Senator in Union County to succeed Voorhees would devolve upon the Legislature. This would make it impossible to fill the vacancy at this fall's election.

Mr. Watkins will assume the duties of Governor by virtue of his office as Speaker of the House of Assembly, and he will act until the president of the next Senate is chosen in January. The new president of the Senate will become Acting-Governor and perform the duties of that office until the Governor elected by the people next month is inaugurated. Mr. Watkins is a lawyer of ability, and as Speaker of the House last winter he made himself very popular with that body.

TROLLEY GETS BRIDGE.

Freeholders Decide to Help Pay for a Line Bridge.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, October 6.—The most important item of business transacted by the Board of Freeholders at its meeting yesterday was the decision to co-operate with the Somerset County Board and the traction companies to build a line bridge at Union avenue, between Middlesex and Somerset counties. The bridge will cost $8,000. Middlesex will pay one-fourth, Somerset one fourth, the New York and Philadelphia Traction Company one-fourth and the Brunswick Traction Company one-fourth. Resolutions were adopted giving the traction companies the right to operate their lines across this bridge.

PRICES OF SOLDIERS' CLOTHES.

Schedule show Blue Shirts at $1.95 Each.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Pompton Lake, Oct. 6—The requisitions for new clothing are being made out, but it is not likely that any more clothing will be received for a couple of months. The statement for clothing drawn at this place was handed the men yesterday. Some of the prices are: Blanket, $3.33; blouse, $4 41; underclothing, 98 cents; hat, 85 cents; leggins, 64 cents; blue shirt, $1.95; shoes, $2.25; trousers, $2 75; suspenders, 19 cents; socks, 6 cents. It is said that the goods drawn by the men while at Sea Girt amount to $20. However, no statement has yet been received.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Michael J. O'Reilly, who will speak at the meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday at 4:15, is endorsed by Rev. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, of Philadelphia, and Hon. John Wanamaker. He spoke here very acceptably two years ago.

The first and third year classes in mathematics of the mechanical course of the Y. M. C. A. will meet tonight at 8 o'clock.

—Veto Ferrouro will open a fruit store Monday evening in his new building, 109 Somerset street, opposite Manning avenue. He will sell all kinds of foreign and domestic fruits at the lowest price.

DR. BRETT'S TALK TO THE ENDEAVORERS.

The Thirteenth Anniversary of Trinity Reformed Society.

DO A GREAT DEAL OF GOOD.

THE ADDRESS PUNCTUATED WITH MANY BRIGHT REMARKS.

The Young Christians Form an Important Part of the World's Christianity—Advised the Trinity Endeavorers to Put Forth Their Best Efforts for Next Year—Officers' Reports.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church observed its thirteenth anniversary last night. As the officers and members look back to the time when the society was organized they experience a feeling of satisfaction and can congratulate themselves on the society being one of the largest and most stirring, as well as one of the oldest, in the local union.

The anniversary exercises were held in the lecture room. They took the form of a sociable, but before the time for shaking hands and conversation had come, Rev. Dr. Brett, of Jersey City, the genial State president of the Christian Endeavor, made a short address upon "What Do People Say About Us?" referring to the Christian Endeavorers.

Dr. Brett said that people are always talking about something, and just now it is as much about the Christian Endeavorers as about anything else. They should be proud of it, the speaker asserted, because the Endeavorers as a whole are well worth talking about.

Dr. Brett quoted a remark made by a good elder of a church, a man who, he said, is noted for his piety, and is a person whom all know, and would recognize at once if they heard his name. This elder remarked that "Christian Endeavorers in our church are just good to consume coal and gas which the trustees have to pay for."

Dr. Brett thought that they must have a queer kind of a Christian Endeavor Society in that church, and expressed the wish that the elder could have seen the gathering of young people at Asbury Park last week, for he thought then the elder would change his mind.

The speaker said that people are putting Christian Endeavorers in books and magazines, and that he could hardly pick up a novel today but what the hero or heroine attends an Endeavorer meeting. The great magazines and papers are controled by the reading public, and if they want Christian Endeavor literature, they will get it, said Dr. Brett.

Dr. Brett heard of a certain writer who considered the Christian Endeavor movement a mystery because there was a man wearing a C. E. badge who got intoxicated at the time the great convention was held in New York City. This writer thought it strange that all those 30,000 Endeavorers did not cease their hymn singing and rush down to the jail to bail their brother out.

In closing, Dr. Brett urged the young people of Trinity's Society to make the fourteenth year a glorious one, and to keep in view the spiritual end of the society. Although each one may feel himself an insignificant member of that society consisting of a million and a quarter, who belt the globe, yet he assured them that each had a part to do in the work, very important, although perhaps very small.

The president, Horace J. Martin, had charge of the exercises, and the secretary and treasurer both read short reports of the year's work. The roll now shows 110 active members, and the attendance at the meeting during the year averaged sixty.

The treasurer's report was as follows: For the general fund, the receipts for the year were $61.46, disbursements, $57.21; balance, $4.25. For the sinking fund, $6.05 had been collected. $80.50 had been collected for missionary purposes. Of this, $63.44 has been expended, leaving a balance on hand of $17.06.

This society is the outcome of the Young People's Society which was started in Trinity Reformed church by Frank Morse, now of Garwood. Upon the suggestion of Rev. Dr. Raymond, then pastor of the church, the Young People's Society was organized as a Christian Endeavor. Among the charter members were H. E. Gayle, Daniel VanWinkle, E. E. Anthony, Miss Ella C. Benedict, Miss Emma Gillem and Mrs. Fred Dunn. There were about twenty-seven members when the society was first organized, and of these Miss Benedict, Miss Gillem and Messrs. Gayle and Anthony

CHOSE THEIR OFFICERS.

MRS. W. S. LOWRY PRESIDENT OF PARK AVENUE BAPTISTS.

Nominating Committee's Selections Approved by the Members of the Society—Committee Members Appointed.

The annual meeting of the Christion Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church was held last night at the home of Miss Florence C. Hawkins, of LaGrande avenue. An election of officers and committees was first held after which an informal sociable followed with refreshments and games.

Several weeks ago a nominating committee, consisting of Miss Laura Runyon, Miss Adelaide Runyon and Arthur Heath, was appointed to nominate the officers and committees, and last night the report of this special committee was received and adopted.

The officers elected are Mrs. W. S. Lowry, president; Miss Anna Wyckoff, vice-president; Mrs. W. S. Lowry, corresponding secretary; Miss Myra Runyon, recording secretary; Miss Henrietta Cuming, treasurer.

The committees chosen are as follows: Lookout committee, Miss Florence G. Hawkins, Miss Cora Brokaw, Miss Mary Giles, Miss Julia Wyckoff, Miss Lizzie Runyon, Walter Pool and Arthur Heath.

Prayer meeting committee, David M. Runyon, Miss Ada Runyon and Rev. J. W. Richardson.

Missionary committee, Miss May Thompson, Nelson VanWinckle and Miss Lilla Livezey.

Social committee, J. W. Hawkins, Miss Bessie Giles, Miss Adelaide Runyon, Miss Coroline Livezey, Clarence Rittenhouse and Miss Helen Cuming.

Flower committee, Miss Lissa Livezey, Miss Jennie Giles, Miss Libbie Joseph, Hervey Doane and Aaron Thompson.

Good citizenship and temperance committee, Frank Clarkson, Fred Dorman, Miss Nellie Rockafellow, Miss Florence Goldsack and Miss Lizzie VanWinkle.

Good literature committee, Miss Emma V. Fish, Miss Mabel Treadwell, Miss Martha Wagner, Bert Brokaw and George Poole.

Music committee, Miss Adelaide Runyon, Miss Laura Runyon, Miss Henrietta Cuming, Miss Cora Brokaw and Miss Ada Runyon.

Welcoming committee, David M. Runyon, Thad Doane, Miss Anna Wyckoff, J. M. Hawkins, Rev. J. W. Richardson, Mrs. W. S. Lowry and Miss F. G. Hawkins.

By unanimous vote of the society, Miss Sarah Curry, matron of the Westfield Fresh Air Camp was elected an honary member of the society. She will send a message each consecration meeting to be read in respone to her name at roll call.

The Missionary committee reported having sent a box containing jellies, canned fruit, and interesting reading matter to some of the soldies of the Fourth Regiment, Camp Voorhees, Sea Girt.

Following the business various chairmen met in conference with members of their committee, after that refreshments and then singing closed evening's exercises.

BAD USE OF A SLING SHOT.

Mrs. Frank Putnam Struck With a Missile Fired From One.

While Mrs. Frank Putnam and child were being driven home from Scotch Plains last night by her brother, some miscreant hidden in the bushes near Netherwood avenue fired a small missile from a sling-shot, striking her in the face. The missile made a stinging sensation that frightened Mrs. Putnam for a moment and she uttered a scream. Her brother whipped up his horses and was some distance away before he understood what was the cause of the trouble. It is said that there are a number of boys who use sling-shots recklessly in that vicinity and it may be that one of these days they will get themselves into serious trouble.

Nine Years Local Manager.

It is just nine years ago yesterday that Manager Charles W. Runyon, of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, came to this city and took charge of the local telephone station. Mr. Runyon was previous to that time located in Morristown. During his stay in this city he has succeeded in placing a large number of new telephones and increasing the general efficiency of the service for this city.

A POOR PEACEMAKER.

ALBERT CHAMPION APPEARED AT THE WRONG TIME.

He Tried to Separate Three Dusky Belles Who Were Quarreling and Got Badly Done-up and Landed in Jail.

Albert Champion, who conducts a barber shop and an employment agency on Madison avenue, between Front and Second streets, was in court this morning again. Heretofore the game of craps has been the cause of his appearances before the Judge, but this time it was the result of friendship for a girl.

Annie Street boards just back of his place of business, and persists in visiting him frequently. This incensed Gracie and Kittie Davis, two sisters, who claim to have brought Annie up, and yesterday Grace went to Mrs Martha Rogers' house, where Annie was boarding, and picked a row with her.

Champion came home while Grace and Annie were quarreling, and urged the girls to cease their fighting and go home. Then Grace, who was likened to the battleship Oregon by the City Judge, pounced upon Champion and gave him a severe beating, blacking his eye, scratching his face and bruising him on various parts of his body.

Grace went around to the City Judges' office and made complaints against Champion and Annie.

Then taking her sister Kittie, Grace went back and catching Annie, after a sharp chase around the yard and through the house, began to abuse her. They tore her clothes, took down her hair, scratched her ears and eyes, and kept it up until the girl escaped over a back fence.

An officer arrested Champion and the Street girl and locked them up until this morning. W. G. DeMeza appeared for Champion and the Street girls Kate and Grace were there as witnesses, but before the case had progressed far they, too, were made defendants, and at the close were given $15 or 40 days each. Annie Street was declared not guilty. Spencer Conway's testimony did a great deal for Annie, for he told how regular she was in attendance at church, Sunday-school and prayer meeting.

Champion was remanded back to his cell until tomorrow morning to await sentence. The court said that it had had a number of complaints from people living in that neighborhood about the kind of a place Champion keeps, and he says he is bound to break it up.

THE SEWER BEDS.

Dunellen Has a Few Words to Say About the Subject.

The North Plainfield township board of health have appointed a committee, consisting of Charles Sebring, William H. Smith and Robert Clark, in connection with the health inspector, to visit Plainfield's sewer beds and investigate them as to their being a nuisance. Should they find them detrimental to health so far as the residents of any portion of that township is concerned, they will report the matter to the state board of health and inaugurate measures to abate the nuisance.

We might say in this connection that the officials of Plainfield have, in the past, denied that the sewer beds were a nuisance in any sense of the word, but they have admitted that they were inadequate to accommodate the sewerage of the city, and have given notice to discontinue making connections. This is not just to the citizens, but so long as they are willing to pay taxes from which they receive no benefit it is doubtful if any outside community can get any redress on account of their being denounced as a nuisance.—Dunellen Call.

Anniversary Committee.

The directors of the Y. M. C. A. met last evening. The most important report rendered was that of the anniversary committee which was given by the chairman, E. L. Bonny. The thirty-first anniversary of the Y. M. C. A., in this city, will occur October 28th, for on October 28th, 1867, the branch here was organized. The exercises this year are to be held in the various churches Sunday, October 16th. A speaker will be provided by the Y. M. C. A. for each church, and one of the directors will be in attendance and read the annual report.

Evangelist to Talk.

Michael J. O'Reilly, an evangelist from Philadelphia, will address the Y. M. C. A. meeting Sunday afternoon next. O'Reilly is indorsed by such men as Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, the evangelist, and John Wanamaker.

FRANKLIN COUNCIL ELEVEN YEARS OLD.

Anniversary Celebrated Pleasantly Last Night.

NO FAIR ONES FOR GUESTS.

JUST A SOCIAL AFFAIR AMONG THE COUNCIL'S MEMBERS.

Whitfield Frazee Entertained the Members With a Phonograph Exhibition—Thousands of Dollars Have Been Expended for Sick Benefits and Now There is $900 to Their Credit in Bank.

The eleventh anniversary of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., was celebrated last evening in the rooms on West Second street, in an appropriate and enjoyable manner. Contrary to the general rule, the affair was arranged for the members alone and there was an absence of the fair sex.

The regular order of business was transacted first, and the celebration took place in the good of the order. The principle feature was a phonograph exhibition given by Whitfield Frazee, a member of the council. He had a large number of excellent records and the members enjoyed them very much. While the ear was being pleased with music, the good and welfare committee provided refreshments for the inner man, consisting of cake, lemonade and cigars. The affair took the form of a social gathering and everyone enjoyed themselves fully.

This council was organized eleven years ago in a room over the City National Bank and started out with bright prospects. Since that time there has been a steady growth, and today there is a membership of nearly 200. The council has expended for sick benefits thousands of dollars, yet at the present time there is in the Dime Savings Bank $900 to the credit of the council. The finances of the council are in excellent condition and reflect credit on those who have them in charge.

Just at present the members are organizing a mutual benefit association for any member of the order. Thus far twenty-five members have joined. The association will pay, after it has reached a membership of 100, a death benefit of $100 twenty-four hours after the death of a member or his beneficiary, who must be a relative of the deceased. The association has already become very popular and in a short time it will be fully organized. There is no limit to the membership, but the benefit is limited to $100.

In the absence of the councilor, Geo. Bolsterle, last evening, David Bodine, vice-councilor, filled the chair in a creditable manner. There was a large attendance of members and the eleventh anniversary was celebrated in a way that the members will not soon forget.

DEPEW TO SPEAK IN JERSEY.

Acting Governor Voorhees Will Resign as Senator Next Tuesday.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Newark, Oct. 7—At a meeting in this city within the next few days Chauncey M. Depew and Foster M. Voorhees will addeess New Jersey voters on the advantages of Republican rule. The exact date of the big rally has been left to Mr. Depew and he has not yet made his decision known. Any previous engagement the acting Governor may have on the night in question will be cancelled.

Mr. Voorhees has decided to vacate the Governor's chair next Tuesday. Speaker Watkins, of the Assembly, will be sworn in immediately as acting-Governor.

A New Gas Scheme.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, October 7.—The Cranford Gas Light Company is supplying its Westfield customers with meters on the quarter-in-the-slot plan. Gas is supplied at $1.75 per 1,000 feet. The consumer drops a twenty-five-cent piece in the slot and then can use twenty-five cents' worth of gas. When this is exhausted the meter shuts down.

A New Residence.

J. B. Mills & Co., of this city, have just purchased a choice property on Sandford avenue, and work will soon be started on a fine residence, thoroughly up-to-date, to cost about $6,000, Oakley & Son, of Elizabeth, are the architects.

A Musical Subject.

W. J. Colville, of Boston, will deliver a lecture in Grace church guild room at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening on the subject of "Music as a Healing Power; Harmony and Health Inseperable." Mr. Colville is said to be a very entertaining speaker.

CLUB WOMEN TO MEET

ANNUAL MEETING OF STATE FEDERATION OF CLUBS AT ELIZABETH.

List of Those Who May Be Chosen for the Offices—The Subject to be Discussed by the Women is "Sociology."

The annual meeting of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs will be held in Elizabeth Oct 27th and 28th. The subject under discussion will be sociology. The evening session will be in the form of an evening reception at the home of Mrs. Emily E. Williamson.

The nominating committee, of which Miss Eleanor Jenkinson is chairman, has prepared the following list, to be presented at the October meeting. In making out the list of combinations for officers and directors, it was found that there were two vacancies in the required number of vice-presidents, one vacancy in the office of recording secretary, and one also in the office of treasurer. The chairman explains that these vacancies occur either because all the nominees are ineligible or refuse to serve. Mrs. Mary W. Butler, not having served a full term, was by unanimous vote of the board declared eligible for re-election.

The list is as follows: President, Miss Mary McKeen, of the Woman's Club, Camden; Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, of the Woman's Civic Fed eration, Elizabeth. Vice-president, Miss Elizabeth Vermilye, of the Woman's Club, Englewood; Mrs. Kate B. Horton, of the Wednesday Morning Club, Cranford; Mrs. Fannie J. Taylor, of the Sesame, Newark; Mrs. Francis W. Kitchel, of the Woman's Club, Perth Amboy; Miss C. R. Yates, of the Woman's Parliamentary Club, Plainfield; Mrs. Jennie DeWitt, of the Current Topic Club, Newark. Corresponding secretary, Miss Ellen Mecum, of the Woman's Club, Salem; Mrs. Minnie H. Magee, of the Charlotte Emerson Brown Club, East Orange. Recording secretary, Mrs. Mary W. Butler, of the Wednesday Afternoon Club, Montclair. Treasurer, Mrs. Madge Smith McClary, of the Home Reading Club, Rahway. Auditor, Mrs. Joanna Hartshorn, of the Reading Club, Short Hills; Miss Mary M. Welch, of the Kalmia Club, Lambertville. Directors, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of the Monday Afternoon Club, Plainfield; Miss Belle Snyder, of the Pen and Point Circle, Caldwell; Mrs. Emma W. Newbury, of the Woman's Club, Jersey City; Mrs. Cornelia Foote, of the Phillitscipoma and Ray Palmer Club, Newark; Mrs. E. H. Denton, of the Clio Club, Roselle; Mrs. R F. Hauxhurst, of the Ladies' Political and Social Advancement Society, Bayonne.

MIDDLESEX REPUBLICANS.

Governor Voorhees Was at the County Convention.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, October 7.—At the meeting of the Middlesex County Republican Convention, Governor Voorhees was present and made an address in which he laid stress upon the importance of conducting the campaign upon national and State lines. He paid a high complement to President McKinley and his administration and reminded the voters that the Vice President and Attorney General were from the State.

The men nominated for Assembly by the convention were J. Blanchard Edgar, of Woodbridge; P. S. VanAnglen, of New Brunswick, and John S. Silvers, of Cranberry. These men were named by acclamation, and the proceedings of the Convention were harmonious and enthusiastic,

The candidates are considered strong men, and an aggressive fight will be made.

LOOKING FOR HER CHILDREN.

New Market Woman Appealed to Justice Mosher in Her Plight.

Mrs. Theodore Wilson came all the way from New Market yesterday afternoon to see Justice Mosher about obtaining possession of her two children, who, she says, are in possession of her mother-in-law somewhere in the borough. Mrs. Wilson was not able to tell just where the woman who has the children lives, or even her full name, so the Justice told her to come again this afternoon at 3 o'clock when he will send a constable with her and try in this way to get back the little ones for her.

Mrs. Wilson says that her husband left her a month ago and that she is living alone. The mother-in-law took the children away at that time and that is the last she has seen of them. The children are only about eight or ten years of age.

TENURE OF POLICE JOBS.

COUNCILMAN HETFIELD OPPOSES MAKING LIFE POSITIONS.

Two Ordinances About the Same Matter Now in the Council—Mr. Hetfield Will Fight Mr. Buckle's Proposition

It is quite likely that if the City Council adopts an ordinance giving the city police a life-berth on the condition that they behave well and do nothing to violate the rules governing them it will be after strong opposition. Last Monday evening Mr. Buckle attempted to put the ordinance through, but the matter was finally laid over until this evening.

The fact is that the original ordinance has been in the hands of the law and ordinance committee for two or three months, and the members of the police board thinking that the committee had no intention of bringing it up, the chairman of the police board introduced a similar ordinance last Monday evening. Mr. Hetfield, chairman of the law and ordinance committee, very naturally took exception to the proceedings, and spoke against the adoption of the ordinance. He stated that he questioned the policy of taking such action, not but what the Council had a legal right to do so, but for the reason that with the present police force he does not consider it would be a wise thing to do. He favors a weeding out in the police department before an ordinance is adopted giving them a position for life.

He has been in consultation with Mayor Fisk and Corporation Counsel Marsh on the subject, and it is merely a question of policy. No one questions the right to adopt the ordinance complying with the State law, but before this is done Mr. Hetfield wants to be sure that the men on the force are qualified and competent to serve the city in such capacity. It is possible that Mr. Hetfield will have something to say on the subject at the meeting this evening.

Mr. Hetfield felt very much the discourtesy shown him last Monday evening, when a new ordinance was introduced without first asking him about a similar one, which is now in the hands of the laws and ordinance committee.

A NEW SUPERINTENDENT.

First Baptist Teachers Unable to Choose a Leader.

The officers and teachers of the First Baptist church Sunday-school met last evening for the purpose of electing a new superintendent, but this purpose was not accomplished. George H. Batchelor, who is now acting superintendent, was nominated for the position, but absolutely declined. Other names were mentioned, but not one could be elected. The matter was finally laid over for two weeks. One other matter of business was transacted. It was to receive the report of the music committee. It was decided to do away with the Sunday-school orchestra for the present. No other business was taken up and the meeting adjourned for two weeks.

To Give a Benefit.

Greenbrook Council, Royal Arcanum, met last evening in regular session and received one application for membership. The Council has decided to give an entertainment for their own benefit in Washington Hall on the evening of October 25th. The committee who has the affair in charge consists of C. C. Davis, chairman; F. L. Cobb, George O. Stevens, Charles Wilson, Dr. B. VanD. Hedges. At the meeting last evening the members enjoyed a visit from the district deputy, Mr. Drummond, of Bound Brook.

Plaintiff Gone to Virginia.

Lillian Jones, colored, of West Third street, came before City Judge DeMeza with a serious charge against Olmstead Jackson, also colored, of Fanwood, a few weeks ago and the case was set down for yesterday afternoon for trial. Jackson was on hand at the appointed hour, but the girl was not. Inquiry showed that she had gone to Virginia last week to spend the winter, so Jackson was allowed to go on his own recognizance to appear Oct. 20th. By that time the authorities hope to have the plaintiff back in town.

A debate war started at the meeting of the Reform Club last night upon the attitude of the Bible in regard to the use of liquor. The subject of the debate was "Resolved, That the Prohibition Party Has an Ally in Bible Truths." John H. Sayres took the affirmative side and Noah W. Pike the negative. There was a large audience present, and the debate will be continued next week.

E. W. Mills and wife, of East Fifth street, left today for a visit in the country.

REGULAR LOVE FEAST IN EIGHTH DISTRICT.

Congressman Fowler Renominated by Acclimation.

BAYONNE WAS SOON IN LINE.

NOT AN OPPOSING VOTE TO THE PRESENT REPRESENTATIVE.

Plainfield Did Not Figure Conspicuously in the Convention—Mr. Fowler Nominated by William T. West, of Roselle—John Kean's Boom for the Senate Pushed Along—The Platform Adopted.

(Special to the Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Oct. 7—For the third consecutive time the Republicans of the Eight Congressional district have chosen Charles N. Fowler, of this city, for the nominee in the House of Representatives. The nomination made at the convention held in the Lyceum Theatre yesterday afternoon, was by acclimation, as had been anticipated.

Previous to the convention the Union county delegation met in the surrogate's office to hold a caucus. Charles N. Coding, of Westfield, presided, and George A. Squire was secretary. The county's honors were disposed of as follows:

Vice-president, Major George P. Edgar, of Rahway; secretary, Henry C. VanEmburg, of Plainfield; committee on rules, Frank E. Marsh, Plainfield; F. Bliss, Rahway; Charles H. Denman, Westfield; Geo. Wilcox, resolutions, George Hoyt, Westfield; Charles Foote, Plainfield; John D. Barr and George A. Squire, Elizabeth; credentials, William T. West, Roselle; J. W. Cliff, Summit; John W. Long, Elizabeth; Dr. Hough, Rahway; permanent organization, E. W. Austin, Cranford; Joseph N. Potter, Rahway; James W. Higgins, Union; W. H. Donaldson, Linden.

Dr. C. R. Holmes, of Rahway, was re-elected member of the congressional committee.

Mayor Holmes, of Rahway, called the convention to order at 3:30 o'clock, and suggested Postmaster Frank H. Melville, of Bayonne, for temporary chairman. The convention unanimously affirmed the choice.

T. Morris TenBroeck, of Bayonne, was made secretary.

It was decided to appoint one vice-president, one secretary and one member of the Congress committee from each county, and four members from Union, four from Essex and one from Hudson on each of the committees on resolutions, credentials, permanent organization and rules.

John Kean, ex-Mayor John C. Rankin and Amos Clark were invited to the platform, and were greeted with applause when they were escorted to the stage by a committee of the convention.

The committees were formed as follows:

Permanent Organization—E W. Austin, Joseph N. Potter, James W. Higgins and W. H. Donaldson, of Union; Robert Ward, H. L. Johnston, E. B. Taylor and C. W. English, of Essex, and Chas. H. Hosford, of Bayonne.

Credentials—Wm. T. West, J. W. Cliff, John W. Long and Dr. Hough, of Union; John Wander, W. J. Allen, F. B. Oaks and George Washburn, of Essex, and Alphonso S. Osborne, of Bayonne.

Rules—Frank Marsh, F. Bliss, Chas. H. Denman and George Wilcox, of Union; J. S. Spear, J. P. Ennis, L. P. Taylor and Amos Harrison, of Essex and John C. Royer, of Bayonne.

Resolutions—George B. Hoyt, Chas. Foot, John D. Barr and George A. Suire, of Union; E. F. Beakford, Edward Cheethem, George W. Peterson and C. H. Turrell, of Essex, and Samuel Graham, of Bayonne.

Congressional—Dr. C. B. Holmes, of Union; S. C. Martin, of Essex and Samuel Graham, of Bayonne.

The committee on organization reported the following permanent organization:

Chairman—Albert F. Skinner, of Essex.

Vice-chairman—Major George P. Edgar, of Union; Paul C. M. Barrett, of Essex, and C. I. Roake, of Bayonne.

Secretaries—H. H. VanEmberg, of Union; George B. Sherman, of Essex, and T. M. TenBroek, of Bayonne.

George B. Hoyt, of Westfield, reported the platform from the committee on Resolutions. It re-affirmed devotion to the principals of Republicanism as enunciated in the national convention, approved of President McKinley's administration and endorsed the Republican State platform. It noted with pride the place the Congressman Fowler had taken in Congress and commended his courageous and persistent efforts to se-

TO CURE NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Mean, Make a Test of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Interesting Experience of an Indianapolis Gentleman.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think that their nerves are to blame, are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines and spring remedies; the real seat of mischief is lost sight of; the stomach is the origin to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, not perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every other organ; in some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others, the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite, with the accumulation of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

Mr. A. W. Sharper, of No. 61 Prospect St., Indianapolis, Ind., writes as follows: "A motive of pure gratitude prompts me to write these few lines regarding the new and valuable medicine, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I have been a sufferer from nervous dyspepsia for the last four years; have used various patent medicines and other remedies without any favorable result. They sometimes gave temporary relief until the effects of the medicine wore off. I attributed this to my sedentary habits, being a bookkeeper with little physical exercise, but I am glad to state that the tablets have overcome all these obstacles, for I have gained in flesh, sleep better, and am better in every way. The above is written not for notoriety, but is based on actual facts."

Respectfully yours,
A. W. Sharper,
61 Prospect St., Indianapolis, Ind.

It is safe to say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headaches.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance for macadamizing Franklin Place between LaGrande Avenue and East Fifth Street," a copy of which is subjoined to this notice, has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt such ordinance at a special meeting of the Common Council to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 109 Park Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at eight o'clock p. m., on Monday, the twenty-fourth day of October, A. D., eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, at which time and place prior to the adoption of such ordinance, said ordinance will be considered by the Common Council, and all persons interested may be heard before the Common Council.

Dated, October 3, 1898.
By order of the Common Council.
JAMES T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

Ordinance referred to in foregoing notice:

AN ORDINANCE

for macadamizing Franklin Place between LaGrande Avenue and East Fifth Street.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the owners of lands, tenements or real estate fronting on Franklin place between the northwesterly crosswalk of LaGrande avenue and the southeasterly crosswalk of East Fifth street are hereby required to macadamize said portion of Franklin place above described on or before the fifteenth day of December, A. D., 1898, said macadamizing to be in every respect equal to the macadamizing on Madison avenue between West Sixth street and West Seventh street in said City.

Section 2. That said portion of Franklin place described in Section 1 of this ordinance shall be macadamized for a width of sixteen feet; that is to say, eight feet on each side of the centre line thereof, and a depth, running from six inches in the center to four inches at the sides, and the macadamizing preparation shall be laid down to the grade already established by ordinance for said portion of said street.

Section 3. That said macadamizing shall be done by the said owners of lands, tenements or real estate under the inspection and supervision of the Street Commissioner, provided, however, that if for any reason the property owners of said portion of said street shall fail to agree with the contractor or contractors as to the price for which said macadamizing shall be done within a period of thirty days after this ordinance shall become a law, then it shall be lawful for the Common Council to make the contract with the contractor or contractors and order the work done in accordance with the provisions of this ordinance and cause the amount of expenses for doing said work to be assessed upon said lands, tenements and real estate benefited by the same, in accordance with the valid statutes in such case made and provided.

Section 4. That all ordinances as far as they conflict with the provisions of this ordinance be and the same are hereby repealed.

FIGHTING THE INDIANS

Major Wilkinson and Six Privates Shot at Leach Lake.

SAVAGES LOST MANY LIVES

Details of Yesterdays Fighting The Attack of the Indians More Cowardly and Treacherous than at First Reported. Attempt to Kill the Pilots of the Steamer Flora.

Minneapolis, Oct. 7.—Further details received from Walker, Minn., the nearest point to the scene of the Chippewa Indian disturbances, are as follows: It was at first reported that the whole of General Bacon's force of eighty soldiers had been wiped out but this was later contradicted.

Major Wilkinson, six privates and one Indian policeman are dead.

Colonel Sheehan is slightly wounded.

Thirty Indians are dead.

The Minneapolis Journal dispatch boat returned from the battle ground yesterday morning and reported that there has been desperate fighting.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 7.—The Globe's staff correspondent at Walker, Minn., telegraphed early yesterday morning that Company B of the Third United States infantry, commanded by Major Wilkinson and Lieutenant Ross, and under charge of General Bacon, was ambushed and trapped by what is known as the Pillager tribe of Chippewa Indians at Bear island, about thirty miles from Walker, Wednesday. The attack was a complete surprise to the troops, and on the first volley four of the men were shot down.

Several Indians were seen about the few log houses on the shore, but when the troops landed on the island through the surf, which a gale and driving snow storm had piled upon Leech lake, all but one disappeared in the woods. On landing the soldiers proceeded to the house of Bog-Ah-Mah-Ge-Shig, or Bush Ear, the old chief whose attempted arrest caused the trouble, but the chief, who had threatened to kill the soldiers in case they should be sent after him, was not at home.

Marshal Sheehan, however, found Mah-Quod, a Pillager Indian, who was one of the twenty-two who rescued the Pillager chief some weeks ago, and placed him under arrest.

Mah Quod fought desperately, though the company of soldiers were drawn up in front of the place. It required the assistance of four soldiers to subdue the prisoner and place handcuffs on him. After Mah-Quod had been placed in the bow of the steamer Flora, the troops formed columns of two and marched around the island. A number of small Indian settlements were visited, and inquiries made for Indians for whom the marshal and his deputies had warrants.

Bog-Ah-Mah-Ge-Shig kept out of the way, as did the others of the tribe who were wanted.

A number of the leaders were talked to by General Bacon and Marshal O'Connor, and they professed friendship for the soldiers and promised to do what they could to have the members of the tribe whom the soldiers sought to give themselves up.

Several Indians were seen walking about the village with rifles in hand, but they were always at a distance and made no demonstration.

Two hours and a half were spent by the troops and the marshals in visiting the several settlements, and then the party started back for the landing place. Just in front of Bog-ah-Mah-Ge-Shig's hut a young Indian was arrested by Marshal Sheehan. The fellow answered to the name of Musietranie, and made no objection to his arrest. The company, minus a few guards on the steamer Flora, lined up with their backs to the lake and were put through a few evolutions by Major Wilkins.

The last order of the commanding officer to the soldiers before the Indian attack began was to unload their pieces. This was obeyed, and as the men rested arms a signal shot was heard. This was followed an instant later by a second one, and then a fusillade of shots was fired from the bushes and small timber by the Indians who were in ambush.

When the first shot was heard, it was supposed that one of the company in unloading his rifle had accidently discharged it. The second shot created surprise, and when the volley was fired by the Indians from their point of vantage, the company for a minute was panic stricken. It was only for a moment, however, and then the voice of General Bacon was heard cautioning the men to be cool and steady.

Major Wilkinson repeated the caution, and the soldiers sought shelter. Volley after volley was fired by the Indians, whose location could only be determined by the smoke of their rifles.

The company, at the command of Major Wilkinson, deployed as skirmishers, and poured volley after volley into the brush from their Krag-Jorgensen rifles.

For the first five minutes the Indians fired with much regularity, but after that only when there was a chance to do execution when a soldier showed himself.

At twelve o'clock the Indians turned their attention to the two steamers, and took particular pains to shoot at the pilots. They were very skilfull and Marshal O'Connor, who was on the steamer Flora, gave orders to put out in the lake and head for Walker.

This was done, and the last seen of the soldiers and marshals they were crouched under shelter at the bank of the lake, protected from the fire of the Indians.

As the Flora steamed out into the lake a rifle bullet passed through the side of the pilot house and struck Edward Harris in the left arm, shattering it and making amputation necessary. Bullets flew thick and fast, but no other person was hit, although the sides and deck of the steamer were struck frequently with bullets.

The steamer Chief followed the same course as the Flora immediately after Indian Inspector Tinker, the only passenger on board, had been shot in the left forearm and right leg.

Marshal O'Connor proceeded by boat to the old Indian agency, and, driving to the new agency building, notified Lieutenant Humphreys of the attack. From the agency building Walker is about nine miles.

Reinforcements Sent.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 7.—A special train left Fort Snelling at 7.40 yesterday morning with Companies B, F and H, under command of Lieutenant Colonel Harbach of the Third infantry. It will be rushed to the front.

There are 200 picked men in the detachment, and they have three days' rations and an abundance of ammunition.

A Gatling gun is part of the equipment, and further reinforcements will be kept ready to start at a moment's notice.

A car was attached to the Northern Pacific for the use of newspaper correspondents. Additional representatives were sent by all the Twin City papers.

The sending of the train was in accordance with a telegram from Adjutant General Corbin to Lieutenant Colonel Sturgis, assistant adjutant general for the Department of Dakota.

THE SITUATION IN CHINA.

The Foreign Ministers Urged Not to Increase Their Legation Guards.

Pekin, Oct. 7.—The three principal ministers of the Tsung-li-Yamen visited the foreign legations yesterday in an effort to persuade the ministers to rescind the orders they have issued for an increase in the strength of their guards.

The Chinese ministers say that the presence here of the foreign soldiers is likely to exasperate the Pekin populace, which is now quiet.

It is reported that the Taotai of Tientsin has refused to allow the passage of rapid fire guns to Pekin, except on the authority of the Tsung-li-Yamen.

The European ministers held a conference yesterday on the escort question.

Chang-yin-Houan, the exiled member of the Tsung-li-Yamen, and opponent of Li Hung Chang, who has been disgraced on the charge of conspiracy against the dowager empress, started yesterday for thte place of exile. He was in excellent spirits, and hopes that he will be reinstated in office at no far distant date.

A few cases of mud throwing have been reported, but they are merely the acts of idlers and vagabonds. A proclamation will be issued threatening the infliction of capital punishment upon any person insulting Europeans. It is now considered likely that there will be no further disturbances of the peace.

THE PRESIDENT'S ITINERARY.

Washington, Oct. 7.—The following is the itinerary of the president's trip to Omaha:

He will leave Washington Monday, October 10, at 9 a. m., and arrive at Chicago Tuesday morning. He will leave Chicago the same morning and, making short stops at Clinton, Cedar Rapids, Marshalltown and Boone, Ia., will arrive at Omaha at 8.20 p. m. He will spend Wednesday at Omaha, leaving there at 9.30 a. m. on Thursday. Short stops will be made at Creston, Ottumwa, and Burlington, Ia., and Monmouth and Galesburg, Ill.

He will arrive at St. Louis at 9 a. m. Friday, spending the day there, and leaving in the evening. He will arrive at Terre Haute at 8.30 a. m. Saturday, and make a short stop.

He will arrive at Arcola, Ill., at 11.30 a. m., and at Chicago at 5 p. m. Saturday. He will remain at Chicago Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and will leave there at 11 p. m. on the 20th, with a short stop at Noblesville, Ind.

He will arrive at Indianapolis at 9.30 a. m., and leave there at 10.30 a. m.; arrive at Cincinnati at 1.30 p. m., and leave at 1.45 p. m.; arrive at Columbus at 5 p. m., and leave at 8.30 p. m.; arrive at Pittsburg at 1 a.m., on the 22d, and arrive at Washington at 4 p. m. that day.

Floods in the Hoosick Valley.

Troy, N. Y., Oct. 7.—One of the worst floods that has ever visited this region struck Hoosick valley Wednesday afternoon, when damage to the amount of many thousands of dollars was done by the storm.

At Hoosick Falls the damage to the streets is estimated at ten thousand dollars.

Many buildings were washed away, foundations undermined, streets and sidewalks caved in, doing from $50,000 to $100,000 damage.

The torrent rushed along to North Hoosick, carrying away the electric railway track, and leaving a gorge 20 to 30 feet deep.

The tracks of the Fitchburg railroad were washed away in many places and passengers were transferred around the chasms.

At North Pawnall, Vt., a bad washout occurred.

Near Eagle Bridge engine 156 of the Fitchburg railroad went into the river with one flat car. The engineer and fireman escaped by jumping.

Chicago Peace Jubilee.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—The peace jubilee will open in the Auditorium at 10.30 o'clock on Tuesday, October 18.

George R. Peck will preside, and Mayor Harrison will deliver the address of welcome.

Speakers at other meetings will be Archbishop Ireland, Booker T. Washington, Judge Emory Speer, General James H. Wilson, Senator William B. Allison, Clark Howell, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, John G. Carlisle, W. Bourke Cochran, Samuel Gompers, General Henry M. Duffield and General A. R. Chaffee.

Commissioners at Versailles.

Paris, Oct. 7.—The United States peace commission held an hour's session yesterday morning, after which at 10 o'clock the commissioners were the guests of Ambassador Porter, who took them by coach to Versailles.

Light Registration in Kentucky.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 7.—Additional reports from the registration in Kentucky towns confirm the first dispatches, that the registration in nearly every instance shows a large falling off from that of the last two years. The Gold Democrats have no separate organization this year.

The Bride's New Home.

I must say that I was very tired tramping from store to store without coming to a conclusion where to buy. We saw some things we liked in one store and other things we liked in other stores, but there didn't seem to be any one store in which we could buy to our entire satisfaction until we reached Hahne & Co.'s.

I never enjoyed such a half day in my life. Everything was so new and bright that I was afraid we would be hampered in making a choice. It's apt to be that way, you know, when so many good things are spread before you, but when we settled down to work, we found buying a real pleasure.

The choice of carpets puzzled us not a little. There were so many new and pretty patterns to choose from that we, Harry, Emma and I, were forced to take a vote on the carpet for each room. Sometimes I was on Harry's side and sometimes on Emma's.

For Emma's room we selected an all-wool filling cotton chain ingrain at forty-eight cents a yard, and for the spare room an all-wool ingrain, the best made, at sixty cents. For the parlor we decided upon a very pretty velvet carpet at eighty-five cents a yard, and for the dining-room a Smyrna rug at $18.95. For the hall and stairs we chose Brussels at sixty-five cents a yard.

I fairly went wild over Hahne & Co.'s upholstery department. I never had seen such a beautiful collection of curtains, and I don't believe another State in the world can match it. For the bedrooms we bought bright ruffled bobinet curtains at $2.75 a pair. We put them up in that fascinating cross style, using two rods, and drawing them back into silk loops that cost 10 cents a pair.

The curtains for the dining room were the Renaissance effect at $2.25 a pair. In the parlor we put up Irish Point Lace Curtains with an exceptionally deep heavy border in cushion work. They cost us $5.98 pair. We draped them with silk lambrequins at top, white corrugated pole and corrugated trimmings to match.

The furniture department next engaged our attention. When we stepped from the elevator into this beautiful section of Hahne & Co.'s store we were—well, I put it mildly by saying we were amazed. The arrangement of furniture is, as Hahne & Co. truthfully say, "The handsomes in the world."

For Harry's and Emma's room we picked out a bird's eye maple suit for $35. It is a gem. For the spare room we went a little higher and selected a lovely brass bed at $35, and made an exquisite contrast by adding a curly birch bureau at $22, and a toilet table at $20, a total of $77.

For the parlor we purchased a silk velour and inlaid mahogany frame suit of five pieces for which we paid only $50. For the dining room we bought an eight-foot oak extension table for $15, a sideboard for $25, a china closet for $15 and six leather seat chairs for $24, costing in all $79. A hall rack cost us $12, and $15 was the price we paid for a hall settee.

Last week Harry and Emma moved into their new home, and in honor of the event they gave a house warming. The Jiltons, the Graysons, the Petervilles and other fashionable people were there, and all declared that it was the prettiest, coziest little nest for a bride they had seen in many a long day.

Notice is hereby given that an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance for macadamizing East Sixth Street between Watchung Avenue and Richmond Street excepting where already macadamized," a copy of which is subjoined to this notice, has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt such ordinance at a special meeting of the Common Council to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 109 Park Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at eight o'clock p. m., on Monday, the twenty-fourth day of October, A. D., eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, at which time and place prior to the adoption of such ordinance, said ordinance will be considered by the Common Council, and all persons interested may be heard before the Common Council.

Dated, October 3, 1898.
By order of the Common Council,
JAMES T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

Ordinance referred to in foregoing notice:

AN ORDINANCE

for macadamizing East Sixth Street between Watchung Avenue and Richmond Street excepting where already macadamized.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the owners of lands, tenements or real estate fronting on East Sixth Street between the Northeasterly curb line of Watchung Avenue and the Southwesterly curb line of Richmond Street, excepting that portion of said street already macadamized between Washington Street and Franklin place, are hereby required to macadamize said portion of East Sixth Street above described on or before the fifteenth day of December, A. D., 1898, said macadamizing to be in every respect equal to the macadamizing on Madison Avenue between West Sixth Street and West Seventh Street in said City.

Section 2. That said portion of said East Sixth street described in Section 1 of this ordinance shall be macadamized for a width of sixteen feet, that is to say, eight feet on each side of the center line thereof, and a depth running from six inches at the centre to four inches at the sides, and the macadamizing preparation shall be laid down to the grade already established by ordinance for said portion of said street.

Section 3. That said macadamizing shall be done by the said owners of lands, tenements or real estate under the inspection and supervision of the Street Commissioner, provided, however, that if for any reason the property owners of said portion of said street shall fail to agree with the contractor or contractors as to the price for which said macadamizing shall be done within a period of thirty days after this ordinance shall become a law, then it shall be lawful for the Common Council to make the contract with the contractor or contractors and order the work done in accordance with the provisions of this ordinance and cause the amount of expenses for doing said work to be assessed upon said lands, tenements and real estate benefitted by the same in accordance with the valid statutes in such case made and provided.

Section 4. That all ordinances as far as they conflict with the provisions of this ordinance be and the same are hereby repealed.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that an ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance for macadamizing East Ninth Street between Park Avenue and Watchung Avenue," a copy of which is subjoined to this notice, has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt such ordinance at a special meeting of the Common Council to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 109 Park avenue, in the city of Plainfield, N. Plainfield, N. J., Oct. 3d, 1898.

AN ORDINANCE

to vacate an unnamed and unaccepted street on property of William H. Moore on West Front Street.

Whereas, It is alleged that the hereinafter described unnamed street shown only by parallel lines on a map filed in Union County Clerk's office, although never opened or accepted by the City, was in fact dedicated as a street; and

Whereas, William H. Moore is the sole owner of the fee and of all property abutting anywhere on said proposed street, and has applied to the Common Council of said City to vacate said street, pursuant to Chapter CXXXIII. P. L. 1888, and other laws governing the matter, and it is to the interest of the City that such street should be vacated:

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

That the unnamed street, marked on map entitled "Map of West End Park, City of Plainfield, N. J., property of Moore and Rocap, Mar. 1894," on file in the office of the Clerk of Union County, New Jersey, in Map Box No. 117, which street begins on property of said William H. Moore, at a point in the Northwesterly side-line of West Front Street two hundred and three and ninety one-hundredths feet (203.90) along said side-line of West Front street, Northeasterly from the property belonging to Christian Sprich, and thence running Northwesterly and curving Westerly until it strikes the property-line of said Christian Sprich, three hundred and ninety-four and sixty-four one-hundredths feet (394.64), measured along his boundary line from the side-line of West Front Street, said street being about fifty-one feet (51) wide, be and the same is hereby vacated, pursuant to the Acts of the Legislature in such case made and provided.

WAR INVESTIGATION

Gen. Boynton Blames the Regimental Commanders.

DISEASE AT CAMP THOMAS

Food Was Good. Hospitals Were Overcrowded. It Was Much Worse After Gen. Brooke's Attention Was Turned to Porto Rican Campaign, No Reflection Upon Any Officer.

Washington, ct. 7.—The examination of General H. V. Boynton, concerning Camp Thomas, was continued before the war investigating commission yesterday.

Governor Beaver asked who was at fault if the campw as crowded.

"If such was the case," was the reply, "the fault was that of the regimental and brigade commanders, as the details were left to them."'

General Dodge read a complaint purporting to be from a soldier of a New York regiment, saying that coffee was issued green to the troops, and then poorly browned; that the meat was tainted and inferior, and that no vegetables but onions and potatoes were supplied, and that none of the food was palatable.

General Boynton said that so far as he knew the coffee was not issued green.

"There is no foundation for any reasonable complaint in regard to the food. It was brought to the army in refrigerator cars and I heard of but two cases in which the meat was spoiled," said General Boynton.

He had inspected the camp of the Eighth New York, because of complaints by Surgeon Terry, and found it very clean and in every respect in good order, except that the sinks were too near the tents.

General Dodge also read a letter purporting to come from the chaplain of the Eighth New York, the Rev. Dr. James Dooley, saying the camp was a "hell on earth, and that war would be a paradise compared to this place, as for the food, it is rotten."

General Boynton stated that he did not wish to take issue with a chaplain, but after explaining that the Rev. Dr. Dooley had occupied ents in the headquarters yard, said:

"If they saw such things as they said they did, they were the only ones who did. Their stories were of a sensational character that would do credit to a dime novel."

He said their complaints were directed especially at the hospital of the Second division of the Third army corps.

General Boynton also replied to charges by Surgeon Milo B. Ward of Kansis City, ho said in a letter to the commission that the camp was without drainage, that the water was unfit to drink, that there was no proper food and that all of the forty-five thousand men in the camp were suffering from intestinal diseases.

Surgeon Wood declared that the hospitals were overcrowded and that many soldiers had starved to death and many more would have starved to death but for the attention of the Red Cross and other societies of the same character.

General Boynton expressed his acquaintance with these complaints from Ward, who went about the hotels talking in this line. Nothing could be more exaggerated than such representation, said the general. Of course, in so large a camp some painful things must necessarily happen. For instance, when measles broke out the hospitals were quite crowded. "But to say that there was any purposely inflicted neglect is," he declared, "as false as it is possible to be."

General Boynton attributed the prevalence of disease to the exposure of the regimental kitchen and hospital sinks. These had, he said, in the latter part of the camp's history, been left uncovered by earth, as was directed by the order of the surgeon general, and this fact, more than all others, he considered responsible for the spread of disease.

The trouble began, he said, after General Brooke was ordered to Washington. Prior to that time General Brooke required daily reports from the regimental officers and prompt attention to any neglect of sanitary precautions.

This system and the care which accompanied it had the effect of keeping the camp in good condition. When General Brooke left for Washington the camp was necessarily in charge of subordinate officers. When General Brooke returned his time was devoted almost entirely to preparations for the Porto Rico campaign, so that he could not give so much heed to sanitary regulations as he had previously done.

General Boynton said that he did not mean to make any reflection upon officers from civil life, but there were some things which they had to learn, and many of them were not experts in sanitation.

Furthermore, most people looked upon the camp as purely temporary, and the fact that all were in daily expectation of receiving orders to move caused many to be indifferent to the future.

Torpedo Boat Contracts.

Washington, ct. .—The Bath Iron Company of Bath, Me., has notified the department that it will accept the contract for the three torpedo boats which were awarded to that concern about a fortnight ago.

These boats are the Bagley, named after the late Ensign Bagley, killed at Cardenas; the Barney and the Biddle, and the price to be paid for them is $161,000 each.

The delay in finally placing the contract has been owin gto the fact that the specifications submitted by the Bath company omitted several matters regarded as essential by the navy department.

The company has finally consented to include these, and the contract has been awarded as above stated.

Disorders in Paris.

Paris, ct. 7.—There were a number of affrays here yesterday between the police and strikers belonging to the building trades. The troops are keeping order in several districts and it is reported that a striker has been killed in the Vaugirard quarter.

OCCUPATION OF CUBA

General Lee To Command in Havana.

TROOPS WELL CARED FOR

The Movements to Begin About Oct. 27. Prompt Evacuation Expected by the Commissioners. Camp Sites Will Be Chosen. The Shipment of Stores Has Already Begun.

Washington, Oct. 7.—It has been decided to have a general movement of the army about October 27. All the camps in the United States will meanwhile have been selected, and troops will occupy them for the winter, except in cases where orders have been issued for service in Cuba. General Lee, who is here, will have command of the force in Havana, and the war department is advised that this movement may take place within two weeks. General Wade has informed the secretary of war of the progress of the work of the Havana commission, and reports that indications point to a prompt evacuation of Western Cuba by the Spanish forces.

The board, of which Colonel Hecker and Colonel Waring are members, will proceedto Havana at once and select sites for camps.

By the time General Lee's command is landed everything will be in readiness to receive the troops, who will be quartered comfortably at places chosen with a view to the sanitary and climatic conditions.

The supply departments are already engaged in the shipment of stores and a system of distribution has been inaugurated calculated to assure the soldiers of full rations at all times.

The order to beiss ued to-day in regard to the reorganized military force contemplates dividing the army into four corps, one of which will be General Lee's, and will be sent, as already stated, to Cuba at once.

Colonel Valery Harvard, chief surgeon under Shafter, and later under Lawton at Santiago, has been summoned to Washington. His testimony is desired by the surgeon general before the war inquiry commission.

Dr. Harvard is one of the best known of army surgeons. At Santiago he succeeded Surgeon John Pope, who was relieved on account of illness, and is in a position to furnish data in defence of Surgeon General Sternberg.

Discharging of Volunteers.

Washington, Oct. 7.—The war department has found it necessary to make the orders more emphatic in regard to the method to be used by volunteer soldiers in applying for discharge from the service. The following order has been issued:

"Enlisted men of the regular and volunteer army who desire to procure a discharge from the United States service should address a letter to the adjutant general of the army, setting forth the reasons upon which they base their applications, and hand or mail it to the captain of their company, who in turn is required to forward it through regimental, brigade and division headquarters with his recommendation. Applications that do not come up in this manner will not be entertained.

"All applications must be forwarded immediately, approved or disapproved, as provided in A. R. 765.

"Soldiers transferred from one regiment to another, and soldiers going on furlough, other than sick furlough in hospitals, perform the journey at their own expense and cannot be furnished government transportation."

Sale of Reading Road.

Poughkeepsie, Oct. 7.—Referee Pierre M. Brown sold at foreclosure at the court house yesterday afternoon the Philadelphia, Reading and New England Railroad, including the railroad itself, the rights and privileges of the Poughkeepsie bridge that rest in the road, the lease of the Hartford and Connecticut Western road and 13,000 shares of the stock of the leased road, owned by and pledged by the Pennsylvania, Reading and New England road.

The purchaser was Thomas Tatcher, acting for Arthur Brock, John Sailer and H. O. Sexias, the purchasing committee for the reorganization committee.

Mr. Tatcher ran the bidding up to $3,807,000, at which figure his opponent, R. A. Meir, dropped out, and the property was declared by the referee sold to Tatcher. Tatcher deposited with the referee a check for $160,000 to bind the sale.

Frenchman Hints at War.

Paris, Oct. 7.—General Lambert in a communication to Le Matin accuses Colonel Schwartzkopken, formerly military attache to the German embassy, of being the prime mover in the present Dreyfus crisis and asks if war is the object sought by him and his instigators.

He says that he does not think that they want war, but in any event France does not fear it, as her war material is superior to that of Germany.

The police have seized copies of La Reforme, containing an article which is held by the authorities to be insulting to President Faure, and copies of the Berlin Humoristische Blatter caricaturing M. Faure, have also been confiscated by the police.

Philip to Succeed Howell.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Admiral Howell has been relieved from the command of the North Atlantic squadron and his flagship, the San Francisco, has been ordered out of commission at Norfolk.

The command of the squadron devolves upon Commodore Philip, whose flagship, the New York, is now at the Brooklyn navy yard.

Fight Declared Off.

New York, Oct. 7.—George Considine, Corbett's manager, and William Gray, acting for Kid McCoy, met yesterday afternoon. A letter was read from the manager of the Hawthorne Athletic Club at Buffalo refusing to have the fight there. The result was that the fight was declared off.

Olympic Games at Paris In 1900.

The revival of the ancient Greek games at Athens in 1896 was a thought at once unique and valuable. The Olympic festival, occurring every four years, was held by all Hellenes in every Mediterranean country as the most sacred thing in the race life, and it powerfully drew their eyes and hearts to the common home. Consecrated by divine sanction, the Olympic season at once declared truce to all warring Greeks, and peace then reigned throughout Hellas. No other influence so welded Greece together and so made its commonwealths feel the thrill of a common blood and a common ideal. The modern recrudescence lacks nearly everything which made the ancient festival an organic outgrowth of life. But it does not lack in timely suggestion. The recent announcement of the programme of the games by the international committee includes nearly every kind of prominent athletic amusement and exercise involved in our modern habits and will at once engage the attention of expectant competitors.

This international festival of athletics, for this is what it is proposed to become, may attain a strong influence, which will help to bind the world together in ties of future peace. Regarding modern civilized humanity as a greater Hellas, for the world's finest culture came from this source, there is something striking in the thought of the new Olympic festival, which will be moved, however, from city to city instead of being sacredly guarded at one. The trend of recent startling movements has been toward the establishment of universal peace and of safeguards for its continuance. Humanity longs for such a panacea to its manifold wars, and the disposition to put that into operation has been made manifest in startling fashion. Everything which can converge to that end is full of significance. It is one way to look at the new Olympic games. Even as the great Elian festival drew the hearts of all Greeks together in love and covered the sympathy of blood and ideal so perhaps this new Olympian gathering for international rivalry in friendly exploits may be a binding link in the great peace chain. Should it prove to exert such a manifest influence the name of King George of the Hellenes as a world's benefactor, for to his inspiration the project to connect ancient and modern life in this fashion was due, will survive all the mediocrities of his reign.

These are prosperous times for Uncle Sam. And for once the politicians are paying for it out of their own pockets and are obliged to run their chances of getting any return. According to the internal revenue law certificates of nomination require a ten cent stamp affixed to them. Those eminent citizens who don't care a cent for a public office will no doubt keep out of the fight now—if they are defeated at the start.

It is now stated that Governor Voorhees will surely resign next Tuesday, when he will leave the executive chamber in the State capitol to await the news on election night. Whom Mr. Voorhees will succeed as Governor—if he succeeds at all—still remains an open question. From recent experience it is a hard thing to tell who is going to be Governor tomorrow.

Another blow to the fame of New Jersey. The Republicans are going over to New York to get Chauncey Depew to come here and deliver a speech for Voorhees. Why don't the G. O. P. trot out some of the native orators. We've got plenty of them.

THE CELEBRATED DREYFUS CASE.

The disclosures made by Colonel Picquart and his dramatic declaration that he did not intend to commit suicide while in prison were new sensations in the Dreyfus case. All France is stirred up over the matter and every important episode in connection therewith is vividly recalled by the people. The government's decision to grant Captain Dreyfus a new trial has increased the excitement.

And now again Sheriff Kirk will have the pleasant duty of trying to provide invitations to some two or three hundred men who want to see Roesel executed, when the law allows only thirty-eight to witness the grewsome event.

Welcome to the Naval Reserves! Without them New Jersey would scarcely have been heard of in the late unpleasantness.

The most interesting and puzzling question in politics now is, who is going to do battle against Fowler in the Eighth?

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The Plainfield Republicans expect to be able to form a combine with the supporters of Robert Houston, of Elizabeth, so that the nomination of Ernest Ackerman for Senator from Union county to succeed Governor Voorhees will be accomplished. Houston is a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff next year, and if the deal goes through it is likely that he will get Plainfield's support for that office in return for help to the Ackerman candidacy.—Newark News.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

There are many ways in which some persons appear ridiculous, but an incident related a few days ago is probably the winner thus far. A prominent Plainfield woman called at the local telephone office and meeting Manager Runyon asked if he would be so kind as to find her husband for her. She said that he was in New York, but did not know exactly where. She was sure that most anyone would know precisely where her husband was, and if he would only make inquiries he could easily be found. Mr. Runyon, although being capable of doing many things, could not possibly tell the woman where to find her husband, and he told her that New York is a very large city. The woman was quite persistent, and wanted the manager to ask the New York operator where her husband was, saying that she was positive that she would know. After Mr. Runyon explained all the little details about such matters, the woman walked out of the office with a dignity that clearly evidenced that she thought telephones are no good.

DR. BRETT'S TALK.

were present last night.

The anniversary was in charge of a special committee consisting of Miss Mabel Wilson, chairman; and Mrs. J. M. Tier, Mrs. F. C. Adams, Edgar Sheppard and Henry Seader. They were responsible for the good time and the pretty decorations, simple but effective, around the platform and reading desk. They were assisted in passing coffee and cake by the members of the social committee, Mrs. H. J. Martin, Miss Bertha Richards, Miss Corinne Young and Miss Jennie Ross; the reception committee, E. E. Anthony, A. L. Force, Miss Grace Berg, Miss Lottie Wilson, Miss Lillian Force, H. J. Martin, Jr., Edgar Sheppard and Hiram Humes; and the flower committee, Miss Maud VanDyke, Miss Martha Anthony, Miss Minnie Berg, Miss Nettie Young, Miss Gertrude Tier and Fred Ross.

Invitations were sent to all the societies in the local Union and the invitations were generally accepted. There were many strangers present. A stage load came from Marconier chapel and another from Washingtonville. There were also Endeavorers present from New Market and Dunellen. Among them was Rev. Mr. Jones, from Marconier, who offered prayer.

Newsy Notes of More or Less Importance Bunched Together for the Ready Reference of Press Readers

—Watchung Court, Independent Order of Foresters, met Wednesday night and took in two new members. The organizer was there, and a good time was enjoyed by all.

—Neuman Bros., the grocers, have received some delicious Jersey peaches from Sussex county which they are selling very reasonable, considering the quality of the fruit.

—Miss Jenkins wishes to announce that she has again opened her parlor millinery at 303 East Sixth street, and would be pleased to receive calls from her many friends and customers.

—Ten thousand dollars worth of fall and winter clothing is offered by the New York Clothing Company in their new advertisement in this issue of The Press at about one-third of the wholesale price.

—Mrs. Schorb has just opened a new employment office at 115 East Front street, where persons in search of good reliable help can obtain such. Mrs. Schorb will only furnish first-class help. Her advertisement appears in another part of the paper.

—Variety in shoes this years is beyond all precedent. Doane & Edsall say their long experience in the trade has been of great value to them in selecting "taking" styles for fall and winter. Their business relations with the leading factories afford them peculiar advantages which enable them to guarantee to their patrons the latest and very best that is offered, and at the very lowest prices. They are reliable sure.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Headed by Carter and Gates, the funny farce called "Our Husbands," introducing the unique four, Tom Carter, Mattie Downing, Harry Gates and Grace Hamilton will be at Music Hall tonight. Others in the company are Mounting and Neff, refined singing and dancing artists, Miss Ethel LeVan, the prima donna soprano, Kennedy and Hayes, the up-to-date parodies, Miss Darrel, the wonderful baritone singer, and Deterello and Clemmenso, European musical artists in one of the most novel and original musical acts on the stage. The performance concludes with the comic operetta Honolulu, introducing the entire company in the cast including Prof. Simons Brass Band of ten soloists. There will be a ladies and children matinee Saturday afternoon at which the prices will be: children ten cents, adults twenty-five cents.

New York can always be depended upon to furnish a theatrical bill of fare in which something may be found that will put fat on the skinniest bones and pump laughter out of the driest old codger that ever lived. This year it has the surest shot of this kind that it has yet offered. Its chief fun maker and the recognized king of American farce-writers is Charles Hoyt. He contributes annually a great deal to the merriment of the metropolis as the long runs of his "Trip to Chinatown" and his "A Black Sheep," etc., attest. All of Mr. Hoyt's work is good and can be relied upon to make his large clientele merry. This years musical farce is entitled "A Day and a Night" and is the report of the doings of a New Jersey man in New York. A dozen new songs, as many more of the prettiest and shapeliest girls that ever graced the footlights, a strong array of clever character comedians headed by Olis Harlan and Wm. Devere, lots of catchy music and hundreds of laugh-laden witticisms are employed in the telling of this jolly button-bursting story. For nearly three hours there is an uninterrupted flow of merriment, dance and song, and by reason of all its delightful qualities it has made a deserved glorious success at the Garrick Theatre, where it will celebrate its fiftieth performance Oct. 19th.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Westfield, October 7.—A most delightful musical was given in the Westfield Club hall last evening by the pupils of Mrs. E. Hart, which was attended by about three hundred of Westfield's best people. The pupils were assisted by the Shelley Male Quartette, of New York. Among those who took part were: Miss Bessie Morris and Mrs. Hart, Miss Florence Miller, Misses Fink, Alice Evans, Crane, Wright, Teller, Clarke, Brewer, Johnston, Mooney, Sebring and Reid.

The game of baseball which was to have been played between the married men and the single men on the Broad street grounds tomorrow afternoon has been postponed, as the field will be used by the Westfield football team in a game with the team from the Viking Field Club, of Bayonne.

The regular montly meeting of the Board of Health will be held this evening in the township rooms at 7:30, and at 8 o'clock the Township Committee will hold a meeting.

cure financial legislation.

Upon the call of townships, towns, boroughs and cities, Bayonne announced that its poll had resulted in a vote of 13 for Fowler and 4 blanks. After that each response was "Fowler!" the municipalities falling into line as rapidly as the secretary would call the roll. When Roselle was called William T. West took the floor, and was called to the platform. He made a speech rehearsing the party principles and achievements, and closed by nominating Mr. Fowler.

There was vigorous and prolonged cheering, and when order was restored Robert Ward, of Essex, moved that the rules be suspended and that Mr. Fowler be nomindted by acclamation. He said that, although from Essex, he took great pleasure in crowning Mr. Fowler with his county's entire approbation.

Charles E. Annett announced that in the interests of harmony and goodwill Bayonne cast its whole vote for Mr. Fowler.

Mr. McConnell, of Bayonne, made a speech in seconding the nomination of Mr. Fowler.

The motion was then carried with a cheer.

After Jonn Kean had been called to the stage and delivered a few remarks Mr. Fowler appeared and was given an ovation by the delegates. He thanked the delegates for the renomination and expressed appreciation of the intelligence and influence of the people who made up the Eighth district, and after promising to his best if elected again he devoted some time to the State campaign and ended by advocating the election of John Kean to the United States Senate in place of James Smith.

The convention then adjourned.

The VIIth District includes all of the county of Essex except Newark and East Orange, the County of Union and the city of Bayonne, in Hudson County. In 1894 Mr. Fowler was elected by a plurality of 6,236 over Dunn, and in 1896 he defeated Willey with a plurality of 11,644.

Specials for Tomorrow.

Ladies' Cloth Skirts. Ladies' Muslin Underwear. The sale of Silks, the sale of Muslin Underwear, the sale of Medium Weight Underwear for Ladies and Men, the sale of Granite Iron Ware, all of them are well worth your while to investigate.

Oil Heaters.

Silks.

We place on sale tomorrow one thousand yards of fine rich Silks, bought from the leading Silk house in the country at half their usual price, every piece is of this season's production and the reason for their great cheapness is that they are in short lengths, enough for a skirt or waist, value from $1.25 to $2.00 per yard. We ask only 79c. the yard.

THE SUNDAY LESSON.

INTERNATIONAL SERIES, WITH COMMENTARY BY DR. STEARNS.

Golden Text.—In all thy ways acknowledge Him and He shall direct thy paths.—Prov. iii: 6. Oct. 9, 1898.

1. "And Jeosaphat, his son, reigned in his stead and strengthened himself against Israel." Israel, or the ten tribes, had proved themselves to be the enemies of God, and to stand with God means to stand against his enemies (Jas. iv, 4). How great the contrast in chapter xviii, 1, where we see Jehosaphat joining affinity with Ahab, the king of Israel, and thus necessitating the rebuke of the Lord in chapter xix, 2, "Shouldest thou help the ungodly and love them that hate the Lord?" To be for God at all times and under all circumstances is a rare thing and is seen perfectly only in the Lord Jesus Christ.

2. "And he placed forces in all the fenced cities of Judah." Every king was king for the Lord (II Chron. ix, 8), and his strength was to be in the Lord and not in horses and chariots (Deut. xvii, 16). When we put our trust in things visible we are apt to cease to see and rely upon God (Jer. xvii, 5). This is a constant temptation and a snare. The Lord is often proving us, as he did Philip, and we, like Philip, venture to suggest to him how it might be done, but all the while he himself knows what he will do (John vi, 5-7). When we obediently and trustfully, under God's guidance, make ordinary provision all is well. The difficulty is when we cease to see God.

3. "And the Lord was with Jehosaphat." This is the secret of all blessing. The Lord was with Joseph (Gen. xxxix, 2, 3, 21, 23). The Lord was with David (II Sam. v, 10). His comfort to Moses, Joshua, Gideon and Jeremiah was the assurance that he was with them (Ex. iii, 12; Josh, i, 5; Judg. vi, 16; Jer. i, 8). So when the Lord Jesus sent his followers into all the world the greatest encouragement he could give them was his assurance: "All power is given unto me in heaven and on earth. Go ye, therefore, and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the age" (Math. xxviii, 18-20).

4. "He sought to the Lord God of his father and walked in his commandments." It is written of Zacharias and Elizabeth that they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless (Luke i, 6). God had said to Israel that if they would obey his voice and keep his covenant, they would be a peculiar treasure unto him above all people (Ex. xix, 5) and in Titus ii, 14 (R. V.) it is written that he gave himself for us to redeem us from all iniquity and purify unto himself a people for his own possession, zealous of good works.

5. "Therefore the Lord established the kingdom in his hand." Joshua was told that if he would observe to do according to all the law, his way would be prosperous and he would have good success (Joshua i, 7, 8). In II Chron. xx, 20, Jehoshaphat is heard saying to the people, "Believe in the Lord your God, so shall ye be established," and in Isa. vii, 9, is the contrast, "If ye will not believe, surely ye shall not be established." In God and in his word is the only establishment, for all else shall be shaken. Wherefore we receiving a kingdom which cannot be shaken let us have grace whereby we may serve God, acceptably with reverence and godly fear, for our God is a consuming fire (Heb. xii, 28, 29).

6. "And his heart was lifted up in the ways of the Lord." The margin says that he was encouraged in the ways of the Lord; those who seek to walk in the way of the Lord shall not lack encouragement to continue therein. There will be many a handful dropped for us on purpose to lead us in his way (Ruth ii, 16). They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength, they shall mount up with wings as eagles (Isa. xl, 31). The way of the Lord was so atttractive and enjoyable that the way of the world and the devil became distasteful and the high places and groves were taken away. We cannot walk with God unless we humble ourselves so to do and make up our minds to be agreed with him (Mic. vi, 8; Amos iii, 3).

7. "Also in the third year of his reign he sent to his princes to teach in the cities of Judah." What a suggestive foreshadowing of the time when "A king shall reign in righteousness and princes shall rule in judgment, and the work of righteousness shall be peace and the effect of righteousness, quietness and assurance forever" (Isa. xxxii, 1, 17). There cannot be anything more important than that men should know the Lord and his ways, and when kings and princes take up this as their mission, the kingdom will either have come or be very near. Just now our government has given $50,000,000 for defense, for the purchase or manufacture of warships or war material, but was it ever heard that any government ever gave even $1,000,000 to make known the living God?

8. "And with them Levites and priests." The priest's lips should keep knowledge, and they should seek the law at his mouth, for he is the messenger of the Lord of hosts (Mal. ii, 7). Their calling is simply set forth in II Chron. xxix, 11, in these words, "My sons, be not now negligent, for the Lord hath chosen you to stand before him to serve him and that ye should minister unto him and burn incense." Priests, prophets and kings were to recognize God alone as their master and live only unto him.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Lesson For the Week Beginning Oct. 9. Comment by Rev. W. J. Yates, A. M. Topic, The Victory of Israel.

SCRIPTURE READING.—Gen. xxxii, 24-29.—"Jacob was left alone, and there wrestled a man with him until the breaking of the day."

A Crafty Trader.—Such was the young man Jacob. Twin brothers were Esau and Jacob, but with almost no resemblance to each other. Plain, practical, quiet Jacob was a home boy and developed thrift and shrewdness in the peaceful lines followed by his father, Isaac, and grandfather, Abraham. He desired to be a shepherd and succeed his father as sheik of the tribe and religious head of the family. As the younger one of twins this seemed hopeless until the hunger of Esau and his contempt for the birthright of succession gave a chance to Jacob to drive a crafty bargain and secure the coveted position. A strange series of deceptions gained from the father his prophetic, patriarchal blessing and completed the estrangement of the two sons. The wild, reckless, open hearted Esau hated his tricky twin brother.

A Frightened Fugitive.—Such does the covetous, crafty Jacob become—a homeless wanderer from all he prized and loved. Such is the price shrewdness often pays for its impatience. Devout Jacob may have been, but no excuse can cover his treachery. In the school of severe discipline he will correct his folly, but right and blessing he shall possess, but the worth of them shall be learned before he shall enjoy them. Whoever tries to force open the buds of God's promises frustrates the purposes he seeks to help. Better wait God's time.

A Wronged and Weary Worker.—Years of hard work in frost and sun, capricious change of wages, treacherous substitution of an unloved woman as wife for the loved one, homesickness, heartsickness, all combine to teach Jacob the worthlessness of mere wealth and the wickedness of fraud and the value of reverence and affection.

Facing Homeward.—There is strong analogy in the story of Jacob's life to the spiritual life history of most earnest souls. Hope comes strong as the wanderer realizes his condition as a fugitive from home and family and craves the love and companionship of his own. It is a bold step to leave the old life and start homeward, but it is the right and safe thing to do. Laban may pursue in anger, but better anything than the old life of falsity and matching Jacob shrewdness against Laban craft.

Victorious Wrestler.—Very real is the danger from the coming Esau and his armed followers. Jacob is frightened, humbled, sorry. Goods are of no value compared to good will. He will sacrifice all for peace. Not that he is a coward. All his life long he has acted the coward's part; now he is bold and becomes true. Esau's right is acknowledged as sheik and a princely present is offered in token of this recognition. Formal submission to his right of rulership is made. Is this all? The greater battle still remains to be fought. There is something tragic and intensely human in that night wrestling on the banks of the Jabbok. We also wrestle, not as Jacob with a man, "not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places."

Overcoming self we become princes of God, and Israel is the new name for Jacob.

General Secretary Du Bose.

The late general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, held in Baltimore, elected Rev. H. M. Du Bose general secretary of the Epworth League and editor of the official paper, The Epworth Era. He is one of the most widely and favorably known of the young men of the denominstion. He possesses eminent qualifications for the position and his selection for this difficult post is eminently wise. He succeeds Dr. A. S. Steel, who has with great energy and versatility filled the office for the four years past. Much has been done to draw the young life of the three Methodisms of the continent together. It is to be hoped that Crews of Canada, Du Bose of the South and Schell of the Methodist Episcopal church will be a trio to lead the hosts of Epworth Leaguers to closer unity and higher efficiency and more hearty devotion.

The Essence of Greatness.

The real essence of greatness is a recognition of one's littleness and a clear consciousness of union with God's greatness and goodness. This makes one to possess a temper well described by the term meekness. A shrinking from asserting oneself, a shunning of publicity, but coupled with a boldness in the cause of justice and truth unconquerable and absolutely dauntless in the face of opposition. In some sense this is a lack of spirit, and yet in a true sense it is the fullness of soul. It is the opposite of pride and self sufficiency

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 9. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—"Patriotism."—Ps. xxxiii, 1-22. "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord and the people whom He hath chosen for His own inheritance."—Ps. xxxiii, 12.

The God of the American nation is the Lord, and He hath blessed it. Since the days of God's chosen people no people have had such evidences of God's special favor and blessing as the American people. The hand of God can be clearly seen in the history of our beloved country from the day of its discovery until the present moment. He hath clearly chosen us for his own inheritance. God has blessed us with many blessings. One of the greatest of these blessings is a God given patriotism. American patriotism is of a high and lofty character. The country seems to have a peculiar power of inspiring the intensest love and devotion of its citizens.

A study of a few of the characteristics of this patriotism will prove that this is true and show that it is one of God's choicest blessings to the American nation.

1. It is a patriotism that pervades all classes. The development of classes is one of the greatest dangers that confronts a republic, but so long as all classes fervently love the nation and are willing to make heroic sacrifices for it this danger is not present. To the present time at least this has been true. In the trying times of a foreign war rich and poor alike have proved their patriotism. Wealthy, aristocratic, educated Hamilton Fish gave his life for his country just as willingly as the poorest and most ignorant volunteer, and this is but an illustration of what has been universally true. May it always be so!

2. It is a patriotism that pervades all sections. The war with Spain has forever destroyed all sectional feeling. A patriotic son of the south was the first American soldier to shed his life's blood on Cuban soil. In every way the south has shown its loyalty and devotion to the flag. The word "rebel" is forever obsolete in the American vocabulary. There is one country, one flag, one patriotism—the greatest blessing that has come to us as a result of the war.

3. It is a patriotism that pervades all nationalities. Our nation is young. It has been populated by all nationalities. Our national existence depended upon our ability to assimilate these various nationalities and to make them first Americans, and then English, Germans or French. Had we not been able to do this, instead of having one great American nation we would have had a country made up of a little England, a little Germany and a little France. Under the blessing of God this work has been done. No matter from what nation we may have come we are Americans first and Americans all.

4. It is a religious patriotism—a patriotism that sees the hand of God in the destiny of nations, and that acknowledges His leadership and that looks upon patriotism itself as a religious duty, solemnly owed to God Himself.

Bible Readings.—Ex. xxxii, 31, 32; Ruth i, 16, 17; I Kings xi, 14-22; Ps. cxxxvii, 1-6; cxlvii, 20; Prov. xiv, 34; Isa. lxii, 1; Math. xxiii, 37; Luke xiii, 34, 35; xix, 41-44; Rom. ix, 1-5; I Tim. ii, 1, 2.

Self Forgetfulness.

Jesus seemed never to think of Himself, while we seem seldom to think of anybody else. If He was tired and sought rest for body and brain, He quickly forgot it all if some one met Him who needed His help.

What a different institution the church would be if every member lived a life of self forgetfulness! What a society yours would be if each member imitated the Divine Model in this respect! How quickly would the world be brought to Christ if all who bear His name would deny self for the sake of the perishing millions who never will be saved until the love of souls takes the place of the love of ease and pleasure which now so largely control us all. —Presbyterian Journal.

Good Will to Others.

Poor human nature, so sadly twisted by the fall, is ever ready to believe evil, and this is often true of the very ones we justly regard with contempt, and David did not err when he prayed that he might not be delivered into the hand of man. When we have to do with God, we may confidently rely upon His holiness and His mercy, but when we are concerned with man, and much of our happiness and usefulness are in a measure dependent upon our relations with our fellows, we shall be wise to depend but little upon either their equity or their gentleness when we desire their good will.—Episcopal Recorder.

The Thinking Post.

The "thinking post" was a droll conceit of the English wit, Sidney Smith. Not far from his gate he had a post set, at which every one going out was to stop and think whether he had left anything behind. Some thinking posts we need very frequently in life, where there shall be some pause for reflection. The best thinking post given to any of us is the divine ordinance of the Sabbath, with its frequent returns, its cessation of toil and withdrawal from the world, and its appearance in the presence of God.—Central Presbyterian.

"Abide In Me."

Abide in me, o'ershadow by Thy love
Each half formed purpose and dark thought of sin;
Quench, ere it rise, each selfish, low desire
And keep my soul as Thine—calm and divine.

Abide in me. There have been moments pure
When I have seen Thy face and felt Thy power;
Then evil lost its grasp, and passion, hushed,
Owned the divine enchantment of the hour.

These were but seasons, beautiful and rare;
Abide in me, and they shall ever be.
I pray Thee now fulfill my earnest prayer—
Come and abide in me, and I in Thee.
—Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe.

Provinz Brandenburg.

Berlin. Auf Verfügung des Ministers des Innern, Freiherrn von der Recke, ist der hiesige tschechische Turnverein „Sokol" aufgelöst worden. —Mit 3524 Mark, die er im Auftrag seiner Firma einkassirt hatte, ist ein Kassenbote des Bankgeschäfts „Gebrüder Kroner," der erst 24jährige Adalbert Behnke, durchgebrannt. Der Mann galt bisher für vertrauenswürdig, war sehr ruhig und führte, so weit man weiß, ein bescheidenes Leben.—Der Bau einer Arbeiterkolonie in Plötzensee ist in diesen Tagen begonnen worden. Es wird ein stattlicher Bau, zunächst für 50 Personen berechnet, aber mit allen Neben- und Arbeitsräumen gleich von vornherein so groß angelegt, daß eine Erweiterung auf etwa 120 Personen sich nur auf Schlafräume zu erstrecken hat, die ohne jegliche Schwierigkeit angebaut werden können. Die Gesammtkosten für Terrainerwerbung, Bau und Umwährung des Gartenlandes u. s. w. werden sich auf etwa 175,000 Mark belaufen, etwa 35,000 Mark sind bereits gesammelt.

Flatow. An Blutvergiftung durch Milzbrand ist der 50jährige Schlächtermeister Weber eines qualvollen Todes gestorben. Er hatte an einer kranken Kuh, bei der später Milzbrand konstatirt wurde, die Nothschlachtung vorgenommen. Bald darauf erkrankte er schwer und verschied an den Symptomen schwerer Milzbrandvergiftung.

Provinz Hannover.

Geestemünde. Neulich Abends entstand an einem Bauplatze durch spielende Kinder hier ein großer Brand. Sieben kleine Häuser und ein großes, zur Tekenborg'schen Schiffswerft gehöriges Haus sind niedergebrannt, sowie zwei große Holzplätze. Der Schaden wird auf 1,500,000 Mark geschätzt. Ein Feuerwehrmann ist umgekommen, zwei Feuerwehrleute sind verletzt.

Papenburg. Nach einer Mittheilung der Kanalkommission soll der Dortmund-Ems-Kanal am 15. Oktober eröffnet werden.

Provinz Hessen-Nassau.

Kassel. Aufsehen erregt die Verhaftung des ehemaligen Handelskammer-Sekretärs Bromeis, der in den letzten Jahren als Konkursverwalter und Bücher-Revisor vielfach fungirte und häufig als kaufmännischer Sachverständiger vor Gericht auftrat. Ihm werden Unterschlagungen zur Last gelegt, die er als Konkursverwalter in der bekannten Borkner Sparkassen-Affaire begangen haben soll. Er war aber immer nicht zur Rechnungslegung zu bewegen, so daß schließlich das Mittel der Hafterkennung gegen ihn angewendet werden mußte. Nachdem er einen Theil der Haft verbüßt, legte er Rechnung ab, wobei sich ein Fehlbetrag von 4000 Mark ergab.

Niederlahnstein. Während des Mittagessens erstickte ein einjähriges Kind an einem kleinen Fleischstückchen, das ihm in die Luftröhre gerieth. Der herbeigerufene Arzt konnte nur noch den Tod des Kindes feststellen.

Provinz Pommern.

Stettin. Die Stadtverordnetenversammlung hat bezüglich der Uebernahme der Garantiepflicht für den Bau des Großschifffahrtsweges Berlin-Stettin beschlossen: Die Stadt Stettin verpflichtet sich zur Uebernahme von 50 Prozent der von der Staatsregierung für die Westlinie verlangte Garantie. Die Betheiligung Stettins an der Ostlinie wurde einstimmig abgelehnt.

Altdamm. Auf dem Scheibenstand des hiesigen Trainbataillons wurde der Sergeant Wetzel von der 2. Kompagnie erschossen. Wetzel hatte beim Scheibenanzeigen, ohne vom Stande aus gesehen werden zu können, unvorsichtiger Weise hinter der Scheibe gestanden. Die Kugel ging Wetzel durch den Kopf und hatte den sofortigen Tod zur Folge.

Provinz Posen.

Posen. Das hiesige Kreisgericht verurtheilte den Regimentszahlmeister Neumann vom 2. niederschlesischen Infanterie-Regiment Nr. 47 nach 15monatlicher Untersuchungshaft wegen Unterschlagung von 58,000 Mark amtlicher Gelder zu fünf Jahren Zuchthaus. Neumann, 64 Jahre alt, war der älteste Zahlmeister der preußischen Armee.

Freundsthal. Die 47jährige Arbeitersfrau Bertha Eichhorst ging mit bloßen Füßen über ein Stoppelfeld und trat sich hierbei Stoppeln ein. Der Fuß wurde so schlimm, daß sich die Frau in ärztliche Behandlung begeben mußte. Um die Heilung zu beschleunigen, setzte sie sich noch Blutegel an. Am anderen Morgen fand man die Frau als Leiche.

A Faithful Traitor: A STORY OF MAYFAIR

CHAPTER II.

It was near six o'clock on the afternoon of the following day when a hansom cab drove up to the door of Lady Feo Latimar's smart little flower-decked house situated in one of the pleasantest little streets in Mayfair, and a young man got out of the cab and inquired for the mistress of the house.

"Not in, sir" the butler said almost regretfully. "But I am expecting her ladyship to return at any moment now. Will you come in and wait, Sir Antony? I know her ladyship will be very sorry to miss seeing you, sir."

As the young man paused on the doorstep and mused before deciding, the servant ventured on another remark, made respectfully, but with evident interest.

"You're back sooner than you expected to be—aren't you, sir? I hope you enjoyed your travelling, Sir Antony!"

Antony Pelle laughed, and gave a little nod.

"So-so, Wendon," he made answer. "It got a bit tiring at the last; so we determined to pack our traps and come home again; and here I am, you see. And here comes Lady Feo's carriage too, if I am not mistaken!"

The servant beat forward, and looked towards the smart victoria with its pair of pretty bays that was bowling swiftly down the street.

"It is her ladyship, sir. She'll be greatly surprised to see you, Sir Antony."

Lady Feo testified fully to the truth of this statement. As she closed her delicate sunshade and her eyes rested upon the bronzed handsome face and fine muscular figure of the young man standing on her doorstep, she first looked utterly incredulous, then gave a little scream of delight and of welcome combined.

"Antony," she cried—"Antony! Why, you have taken my breath away! When did you arrive? Where have you come from? Why didn't you write a telegram or let me know in some way? Dear old Tony—I am glad to see you again! What do you mean by staying away so long? Come in—come in! Wendon, some tea at once; and I am not at home to any one. Oh, Tony dear, this is a pleasant surprise! I was thinking of you as I drove through the Park. How little I imagined I should find you waiting for me when I reached home!"

Laughing and talking at the same time, and holding tightly to Sir Antony's coat sleeve as though to prevent him from running away again, Lady Feo ascended to her exquisite drawing-room in a state of excitement and delight that was exceedingly gratifying to the young man.

"By Jove, it's worth going away, if only to come home again and be welcomed by you in this fashion, Feo dear!" he said laughingly and yet earnestly. "I was half afraid you might have forgotten me."

"You thought nothing of the kind, Tony! How dare you even suggest such a thing? Forget you! You might as well hint that I could forget Gregory or Pootles or myself! Sit down and let me look at you!"

Lady Feo knit her brows and scanned the bronzed face that, though essentially manly, yet had something boyish lingering about it.

"Well, Feo"—Sir Antony laughed as he seated himself rather carefully in the chair pushed forward for him—"are you going to tell me that I have grown? I say," he added mischievously, "don't stare at a chap quite so hard! It's worse than having one's photograph taken."

Lady Feo laughed and relaxed her brows.

"You look well and strong and handsome; and yet, do you know, you look tired, too. If it was not so utterly ridiculous I should say you had grown a little older, Tony."

Antony Pelle laughed again. There was the very faintest suggestion of nervousness in the laugh and in the movement of his hands as he pulled off his gloves.

"Do you suppose time is going to stand still for me, Feo?" he asked. "Remember you have not seen me for considerably over a year and a half."

"A year and a half! Why, that ought to count for nothing with such a child as you!" Lady Feo spoke with her most matronly air, and then she stretched out her hand to her cousin once more. "Never mind; you have come back again, and that is everything, you know. Say you are glad to be back in England, Tony. There is no place really so nice—now is there?"

"No—you rabid little patriot!"

Tea being brought in at that moment, Lady Feo had to postpone her questionings while she officiated at the table.

"Gregory will be delighted to see you!" she said. "He was talking of you only yesterday. Where have you come from, Tony? Your last letter was from some wild outlandish spot. You are not a good correspondent, you know. I don't believe you wrote to me more than half a dozen times all the long time you have been away!"

"Don't tell crams, Feo! I wrote regularly every month to you and to dear old aunt Bertha."

"Ah"—Lady Feo's bright face grew [illegible]—"there is some one who will make a wild fuss over you, Tony! Of course you have not seen her yet?"

Sir Antony shook his head.

"I arrived in town only a couple of hours ago. Dick came on from Southampton yesterday, and I stayed behind to look after our traps. He had, of course, a heap of business to attend to at once."

Lady Feo's brightness seemed to fade a little, and she held out her hand for Sir Antony's cup.

"Was it too sweet? You will have some more?" She replenished the cup. "The wonder to me has been," she said, her voice growing a trifle cold as she went on speaking, "how Mr. Saville has managed to give himself such a long holiday. He always talks so much about his work; and yet he seems to have forgotten it very easily for a year and a half."

"Ah, that's just where you are mistaken, clever little Feo! Dick certainly was good enough to turn his back on his chances here and go abroad with me; but he by no means deserted his business. He had at least a dozen letters and telegrams waiting for him in every port we stopped at; and there were whole days when he would be shut up alone with his correspondence, reading and writing his business letters, and visible to no one—not even to me!"

There was a note of eagerness in the young man's explanation.

Lady Feo clinked her teaspoon against her teacup. Her expression betokened an evident desire to make some further remark, and that not a pleasant one, on the subject of the absent Mr. Saville; but, after a moment's silence, she seemed to conquer the inclination.

"Well, and now what are you going to do, Tony? No more travelling, I hope—at least, for a little while?"

The young man shook his head with a smile.

"No; I have had enough of running about for a little while, as you say, Feo. I think I shall delight aunt Bertha's heart and settle myself at Speede. I suppose it is what I ought to do—isn't it? At least, for the greater portion of the year."

"There are one or two things you ought to do, Tony, and the first of them is to marry. Now don't laugh, please; I am in earnest!"

Sir Antony nevertheless did laugh.

"Of course you are," he said. "I see prospective matrimonial manoeuvres in every line of your face."

Lady Feo threw her gloves at him.

"You must marry," she pursued; "it is your positive duty! Just look at the matter seriously for once. You are twenty-six, and master now of yourself and your fortune. You are the head of your family. You are a very nice-looking boy indeed, and you have as much money as any nice-looking boy could reasonably desire. You lack only one thing—a wife—and that you must get as soon as possible—unless"—here Lady Feo experienced an awful qualm as she turned sharply and looked at him—"unless you have already provided yourself with one, Tony! Don't tell me that you have engaged yourself to a black woman, or a copper-colored South Sea Islander."

"Well, all the same, if you had dared to choose a wife for yourself, Tony, I should have been furious."

Sir Antony got up, put his tea-cup upon the tray, and then stood tall and erect upon the hearth in front of the fire. He laughed again, though a little hurriedly, at his cousin's words.

"It is very evident you have no idea of the amount of awe with which you manage to inspire most people, Feo," he said, with mock gravity. "What do you suppose would have happened to any unfortunate black woman who came in your path?"

Lady Feo laughed.

"Well, all the same, if you had dared to choose a wife for yourself, Tony, I should have been furious," she answered him. "I have always promised myself the task of finding some one whom I consider worthy of you, your own feelings in the matter being quite a secondary consideration, you know." She nestled back in her chair. She wore something very pretty and shimmering; Lady Feo always had a picturesque air. "Fancy—a fire in June! Monstrous!" she cried, as she let her eyes rest with complacency upon her cousin.

Certainly he was a very handsome young fellow. He had always been a pretty boy, and had given promise of great personal attractiveness when he had grown to manhood. Now he had reached this stage, and Feo Latimar proudly confessed to herself that she knew very few men who had a smarter or more honestly handsome appearance than her cousin Antony Pelle, Baronet, and inheritor of his father's very large fortune.

There was a faint resemblance between her cousin and herself, for Antony's mother, Lady Pelle, and Feo's mother, the Countess of Wessex, had been twin-sisters. But the likeness was not a marked one, and revealed itself more in an occasional expression than in feature or coloring.

"The affection that kn[illegible] together, however, was [illegible] nor an ephemeral bond [illegible] they had been little ch[illegible] and Lady Feodora had l[illegible] er growing up more like sister than cousins, and [illegible] tual sympathy from t[illegible] days, which was the [illegible] their affection. Their [illegible] had been strangely alike, unlike. Each had happe[illegible] only child of their pare[illegible] but, whilst Tony almost [illegible] had been an orphan, Lady F[illegible] ther had died only a few years before, and her father was still alive, and one of the strongest factors in the happiness of her most pleasant life. As a sort of compensation for this, Sir Antony's lot in life was one of luxury and wealth; whilst Lady Feo, despite her rank and her father's high political position, had come early into contact with poverty, perhaps in its hardest form.

The children had sworn a covenant of friendship almost as soon as they understood what the word signified. Feodorowna, by reason of her one year's seniority and her imperious nature, had always ruled the boy; and their happiest moments had been when Antony was permitted by his guardian to go to Courtleigh, the Earl of Wessex's sole remaining property, and spend his holidays with his little cousin. They had naturally drifted apart a little as their childhood had slipped away. Antony going to Eton and afterwards to Oxford. His personal inclination had been to join either the Army or the Navy; but his father's will had been opposed to such a step. The boy must be either a clergyman or a barrister, he had decreed—that was, if he chose to take up a profession, for which, of course, there was no necessity in a pecuniary sense; and his whole career until he had attained his majority had been controlled by his father's kinsman, Richard Saville, a man who for many years had held the place of a son in the life and affections of Sir William Pelle—a brilliant man, a man who had made his mark early in life, and to Antony Pelle the cleverest individual and the kindest and truest friend the world could ever produce.

There were a few people who were inclined to question the wisdom that had prompted Sir William Pelle to hand over the care of his child, and all the great inheritance that would be his, so unconditionally to Richard Saville. That Mr. Saville knew the ins and outs of the Pelle properties as no other person could have known them, and that he was therefore better qualified to manage the estates than any stranger, however clever was an undoubted fact; nevertheless, in the opinion of these few there was something unwise and also a little cruel in the old man's will, that gave his boy so wholly into the hands of one who had, up to the child's birth, been fully recognized by every one as the certain inheritor of all Sir William's wealth. It would be only human nature for Richard Saville to grieve bitterly at the sorry trick fate and an old man's folly had played him, these wiseacres said among themselves—for what could be more foolish than Sir William Pelle's marriage, contracted suddenly when old age was close upon him? And what amount of sympathy would atone to young Saville for the disappointment which must have come to him so unexpectedly, so overwhelmingly? Was it fair therefore to the boy Antony, or kind to the man Richard Saville, to bind their lives so closely together, with obligations fraught on the man's side not only with weighty responsibilities and anxiety, but also with unfading remembrances of all he had lost?

Such were the questions that were freely exchanged during the first few months after Antony's advent into the world, and they were answered by Mr. Saville in the quietest and most satisfactory manner.

Whatever might be the bitterness, the disappointment, the destruction of hope and ambition experienced or recognized by Richard Saville owing to the circumstances of Antony's birth, nothing was ever confided to the world, was ever permitted to be discussed. He fell into his duties easily, and gave to the orphan child bequeathed to his care—for Antony's birth had cost his beautiful young mother her life—the loving attention of a father. His time was divided between London, where he worked, and Speede, the beautiful old country house where Antony lived and grew up. And a bright, happy, splendid-looking lad Antony was, the joy and delight of his old aunt Bertha, his father's sister, who reigned as mistress over his home, and disputed amiably from the beginning with Mr. Saville as to the management of the child.

Antony had a clinging love for his old "mammy Bertha"; she was the only mother he had ever known—a woman charitable and tender, a perpetual doer of good deeds. For Richard Saville the lad had an affection that was not to be measured by words. "Big brother Dick" was the hero of all Antony's childish dreams. From the earliest days he began to take Dick as his model; he wanted to be great and clever like Dick—Dick, who was so celebrated a Q. C., so eloquent an advocate! He devoured all that he could get hold of about his "brother" in the newspapers—for to Antony this man was in truth almost his own brother; he thought him the most gifted individual that had ever lived. For Feo—dainty pretty Feo—the boy had another sort of brother's love—a yielding even while he was conscious of a protecting feeling. But, tenderly as he loved Feo, there was no one in the world [illegible] come to place to his heart [illegible] man who had

If Feo Latimar confessed to one meannes in her nature, that meanness was a vigorous jealousy of Antony's guardian. The feeling had had its rise in her childhood, when Mr. Saville had assumed the form of a sort of bogey, who was ever cropping up to interfere with her amusement, and to snatch Tony from her at a moment when she wanted him most. Her husband, Gregory Latimar, always laughed and teased her about her jealousy of Saville; for he himself—Latimar—had no hesitation in expressing the warmest friendship and liking for the man who had filled a most onerous and anxious post so well and conscientiously.

"Tony would never have been where he is to-day if he had not had a man like Saville to look after him; and that is the simple truth, Feo, my dear," was what Mr. Latimar had said many times.

But Lady Feo was not easily convinced, nor her opinion quickly changed. She did not really dislike Richard Saville; she was only uncontrollably jealous of him and the influence he had over Antony. She wanted Antony to be hers—hers alone and entirely—to be bullied and petted and married just when she chose. She never said much to Antony on the subject of Richard Saville. Justice compelled her to own that her husband's opinion of the man was well deserved. Of Saville's brilliant, almost unique, ability in his profession there were no two opinions possible. He was, moreover, a most popular and much-admired man, though seemingly a confirmed bachelor, and many a woman would have been glad to become his wife had he deigned to make a choice.

Lady Feo fully recognized the man's charm; but she always had a sore feeling for Antony's big "brother," and sometimes she was guilty—as she had been for a moment during her pleasant chat with her cousin—of indulging in a little fretful outburst or in a sneer at Mr. Saville's expense.

Lady Feo's jealousy on this particular occasion was checked as she glanced at Sir Antony's face.

"I am horrid!" she thought quickly to herself. "I have not seen Tony for ever so long, and here I am beginning to say nasty things the very moment he comes back! Really, I ought to be ashamed of myself!"

Urged on by this feeling, Lady Feo led the conversation into other channels. She made the young man tell her of the various places he had visited and of all that he had seen; and the clock chimed seven when they seemed to have been talking for only a short quarter of an hour.

Sir Antony uttered an exclamation.

"By Jove, I must be off! I had no idea it was so late!"

"Surely you are not going! You must dine with us; you need not bother about dress. Gregory will be in immediately. Oh, Tony, don't say you have an engagement! How horrid of you! It is only fair for you to dine with me on the first night of your return. Mr. Saville can spare you for once."

The young man held her hands very closely.

"Do forgive me, Feo dear! I am so sorry; I ought to have remembered. It—it is a business engagement. I must keep it, I am afraid. But look here, dear old girl—I will come in later on; or, if you are going somewhere, I can join you. Dick is dining out to-night—I don't know where; he left only a few words on paper for me, saying that he was engaged with an old friend. Now do forgive me, Feo!"

Antony Pelle drove swiftly through the streets to the hotel where he had put up for the time. It was the hour in which the fashionable world was rushing homewards to dress for dinner and the galeties of the evening, and Sir Antony encountered a good round dozen of friends and acquaintances, who stared, then gesticulated wildly at him, conveying surprise and welcome in each flourish.

Setting Up For Himself.

Jamie Spence, a well known character, was one day driving cattle through Blackburn, accompanied by a collie.

The dog, unknown to his master, bolted into a butcher's shop and ran off with a leg of mutton, whereupon the butcher issued forth and collared Jamie, demanding if that was his dog.

"Naw," replied Jamie, slyly eyeing the erring quadruped, "he was mine once, but he seems to be doing for hissel' now."—Spare Moments.

Sizing Up Papa.

The heir and hope of the family at Blank Castle was a little rogue of about five summers. One day at lunch he was very disobedient. His father, whose orders had been repeatedly ignored, at last struck the table to accentuate his parental authority, and said, indignantly: "William, you forget who I am!"

The velvet-eyed scamp looked up, and, with subtle simplicity, said:

"Oh, no! You're only muvver's husband;" and the hereditary legislator remained speechless amid the derisive laughter of his guests.—London Telegraph.

His First Indignation.

They were evidently on their wedding tour. While in the sights they wandered into the Art Museum, and pausing before a reproduction of the Venus of Milo, the bride remarked,—

"They must think people who come here are awfully ignorant."

"Why so, dearie?" asked the other half.

"Why so!" she exclaimed, with an air of superior intelligence; "get on to that sign, 'Hands off!' hanging on that thing; just as if any fool didn't know they were."

SPORTING.

ON THE GRIDIRON.

The Alis second football team will play the Lincoln High School team at Westfield tomorrow morning.

The Rutgers College football squad has lost the services of this season's coach, "Teddy" Knapp, of the Elizabeth Athletic Club, who is down with the fever at his home in Elizabeth. Mr. Knapp is a Rough Rider, and contracted the disease in Cuba. He was getting very good work out of the football men when he was compelled to go to bed. George Ambruster, of the University of Pennsylvania, appeared on Neilson Field yesterday afternoon to take Mr. Knapp's place. He proved to be an acceptable successor to Mr. Knapp.

BADGER BOYS HOME.

Uncertainity of Time of Their Arrival Prevented a Demonstration.

Fresh from their exploits on the auxiliary cruiser Badger, the Plainfield Naval Reserve boys returned home last evening, after having been accorded distinguished honors in Newark, Jersey City and Hoboken on their return trip from League Island, where they left the Badger. The boys all look hale and hearty. The uncertainity about the time of their arrival in Plainfield prevented a demonstration here.

Dr. Simpson, who was the surgeon on the Badger, did not return with the boys.

There was not a sick man in the battalion, and only one was missing from the muster roll. That one was Coxswain Nellinger, who was killed by falling from aloft while the Badger was in Boston harbor.

A subscription has been raised for a banquet for the Reserves, and this will be served in Quartette Club Hall next Tuesday evening.

A NEW CHURCH BUILDING.

Redeemer Society Will Soon Start Work on Their New Edifice.

In the course of a short time the members of the Church of the Redeemer will commence the erection of their new church home at the corner of Grove street and Prospect place. The main part of the building will be of stone, with brick trimmings, and will be one of the finest churches in the city. Messrs. Audsley, architects, residing in the borough, have drawn the plans for the new church, and in a few days they will be ready for the contractors to bid on. The new church will front on Grove street and be an imposing structure. The estimated cost is about $25,000.

Must Pay According to Age.

On the evening of Thursday, October 13th, the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church will give a birthday party in the parlors of the church. The object is to raise a sufficient amount of money to pay the balance due for the new upholstering in the church. Each member of the church has been remembered with an appropriate verse in rhyme together with a sack in which they are supposed to place an amount of money to tally with their age.

Forty-five Naturalized.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, October 7.—Forty-five foreigners took out naturalization papers in the the County Clerk's office this morning. A number that were expected from Plainfield failed to appear. Judge Vail will be at the Clerk's office tomorrow morning to naturalize those who failed to appear today. It will be the last time before election.

Pleasant Dinner Party.

A very delightful dinner party was given last Wednesday evening at the Baltrusrol Golf Club house by Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Willis, of LaGrande avenue, in honor of several London friends. In addition to the foreigners present there were also a number of Plainfielders, including Mr. and Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman. Mr. Ackerman is a member of the above name club.

THE EPISCOPAL COUNCIL.

Resolutions Introduced Czar's Peace Proposal.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Morning prayer for the delegates to the triennial convention of the Episcopal church was held yesterday at the Church of the Epiphany.

The Rev. Dr. McKim read the prayer service and Bishop Gilbert of Minnesota pronounced the benediction. When the larger portion of the delegates had assembled the Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, the president, called the second day's session of the House of Deputies to order.

Preliminary routine business occupied the time of the house for an hour. A number of standing committees were appointed and resolutions and memorials on deceased members presented and referred to appropriate committees.

The Rev. Dr. Mann of Missouri offered a resolution naming Kansas City, Mo., as the next meeting place of the convention. From Indiana came a resolution expressing the earnest desire of the convention that the instructions to the commissioners to be appointed to the international peace conference proposed by the czar of Russia shall recommend the establishment of a permanent court for the settlement of all differences by arbitration.

Several resolutions on the question of marriage and divorce were presented and Bishop Davenport of the diocese of Springfield moved that the discussion of these questions by the convention be held behind closed doors, but some objection was made to immediate consideration and the matter was referred to the calendar of business for consideration by a committee.

The communication received yesterday from Felix Agoncillo, the representative of Aguinaldo, now in this city, was read by Dr. McConnell of Louisiana. The document expressed the esteem of the Filipinos for the convention and asked the prayers of the church in behalf of the natives of the Philippine islands, their liberties and welfare.

The convention then proceeded to the consideration of the report on the revision of the constitution, which had been made a special order for eleven o'clock.

To Stop Rate Wars.

Washington, Oct. 7.—One of the most irritating questions in the railroad history of the United States and one that has been the provoking cause of more destructive rate wars than any other, is in a fair way to be adjusted.

The American trans-continental lines and the Canadian Pacific Railroad company have agreed to submit the question to E. S. Washburn, president of the Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis Railway; W. A. Day of Washington and J. W. Midgely of Chicago as arbitrators, whether the Canadian Pacific Railroad Company shall be allowed a differential rate on freight traffic between the Atlantic coast and certain Pacific coast points, and if so what differential shall be conceded to the Canadian road.

Spaniards Land at Iloilo.

Madrid, Oct. 7.—An official dispatch from Iloilo, Philippine islands, reports that the landing of troops there caused a panic among the insurgents and that three hundred muskets, four cannon, a quantity of ammunition and a flag were captured.

In addition, eighteen Spanish prisoners were released. The insurgents were dispersed, the bulk of them withdrawing to the mountains and some of them surrendered.

The clergy and the inhabitants, the dispatch from Iloilo also says, have issued a manifesto in favor of Spain. Communication with Cuba has been restored. In other encounters between the Spaniards and insurgents recently 36 of the former were killed.

Troops Back from Omdurman.

London, Oct. 7.—The First battalion of the Grenadier Guards returned to London yesterday from Omdurman, where it took part in the crushing defeat inflicted upon the Dervishes by General Lord Kitchener.

From Waterloo railroad station, where it left the train, to Wellington barracks, immense crowds of people lined the streets.

The windows were packed with spectators, flags were displayed on all sides and the most intense enthusiasm prevailed.

Clearing Camp Wikoff.

Montauk Point, L. I., Oct. 7.—The government authorities here are clearing up the camp as fast as possible, and it is a question in the minds of some if they are not doing the work with a trifle too much speed. This comment has been caused to be made by the removal of a number of sick soldiers that were not considered to be in condition to be removed, and it is feared that the change that they will undergo will not result in their improvement.

New Railroad Terminals.

Savannah, Ga., Oct. 7.—One million dollars is to be expended in building railroad terminals on Hutchinson's island, opposite Savannah, by the Georgia and Alabama Terminal Company, which includes a number of northern capitalists.

The entire river front of the island has been bought.

Vessels drawing twenty-six feet of water will be able to load at the docks and there will be extensive warehouses.

Yellow Fever Record.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 7.—Following is the yellow fever record for yesterday in Louisiana:

New Orleans, 7 cases and 1 death; Franklin, 8 cases, no deaths; Jackson, 10 cases, no deaths; West Feliciana Parish, Steward's Plantation and vicinity, seven miles from Jackson, 4 cases and 1 death; Wilson, 4 cases and no deaths.

The source of infection is reported as Madison station, Miss.

Republican Editors Meet.

New York, Oct. 7.—The Republican Editorial Association of the state held a largely attended and enthusiastic meeting in the Fifth Avenue hotel yesterday to discuss the work of the campaign. Republican editors from all sections of the state were present and all reported great enthusiasm for the state ticket.

They were the guests of the Union League Club in the evening.

Last House Built on Roosevelt Manor.

CRANFORD, N. J.

Below prospective and plans are a fair illustration of the quality of houses being erected on Roosevelt Manor, and this house is finished and for sale, with a frontage of lot of 125 feet or 275 feet, to suit the wishes of the purchaser. The trim of the house is hard wood on two floors. It has been decorated by one of New York's best decorators, and is complete with gas fixtures and all requisites for immediate occupation, and can be seen any afternoon. Roosevelt Manor is less than ten minutes' walk from the Cranford Railroad Stat on, and all are invited to inspect this property, which offers sewers to tide water, running water, electric light, gas, and in fact all city conveniences. The Town of Cranford holds the pennant as the healthiest town in New Jersey. (See State Health Report).

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. Ephraim Compton, of East Second street, has recovered from a severe illness.

Miss Nellie Rockfellow, of Park avenue, is entertaining a friend from out of town.

Fred Leland, of Central avenue, left today for the south, where he will spend the winter for his health.

Driver Fred Breem, of the fire department, is on the sick list. He is suffering with neuralgia of the heart.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Louise Koller, of the borough, to Theodore A. Kurzhals, Jr., of West Second street. The marriage will take place Wednesday evening, October 19th, at the home of of the bridge.

Surprised Their Pastor.

Last Wednesday evening Rev. Scott Wallace, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, was greatly surprised when the members of his congregation took him unawares at his residence on West Front street. It was after the entertainment given in Reform Hall and took the form of a donation party. Everything on the list worth having was brought to the pastor, and he received a handsome suit of clothes in the bargain. Pastor Wallace is very grateful to his people for the kindly expression of good-will and he will endeavor to fully merit it.

Fine Paid by His Wife.

J. H. French was arraigned before Mayor Wilson, of the borough, this morning, on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. He was fined $20, as it was not the first offence. The fine was paid by the offender's wife, who stated that next time she would not interfere with justice and that he would have to go to jail.

Mrs. Saltzman's Remains Arrive.

The remains of the late Mrs. Augustus Saltzman arrived in Plainfield this morning from Hawley, Pa., and are now at the home of Dr. J. T. Fritts of Park avenue. Dr. and Mrs. A. S. Fritts, of Hawley, also arrived, and Augustus Saltzman, Jr., of the cruiser Badger, reached Plainfield this morning. It is not known exactly what time Mr. Saltzman will arrive, but it is presumed that he will be here the first of next week. Notice of funeral will be given later.

Second Night Was a Success.

Last evening at Reform Hall the members of the Calvary Baptist church continued their entertainment and reception. The attendance was much larger than on the previous evening and everything passed off smoothly. The programme consisted of vocal and instrumental music and recitations. Financially, it was a success and those who assisted feel much gratified.

What Hissing Signifies.

Hissing means different things, according to where you happen to be at the time. In West Africa the natives hiss when they are astonished; in the New Hebrides when they see anything beautiful. The Basutos applaud a popular orator in the assemblies by hissing at him. The Japanese, again, show their reverence by a hiss, which has probably somewhat the force of the "hush" with which we command silence.—New York Herald.

THE GOVERNMENT OF HAWAII.

The Commission's Report to Be Prepared During November.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Senator Morgan Democrat of Alabama, of the Hawaiian commission, arrived in Washington yesterday and called at the White House for an hour's conference with the president.

In answer to inquiries the senator said that the members of the commission would meet here about November 20, and prepare and present their report to the president and Congress.

He declined to discuss the report or the views of the commissioners, further than to say that the published reports of what the commission would recommend were wrong in every essential particular.

The commission, he said, favor a territorial form of government, as that was plainly the intention of Congress, as shown in the act authorizing the creation of the commission, but what particular form of territorial government could not now be stated.

In speaking of the Philippine question Senator Morgan said that in his judgment the United States should retain possession of the whole group of islands, giving to the natives the right to govern themselves within certain limitations, and under the general supervisory control of the United States government.

Senator Morgan left for his home in Alabama last night.

The Quebec Commission.

Quebec, Oct. 7.—The international conference will adjourn next Monday to meet again in Washington November 1. That is the official announcement made by the commissioners. Senator Fairbanks, chairman of the American commission, was asked what progress had been made and how much time the Washington session would probably require.

"We have accomplished a considerable amount of hard work," he said, "but there still remains much to be done." Beyond this indefinite statement he would not go.

Trains for West Indies.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 7.—The first railway to announce trains for the West Indies has been heard from. The Queen and Crescent route is announcing a fast train known as the Florida and Havana limited, from Cincinnati to Tampa, Jacksonville, Miami, Mobile and New Orleans.

It is a vestibuled service, with diners, observation cars, wide vestibules, electric headlights and all the paraphernalia of modern railroads. The train makes fast time and connects with fine steamer service to various ports in Cuba, Porto Rico and Jamaica.

Cromartyshire Leaves Halifax.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 7.—The ship Cromartyshire, looking as good as new, sailed yesterday morning for Philadelphia. She had on board her old cargo of chalk. Captain Henderson has managed to retain two members of the crew who were on board when the collision occurred with the steamship La Burgogne. These he is particularly anxious to keep with him in view of a suit for damages against the Campagnie Generale Transatlantique.

MAYOR'S ACT CAUSED COUNCIL'S CRITICISM.

Lively Discussion About Salary of First Assistant Chief.

FINALLY FIXED AT $100.

STREET RAILWAY ORDINANCE LAID OVER FOR A WEEK.

Councilman Barrows Criticised Mayor Fisk for Having Made an Agreement About a Salary to be Fixed by the Common Council—Ordinance in Reference to Police Positions Was Laid on the Table.

Contrary to the general expectation, there was a great deal of important business considered by the City Council at the adjourned meeting held last evening and it was late when the business was concluded.

Among the important things decided upon was the question of First Assistant Chief J. W. Murray's salary. It was fixed at $100, and not $200 as was the wish of certain members of the Council. The opinion of Corporation Counsel Marsh on the subject, as asked for by a resolution, was to the affect that Mr. Murray has no right to collect from the city the salary paid the first assistant, which is $600. The question of fixing this official's salary rested entirely with the Council to determine the facts as to whether Mayor Fisk and Mr. Murray made any aggement for the latter to serve as first assistant for $100 or $200. On the strength of this Mr. Marsh suggested that a resolution be adopted fixing the salary at $200, and Mr. Runyon offered such a resolution in view of the fact that he believed that the agreement between the Mayor and Mr. Murray was for $200.

This resolution brought forth plenty of opposition. Mr. Hetfield said that he did not think it was the proper thing for any man to dictate to the Council what he would do for a certain price as in the case under advisement. He thought all agreements were out of order. He favored giving second assistant Mr. Jennings the position of first assistant and paying him the salary, and let Mr. Murray stay where he was as second assistant.

Mr. Barrows spoke strongly on the subject and stated that it was very annoying to have to contend with such a question. He said that he was surprised at Mr. Murray in his actions, and that he was also surpised that the Mayor should place the Council in such a position. It is the Council's place to fix the salaries, the Mayor can only recommend, stated Mr. Barrows, and this is a very aggravated case which goes against the grain.

Remarks on the subject were made by Messrs. Buckle, Newman and Moffett against the increase, and each one stated that it was generally understood that when Mr. Murray was promoted to the position of first assistant that he should have the salary of the second assistant. Mr. Runyon spoke in behalf of the resolution and supported the same for the salary of $200 on the ground that an agreement was made by the Mayor and Mr. Murray. When the question was voted upon there were nine members who voted for $100 and Mr. Runyon voted alone for $200.

Another important matter that came up for consideration was the new police ordinance giving the local police a life-berth. There was a great deal of discussion on the subject, but the ordinance was finally laid on the table to be called up at the pleasure of the Council. This action was taken at the suggestion of Mr. Barrows, after remarks made by Mr. Hetfield. The latter stated that Mr. Andrews, a member of the laws and ordinance committee, had left town for Omaha, and he was not sure when he would return. He also stated that the other member of the committee, Mr. Runyon, disagreed with him regarding the ordinance and that no report could be presented last evening. He also stated that there was no great rush about the adoption of the ordinance, and that there is plenty of time to put it through. Mr. Hetfield's motion to postpone the matter till November was amended to lay on the table as already stated. All the members voted for amendment except Mr. Runyon, who desired that action be taken last evening. In the meantime copies of the ordinance will be sent to each member of the Council.

Still another important matter that engaged the attention of the Council was that granting the Plainfield Street Railway Company a franchise to extend their tracks. Early in the meeting a public hearing was given for or against the extension, and no one present having anything to say on the subject, Mr. Barrows moved that a

NO OVERCOAT NEEDED.

ALBERT CHAMPION WON'T BE OUT TILL THE WINTER IS OVER.

City Judge DeMeza Imposed the Full Penalty of the Law on Him—His Lawyer Says he Will Set Him Free, Though.

Albert Champion, the colored man, who was found guilty yesterday in the City Court of using profane language toward Grace Davis, also colored, calling bad names, and striking her with a club, came up for sentence this morning and received the full penalty of the law, $100 fine and 59 days in the county jail. This will keep Champion in confinement for five months. By the time he gets out spring will be here.

In sentencing Champion, City Judge DeMeza said that he had given the case careful consideration, and thought that he owed it as a duty to the city and to the State to put Champion away somewhere. Champion took his sentence cooly and was led back to his cell.

William G. DeMeza, Champion's counsel, declares that he will have the prisoner out of jail in a few days on habeas corpus proceedings. He claims that Champion was illegally tried, being arraigned and tried on two complaints at the same time. He also claims that he was found guilty against the weight of evidence.

A NINTH ANNIVERSARY.

AN AUSPICIOUS OCCASION FOR MIANTONOMOH TRIBE.

Red Men Entertained Pale Face Guests With Dancing—A Number of Visiting Chiefs—Assisted by the many Ladies.

The ninth anniversary of Miantonomoh Tribe, I. O. R. M., was celebrated last evening in Red Men's Hall and there was a very large number of members and friends present. The feature of the affair was dancing. This was started early in the evening, and it was early this morning when the guests departed for their homes. The music for dancing was furnished by Bert Naylor.

There were present a number of visiting chiefs and members of tribes from nearby cities. The committee in charge, of which William A. Westphal was the chairman, did all in its power to give everyone a good time, and they succeeded. The other members of the committee were William Holstein, Charles Fulmer, D. C. Allen, Joseph Newman, Thomas Leahy and Harry Dreier. George Houseman was floor manager. The committee from Iona Council, Degree of Pocohontas, who assisted the Indians, consisted of Mrs. Holstein, Mrs. Westphal, Miss Ella Sebring, Mrs. David Allen, Miss Dunlap and Mrs. Rudolph Speigel.

At 12 o'clock a bountiful supper was served by the committee in charge, after which dancing was continued. This tribe is one of the most prosperin this State and during its nine years of existence has accomplished a great deal of good for its members. The finances are in excellent condition and the tenth year is started with bright prospects.

THANKS FROM ADMIRAL DEWEY.

The Hero of Manila Acknowledges the Receipt of Bronze Statue.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Oct. 8—Dr. Jonathan Ackerman Coles has received a reply from Admiral Dewey to the gift of a bronze statue which the doctor presented to the naval hero in commemoration of the victory of Manila Bay. The Admiral's letter is as follows:

"Flagship Olympia,
"Manila, P. I., Aug. 25, 1898.

"J. Ackerman Coles, A. B., A. M., M. D.

"Dear Sir: I have the pleasure to announce to you the safe arrival of the beautiful bronze statue and bracket, made by Tiffany & Co.

"As no letter of advice accompanied it, I shall have to forward this through the makers.

"The statue will be placed in my cabin, where all who enter may admire it as much as we all do. It is a beautiful work of art, and I thank you most sincerely for such a princely souvenir.

"Hoping that I may at some not far distant date have the pleasure of thanking you in person, I am,

"Very sincerely,
"George Dewey."

THE FREEHOLDERS WILL CONDEMN LAND.

Land Owners Ask Too Much for Their Property.

APPEAL TO CIRCUIT COURT.

COMMISSIONER KERON'S SUBMITS NAMES OF THOSE HOLDING OUT.

The Freeholders Instruct County Attorney Codington To Make Application to Court to Appoint Commissioners to Condemn the Needed Land—Terms of the Franchise to be Granted to John Kean

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Oct. 8—Commissioner Keron, who has been engaged several weeks in purchasing property for the country trolley project, was present at the meeting of the Freeholders Thursday and made a report to them. What the report was is not public matter, as the Board sat in executive session while it was being made. It is said, however, that he told the Board what properties he had secured at reasonable figures, and that a number of the property owners were holding their lands at such high figures that it was unwise to pay the price asked.

As a result of his report, the Board adopted a resolution directing County Attorney Codington to make application to the circuit court for the appointment of commissioners to condemn the lands in the township fronting on Westfield avenue owned by the following parties: J. P. Glasby, Mrs. F. L. Pope, the Bronson estate, S. C. Blackwell, J. C. Bender, W. P. Bonnell, E. Chairvello, P. Cooley, the Charlier estate, J. W. Higgins, Mrs Hobbs, E. C. Lee, Mrs. Lindencoehl Mrs. Penwell, an Italian named Tellone, J. Riccitelli and Noah Woodruff. The resolution stated that the sums demanded by these persons for the land were, in the judgment of the Freeholders, excessive, and that therefore the action was begun to secure condemnation.

No public statement was made as to whether any property had been purchased.

The agreement between the county, and the Elizabeth Horse Railroad, Company as to the building of the trolley road over the county road between this city and Plainfield was presented to and ratified unanimously by the Board. It bore the signatures of John Kean, president, and J. W. Whelan, secretary.

The contract provides that the road shall be constructed of the best material, and that the company shall pave between the tracks with macadam at least 4 inches deep, and shall also lay on the outside of each outer rail a strip of telford 1 foot wide and 7 inches deep. This pavement to be kept in repair to the satisfaction of the county by the railroad company. During the time that the road is being built, the company shall keep lighted lamps along the scene of the work, and to become liable for any damages sustained by persons injured through the tearing up of the roadway. The railroad company also agrees to complete the road within nine months from the time when the necessary consents to build have been obtained from the municipalities through which it passes.

Another provision is that the company will not shovel, throw, or place any snow, ice or slush, or other material upon the roadway so that travel will be in any way impeded. The company also agrees to sprinkle its road at its own expense whenever there is any dust.

In another section it is provided that the cars to be run on the road shall be kept properly heated, lighted and cleaned, and that gongs will be placed and rung whenever there is any danger to pedestrains or traffic. In another section the fares are stipulated, as were set forth in the bid made to the Freeholders for the franchise.

RELIEF ASSOCIATION OFFICERS.

Election Held Yesterday and Mrs. J. K. Myers Chosen President.

At the annual meeting of the Plainfield Relief Association held yesterday in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. J. K. Myers; vice-president, Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph; secretary, Miss Marion Dumont; assistant secretary, Miss Grace Cooley; treasurer, Mrs. Lapsley. The meeting was chiefly devoted to the giving of reports of the work for the past year. The finances of the association are in good condition and during the year a large amount of work was accomplished.

JR. EPWORTH LEAGUE.

GRACE CHURCH SOCIETY READY FOR THE WINTER'S WORK.

Rev G. W. Gardner Pleasurably Surprised by the Little People Who Presented to Him a Reception Chair.

The Junior Epworth League of Grace M. E. church, after a vacation of three months, resumed its sessions yesterday afternoon. There were forty-three members present, and all entered upon the fall and winter campaign with great enthusiasm.

A short literary programme was rendered under the direction of Mrs A. A. Taft, one of the assistant superintendents, and all who participated did themselves credit. At the conclusion of the programme the superintendent, Rev. G. W. Gardner, was treated to a pleasant surprise. Miss May Fairchild, on behalf of the Juniors, presented to the pastor and wife a reception chair, which was greatly appreciated as a token of regard from the little folks.

The pastor then outlined the work for the new term, and named the following committees:

Devotional—Bessie Farley, Grace Gaddis, Eva Titus, Carrie Pangborn, Earl Pope, Jennie DeCamp, Tillie Uhrahahn.

Mercy and Help—Eva Doeringer, Stella Vermeule. Ethel Noe, David Fairchild, Reba Kline, Ira Pangborn, Mabel Stevens.

Social—Mary Woolston, Edith Major, Edith Taft, Ida Waterson, Grace Titus, Willie Morton, Flossie Conroy.

Literary—May Fairchild, Mabel Farley, Nettie Weiss, Harry Gaddis, Laura Woolston, Rachel DeCamp.

Missionary—Winnie Carroll, Grace Powell, Sadie Winckler, Norman Ammerman, Jennie DeMott, Belle DeMott, Alice DeMott.

PRETTY HOME WEDDING.

Marriage of Miss Clementine Burgmiller to Robert G. Rogers.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Berkeley Heights, Oct. 8—The marriage of Miss Clementine Burgmiller to Robert G. Rogers, of Washingtonville, took place Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents in this place, in the presence of a large number of admiring relatives and friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Augustus Block, pastor of the Congregational church, of Myersville.

The house was tastily decorated with flowers and vines, all of which were arranged by the young lady friends of the bride. In the parlor there was arranged an arch, over which was suspended the National flag. It was under this arch that the marriage was performed.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Louise Burgmiller, who acted as bridemaid, while Richard Rogers, brother of the groom, was the best man. As the bridal party entered the parlor the Mendelssohn wedding march was played on the organ. Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Rogers were heartily congratulated by all present, and during the evening they left for a short honeymoon to be spent on Long Island. Upon their return they will reside at the home of the groom.

During the evening a bountiful wedding supper was served to the guests and in the wee small hours they departed, all having had a very enjoyable time.

A large number of gifts were received by the bride and groom from their many friends, evidencing their popularity.

Death of Mrs. Silvers.

Word has been received in this city of the death of Mrs. Arthur Silvers in Debrique, Iowa. Mrs. Silvers lived in New Providence, where she was born and brought up. When she married she and Mr. Silvers lived in Plainfield for two years, then moved west where they have been for the past six years. Death was due to hasty consumption.

Stockholders Didn't Respond.

Because the stockholders of the Plainfield Sanitary Company failed to respond to the notices sent out for a meeting to be held in the Casino last Saturday to approve of the board of directors' plan to increase the mortgage on the plant from $5,000 to $6,000, it has been found necessary to call another meeting for Oct. 12th.

Sentence Suspended.

Sentence was suspended on Sebastian Miller and his wife in the City Court this morning. They were arrested severel weeks ago for thumping Mrs. Lida Levine, of Cottage place, their neighbor, over the head with a dish pan.

Funeral of Mrs. Saltzman.

The funeral services over the remains of Mrs. August Saltzman will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Dr. J. T. Fritts, on Park avenue.

F. H. BALL NOW IN BOROUGH COUNCIL

Elected to Succeed T. J. Carey, Who Resigned.

CHANGES ON COMMITTEES.

COUNCILMAN BURTIS MADE HEAD OF LICENSES AND MARSHALLS.

Chance for the Borough to Secure a Public Park—Money Spent on the Streets—Somerset Place Accepted as a Borough Street—Relief for Delinquent Firemen—Other Matters Transacted.

The meeting of the Borough Council last night was a short one. The members present were Messrs. Rogers, Woolston, MacLaughlin and Burtis. One of the first items of business taken up was the resignation of Councilman T. J. Carey, which was read and accepted, and F. H. Ball, a well-known resident of the borough, and a popular club man, was nominated and elected to serve in Mr. Carey's place until the next election.

Mr. Ball, who sat inside the railing, was called to the Mayor's desk and sworn in. He was given Mr. Carey's seat, and made chairman of the laws and ordinance committee. Councilman Burtis was made chairman of the committee on licenses and marshalls.

A communication was read from Elston M. French relating to a strip of ground running along Greenbrook between Water street and Elm place, and which Mr. French said the heirs of the late Robert T. Curry were willing to donate to the borough upon consideration that they would eventually connect the strip into a park.

Councilman Woolston reported that this last month $345.57 has been spent on Rockview avenue, and that the total amount expended for labor on the streets was $430.65. Rockview avenue is not yet finished, but the gutters will need scraping and a little more rolling.

Quite a little discussion arose when the question of accepting Somerset place as a street was introduced. Some members of the Council thought that a new map of the street should first be secured so that the borough could see what it was doing, but acting on the advice of Counsel Reed, who sent his opinion, the street was accepted, the phrase "as per surveyor's map" being incorporated in the resolution. The street is only a block in length, and has a fire hydrant and electric lights.

There are a few people who knew it did not belong to the borough. The Mayor said that he himself once ordered some men to stop laying a board walk in front of a house on the street, not knowing that it was private property.

Mr. Rogers, for the committee on license and marshals, recommended that a claim of Peter Hansen for money claimed by him for doing police duty in 1895 be not paid. Mr. Burtis moved that the Mayor and Council be empowered to borrow $2,000 from any one who would loan it. Carried.

Mr. Rogers introduced a resolution empowering the Council to relieve a number of firemen who have not attended 50 per cent. of the fires, as the ordinance provides, during the year. Many of the delinquents were among the best firemen of the borough; some were away to war, and others had similar excuses, so the resolution was adopted.

The Clerk's financial report is as follows: Paid to county and State, $2,383.61; cash balance, $79.03; balance, $2,462.64. $37.10 has been collected during September. The total receipts were $4,250.82, disbursements $2,906.45. Balance, $1,344,37

The subscription for Rockview avenue, $797.66. This was levied as follows: Estate Jane Tappin, $277.66; W. J. Buttfield, $215.70; C. W. McCutchen, $59.68; J. F. Wilson, $51.75; estate William McCutchen, $35.40; W. W. Howland, $20.41; estate William White, $24.00; Hughes Fawcett, $16.43; W. O. Worth, $15.00; E. A. Overton, $11.26; J. T. Harrison, $10.56; E. P. Hooley, $22.21.

ACCUSED OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

Fred Bowden Gave $100 Bonds to Appear at an Examination.

William N. Pangborn, agent for the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, arrested Fred Bowden, of Grant avenue, this morning on a charge of cruelty to animals. Mr. Bowden was arraigned before Lawyer Newcorn and was held in $100 bail for his appearance next Saturday before Justice Storms, of New Market. The charge in question is in relation to the time that Mr. Bowden engaged a horse at the livery stable of Dan Roberts, and while on the road riding the horse fell down and eventually died.

COURTED HIS OLD GIRL.

BUT NOW SHE IS MARRIED AND THERE WAS TROUBLE.

George Henderson Claims That William Swalm Paid to Much Attention to His Wife—Both in Court Today.

East Front street last night was the scene of quite a little excitement early in the evening which was created by two colored men and a woman. One of the men, William Swalm, was found by George H. Henderson, the other, in company with his wife. Henderson sent up a yell, the woman ran, Swalm tried to explain, Patrolman Mattox came, and both men found themselves in the lockup.

They were released later in the evening and told to appear this morning. Henderson was the complainant, and wanted the court to "make Swalm keep away from his wife." That was all the complaint Henderson had to make, for he said he had no grudge against Swalm.

It seems that Swalm and Mrs. Henderson used to be old friends before she married Henderson, and when she was married her husband gave Swalm a cordial invitation to "call round any time." Swalm has accepted this invitation too many times, Henderson claims, and grew jealous.

After the fuss on East Front street last night, Henderson claims his wife left town and has not been home since. City Judge DeMeza, after warning Swalm to keep away from Henderson's home after this, let him go.

DR. LEWIS HEARD AGAIN.

HE DISCUSSED THE SABBATH OBSERVANCE QUESTION.

Occupied the Pulpit of the Seventh-Day Baptist Church and Claimed That Protestantism is on the Decline.

The stormy morning did not prevent a good attendance at the Seventh-Day Baptist church to hear once more a sermon from Rev. D. A. H. Lewis. The question of Sabbath reform, from the Seventh-Day Baptist point of view, formed the topic of his address.

Sabbath reform is a church question, not a question of politics or economics. It is the Sunday question not the Sabbath question; the world as a mass cares nothing for the Sabbath; today is the day when the world, instead of getting ready to meet God, is busier than any other day of the week.

Protestantism started with the idea that the Bible was supreme. Roman Catholicism that the church was supreme. But on the Sabbath question the Protestant church did not accept the Bible. Some of the dangers from this are a loss of love and trust for the Bible, and a loss of the idea that any time is sacred. There is a tendency among Americans to say that the lack of observance of Sunday comes from immigration. But all Roman Catholics have been taught that the Sabbath was a Jewish institution, and the church can make its own holy days. They say that any one who follows the Bible must keep the Sabbath. The strongest organization in the world today if the Church of Rome. It makes no open opposition to Protestantism; it has learned better. It seeks to work with it and the influence is doubly dangerous. Steadily, through the United States, the relative number of Romanists is increasing. On the Sabbath question the Protestants are swinging around to the Roman Catholic point of view, that the church is the supreme authority.

The growth of the Seventh-day Baptists as a denomination is a secondary matter with us. The question is of the power of a few to make a great truth felt. It is wholly with Christian people that we are to work. We are to awaken people to the great truth that lies at the foundation of Christian civilization. It is not a denominational question, it is a question of Christianity, of Protestantism, of the Bible.

Good Interest at the Start.

There was a large attendance of members at the meeting of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, yesterday afternoon. This was the first fall meeting and the members have commenced their work in a way that bespeaks success.

Around Shaking Hands.

S. Schoonmaker, of Hillsboro township, one of the aspirants for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff in Somerset county, was in town Thursday shaking hands with his numerous friends. Mr. Schoonmaker is making a hustle for the nomination.

Collector George F. Brown, of the borough, has received a letter from his brother, Rev. Charles B. Brown, in which the latter states that he has not been ill, as stated by the News. His health is excellent and he is doing a good work.

TROLLEY LINE WAS TO BE BUILT AT NIGHT.

Everything Was in Readiness For the Work.

BUT COUNCIL STOPPED IT.

A PLAN TO OUTWIT THE BOARD OF FREEHOLDERS.

It Was Expected to Pass the Ordinance Granting the Street Railway Company a Franchise Over Richmond and East Second Streets—If Plan Worked Road Would Have Been Built at Night.

If the Common Council last night had passed the ordinance granting a franchise to the Plainfield Street Railway Company to extend their tracks over Richmond street from the corner of Fifth to East Second streets, and thence up East Second street to the city limits at Scotch Plains, as it was planned to do, it is more than likely that this morning would have seen the trolley tracks over this new route well under way.

This is the extension that the Board of Freeholders are trying to prevent the city from granting a franchise for, claiming that it seriously interferes with the county trolley project, for which John Kean has paid $250,000 for the franchise. It was planned to have the Common Council adopt the proposed ordinance last night, and immediately afterward the street railway company would put a large force of workmen at work building the road before the Freeholders could resort to any court to prevent the consummation of the enterprise.

It is known that the street railway company had everything in readiness to do the job with dispatch. Several hundred Italians were at ready call, the paraphernalia for doing the work hastily at night was close at hand, and all the magnates waited for was the passage of the ordinance. At the last moment, however, Councilman Barrows decided that it was not best to put the ordinance through. Action on it was postponed till next Friday night, but it is thought that by that time the Freeholders and those interested in the county trolley project will take agressive steps to prevent the Plainfield Street Railway Company from taking snap action.

Scotch Plains, Oct. 8—Scotch Plains' curiosity has been aroused by the emigration of about seventy Italians who arrived in town Thursday evening and took up their abode in the old Hunter house on Front street, which has been the headquarters of the Italian colony for several years. Yesterday an Italian contractor arrived in town from New York and made inquiries for the Hunter house and a gang of laborers he had shipped out the day before. After being directed he was drawn into conversation and was asked the usual question: "What does it mean, this large addition to the Italian colony?" He readily answered that he had the contract to begin breaking ground for the electric street railway, and that he intended starting at once. This made Scotch Plains people jubilant and the usual "I told you so" was given and taken, but there are some who do not believe in being too jubilant until they see something more substantial than a crowd of sixty, or seventy laborers.

Observations on a Recent Sermon.

"The Faith Once Delivered to the Saints," from Jude 3, will be the subject of discourse by Elder Horton at the tent Sunday night. This topic is brought forth as a sequel to Dr. DaCosta's sermon on "The Failure of Denominationalism to Convert," recently delivered in New York. This meeting will perhaps terminate the series of tent meetings, as the weather is unfavorable for tent meetings. Arrangements will be made to continue the Bible lectures and Gospel sermons during the winter.

Farm Buildings Burned.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, Oct. 8—Last Thursday morning at 11 o'clock all of the barns and outbuildings owned by Henry Garretson, who resides between this place and New Brunswick, were destroyed by fire, The cause of the fire is given as spontaneous combustion in the hay in the barn. Mr. Garretson lost three valuable horses, in addition to his entire stock of grain and hay. A number of wagons and some valuable machinery was also ruined. The loss is very heavy, but there was adequate insurance on the buildings and stock.

COMMISSION RUMORS

A Joint Session Is Held in Paris to Complete Preliminaries.

SOME WILD STORIES DENIED

Said That the Spaniards Will Offer to Cede Luzon if the United States Will Assume the Philippine Debt. Points to Be Considered.

Paris, Oct. 8.—The joint session of the peace commissions convened at two o'clock yesterday.

The American commissioners held a session in the morning and were occupied with Washington correspondence.

During the recess they have sought to perfect the United States position in relation to the alternative or contingent attiudes or propositions of the Spaniards.

Thus far the form or substance of the American presentment has not been disclosed. It was its presentation at Monday's joint session which caused the Spaniards to ask for a recess from Monday until Friday.

Whatever is new or stronger on the American side will be the result of the conferences with Major General Merritt since Monday's joint session.

If the Americans were then sweeping in their demands regarding the Philippines, they have certainly not been weakened by the statements of General Merritt.

It is possible that the Spaniards will enter the session fully appreciating the position they hold as the vanquished, although they will strenuously urge the existence of the rights and equities remaining to the vanquished.

The Gaulois says that during the last twenty-four hours sensational and alarming news has been afloat regarding the negotiations.

It cites the English papers' allegations that Judge Day has cabled to Washington that the negotiations are on the verge of stopping owing to the refusal of Madrid to accept the United States' attitude regarding the Philippines.

The Gaulois also cites a statement to the effect that Judge Day has been authorized to suspend negotiations if the Spaniards do not conform to the American views and declares it can affirm that this news is absolutely correct.

It declares, however, that whereas the Spaniards at the outset were obdurate, they are now disposed to modify their intentions, owing to the firmness of the attitude of the United States, the people of which, it is claimed, have now been excited to the point of insisting upon holding the Philippines.

The speech of Attorney General Griggs before the Republican convention at Trenton, N. J., last week, is cited as showing the United States's purpose is expansion.

Spain is alleged to be beginning to realize this, and it is said she will finally agree to give up Manila and the island of Luzon, on condition that the United States assumes the Philippine debt, amounting to $40,000,000, and accord privileges to Spanish trade.

The Gaulois concludes: "We think we are authorized to say that President McKinley will agree to a settlement on this basis."

Yesterday's session adjourned at 3.15 until Tuesday, October 11. The preliminaries are finished. The commissioners have settled upon the points which are to be taken under consideration, but not on the order.

Propositions have been exchanged in writing, and each commission, in recess, will separately deliberate upon them.

Senor Ojeda, secretary of the Spanish commission, made his first appearance at yesterday's session. Secretary Moore and Senor Ojeda have decided upon a plan for keeping the records of the conference.

He Noticed the Likeness.

A Parisian swell once had a crayon picture of himself made, which he afterward pretended to find fault with.

"It does not bear the slightest resemblance to me," said he, and I will not take it."

The artist protested, but all to no avail.

After the dandy had left the painter added to the portrait a magnificent pair of asses ears, and exhibited it in the window, thus altered, to the gaze of the curious public.

It hadn't been long exposed when the dandy entered the artist's studio in a towering rage, and, finding that threats amounted to nothing, he at last offered to buy it, even at a considerable advance upon the original price.

"It wasn't strange you didn't recognize your resemblance to the picture at first," said the painter; "but I knew you'd notice the likeness as soon as I added those ears!"—Spare Moments.

THE INDIANS WHIPPED

General Bacon Returns from Bear Island.

NO MORE TROOPS NEEDED

White Flags Seen at Several Places Along the Lake To-day Indicating a General Surrender. List of the Casualties. An Eye Witness Tells of the Battle.

Walker, Minn., Oct. 8.—General Bacon and his men arrived here at 12.35 Friday afternoon, having had no difficulty about the landing of boats. He reports that at several points along the lake white flags, indicating a general surrender, were seen to-day.

Minneapolis, Oct. 8.—A dispatch from Duluth says that General Bacon has sent word that he has the Pillager band whipped and does not need further reinforcements. The companies of the Fourteenth Minnesota now here do not expect to go.

The bodies of Major Wilkinson, Sergeant Butler and four privates and eleven wounded soldiers left here on the morning train for St. Paul.

Chicago, Oct. 8.—The Tribune's correspondent at Walker, Minn., now on the way to the scene of battle between Company E, Third infantry, under the command of General Bacon, and the Pillager tribe of the Chippewa Indians, on Bear island, telegraphed yesterday morning that the steamer Flora had arrived at Walker, bringing in the killed and wounded from Bear island. Following is a complete list of those killed in Wednesday's engagement:

Major Melville C. Wilkinson.
Sergeant William Butler.
Private Edward Lowe.
Private John Olmstead.
Private John Swallenstocker.
Private Alfred Zebell.

The wounded are: E. E. Antonelle, shot in the leg; Levy Ayres, sergeant, shot in the neck; Richard Boucher, shot through the shoulder; Edward Brown, shot in the face; John Daily, shot in the thigh; Charles Francis; Private Godfrey shot through the shoulder; Charles Jelsen Albert Schuyler, Charles Turner, shot through the shoulder; George Wicker, shot in the leg.

The civilians wounded are: Edward Harris, city marshal of Walker; Joseph Oscar, pilot of steamer Jennie; T. J. Sheehan, deputy United States marshal; Indian Inspector Tinker; Henry Walters, engineer of the tug Jennie.

General Bacon is unhurt and all newspaper correspondents have been accounted for and are uninjured, although they were at one time under the same fire which thinned the ranks of the troops.

Two hundred and seven picked men of the Third infantry, at Fort Snelling, in command of Lieutenant Colonel Harbach, arrived at Walker at six o'clock Thursday evening, by special fast train from the post at St. Paul. Each soldier carried a Krag-Jorgensen rifle and one hundred rounds of ammunition and rations for five days, and an ample reserve supply of nine thousand rounds of ammunition was brought along. A Gatling gun was part of the equipment.

Marshal Sheehan's Story of the Battle

Walker, Minn., Oct. 8.—Colonel T. J. Sheehan, the deputy marshal who was wounded in Wednesday's fight with the Indians on Bear island arrived here yesterday and gives the following account of the action up to the time he started back:

"We landed about ten o'clock on Wednesday morning on the southeast side of the point on the mainland directly north of Bear island. Near the shore is the log house of Chief Bog-Ah-Mah-Ge-Shig, or "Bush Ear." General Bacon left twelve soldiers along the shore to protect the landing place, and the remainder of the troops marched across the point to the west side and along the shore for a couple of miles looking for some Indians who were said to want a council.

"I remained behind with my interpreter and arrested an Indian I wanted near the house and sent him to the boat. While I was talking with some Indians I saw six bucks armed with Winchesters come out of the house and go away inland. They did not speak to me, although I was their agent for five years, and I feared trouble and called in the twelve soldiers, who were scattered about the shore. About that time General Bacon returned with the troops. Half the men had stacked their arms and the order was given to unload their equipments.

"As they did so a shot was fired, and firing almost immediately became general. The soldiers formed in line in a semi-circle facing the Indians, and the twelve men who were with me rushed up to protect the right flank and drove the Indians back, securing a more favorable position. One of these men was shot in the face, one in the arm, and a third in the leg. I do not know how the other men were wounded. After our first rush we had the best of the position. The log house was inside our lines and it was used as a hospital, and the men sought the cover of logs and trees and settled down for a long fight. It continued during the day and evening, and was renewed in the morning, although it was never so hot as during the first hour or so.

"This morning a boat made a landing with some provisions, and General Bacon wanted to send the wounded men back. He sent me down to make arrangements and I went out to the steamer in a canoe. They brought down one wounded man and the captain of the boat brought him off shore. Before the others could be moved the Indians opened a hot fire on the boat, and we had to leave.

"About six miles out we met the Flora going in with thirty or more armed men and everything the soldiers needed.

"Gen. Bacon handled his men magnificently and was on the firing line during the whole of the engagement, encouraging his men and directing the operations. He was ably seconded by Major Wilkinson until he was killed, and Lieutenant Ross, under fire for the first time, showed himself a born fighter. He rallied the men at the opening volley and stayed right with them all the time. It is impossible to tell how many Indians are in the attacking party, but I should say not less than 150 or 200, and we do not know how many more are joining them."

Washington View of the Trouble.

Washington, Oct. 8.—The governor of Minnesota has sent a telegram to the secretary of war representing that there is great apprehension among residents in the neighborhood of the Indian troubles.

The war department people do not attach much importance to the trouble. Adjutant General Corbin says the Third infantry and the First cavalry should be able to put down the Indians.

PRESIDENT FIXES EVACUATION DAY

Spanish Forces [illegible] Leave Porto Rico by October 18.

Washington, Oct. 8.—President McKinley has cabled to the United States military commission at Porto Rico that the island must be evacuated by the Spanish forces on or before October 18, and that the Spanish commissioners be so informed.

In case of the failure of the Spaniards to complete the evacuation by that date the United States commissioners are directed to take possession and exercise all of the functions of government, and in case it is found to be impossible to secure transportation for the Spanish troops by October 18, they may be permitted to go into temporary quarters until transportation can be arranged for to take them to Spain.

This fact was developed at yesterday's cabinet meeting, and it was also stated that from this time forward a more vigorous policy would be pursued with respect to the evacuation of Cuba.

The president has notified the United States evacuation commission at Havana that the Spaniards would be expected to have evacuated the island by December 1, with a strong intimation that in case of failure the United States could brook no further delay, but immediately thereafter take possession of the government.

GREAT DISTRESS IN CUBA.

The Inhabitants Starving and Must Be Something Done Soon.

Washington, Oct. 8.—Senor Quesada, representing the Cubans in Washington, was at the war department yesterday. He presents a very distressing picture of the conditions on the island.

"The inhabitants are starving," he says, "and unless something is done for them there will be very few people left. The country is devastated the people have had no opportunity to plant and raise crops, they have no money to purcashe supplies, and what food there is in the island is beyond their reach.

"The greatest suffering is in Santa Clara, although it is very bad in Puerto Principe. Only one port, Matanzas, is open, and its situation is not favorable to reaching other portions of the island.

News from the Klondike

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 8.—Navigation upon the upper Yukon river is closed. The last passengers who came out from Dawson up the river on the steamers Columbian and Canadian have arrived here, some with hard luck stories, and a few with gold.

The most interesting news from Dawson relates to Commissioner Ogilvie's reforms. He is making sweeping changes and intends to make the Klondike a model mining district. One of the passengers says that on September 13 a number of gamblers were arrested and fined to the amount of $10,000. The amount will be spent in improving the streets of the city.

The Troops for Porto Rico.

Chickamauga Park, Ga., Oct. 8.—The Sixth United States volunteer infantry, immunes, commanded by Colonel Lawrence D. Tyson, left at four o'clock yesterday morning by the Southern railroad for New York, whence they will sail to-day by the transport Mississippi for Porto Rico.

The men are in excellent physical condition. The regiment is composed of hardy East Tennesseans for the most part, and they will be able to stand a vigorous campaign.

We Block Portugal,

London, Oct. 8.—A dispatch to the Pall Mall Gazette from Lisbon says the Delagoa Bay negotiations have been deferred until 1899.

This, the dispatch says, is owing to the United States insisting upon Portugal's strict observance of the agreement that neither the railroad, the harbor nor public lands at Lorenze Marque be alienated until the Berne award is completed.

10,000 Houses Burned in Hankow.

Shanghai, Oct. 8.—Advices from Hankow, the treaty port at the mouth of the Yang-tse-Kiang, show that the fire there on Sunday last destroyed ten thousand houses, devastated about two miles of built up ground and did damage to the extent of from $5,000,000 to $8,000,000.

Counterfeit $100 Bills

San Francisco, Oct. 8.—Unite States Secret Service officers have discovered that large numbers of counterfeit $100 silver certificates have been produced in this city.

The operators are reported to be under police surveillance.

Lucania Apparently Disabled.

Queenstown, Oct. 8.—The Cunard line steamer Lucania, Captain McKay, which left New York on October 1 for Liverpool, by way of this port, was sighted off row Head at 2.10 p. m. yesterday, apparently in a disabled condition.

Japan to Send Warships.

Yokohama, Oct. 8.—The Japanese government will send two cruisers to Chinese waters for the protection of Japanese subjects in China.

GEORGE D. SAXTON KILLED.

Brother of Mrs. McKinley Shot on the Street in Canton.

Canton, O., Oct. 8.—George D. Saxton, brother of Mrs. McKinley, the president's wife, was murdered here last evening, and Mrs. Anna C. George, whose alleged relations to Saxton have figured in a number of cases in court in recent years, has been placed under arrest on suspicion of connection with the crime.

The murder occurred shortly after dark, in Lincoln avenue, a residence street, directly in front of the home of Mrs. Eva B. Althouse, widow of the late George B. Althouse, who was regarded as an intimate friend of Mr. Saxton, and who not long ago began peace proceedings against Mrs. George, alleging that the latter had threatened her with violence and death.

Saxton lived in the upper floors of his business block, where Mrs. George several years ago conducted a dressmaking establishment. He ate his meals at the home of his brother-in-low, Mr. M. C. Barber.

He left Mr. Barber's place, riding a bicycle, about six o'clock last night, and that was the last seen of him alive by his friends.

The coroner ordered an autopsy, after which the body was removed to the Barber home.

Mr. Saxton was between 45 and 50 years old and unmarried. He was a little above the medium height, of sandy complexion, and had a round, full face. He was a successful business man and owned considerable property, principally in rea lestate, in this city. According to various cases filed in courts here, his connection with the George family began some five or six years ago, when Mrs. George came here from Columbian county and opened the dressmaking establishment in the Saxton block, her husband remaining behind.

The News at the White House.

Washington, Oct. 8.—The news of the murder of Mrs. McKinley's brother was received at the White House just about the time that the reception to the Episcopal Council, in session here, was about to be brought to a close.

Mrs. McKinley was receiving with the president, and was in her usual spirits. The news of her brother's death was a great shock to her.

Several private dispatches were received at the White House from members of the family in Canton in regard to the tragedy. They were brief, however ,and contained little, if any, additional information to that in the press dispatches.

Mrs. McKinley expressed a wish to attend the funeral, and accordingly hurried arrangements were made whereby she will start for Canton shortly after 7 o'clock to-night.

DEATH OF A. OAKEY HALL.

Twice Mayor of New York and Three Times District Attorney.

A. Oakey Hall, formerly mayor of New York, died suddenly last evening at 68 Washington Square, south, where he and his wife had apartments. His only recent source of income was the sale of his writings, which consisted mainly of reminiscences of his busy life as a politician, a "first nighter" at the theatres and a man about town.

Some time ago he sold to several newspapers biographical sketches of himself.

Several days ago Mr. Hall was seized with a chill. His feebleness from old age, combined with a slight attack of heart trouble, prevented his recovery. His death was painless and he retained consciousness almost until the last moment.

His wife and son were at his bedside. He was in his 73rd year.

A Oakey Hall's name is inseparably connected with the rise and fall of the Tweed regime, for he was mayor of the city when the Tweed ring frauds startled the nation.

He stood his trial for alleged complicity in these frauds and was acquitted.

He was a politician, a newspaper man, a lawyer and for a time an actor. All in all he had a most remarkable career.

He was born in New Orleans of English parentage and was a graduate of the University of New York. He became, in 1854, one of the law firm of Blunt, Vanderpoel & Hall.

He left the Whig Republican party when Mr. Lincoln defeated Mr. Seward for the presidential nomination, became a Democrat and fought Tammany Hall until that organization was glad to take him into its councils. He was three times elected district attorney on the Tammany ticket, and was serving his third term when John T. Hoffman, then mayor, was elected governor of the state.

Mr. Hall was elected mayor in 1868, the Republican candidate being Frederick A. Conkling, a brother of Roscoe Conkling.

Mr. Hall was re-elected mayor in 1870. The Tammany over throw that took place in 1872, when the Republicans put William F. Havemeyer at the head of the city government, ended Mr. Hall's political career.

He had always written copiously for the press when he had leisure, and he now devoted himself to newspaper work and to play writing.

Murder in the Second Degree.

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 8.—Eudora M. W. Guilford, Harry B. Guilford, Albert H. Oxley and Rose Drayton were taken before Judge Silas A. Robinson at the special session of the criminal superior court yesterday and arraigned upon the charge of murder in the second degree.

Dr. Gelkie Not Dead.

London, Oct. 8.—The announcement that the Rev. Cunningham Geikie, D. D., author of "The Life and Works of Christ," etc., was dead was a mistake. It is his brother, John Geikie, who is dead.

John R. Gentry's Sire Sold for $3,350.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 8.—Ashland Wilkes, sire of John R. Gentry, 2.00 1-2, was sold at auction here yesterday to John D. Creighton of Omaha for $3,350.

CHANGES IN THE ARMY

Many Able Officers Will Receive Honorable Discharge.

THREE CORPS ABANDONED

Three Major Generals and Twenty-Six Brigadier Generals in the List, Gens. Breckinridge, Graham and Wheeler to Command Three Reorganized Corps.

Washington, Oct. 8.—The war department has issued the long expected order for the honorable discharge from the volunteer army of the United States of three major generals and 26 brigadier generals of volunteers.

This heavy reduction was made necessary by the fact that the volunteer army itself has been already reduced by fully fifty per cent., and there is consequently no duty remaining for these officers to discharge.

The officers who were promoted from the regular army will return to their former duties. The list of major generals follows:

John J. Coppinger, October 31, 1898.
Hamilton S. Hawkins, November 30, 1898.
Jacob F. Kent, November 30, 1898.

The list of Brigadier generals to take effect on October 31, 1898, is as follows:

Francis L. Guenther, Alfred E. Bates, George L. Gillespie, Lucius F. Hubbard, James R. Watier, Charles P. Mattocks, Mark W. Sheafe, James H. Barkley, Joseph W. Plume, Thomas L. Rosser, Joseph K. Hudson.

The following is a list of brigadier generals whose retirement is to take effect on November 30, 1898:

John I. Rodgers, Andrew S. Burt, Peter C. Hains, George A. Garretson, Henry M. Duffield, John B. Babcock, Roy Stone, Wallace F. Randolph, Henry Carroll, Edward P. Pearson, John . Page, William M. Wherry, Charles D. Viele, Aaron S. Daggett, John H. Patterson.

Brigadier Generals Alfred E. Bates, George L. Gillespie, John B. Babcock and Peter C. Hains will continue their present duties.

A general order was issued yesterday organizing new army corps and designating various points where the troops shall be stationed.

The Third, Fifth and Sixth corps are discontinued; the First, Second and Fourth corps reorganized. They are to be commanded respectively by Generals Breckinridge, Graham and Wheeler.

The headquarters of each corps will be: First corps, Macon, Ga.; Second corps, Augusta, Ga.; Fourth corps, Huntsville, Ala.

The full text of the order is as follows:

"By direction of the secretary of war, the Third, Fifth and Sixth army corps are discontinued. The First, Second and Fourth army corps will be reorganized."

Ex-Secretary Bayards Will.

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 8.—The will of Thomas F. Bayard, ex-secretary of state, has been entered at the registers office. William S. Hilles and Thomas F. Bayard, Jr., of this city, and S. D. Warren of Dedham, Mass., are named as executors.

The estate is valued at about $75,000 and consists of real estate in Wilmington, Del., and one house in Washington.

The entire estate is left to his widow with the exception of $5,000 to the Old Swedes church of this city, and a legacy to H. W. Bryan of Washington, formerly private secretary to Mr. Bayard.

Reinforcement for the Philippines.

Washington, Oct. 8.—Rear Admiral Dewey has called the navy department that he has been advised that a number of Spanish troops have arrived at Singapore, bound for the Philippines, to reinforce the Spanish garrison at Iloilo, on the island of Panay. At this place is concentrated about all that remains of the Spanish army of occupation of the Philippines outside of the few troops on the island of Luzon.

Fire in Asbury Park.

Asbury Park, Oct. 8.—There was a $15,000 fire in West Asbury Park, N. J., yesterday. Flames broke out in an unoccupied apartment house owned by George Appleby, and spread to houses owned by Jacob Jack and R. T. Wood, and from them to the Second Baptist church, the Jewish synagogue and the Young Men's Christian Asso. reading rooms. All were more or less damaged.

Philippine Envoys in New York.

New York, Oct. 8.—Senor Agoncillo and Senor Lopez of Manila, envoys of the Philippine insurgents, who have been in Washington conferring with President McKinley, accompanied by M. Lambert, are at the Waldorf-Astoria. They will probably sail for France to-day on the steamship La Touraine. They remained in their rooms and refused to see anyone yesterday.

A Plate Glass Deal

Anderson, Ind., Oct. 8.—Major J. C. Doxey's $300,000 holdings in the American Plate Glass Company, the anti-trust concern, have been transferred to Pittsburg parties, who had acquired the other $700,000 of the capital stock. The new owners have planned additions to the Alexandria plant. Work is to begin at once.

Kalamazoo Welcomes Shafter.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 8.—The chief drawing card of the big street fair now in progress here is General Shafter, who came from the east to this, his home county.

Several thousand people gathered at the station to see him, and it seemed that he would be crushed alive by the throng.

Great Britain's Foreign Trade.

London, Oct. 8.—The board of trade statement of this country's foreign trade for September shows an increase in exports over September, 187, of 1,639,800 pounds, and increase in imports of only 425,600 pounds.

GENERAL GREENE TESTIFIES.

Some Facts About the Manila Expedition and San Francisco Camps.

Washington, Oct. 8.—General F. V. Greene, who was in charge of one of the divisions of United States troops at the battle of Manila, was before the war investigation commission at its morning session yesterday. He sailed from San Francisco to Manila on the steamer China, an excellent vessel, he said, which was inspected by a board of officers before it was chartered. He found the ship in good condition, but the men necessarily were crowded. Four months' provisions and a large quantity of quartermaster's supplies and medical supplies were carried. With a few exceptions the loading was carefully done, though the haste.

There was no complaint during the voyage of a scarcity of supplies, but during the first two days out, there was some dissatisfaction with the cooking. This was soon improved and no criticism was heard afterwards.

The details of the ocean trip and of the battle of Manila were related in a manner calling for the closest attention from the commissioners, but covering the same ground as his report to the war department, recently made public.

He spoke of the insurgents, who lay between his forces and the Spanish lines. He said it was impossible to give an estimate of their number, but he thought it was about ten thousand. They were well supplied with Mauser and Remington rifles, many of which they had captured from the Spaniards, and others they had purchased abroad.

Colonel Denby asked what the insurgents were doing while the battle was on.

"They were trying to get into Manila," said General Greene, "and while the leaders were trying to preserve order the rank and file were not so compliant, and it was evident that they wished to enter the town to secure compensation for their services."

Speaking of the camps at San Francisco, General Greene said that the site of Camp Merritt was very poor, but he did not know whether a better site could have been selected.

General Greene stated that the most flagrant evidence of neglect that he had seen during the war was in the case of the transports at New York. Their condition was of a character that should have been remedied. He had also seen green coffee issued both in Florida and Manila.

DUN'S WEEKLY REVIEW.

Cotton Industry Shows Better Conditions.

New York, Oct. 8.—The final returns of failures for the third quarter of 1898 considerably exceed last week's estimate, numbering in all 2,556, with liabilities of $32,608,214, and of commercial failures only 2,540, with liabilities of $25,104,778. Comparisons given to-day show that the failures have been smaller than in any other quarter since 1892, both in amount, in average per failure, and in defaults per firm in business.

The last quarter of 1898 begins with sensational troubles in wool, the Tradesmen's National Bank having failed, with large reported loans to the Wool Warehouse, while the Wool Exchange has stopped sales, and the Wool Record has stopped publication, and the same week witnessed the failure of the Sawyer mills and the Plymouth mills.

The cotton industry shows better conditions in spite of the fall of cotton to the lowest quotation ever known, and there is larger demand for most staple goods. The boot and shoe industry moves on quite regardless of the high quotatiotns for leather and hides.

The iron industry still gains so rapidly that an unhealthy boom would seem to be in progress, but for the peculiar conditions. The consuming demand is remarkably heavy, and large contracts this week cover 3,000 tons of structural iron at Chicago, 8,000 tons for Boston, 2,000 tons of ship plates at Cleveland, and a heavy demand for bars, the Pennsylvania Railroad requiring 2,500 cars and the Northwestern 2,000.

Wheat has been declining a little with foreign reports somewhat more favorable as to European crops, and yet the actual shipments have been 3,586,947 bushels, flour included, for the week, against 4,468,954 bushels for the corresponding week last year.

Failures for the week have been 169 in the United States against 212 last year, and 23 in Canada against 29 last year.

GREAT STRIKE IN PARIS.

Fears That It Will Be Turned to an Incipient Revolution

Paris, Oct. 8.—The strike of the laborers has extended to nearly all the building trades, and it is feared the railroad men will join in the movement. Work on the exhibition buildings and underground railroad has completely ceased. About 60,000 men have gone out on strike, and the situation is causing consternation.

The attitude of the strikers is increasingly aggressive, and fights between strikers and so-called "blacklegs" are incessant, involving the intervention of the police, troops and the mounted Republican guards, who have been obliged to repeatedly charge the strikers. The quarters in which rioting has taken place are patrolled by strong detachments of police and the troops.

There are great apprehensions lest the agitators turn the strike movement to political ends. The Temps declares that the leaders are aiming at a general strike, if not at a revolution, and points out what a disastrous thing it would be if the exhibition of 1900 is compromised.

No Yellow Fever in Florida

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 8.—State Health Officer Porter has issued a statement denying that there has been a single case of yellow fever in Jacksonville, Tampa, or elsewhere, in Florida this year.

Gen. Grant's Brigade to Return

Ponce, Island Porto Rico, Oct. 8.—General Grant's brigade, consisting of the Fourth Ohio and the Third Illinois regiments, has been ordered to sail for home, from Ponce, about October 16.

COMING EVENTS.

October 9—Michael J. O'Reilly, the Bowery evangelist, will address the Y. M. C. A. meeting Sunday at 4:15 p. m. There will be vocal and cornet solos.

October 10—Mechanical drawing class at the Y. M. C. A.

October 10—Union Bible class of Rev. D. M. Sterns, in Y. M. C. A. Hall.

William B. Gourley, of Passaic county, was yesterday chosen chairman of the Democratic State committee in the place of Col. E. L. Price, who has been at the head of the Democrat State organization for many years. If Chairman Gourley runs the campaign for the election of Mr. Crane with same degree of ability that he showed in running things through as per schedule at the State convention the Democrats will doubtless do the celebrating after the votes are cast.

If Senator Daly persists in carrying out his intentions as declared at the meeting of the State Democratic committee yesterday—to retire to private life—the political world of this State will lose one of its most energetic and picturesque characters. The Senator was slightly disturbed because he was left off the State committee this year, and the retort that he made to such proceedings was decidedly plain if not gracious.

From fighting Spaniards in the blistering heat before Santiago to combating Indians in the frost bitten atmosphere in Minnesota, the Third Infantry's brave boys are having a stern realization that war either on a big or little scale is a terrible resort to make one class of human beings think and do as another class want them to.

Horsemen should remember that a crosswalk isn't for the convenience of a team to stand on, making pedestrians walk around the back of the wagon through the mud to cross the road. It is a common occurrence to see drivers and their teams monopolizing the crosswalks.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

For the first time in the history of electric railways, it is planned to have a car run by a woman when the Brunswick Traction Company opens its extension from Dunellen to Bound Brook. The trolley road runs through Lincoln, which has already attained fame because it has three women in the Common Council, and now the Councilwomen expect to add to their accomplishments that of manipulating a motor on a trolley car.—New York Times.

* * * * * *

From the unanimity with which the Republican press accord Congressman Pitney the first call upon the Governorship nomination three years hence, it is very evident that Mr. Voorhees need build no air castles about a second term.—Plainfield Press.

What's the matter with the Plainfield Press? It seems to have been caught napping twice within the past week, once on the Gubernatorial succession, and again on Elizabeth's proper share of the county offices. If The Press will look up the Constitution it will find that the Governor of New Jersey cannot be elected two terms in succession. If it will print a full list of all the offices held by Plainfield and a full list of all the offices held by Elizabeth it will also find that Plainfield has a much larger number, proportionately, than the city of Elizabeth.—Elizabeth Journal.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

It seems almost a pity that there is not enough public spirit about the people of Plainfield to give a rousing good time in honor of the return of the Plainfield boys who served on the Badger. There are several persons who have remarked this fact. Those who have returned to this city include Edward Tomlinson, Volney Green, Frank Smalley, Auguste Saltzman and Frank Fulton. Dr. Simpcon will probably return in a day or two. Ever since the boys returned they have been receiving the hearty congratulations of their many friends, and hours are spent in relating the thrilling experiences they had while sailing in southern waters. The boys are all looking well and, while they were axious to get home, they no doubt would be pleased to return if the opportunity offered itself.

JAMES J. HILL.

James J. Hill, who has achieved fame as the head of the Great Northern railway, has acquired a controlling interest in the Baltimore and Ohio. "Jim" Hill is, to use a hackneyed phrase, a self-made man. By industry and courage he raised himself from an humble position in railroading to the place in the first rank which he now holds.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Downing and Sigmon's company, appearing at Music Hall last night and tonight, are giving amusement-seekers a touch of the "continuous" show as seen in some of the vaudeville houses of New York. The audience that greeted the company last night were well pleased, for the acts produced abounded with the light elements of entertainment that served to please all. The performance opened with a farce called "Our Husbands," introducing four characters who had a merry time of it through the escapades of an intoxicated husband and the penchant of his friend to flirt with the former's wife while his own better-half was chasing him around with a baby in her arms. Miss Lulainee Darrell commenced the olio with a couple of vocal selections rendered in a baritone voice that was quite remarkable for a woman. Mountney and Neff gave a number of singing and dancing specialties that took with the audience. Miss Ethel LeVan appeared as a soprano soloist and the Darrels performed difficult feats on the Roman rings. "The Comedy Four" made plenty of laughter in their quartette singing, and were followed by Kennedy and Hayes in a number of parodies that brought plenty of applause. A clever and sympathetic portrayal of a working man and a tramp meeting and a little colloquy in song and prose following made up Carter and Gates' act. The show closed with the most entertaining act of all in the appearance of Detorello and Clemenso in musical specialties. The operetta "Honolulu" will be given tonight at the close of the show.

Of all old friends none are more welcome than Henry Peck, "Peck's Bad Boy," who re-visits Music Hall next Monday night. This good-natured lad and his mischievous pranks will always hold a warm place in the hearts of the old and young. For years he has amused and entertained the American public, and he comes now as full of merriment as ever. Dull care disappears like mist beneath the sun's rays when the bad boy sports with the funny groceryman, annoys his ma, his pa, and makes love to his girl. A bright galaxy of specialty artists adds to the general excellence of the performance, and nothing but the highest praise is heralded all along the route and crowded houses testify to the increasing popularity of the Atkinson Comedy Company's presentation of "Peck's Bad Boy."

All Talked Too Much.

Anna Green and Mrs. Story are two ladies from Ireland. They can't get along with their next door neighbors, a family of Hebrews, and frequent quarrels and spats are the result. Last week they had one, and Mrs. Rebecca Kinrk had them arrested. The trial was set down for this morning, but the three made such a hub bub in the court room, tell what each one had called the other, that City Judge put the matter over for one week.

Corporation Notice.

Public Notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, held on Friday, the seventh day of October, A. D., 1898, an ordinance of which the following is a copy, to wit:

"AN ORDINANCE

to provide separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water in portions of Park Avenue, Front and Somerset Streets.

Whereas, The City finds it necessary and the Common Council hereby so determine to provide separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water in the portions of streets hereinafter specified, and the water flowing into Green Brook through said portions of said streets, and the Common Council has determined, and doth hereby determine that the public good requires the construction of the sewers or drains hereinafter specified, and that the costs and expenses thereof should be provided for by issuing bonds of the City in the manner provided by section 38 of the Act of the Legislature of New Jersey, entitled "An Act to provide for drainage and sewerage in cities of this State," approved April 7, 1890, without resorting to an assessment for benefits, provided that the sum so to be raised shall not exceed the limit fixed by law in such cases:

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water, or the water flowing into Green Brook, be constructed in and for said City of Plainfield in Park Avenue from the Central Railroad of New Jersey to Front Street, with two inlets at the railroad bridge, one at North Avenue, six at Second Street and two near Second Street; in Front Street, from the Park Avenue to Somerset Street with two inlets at West Front Street and Pruden's Alley and two at Somerset Street; in Somerset Street from Front Street to Green Brook, all with the necessary manholes and appurtenances to complete the same, said separate sewers or drains to be of the dimensions and material, and to be laid in said streets, and along such lines, and at such grades, and in such manner as indicated and specified on map on file with the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield, entitled, "Map for Storm Sewers in Park Avenue, Front and Somerset Streets, made by Andrew J. Gavett, C. E., Sept. 1898."

Section 2. That the costs and expenses required to be incurred under this ordinance shall be provided for in the manner specified in the preamble to this ordinance."

was presented, read and ordered to be considered and acted upon by the said Common Council at a special meeting thereof to be held in the Common Council Chamber, No. 109 Park Avenue in the said City of Plainfield, on Monday the twenty-fourth day of October, 1898, at the hour of eight in the evening of that day, and at such meetings ample opportunity will be given to all parties in favor of or opposed to the improvement contemplated by said ordinance, to present their views with references to the same in writing or otherwise, as the Common Council may at that time direct, and public notice is hereby given of the intention of the Common Council to cause said improvement set forth in this ordinance to be made and such persons or corporations as may object thereto are requested to present their objections in writing at the City Clerk's office, (109 Park Avenue in the City of Plainfield, N. J.) at or before the expiration of ten days from the date of this notice or to the Common Council at its first meeting held after the expiration of said ten days, and said Common Council at such meeting to be held on the twenty-fourth day of October, 1898, as above stated, or afterward, may proceed to consider and pass such ordinance notwithstanding any objection.

By direction of the Common Council.
Dated, Plainfield, N. J., Oct. 7, A. D. 1898.

Dress for Small Girl.

A pretty little dress for a small girl is composed of dark red serge. The skirt is unlined and is hemmed up with its own material; the hemming on children's frocks should always be done by hand, as when required to be let down the marks of hand sewing do not show so much as machine stitching. The fullness of the skirt is gathered at the back and the whole is attached to a narrow band.

The full blouse bodice is also made without lining and is trimmed with rows of guipure insertion, which also forms the turned down collar and small cuffs. The blouse fastens on the left side of the front and is finished with bows of black velvet ribbon. The sleeves are made full at the top and fit closely to the lower part of the arm.

The Latest in Mean Men.

Jeremiah Stones is even meaner than the man who split up his wife's tombstone to repair his doorstep with Stones was an inveterate tobacco smoker, but as his wife detested the practice, and made home tempestuous and stormy for him when he indulged in the habit there, he always smoked when away during the day, and declared to his wife that he had stopped permanently. But one evening upon entering the front door and drawing out his handkerchief he accidentally pulled out his paper of tobacco, and, without noticing it, left it lying on the floor.

When Stones sat down to his tea, his wife walked in with the tobacco in her hand, and, looking Stones firmly in the eye, said, "Do you know who this belongs to?"

With great presence of mind Stones turned scowling to his eldest boy, and said, with a severe voice, "Immortal Mars! Is it possible that you have begun to smoke tobacco, you young reprobate? Where'd you get that nasty stuff? What d'you mean by such conduct, you young villain? Haven't I told you often enough to let the tobacco alone? Come here to me, or I'll tear the jacket off you!"

And as he spoke, the stern father made a grab at the boy, and dragged him out into the entry, where he chastised him with a cane. Then Stones threw the tobacco over the fence, where he went out and got it in the morning, and enjoyed it during the day.

"Merciful Heaven!" he exclaimed, when he told us about it, "what should I have done if my children had been all girls? It makes an old father's heart glad when he feels that he has a boy he can depend upon in such emergencies."

Long Finger Nails.

It has been computed that the average growth of the finger-nail is one-thirty-second of an inch per week, or a little more than an inch and a half per year. The growth, however, depends to a great extent upon the rate of nutrition, and during periods of sickness or abstinence it is retarded.

It is understood to go on faster in summer than in winter, and differs for different fingers, being most rapid in the middle finger and slowest in the thumb, according to one investigator, and in the little finger according to another.

The same two authorities differ, too, with regard to the equality of growth on both hands, the former holding that the nails on the right hand grow faster than those on the left, but the latter can perceive no difference between them.

According to the rate of growth stated, the average time taken for each finger-nail to grow its full length is about four and a half months, and at this rate a man of seventy would have renewed his nails 186 times.

Taking the length of each nail at half an inch, he would have grown 7ft. 9in. of nail on each finger, and on all his fingers and thumbs an aggregate length of 77ft. 6in.

The First People's Telephones.

It appears that something like the telephone is in use among the Catuquinaru Indians in the valley of the Amazon. Each habitation occupied by the tribe is supplied with a cambarysu or telegraph, which enables them to communicate with each other. The machine consists of a hollow piece of hard palm wood filled with sand, rubber, pieces of wood and hide, and fixed in a socket of sand, hide, resin, and rubber. This is struck with a club of wood coated with rubber and hide.

There is one of these instruments hidden in each malocca, and the malocoas are about a mile distant one from the other, and all on a direct line north and south. It appears that the instruments are en rapport with each other, and, when struck with a club, the neighboring ones to the north and south, if not above a mile distant, respond to or echo the blow. To this an Indian answers by striking the instrument in the malocca with which it is desired to communicate, which blow in turn is echoed by the instrument originally struck. Each malocca has its own series of signals. So enclosed is each instrument in the malocca that, when standing outside and near the building, it is difficult to hear a blow, but, nevertheless, it is heard distinctly in the next malocca, a mile distant, in the manner indicated. The Tuchau gave me an example of signalling. With a prolonged interval, he struck the instrument twice with the club, which, as I understood, was to indicate attention, or that a conference was desired. This was responded to by the same instrument, as a result of a single blow given by some one on the next apparatus, nearly a mile distant. Then commenced a long conversation, which I could not comperhend.

So, long before we had our telephone connecting house with house, these remote Indians of South America had got what served something of the same purpose!

To Keep Poultry Fresh.

If poultry has to be hung for a day or two in the summer, it is advisable to wash it before putting into the larder in borax and water, and to remove the liver and gizzard; then dry and flour it, and place a little powdered charcoal inside. A fowl which has a "gamey" flavour is most unpalatable, and a careful cook will detect such a defect before cooking the bird. To remove the taint use permanganate of potash and cold water (using sufficient of the former to colour the water a deep pink), pouring it through the bird several times until all trace of unpleasant odour is removed; if this should not be the case after repeated rinsings the bird is not fit for use.

To keep poultry or any other kind of stock from "turning" in the hot weather, remove the grease as soon as it is cold, and let the stock be boiled up every day; vegetables should not be added until the soup is required.

For the Kitchen.

A porcelain sink is the ambition of every cleanly housekeeper. But it is the wise suggestion of an expert in such matters that until she can provide careful kitchen-girls to work at the sink the housekeeper had better make a choice of a good galvanized iron outfit for the use of the priestess of the dish-washing. A marble-backed sink becomes before very long an unsightly thing from much spattering of greasy dish-water. For the same reason, namely, the want of care in use, faucets of burnished brass are better than those of nickel-plate, unless the latter be of very heavy quality.

Dumb Bells for Children.

As soon as a child is able to manage them, he should be given a pair of light dumb-bells and taught how to use them. He should exercise with them night and morning, this will expand the chest and improve the figure. Girls need constantly watching that they carry the body straight and the head erect. A child that is given to lolling about should be encouraged to lie rather than sit, the former position will do much to keep the back straight. But nothing is so good for a child's health and proper development as plenty of exercise in the open air.

A Novel Jacket.

A rather unique costume turned out by a fashionable courturiere combines both style and originality. The material is a rich Cuban red ladies' cloth, trimmed with narrow black braid.

The novelty lies in the jacket, which is made with a bolero effect in the back, and tabs reaching below the waist in front. Double reveres adorn the top of the jacket, the under one of the ladies' cloth and the other of white satin, caught in place by a large fancy button. The sleeves are close fitting.

Etamine waists in pale colors have the yoke finished with a ruching of etamine, edged on both sides by a narrow ribbon ruffle of the same color. This ruche is finished on either side of the waist by a large rosette composed of narrow ribbon set on in clover pattern. The centre of the rosette is a circle of the same ribbon ruching filled in with lattice checking.

Included in an extensive estate at Muswell-hill, England, to be let for building purposes is a cottage known as "Lalla Rookh," where Thomas Moore, the poet, lived, and wrote at least part of the poem of that name, which was published in 1817.

"Clerk: "I believe you said, sir, that after the first of the month you would raise my salary."

Employer: "You are mistaken. What I said was that after that date you would be worth more to us."

THE LOUISIANA TREATY.

It Was Made in Paris Nearly One Hundred Years Ago.

Another famous American treaty, made in Paris, and of which the centennial will soon be at hand, was that which gave us the territory west of the Mississippi for something like 60,000,000 francs or a little over eleven million dollars.

The commissioners who brought about the transaction were Robert R. Livingston and James Monroe, for the United States, and Napoleon Bonaparte and Francis Barbe Wanbois, for the French.

For half a century before the purchase Louisiana had been bought and sold in turn by France and Spain. The French settled it in 1700. In 1762, France, finding that if she tried to hold Louisiana, it might be seized by England, transferred it by secret treaty to Spain. This cession, the treaty said, was "from the pure impulse of his Majesty's heart." Spain was surprised, and the Spanish minister with whom the treaty was made only accepted Louisiana as a gift upon the expressed condition that it should not be considered until his King approved the acceptance. Thus Louisiana and the territory west of the Mississippi actually went begging as a gift 133 years ago. The French people who formed the colony objected to the gift and the transfer to Spain did not take place until 1769. The Spanish rule was gradually accepted, and it continued thirty-five years. People of this day talk of per capita expenses of government. The figures are preserved to show that it cost the King of Spain $16.55 for each of his Louisiana subjects annually. That was the expense of maintaining government in Louisiana.

The time came when Bonaparte, after marching over Italy and driving the Austrians beyond the Alps, concluded that he wanted the Louisiana territory in the New World. Spain was weak, and all that was necessary was the expression of a wish from the Little Corsican. Louisiana was secretly ceded to France. The treaty was signed, but the Spanish government over Louisiana was continued. This secrecy was made necessary by the fact that France and England were then at war. The King of Spain ceded Louisiana in its entirety, east and west of the Mississippi. In return he received from France the little republic of Etruria.

When the treaty reached this country President Jefferson called Congress together to ratify it. In doing so he frankly admitted that the purchase went beyond constitutional authority, and that a constitutional amendment was necessary to carry out the purchase. But he told Congress that the acquisition of an outlet to the Gulf was essential to the national life and to the preservation of peace. In that way he vindicated the action of his commissioners. Congress ratified the treaty, six New England Senators voting against it.

Why Red Enrages Animals.

"You might just as well show a red rag to a bull." How many times is this expression made use of daily, and how many of its utterers think for one instant of its significance, or as to why the expression should have come to be in such common vogue!

Why should a bull—or, indeed, any animal—exhibit feelings of rage or annoyance when a mere scrap of scarlet cloth is flaunted before it? A strange instinct, indeed, and yet no stranger than many others, the cause of which it might be interesting to prove.

To begin, then, with the bull and red rag. All animals, or at any rate a large proportion of them, are strangely moved by the exhibition of any bright color, a fact in itself perhaps sufficient to account partially for the rage of the bull.

He sees, maybe, a scarlet flag fluttering out to the breeze, flapping conspicuously before his vision, and he wonders. He sees the same thing in the hands of a man, his lord and master, with whom he has always connected superior force and power, and at once his wonderment is translated to fear, which in turn gives place to anger.

His annoyance gives way to rage. That red flaring thing is meant as a direct challenge to himself. Down goes his head, and away—if he be wise—goes the too-daring biped, for Mr. Bull now means mischief.

Geese and turkeys among birds, and sheep among our domestic animals, often exhibit symptoms of fear and rage when challenged by these means. The first named have often been known to fly at children clothed in red garments, and to peck savagely at them, while sheep will often become transported with frenzy at their shepherd suddenly producing a piece of red cloth.

Closely associated with this strange instinct comes the excitement caused by the smell of blood, chiefly to be noticed among horses and cattle of our domestic animals.

And when we consider that blood is red, that the smell of it, as well as its bright color, has always been associated by the animal with bodily hurt and discomfort, we can more readily comprehend why it is that the strange instinct should have obtained such firm hold.

The animal's eye is attracted in no less a degree than his sense of smell. Blind instinct cries out to him that all is not as it should be, and so unreasoning as he is, he gives vent to his feelings in the only way he knows, either that of abject fear or of maddening.

Proceedings of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders.

[OFFICIAL.]

Adjourned meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, September 15, 1898, at 2:30 p. m.

All members were present except Freeholders Higgins and Scudder-2.

The minutes of the previous meeting, (reading of bills being omitted), were on motion, approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under this head the County Road Committee reported the contract, properly executed, with the Elizabeth City Horse Railroad Co. for the construction, maintenance, operation, etc., of an electric railway between Elizabeth and Plainfield on Westfield or North avenue.

The contract was read in full by the clerk.

Freeholder Roll said that he desired to call the attention of the Board to Part V., Section 1, of the contract, which provides in part as follows:

"The said company shall also, at its own expense, place Belgian blocks or broken stone on each side of the rails throughout the length of said road, and shall lay and maintain said tracks so that the rails thereof shall be flush with the macadam or road bed." A large discussion ensued as to the relative value of Belgian blocks or broken stone on each side of the rails along said road, and also as to how far said blocks or broken stone should extend on each side of said rails.

On motion of Freeholder Farrell it was finally ordered that the contract be referred back to the County Road Committee for further conference with the Railroad Company.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Freeholder Roll, chairman of the County Road Committee, reported that in accordance with a resolution heretofore adopted, the said committee would reccommend that John Keron be appointed as a commissioner to negotiate for the purchase of the land necessary for the widening of Westfield or North avenue from Orchard street, in the City of Elizabeth to the Cranford Township line, and that his compensation be fixed at $10.00 per day.

An informal discussion ensued, during which Freeholder Roll said that Mr. Keron had been consulted and could not accept the appointment at any less figure; he believed Mr. Keron to be thoroughly competent for the position, as he had had much experience in appraising property values; a day's work would be from 8 or 8:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., although considerable work would have to be done at night; absent and non-resident property owners would have to be communicated with.

Mr. Keron, if appointed, desired the Board to designate some one to act as his secretary, both for his own protection and for the protection of the Board.

Mr. Roll suggested that the clerk of this Board be appointed as Mr. Keron's secretary.

Freeholder Farrell thought that the compensation was too high.

Freeholder King finally moved that the report be received, and that Mr. Keron be appointed as recommended and at the compensation as recommended.

The motion, on roll-call, was unanimously adopted

Freeholder Brucklacher moved that S. Rusling Ryno, clerk of the Board, be designated to act as Mr. Keron's secretary, and that the matter of compensation be referred to the County Committee with power, which was ordered by unanimous vote.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freeholder Swain:

Whereas, This Board, with deep regret, has learned of the recent death of Hon. Thomas F. McCormick, one of the most highly esteemed citizens of the County of Union, therefore, be it

Resolved, As a token of sorrow and esteem for his bereaved widow, family and friends, we do hearby express our kindest feelings to said widow and family and direct that this resolution be entered in full on the minutes of this Board, and a copy thereof be sent to the family of the deceased.

On motion of Freeholder Brucklacher the resolution was unanimously adopted by a rising vote of members.

Freeholder Swain moved to adjourn, which was carried.

The Director declared the Board adjourned to Thursday, October 6, 1898, at 2:30 p. m.

CHAPTER III.

Elizabeth sat by the window in the shabby old drawing-room. The gas had not been lit, and twilight filled the room. Dinner had been over for considerably more than an hour, and still her grandmother and her guest lingered downstairs talking over financial matters, which were perhaps the one subject that afforded Mrs. Latimar keen interest, and even excitement at times. Elizabeth did not desire their company; she was far happier by herself. She was very tired, and she sat leaning her head against the faded moreen curtains, gazing in a dreamy way across the square at the houses opposite, where lights gleamed from the windows like glow-worms through the leaves of the trees. She had been curtly dismissed from the dining-room—from the shabby table, with its indifferent cutlery, its harlequin arrangement of plates and glasses, and its meagre dishes.

Elizabeth had come away from the dining-room with a sigh of relief—a sigh that Richard Saville had heard as he rose to open the door for her. He had looked after her vanishing figure with a glance of strong admiration in his eyes, and a half-puzzled, half-amused expression on his clean-shaven face.

Richard Saville was distinctly an attractive man; his features were very distinguished, and his hair, silvered at the brows and sides, had a wave in it that was the envy of many a younger man. Elizabeth never paused to consider if he were handsome. She could not help noticing his smart well-made clothes and his well-shaped white hands. He always presented such a strong contrast to the dirt-begrimed, shabby appointments of her grandmother's house.

She also liked the sound of his voice, it was so well modulated, though at the same time Elizabeth shrank from the tones of it with something like fear. It could be very persuasive, she knew. She had read some of his famous speeches, and she had been quite able to imagine the wonderful effect he was said to produce upon his listeners.

Elizabeth was not musing over this, nor was she indeed thinking of anything definite or particular as she sat by herself in the twilight gazing out through the window, seeing the cabs and other vehicles flit through the square like so many phantoms. She was tired, and she fell into dreaming, as was customary with her whenever she had a moment's solitude. The clock on the mantleshelf ticked on monotonously. Presently it struck the hour; Elizabeth counted the strokes, and was astonished to find that it was eleven 'clock. She rose from the window and went to open the door. There was only a flicker of light from the hall below, and she caught the faint sound of voices in the distance.

So the business was not yet finished in the dining-room! With a vague feeling of surprise Elizabeth went back to her seat at the window. She made no attempt to light the gas.

"Grannie will approve of the economy," she said to herself, with a faint fleeting smile.

She felt desperately sleepy, and longed for bed. With a weary sigh she put this thought aside. The older Mrs. Latimar grew the more wakeful she seemed to become, and the more inconsiderate. With a desperate desire to drive away the sleep that was overpowering her, Elizabeth opened the long window and stepped out on the balcony. The cool fresh air revived her. It had been by no means warm all through the day, but the evening was very pleasant and June-like.

The heart of the young girl was strangely stirred as she stood there gazing into the night; the noise and roar of the city's traffic had faded almost into silence, and stars were studding the clear dark sky. Elizabeth's hands trembled as she gazed, the night wind wafting the hair from her brow. All at once she gave a start. A brougham, with a pair of horses, had drawn up near the house, and a man had sprung out of the carriage.

Elizabeth bent forward and looked closely at the vehicle. She recognized the livery instantly—it was that worn by Lady Feo's servants. The girl's heart seemed suddenly to stand still. Something had happened—something bad to Feo, or to Feo's baby! That was her thought. Why otherwise should Feo's husband come to the house at that time of night? Elizabeth answered the question almost before it was formed. Feo wanted her! Gregory had come to fetch her! Feo had sent him for her!

Like lightning the girl rushed through the dark drawing-room and down the stairs.

"Grannie will let me go! She shall! she must!" she said passionately to herself.

She pulled open the big door before the servant had time to answer the bell.

"I am here, Gregory! You want me?" she said breathlessly—so breathlessly as to be quite inaudible.

The man, standing with his back to the door, turned leisurely. It was not Gregory.

"Was you kindly to tell me if Mr. Saville is still here? I—— And then Antony Pelle perceived that he was not addressing a servant.

The lamplight fell full upon the girl standing in the doorway—upon the eager delicate face with its quivering lips and its wonderful eyes. Elizabeth, still bewildered by the sudden conviction that had seized her, scarcely comprehended what she heard.

"Feo," she said involuntarily—"Feo?"

The word was half a query, half an exclamation. Sir Antony had removed his hat in recognition of her presence.

"Feo is here. She is in the carriage, Miss Druro. I imagine I have the pleasure of speaking to Miss Druro, have I not? We came to call for my brother: Gregory says he has been dining here. We are going to a ball, and thought we might as well come and pick him up!"

By this time the carriage had drawn up in front of the door, and Lady Feo put her head out of the window.

"Elizabeth!" she cried eagerly, and at the sound of her voice Elizabeth recovered herself, and ran quickly down the steps.

Antony Pelle stood and looked after her.

"So that is Elizabeth? Poor little girl! If all Feo told me to-night is true, her path isn't one of roses!" And then, the servant appearing, Sir Antony gave his message for Mr. Saville, and, turning, rejoined his cousin, who was talking to Elizabeth as fast as her tongue would let her.

"What a chance to have a word with you! Of course I never dared even hope for it! Tony would come and pick up Mr. Saville. He is simply cracked about his brother! I tell him he cannot live without him. Isn't he a dear, Elizabeth? Tony, I mean. You must promise me to like him very, very much. Oh, I know what you are going to say—you will never see him! But don't be too sure! Things are going to change. Oh, here you are, Tony! Come and be introduced to my little Elizabeth!"

"I feel that I know you, Miss Druro. Feo has told me so much about you."

"You are very kind," Elizabeth said. She had a curious feeling that she must be dreaming. This gleam of pleasure, the sound of Feo's voice, the touch of her hands, was so unexpected that it hardly seemed real. She trembled a little now from the reaction after her fear, her eyes filled with tears. She bent to kiss the bright face within the carriage. "I must go, Feo," she said hurriedly. "Grannie will be horrified! Just imagine my coming out here at this time of night! It is terrible!"

She gave Sir Antony a smile—it was a smile jeweled with tears, and it pained him.

"Antony Peile again removed his hat and held out his hand."

"Oh, don't go!" Lady Feo cried.

But she cried in vain. Elizabeth had already vanished out of sight, and Mr. Saville emerged from the doorway.

"Poor child! What a shame! Isn't she sweet, Tony?" Lady Feo asked. "But you couldn't see her properly, of course!"

The young man made no answer. The vision of Elizabeth's tremulous face, of her tearful beautiful eyes—the whole pathetic eloquence of her parting had impressed him strangely. He greeted his "big brother" in a manner that indicated that he was thinking of something else.

CHAPTER IV.

Richard Saville had apartments in the "Albany." He also had chambers in the Temple; and he belonged to half a dozen of the very best and most exclusive clubs in London. He had made his appointment with Mrs. Latimar at his Temple rooms, and thither, on the day named, the old lady was conveyed in a four-wheeler, with Elizabeth, pale and shabbily attired, in close attendance upon her.

Mr. Saville received his guests with ready courtesy. The instant the four-wheeler stopped at the door he appeared, and was ready to hand out Mrs. Latimar and to greet Elizabeth with his charming smile and an expression of deep admiration and pleasure in his eyes.

"This is kind of you, Miss Druro!" he said, as Elizabeth's small fingers touched his for an instant. "I hardly expected to have the pleasure of seeing you."

"My grandmothed had need of me," Elizabeth made answer listlessly.

She passed slowly through the doorway after Mrs. Latimar. Although there was only a very slight droop in the old lady's usually erect bearing and a little difficulty in her walk, to Elizabeth the two things told of change and weakness.

A day had gone by since the night of her anxiety, and to all appearance there was no difference in this day from the others. Yet Elizabeth had discovered a great change. She noticed with what effort her grandmother went through the usual routine; and, as she walked slowly through the doorway of the house which Mr. Saville's chambers were, she recalled the infinity of trouble that Mrs. Latimar had taken to attire herself for the present visit.

At the door Elizabeth paused and looked about her wistfully. The quaint old-world atmosphere of the place appealed to her. The sun was shining warmly; it was a real June morning, and the air seemed full of joyous life, with the scent of summer flowers from the contiguous gardens. Here, almost in the heart of the City, everything was wonderfully quiet and still—a little bit of an old forgotten world.

"You like this place?" said Richard Saville to the girl softly.

Elizabeth turned as he spoke.

"It is beautiful! So quiet—so peaceful!" she answered him.

Mrs. Latimar gave Elizabeth her orders as soon as they arrived at Mr. Saville's comfortable rooms.

"You are to wait here for me," she said. "Richard, give her a book."

Elizabeth, however, did not want a book. She took the one Mr. Saville gave her; but, as the door of the inner room closed and she was left alone, she went and sat by the window, and looked out on the big court-yard below, with the glimpse of the river shining beyond the Temple gardens, and the people passing to and fro, coming and vanishing through the various picturesque gateways. In an instant, the girl had walked out into the stone passage. She drew the door close, without shutting it, and sat down upon one of the stone steps.

She crossed her arms over her breast and leaned her head against the wall. There was no fear that she would injure her gown by this proceeding. It had been an old gown of her grandmother's, and was worn to so rusty a shade of black as almost to be brown. Her gloves were of a black thread and she wore a black straw bonnet, with a shabby trimming of ribbon, tied in a bow, under her chin. Her hair, which was brown, with a dozen different shades and gleams in it, was waved back from her brows. Mrs. Latimar did not permit any curls; nevertheless Elizabeth's hair defied her, for, at the least breath of wind, soft tendrils of curls would spring into life about her brows, and make a soft silky setting to the large, beautiful eyes. She had a modest air as she sat there—the air of a young gentlewoman from the country.

A young man, coming slowly up the stone stairs towards Richard Saville's rooms, caught sight of her and hesitated, but only for a moment; then he advanced and, raising his hat, addressed her.

"You remember me, I hope, Miss Druro?" he said, noting the lines of her graceful shabbily attired figure and the grave set look of her face.

Elizabeth started, and blushed as she looked up at the tall handsome young man standing before her.

"Oh, yes," she said hurriedly—"you are Tony!" The word slipped from her quite unconsciously, so used was she to hearing Lady Feo speak of him by that pet name. She instantly corrected herself however. "Sir Antony Peile, I mean, of course," she said, with another blush.

Antony Peile held her hand for an instant.

"You are not waiting to see my brother out here, I hope, Miss Druro? You must not sit on these stone steps. Please come in. Does he know you are here?"

Elizabeth explained the position.

"Grannie has a lot of business to do, I believe. They are sure to be some time; but I like sitting out here, thank you, Sir Antony—it is so cool!"

"I am surprised to find Dick here at all," Sir Antony said a little thoughtfully. "I imagined he was out of town to-day. I called on the merest chance to find out at what time he was expected back. Will you excuse me for a moment?"

Elizabeth however checked him.

"Grannie will be very cross if they are disturbed," she said hurriedly; then she remembered herself, and laughed shyly. "But I beg your pardon. Of course, Sir Antony, you have your own business——"

"Oh, mine can wait!" Suddenly he had a lively recollection of Feo's stories concerning this curious old "grannie," and his sensation of vague pity and interest in her granddaughter deepened a little. "I am always worrying Dick with my business; he must find me a perfect nuisance! But he never grumbles—he is such a dear good fellow! I hope you like him, Miss Druro?"

"The instant the four-wheeler stopped at the door he appeared, and was ready to hand out Mrs. Latimar."

He had seated himself on the upper steps of the other flight of stairs—there was a railing between them. Elizabeth was a little higher than he was, and she looked down into his handsome honest eyes.

"He is very nice," she answered gently; and then she added more quickly, "My grannie is devoted to Mr. Saville. You ought to see the fuss she always makes when she is going to meet him——"

Suddenly the door of the chambers was opened and Elizabeth was called by name. She rose hurriedly to her feet.

"Grannie wants me, I expect," she said to Sir Antony; and she stretched out her hand by way of farewell just as Richard Saville appeared in the doorway.

The appearance of the young man in friendly conversation with Elizabeth took Mr. Saville entirely by surprise.

"Antony!" he exclaimed—and somehow his tone had a sharp ring in it as he uttered that one word, while his brows were knit. The next moment he was smiling. "My dear boy, where did you spring from? You have been entertaining Miss Druro, I hope? Come in—come in! You are just in time to join us in a little luncheon!"

JACKSON'S FIRST DUEL.

It Grew Out of a Practical Joke and He Ever Regretted It.

None of Gen. Jackson's biographers give the details of his first duel, and he himself never cared to speak of the matter in later years; but some years ago a granddaughter of Col Waitstill Avery told the writer the full story.

Waitstill Avery was a Massachusetts man who went to North Carolina, carrying with him a letter of recommendation from no less a personage than Jonathan Edwards. He soon acquired reputation and influence, and in time became Attorney-General of the State. It was his custom to take students of law into his family, who became tutors of his children.

In 1784, when Andrew Jackson was but 17 years old, and ambitious to become a lawyer, he applied for this situation. The tradition is that he was refused because a daughter of Avery's took a dislike to his uncouth appearance.

Young Jackson next applied to Spruce McCay, a lawyer in Salisbury, N. C., in whose office he was fitted for the bar, and he shortly made his appearance in the courts. When Jackson was 21 years of age he and Avery met in the trial of a case at Jonesboro, Tenn.

It was Jackson's habit to carry in his saddle-bags a copy of "Bacon's Abridgement," and to make frequent appeals to it in his cases. This precious book was always carefully done up in coarse brown paper, such as grocers used before the neat paper bags of the present day were invented. The unwrapping of this much-prized volume before a court was a very solemn function as performed by Jackson.

Now Avery had by this time dropped whatever of Puritan sedateness had commended him to Jonathan Edwards, and was uncommonly fond of a joke. He procured a piece of bacon just the size of the book, and while Jackson was addressing the court he slipped out the volume from its wrapping and substituted the bacon.

At length Jackson had occasion to appeal to Lord Bacon. It was an important case, and he would not trust to his memory. He would confound his opponent by reading from the book itself. While still talking, he raised the bearskin flap of his saddle-bags, drew out the brown paper package, carefully untied the string, unfolded the paper with the decorous gravity of a priest handling the holy things of the altar, and then, without looking at what he held in his hand, exclaimed triumphantly, "We will now see what Bacon says!"

The court, bar, jury and spectators were convulsed with laughter before Jackson saw the trick that had been played upon him. Of course, he was furious. He snatched a pen, and on the blank leaf of a law-book wrote a peremptory challenge, which he delivered then and there. He asked for no apology—nothing but blood would do. He commanded Avery to select a friend and arrange for the meeting at once.

Avery made no answer to this peremptory demand, thinking his peppery antagonist would laugh rather than fight, as he grew cooler. But he did not know the young man. Jackson grew hotter instead of cooler. Next morning he sent this note, which was full of bad spelling. My North Carolina friend had seen the original, and in copying it had corrected the orthography, but these are the exact words:

"August 12, 1788.—Sir: When a man's feelings and character are injured, he ought to seek a speedy redress. You received a few lines from me yesterday, and undoubtedly you understand me. My character you have injured; and, further, you have insulted me in the presence of the court and a large audience. I therefore call upon you as a gentleman to give me satisfaction for the same. And I further call upon you to give me an answer immediately without equivocation, and I hope you can do without dinner until our business is done; for it is consistent with the character of a gentleman when he injures another to make a speedy reparation. Therefore, I hope you will not fail in meeting me this day. From your obt. st., ANDREW JACKSON.

"P. S.: This evening after court adjourns."

Avery concluded to accept this challenge; and so, in the dusk of the summer evening, the duel came off in a hollow north of Jonesboro, in the presence of the same crowd that had laughed at Jackson's predicament. When the word was given Jackson fired quickly, and his ball flicked Avery's ear, scratching it slightly.

Now was Avery's chance to change the later history of his country, but his Puritan blood asserted itself. He fired in the air, then advanced and offered Jackson his hand, which was accepted.—Youth's Companion.

CITY COUNCIL MEETING.

further hearing be postponed for one week. He then moved that when Council adjourn it be to meet next week Friday evening.

Later in the evening Mr. Barrows stated his reasons for the delay in the extension matter. He stated that it was the intention of the Council to adopt the new ordinance last evening, as the corporation counsel had drafted a suitable one. It was the wish of Mr. Marsh, however, that Mayor Fisk have an opportunity to examine closely the new ordinance before adoption, hence his motion to postpone action for one week. Mr. Barrows then went on to cite incidentally the advantageous terms obtained from the trolley company in addition to those already secured. The new contract provides that the company shall pay the city five per cent of its gross earnings in the city and borough, and that a per cent of 2 1-2 for adults and 1 12 for children be paid the city for through traffic, that Richmond street from Fifth to East Second street, and East Second street from Richmond street to the county line, be macadamized by the trolley company from curb to curb at their own expense. The new contract also provides for the proper sprinkling of the streets over which the trolley runs and for the quick removal of snow from the streets and crosswalks, as well as many other minor details. Mr. Barrows said that an important matter had also been looked after, that of protecting the city in case the trolley company should decide to lease their road to another company, and thus bar them out from receiving their proper per cent.

In view of all these terms secured by the city from the Council, Mr. VanHerwerden offered a resolution which provided that the trolley company enter into a contract to asphalt Front street, Somerset street, Watchung avenue to Fifth street from Front street, and in fact about all the streets which the city have about decided to asphalt as stated a week ago. This resolution fell like a heavy thunder clap on the Council, and Mr. Runyon was the only member that voted with Mr. VanHerwerden to attach those conditions to the contract previously made.

Mr. VanHerwerden strongly supported his resolution and said that if John Kean could offer $250,000 for the county trolley, the Plainfield company could well afford to asphalt the streets mentioned. He did not believe in giving the trolley franchise for mere nothing and thought that more should be obtained for the city. Another provision included in his resolution was that the company should issue forty tickets for $1 for working people to be used between 6 and 7 o'clock in the morning and the same hours in the evening.

Mr. Barrows stated that he was sure that the company would not extend their tracks if the Council should demand such provisions as contained in Mr. VanHerwerden's resolution. Other members of the Council were of the same opinion, and on the vote all the members voted against the resolution except Mr. VanHerwerden and Mr. Runyon.

The last matter of importance considered was the one in relation to locating a storm sewer through Park avenue. Mr. Barrows introduced the ordinance, but Mr. Hetfield took exception to it on the ground that the Council ought not to at this time issue bonds for the work, that Park avenue is now no worse than it was twenty-five years ago and would carry off all water in a satisfactory manner.

Mr. Barrows stood firmly for the ordinance which provides for the issuance of bonds to the amount of $2,250 to do the work. He cities the work of laying storm sewers through Plainfield avenue, East Second street and other streets in the city, and he thought that if a permanent pavement was to be laid on Park avenue a first-class storm sewer should be laid first.

After much debate on the subject the ordinance was finally adooted on its first reading and a public notice will be advertised giving the citizens a chance to have their say for or against it at a meeting to be held October 24th. The vote on the ordinance stood eight for and two against, Messrs. Hetfield and Moffett voted in the negative.

Mr. Barrows introduced an ordinance in request of the Town Improvement Asociation, providing a penalty of $1 for all persons who are found guilty of sweeping refuse, etc., into the street or on the sidewalk. This request was made of the Council one week ago. Mr. Hetfield expressed an opinion that he would like a little more time to consider the matter and the ordinance was laid on the table until the next meeting. In the meantime copies of the same will be sent to each member.

Mr. VanHerwerden offered a resolution providing for the borrowing of $800 on account of the fire fund. This concluded the business of the evening and the Council adjourned.

—Some young people attended a musicale given by Mrs. E. Hart and pupils at Westfield Thursday night.

—Miss Edna Bowers, of Basking Ridge, has returned to North Plainfield to attend school. She has been visiting her parents.

—The Universalists of the State of New Jersey will hold their annual convention in the church at Hightstown on Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

—W. J. Colville, of Boston, who will lecture at Grace P. E. church parish this evening, is the guest today of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Emerson, of Inter-Haven, North Plainfield.

TRIED TO DESTROY HYGEIA ICE PLANT.

Stranger Attempted to Blow Up Great Boiler.

DISCOVERED IN RIGHT TIME.

FIREMAN AND WATCHMAN LOST HIM IN THE DARKNESS.

No Clue to the Visitor—He Unscrewed Valve to the Blow-off and Tried to Let All the Water Out of the Boiler—The Engineer, Mr. Benson, Saw That the Steam Was Escaping.

A few minutes more and the great plant of the Hygeia Ice Company for the manufacture of ice, on North avenue, near Berckman street, might have been wrecked or, at least, seriously impaired. As it was, the watchfulness of the men employed at the works prevented a dastardly attempt to wreck the place from succeeding. It happened Saturday evening close to the hour of midnight.

For several days the fires under the great boilers to the freezing plant have been going. The steam was up and everything was being prepared to start work today. Saturday evening there was a rousing fire in the furnaces, but the pressure was not high, for they were reducing it to connect with the other boiler when that was started. The steam guage showed a pressure of 80 pounds.

George Apgar is the fireman there. An Italian named Antonio Penasteno has been acting as watchman. Saturday night Engineer Benson, of the Westinghouse Company, was at the works looking after the plant until it should be well started. Early in the evening, Apgar and the night watchman saw through the open door a man wandering about the yard. When they appoached the door he disappeared into the darkness. Several times at different intervals through the evening they saw the shadowy form again and again, but it always slunk away in the darkness as soon as they made any movement in its direction.

It was nearly midnight when Engineer Benson saw a cloud of steam coming from somewhere in the rear of the boiler. A glance at the waterguage showed that the water in the boiler was decreasing rapidly. It was very evident that there was a leak somewhere. The engineer started to investigate when Apgar and the night watchman saw a man bound out of the open door of the engine room and dash into the outer darkness. They started in pursuit at once.

The strange visitor dashed around a pile of lumber and his pursuers lost him there. They hunted about the yard and notified the police who also hunted, but there was nobody around.

When Engineer Benson went to the rear of the boiler he found that the stranger had been at work. The valve to the blow-off had been unscrewed and the water from the boiler, together with a little steam, was rushing out of the opening. In a few minutes more, the tubulor boiler would have been emptied of water and an explosion would have followed which might have wrought great distruction to the plant. It was only the work of a few minutes to shut off the water and prevent any accident.

After the vain hunt for the culprit, a thorough investigation was made to see if the miscreant had done any other damage to the plant but none could be found. His foot prints were to be seen outside in the soft earth where he had wandered about seeking to gain entrance.

From the manner in which the stranger went to work, it was evident that he was pretty well acquainted with boilers and the construction of that kind in particular. A man from Newark was discharged by the company a week ago and the acquaintanceship with the place and boiler would look as if he sought revenge for his alleged injuries.

Didn't Return to the Justice.

Mrs. Theodore Wilson, of New Market, who came to Justice Mosher last Thursday with a request that he compel a Mrs. Wilson, of the borough, to give up two children belonging to Mrs. Theodore Wilson, did not return Friday afternoon as she said she would, so nothing has been done towards securing the custody of her two little ones for her. It is probable that the two women, wife and mother-in-law, have come to some kind of an agreement themselves without the aid of the law.

A Distinguished Visitor.

Major George Hobart, who was on Gen. Keiffer's staff during the recent Cuban war, was a guest over Sunday at the home of John Willis, 19 Prospect place, North Plainfield.

SCHOLARS ARE ACTIVE.

SENIOR CLASS IN BOROUGH SCHOOL REGULARLY ORGANIZED.

Royal Purple and White Chosen for the Class Colors—The "Autocrat" to be Discontinued and "The Sun" Substituted.

The senior class at the North Plainfield High School, more properly called the class of '99 is preparing for a year of activity. There are eleven young people in the class, seven young women and four young men. While the various improvents in the school and course promise better work and a more complete system, the members of the class are early preparing for activity along the lines of class fellowship and fraternal feeling.

Friday afternoon, the class was called together and regularly organized. Arthur Smith was chosen president, Miss Emma Line secretary, Fred Overton treasurer, and Miss Rita Pond historian. The other class officers will be selected later in the year when the fitness of the different members for the various positions will be better known.

Royal purple and white were unanimously chosen as the class colors. As to the selection of a proper design for a class pin, Fred Overton, Arthur Smith and Douglass Drake were appointed a committee to secure some suitable ones. The Misses Katherine Dwight and Rita Pond and Douglass Drake were appointed a committee to select a motto.

The "Autocrat" of the North Plainfield High School is no more. Instead that little scholastic publication will this winter appear under the name of the North Plainfield High School "Sun." A meeting of the pupils interested in the paper was held some time ago and it was decided to run it on a different plan from that of the preceding two years when the publication has been in existence. Four numbers will be issued during the year, the first by the primary department, the second by the grammar classes, the third by all the High School except the senior class and the last by the graduating class.

At the meeting of the class of '99 held Friday, the Misses Grace Emmons, Grace Codwise and Emma Line were appointed a committee of three to take charge of the fourth number of the "Sun" which is to come out under the direction of the class. All members of the class will be expected to contribute, however.

SHALLOW LOTS IN LORRAINE.

They Make it Difficult to Widen the County Road.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Lorraine, October 10—The people who live on the side of Westfield avenue which is wanted for widening the county road are not desirous of having their lots encroached upon, and in almost every case ask that the entire property be bought, as when the town was laid out by Silas Drake the lots were made twenty-five feet front by only one hundred feet deep, and when forty feet is taken off the lot it leaves little room for house and yard.

The J. C. Bender Hose Company, the oldest in the township, when the time comes to widen the street will find itself without a house, as it has a lot only forty-five feet deep. Its house was erected by the founder of the town and is rented to the hose company. A meeting will be shortly called to take some action, but it is probable that the township will be asked to provide some suitable house for the company and its apparatus.

Against the Trolley.

(Special to the Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, Oct. 10—Residents of Highland Park, a suburb of New Brunswick, have made a protest to the Township Committee of Raritan against the granting of further privileges to the Brunswick Traction Company until that corporation shall have lived up to its promises. The petitioners say that the trolley company has neglected to keep the road in proper repair, and has also failed to build a loop through certain streets as it agreed to do. Another hearing will be given in the near future, when the traction company will have an opportunity to present its side of the case.

Prize Choristers.

The prize choristers of the Grace P. E. church for the month of September are: Messrs. Reg. Chandor, D. Murphy, R. Cohen, H. Egan, and the Misses E. Noe, M. Collier, C. Woodward and E. VanDeventer. The Misses C. Woodward, E. Noe, and Messrs. Regmoild Cahandor and Harris Egan received the Grace church cross, and Douglass Murphy the prayer-book and hymnal.

Look Out, Boys.

Boys using sling shots and breaking valuable stained glass windows in the Crescent Avenue church are known by the sexton, and if they do not stop they will be arrested.

LEFT WHEEL BEHIND AND DISAPPEARED.

Patrolman Hailed Suspicious Acting Stranger.

WAS LEADING A WHEEL.

WHEN OFFICER SPOKE, THE STRANGER FLED DOWN STREET.

The Bicycle Now Awaits Its Owner in Jail—Frank Dencklau's Wheel Disappeared—It Was a Different Make From the One Found—No Clue to the Theft—Was Taken Saturday Night.

"Hey there, I want to speak to you," called Patrolman Vanderweg last evening at 8:30 o'clock, as a man passed by on the other side of the street leading a wheel. It was out nearly to the end of the officer's beat, close to Stelle avenue, and he had noticed the man whose actions aroused his supicions. The man showed an evident desire to avoid the policeman.

The moment the officer made the remark, the stranger dropped the wheel he was leading and bounded away. The officer followed for a short distance but the place was dark and the stranger disappeared.

Vanderweg then returned and took possession of the wheel. It was a Patee wheel, upturned handle-bars, and equipped with lantern, bell and cyclometer. The wheel had been well cared for and looked quite new.

Judging from the man's actions in deserting the wheel, Vanderweg was quite sure that it had been stolen and so brought it down to the city jail where the wheel now awaits its owner.

Saturday night a bicycle disappeared from in front of Hall's pharmacy. It was not the same kind of a wheel as that found, however. Frank Dencklau is employed at Hall's. As is his usual custom he left his Eldridge wheel standing in front of the store in the rack Saturday evening after returning from supper. When he went to get it later in the evening it was gone, and not a trace of wheel or thief was to be seen. At first Dencklau thought that some of his friends were playing a joke on him, but when it didn't show up yesterday he has decided that the wheel is gone.

Dencklau's wheel was an Eldridge, No. 2044, model 3, 22 inch frame and with olive green finish. The wheel had upturned handle-bars.

OBSTRUCTED THE DRAIN.

Branching Roots of a Tree Caused a Great Deal of Trouble.

The Street Commissioner has had men for the past few days excavating in Third place beyond Ninth sereet, it having been discovered that the underdrain was not working properly.

This drain is a six-inch pipe which is laid near the sewer in East Ninth street, and carries the underground water through Third place to Cedar brook.

The cause of the difficulty was found to be a growth of roots which had found their way down to the pipes and completely filled some of them.

Street Commissioner Gavett has a section of the growth in his office, and it is quite a curiosity. The joints of the pipes were left open to allow the ground water to enter, but they will be connected in the place where the trouble occurred; in East Ninth street the pipes are deep enough to be safe from invasion by roots, and the main sewer itself is tightly cemented.

The occurance shows the need of great care in laying sewer connections to houses, as these often run quite near the surface and among trees.

Many New Houses.

David Eastman, of Crescent avenue, has sold a large property on Front street, formerly owned by Mr. Felix Marx, and also the property on Somerset street, formerly owned by Mr. R. F. M. Chase. He has sold both of the properties to a Brooklyn builder, who will proceed to erect from thirty to forty first-class houses on these properties, which will make a great improvement for Plainfield.

Will Have Quartette Singing.

Deacon T. I. Runyon, who has led the singing at the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school for many years, has asked to be relieved, and the superintendent, Mrs. Alice S. Runyon, and the assistant superintendent, Miss Florence G. Hawkins, are arranging for a quartette. Four voices will be selected, if possible, and these will lead the singing of the hymns.

Work on the New Parsonage.

Work was started this morning on the new parsonage for the Grace M. E. church in the borough. The cellar was staked out Saturday and by night it will be nearly dug.

—Democratic primaries tonight.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY.

"BOY PHENOMENON" HAD TO FURNISH $500 BAIL BONDS.

Judge Lambert Satisfied that His Case Comes Under the Act Prohibiting Practicing Medicine Without a License.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Newark, October 10.—Charles Dwinel, the so-called "Boy Phenomenon," was held in $500 bail for the Grand Jury by Judge Lambert in the First Precinct Police Court Saturday morning, to answer to a charge of practicing medicine without a license, preferred by Chief Hopper.

Assistant Prosecutor Hood conducted the case for the State.

"In the meaning of the act, the 'Boy Phenomenon' is practicing medicine without a license," he said. "We have the testimony of Matthew Hyde that he visited the defendant, who treated him, applied his hands to his head, dropped some liquid in his blind eyes, caused a phial of liquid to be given him and directed him how to use it. The defendant did not act under the advice of Dr. Starkweather. The defendant used his own knowledge and powers in treating Mr. Hyde, and with his own hands he dropped some medicine. If this is not practicing without a license, I would like to know what is.

"There is no question in my mind but that Dr. Starkweather is only used as a shield for any prosecution that may arise. Everything is done by the manager of this defendant with that in view. The defendant certainly gives treatment. Whether he receives money therefor is not material, whether or not he inserts the advertisements in the papers offered in evidence, does not affect the case, nor does the use or disuse of the letters 'M. D.,' 'Dr.,' 'Professor,' etc, before or after his name, as provided by the act, affect the status of the complaint.

"We have direct evidence that the defendant treated Mr. Hyde and gave him medicine, and on that evidence I ask that the 'Boy Phenomenon' be held in bail for the Grand Jury."

Judge Lambert said that on the evidence submitted there was no doubt in his mind that the defendant came within the meaning of the act in practicing medicine without a license, and he therefore held him to bail.

Cash security was offered and accepted.

HARMONY NOW SOUGHT.

DEMOCRATS TO START THE BALL ROLLING TOMORROW.

Appointment of William B Gourley as Chairman is Considered a Wise Move—The Turning Down of Senator Daly.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Newark, Oct. 10—The Democratic State committee will meet tomorrow to make arrangements for the real opening of the campaign. The appointment of William B. Gourley as chairman of the committee is considered a wise stroke of policy. Although comparatively a young man, yet he is an old an experienced campaigner, as his work in Passaic county has frequently demonstrated. The appointment of former Senator Rufus Blodgett, Howaad Carrow and General William C. Heppenheimer as members-at-large of the committee apparently give satisfaction. They were selected on the advice of Senator Smith and Elvin W. Crane, the candidate for Governor. Senator Daly, however, felt very much slighted because he was not reappointed on the committee.

It is to be presumed that Senator Smith and Candidate Crane knew well what they were doing when they advised that Mr. Daly be dropped from the new committee. Mr. Smith never makes a move on the political chess board without due deliberation. He is too shrewd a manipulator to be guilty of a stupendous blunder. He has too much at stake in this campaign to commit an act the wisdom of which would be left open for doubt. During his Senatorial career Mr. Daly has not made friends of the leaders of his party. They distrust him as much as he despises them.

A Christening Party.

There was a christening party at the home of Nicholas Kelly, West Fourth street, yesterday afternoon. Kelly's young son was christened in St. Mary's church, and then the party adjourned to the house where refreshments were served and a good time enjoyed. John Hogan was the child's Godfather and Mrs. Deady his Godmother.

Suing for a Liquor Bill.

William G. DeMeza has begun suit against Mrs. Henry Wedemeyer, of the Arlington Hotel, for Engel, Heller & Company, of New York, for $200 claimed as due the company on a liquor bill. The suit was brought before Justice Crossley.

CROSSING THE SEA TO HEAR SAD NEWS.

Sorrowful Return of Auguste Saltzman to This Country.

WIFE READY TO BE BURIED.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD AT DR. FRITTS' HOUSE YESTERDAY.

Dr. Rodman's Remarks Touched Upon the Pathetic Fact of Husband Returning Home Unconscious Even That His Wife Has Been Sick—A Kindly Tribute to Her Character by the Clergyman.

The funeral service over the remains of Mrs. Auguste Saltzman were held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Dr. J. T. Fritts, of Park avenue. They were very simple. Rev. E. M. Rodman officiated, and two hymns were sung by a male trio, Elmer E. Runyon, Wm. N. Runyon and George Schoonmaker. The clergyman's remarks were short, but comforting to those whom the dead wife and mother had left behind.

The casket stood in the parlor and was literally covered with flowers, principally roses, which were arranged in a lattice-work over the casket. There were pieces from the daughter, Mrs. A. S. Fritts, from the son, Auguste, and from friends and neighbors who had been intimately acquainted with the deceased.

Rev. Dr. Rodman used the Episcopal burial service, and went through it with feeling and reverence. His prayer was inspiring and uplifting, and the brief remarks conveyed more to his hearers than the spoken words described. The minister spoke of the dead woman's charming personality, her interest in other people's welfare, of the quiet life she had led, how she was never found identified with anything questionable or not just and right, and of the suddenness with which death overtook her.

Mr. Rodman touched upon the husband, rapidly nearing his home, still unconscious of the news that awaits him here. When that husband left for a trip of pleasure this summer his wife was enjoying the best of health. Not only is the husband unaware of her death, but doesn't know that she has been ill, as the family thought her sickness of so little importance that they refrained from notifying Mr. Saltzman of it for fear he would worry and cut short his trip. Then when they would have told him, it was too late. The vessel had sailed for America.

The hymns sung were two favorites of Mrs. Saltzman's. "Abide With Me," and "Rock of Ages."

The interment will be at the convenience of the family, and will not take place until Mr. Saltzman's arrival.

BIBLE THEOLOGY WANTED.

A Sermon in Reply to the Thoughts Expressed by Rev. Mr. DaCosta.

The series of meetings which have been conducted in the tent, corner of Somerset street and Linden avenue, during the summer by Elder S. B. Horton and associates, were brought to a close last night. A large attendance was present to hear the discourse from Jude 3. The speaker maintained that the only cure for the ills and woes of Christendom from which Dr. DaCosta, of New York, and many other leading religionists are asking deliverance, is to return to original Christianity — not traditional nor credal doctrines and instruction—but Bible theology. This will involve a return to the Bible Sabbath, Bible baptism, Bible plan for converting sinners, (in place of the dancing academy, chance game and billiard hall auxiliaries to the church), and Bible plan for supporting the Gospel.

A cottage meeting will be held Wednesday night at Elder Horton's home, 128 Grove street, and Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock Sabbath services will be held in the Christian church.

Plain Mike's Remarks.

Plain Mike O'Reilly, a converted Bowery saloon-keeper, spoke yesterday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. meeting before a large number of people, who listened to his earnest words of warning to the unsaved and his gentle Christ-like invitation to accept Christ and be kept from further sinning. He is a very plain spoke, uneducated man and has engagements ahead to speak every Sunday from now until the last of March, next year.

A Convention Report.

At the meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church held last Saturday afternoon, Miss Ida Spicer made her report of the recent State Christian Endeavor convention held at Asbury Park.

HOT SHOT FOR DANCING.

ITS EVILS REHEARSED IN A POEM BY REV. E. E. JACKSON.

He Says That Dancing is "Proving a Spiritual Paralytic Stroke Against the Church's Prosperity"—The Poem Entire.

Rev. E. E. Jackson, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, appeared in The Press sanctum this morning carrying with him the admonition that he "carried the world with him last night." Enquiry brought forth the statement that Rev. Mr. Jackson had delivered a sermon on dancing, which he characterized as "one of the evils that church folks indulge in and which is proving a spiritual paralytic stroke against the church's prosperity." In his sermon he condemned dancing both in private and public, and after the sermon his congregation of four hundred persons voted with uplifted hands to ratify the truth of the reverend's remarks and denounce dancing of all kinds and under all circumstances.

Rev. Mr. Jackson says that he has devoted a whole month to the study of the subject and that he is prepared to accept a challenge from any minister who thinks different than he does in reference to tripping the light fantastic toe. It is not expected that anyone will dare to accept the challenge, however, after reading the following poem which the minister composed for the occasion and which was read to the congregation:

Dancing to me is not a charm.
It leads no souls to Jesus arms.
I cannot find it as away
To help me Heavenward day by day.

It takes my mind, and all my strength
To find a more greatful length.
I must confess and truly tell
It lands many a soul in hell.

Some men are afraid to tell this truth.
'Twill spoil them in their early youth.
Yet they are preachers in the land
And souls are trusted in their hands.

Some who are sent this truth to spread
Are afraid the church will keep their bread.
But I intend to fill my place
I have to feed from a throne of grace.

SURPRISE FOR AN OLD MAN.

Samuel Giles Received an Unexpected Visit on His Seventh-Fifth Birthday.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, Oct. 10.—Last evening a genuine surprise party was given to Samuel Giles of this place, in honor of the seventy-fifth anniversary of his birth. It was one of those old-fashioned parties that were so popular years ago, and the genial host had for his guests man of the oldest inhabitants in this vicinity, and from Dunellen there was a large number of friends present. The old folks, as well as many younger ones, fully enjoyed themselves in a social way and congratulations fell in a shower upon the celebrant. At a late hour a bountiful supper was served and when the guests departed they all wished Mr. Giles many happy returns of the day. Included among the guests were several relatives from Plainfield.

BURIED IN THE CITY PLOT.

No Friends of the Late William Smith Could be Found.

After keeping the remains of William Smith over a week, and sending off to all kinds or places on all kinds of wild goose chases, Morgue Keeper Patrick Casey finally buried him Friday afternoon in the city's plot. Smith died in Muhlenberg Hospital a week ago last Thursday. No one knew anything about him at all, where he came from or who his friends were, so pending an investigation the body was turned over to Casey.

It was reported that Smith had relatives on Long Island and again that he was a discharged sailor from the navy, but both of these clues failed to develop into anything definite, so Friday County Physician F. W. Westcott ordered the burial.

Dunellen Woman Dead.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, October 10—Mrs. Lydia Johnson died at her home on the corner of Washington avenue and Main street yesterday. Mrs. Johnson was about sixty-three years of age, and leaves one son and two grandchildren. The funeral services will be held Wednesday morning at 11:30 o'clock, and at the Methodist church, Cokesbury, N. J., at 3 o'clock. Death was due to consumption.

Wants to Raise $150.

Great preparations are being made at the Mt. Olive Baptist church for the celebration of the thirty-first anniversary of the church the last of this month. Pastor Jackson hopes to be able to raise $150 on that occasion. His address is 218 Liberty street, and anyone wishing to see him can call at that address.

CITY IS BEATEN IN MARTIN ACT CONTEST.

Important Decision is Handed Down By Judge VanSyckel

IN CIRCUIT COURT TODAY.

TAXES MORE THAN TWENTY YEARS DUE NOT COLLECTABLE.

Except in Cases of Where the Properties Have Been Continuously Owned by the Same Person—In Case of Bona Fide Purchaser After Lien Has Expired, the Land is Free From Back Taxes.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Oct. 10—In circuit court this morning Supreme Court Justice VanSyckel announced his decision in the matter of the contest of certain property owners in Plainfield against the findings of the commissioners of adjustment appointed under the Martin Act for the collection of back taxes. The principal points of the decision are as follows:

"The Court decides that taxes more than twenty years past due are presumed to have been paid and advises the commissioners that they should not readjust such taxes unless there is evidence to overcome the prevention

"The Court decides in the second place that as to taxes assessed upon property which still remains in the hands of the original owner they may be reassessed even though the lien of the taxes may have expired.

"The Court decides in the third place that in case of a bona fide purchaser of land after the lien of the tax had expired, the purchaser takes the land free from the tax."

Corporation Counsel Marsh advised the Common Council to the same effect before the commissioners were appointed, with the exception of the payment of the twenty years' nonpayment. Judge VanSyckel continued as to that that the presumption did not apply against the State or against the city representing the State, and that the statute declared that nothing but actual payment should relieve the land from re-assessment.

In other words the view was that the common law maxim "that time does not work against the King" was not applicably to this case.

The court in this respect follows previous decisions of Justices Abbott and Lippincott, and refused to follow the decision of Chief Justice Savage cited by the city.

The court stated that if either side desired to review the decision of the court, the court would be glad to facilitate any proceeding looking to that end.

W. R. Codington, of this city, and R. V. Lindabury, of Newark, represented the contestants in the matter.

The decision is regarded as favorable to the contestants, though in the cases of those who have owned properties continuously since the back taxes have accrued it is unfavorable. As for instance, the case of the Martine estate. Under Judge VanSyckel's decision Mr. Martine will have to pay the back taxes unless he carries an appeal.

Corporation Counsel Marsh will prepare an order embodying the decision, to be served upon the commissioners of adjustment, who are J. Frank Hubbard, of this city, and Frank Bergen and City Comptroller Carlton, of Elizabeth.

Looking for That Man.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, Oct. 10—Abner Coriell, the coal merchant, is still on the lookout for George Walton, who, he says, disappeared last week with $4.50 that belonged to him. Walton drove the coal wagon for Mr. Coriell and after collecting the money for a load of coal left town. Mr. Coriell traced the man to Newark and had a warrant issued for his arrest. The authorities claimed that they could soon catch Walton, but haven't done so yet. Early this morning neighbors say Walton was in the village, but Mr. Coriell did not see him. It is not known where he went.

He Was Led Astray.

James Egan, of this city, a skilled mechanic, was led astray last Saturday night and became intoxicated. He was arrested on Somerset street by Marshal Wise, and yesterday he was released from the borough lockup to appear for trial this morning at 9 o'clock. The offender appeared on time and Mayor Wilson imposed a fine of $5. Mr. Egan assured the Mayor that he would not give His Honor a chance to deal with him again for such a cause.

William Tallman, of the borough, is able to be out again after being confined to his house with rheumatism.

GET FLESH.

Get Strength, Vigor, Clear Complexion and Good Digestion, Not by Patent Medicine, But in Nature's Own Way.

Any honest physician will tell you that there is but one way to get increased flesh; all the patent medicines and cod liver oils to the contrary notwithstanding.

Nature has but one way to increase flesh, strength and vigor, mind and body, and that is through the stomach, by wholesome food, well digested. There is no reason or common sense in other method whatever.

People are thin, run down, nervous, pale, and shaky in their nerves simply because their stomachs are weak.

They may not think they have dyspepsia, but the fact remains that they do not eat enough food, or what they eat is not quickly and properly digested, as it should be.

Dr. Harlandson says the reason is because the stomach lacks certain digestive acids and peptones, and deficient secretion of gastric juice.

Nature's remedy in such cases is to supply what the weak stomach lacks. There are several good preparations which will do this, but none so readily as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which are designed especially for all stomach troubles, and which cure all digestive weakness on the common sense plan of furnishing the digestive principles which the stomach lacks.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest tonic known and will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach. May be found at druggists at 50 cents for full sized package, or direct by mail from Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. 10-10-12 14

SPANIARDS STILL TARRY.

They Are Slow to Evacuate Their Garrison in Porto Rico.

San Juan, de Porto Rico, Oct. 10.—The American forces occupied the towns of Carolina and Canovanos on October 5, and Caguas was taken possession of by them the following day.

It is said that by October 10 San Juan de Porto Rico, Rio Piedras and Bayamon will be the only places remaining in the possession of the Spaniards. But no information is obtainable regarding the arrival of the necessary transports to remove the remaining 3,50 persons, troops and officials and their families who are to be sent to Spain.

The Spanish possession of one-tenth of the island, including the capital, which can be indefinitely prolonged by Spain's failure to furnish transports, manifestly causes much inconvenience to the Americans, who occupy the other nine-tenths, as San Juan is of great value as a main point of distribution.

If the Spanish do not take effective steps to remove one garrison now remaining, the formal delivery of the island to the Americans and the raising of the Stars and Stripes over San Juan will be indefinitely postponed, these ceremonies being dependent upon the Spanish evacuation.

It is believed that the American commissioners are making a strong effort to brin gabout the completion of the transfer of the island to the United States, apprehending that acts of violence may be committed by the islanders if the formal delivery does not take place soon.

There are rumors of destruction of property in the interior, but few of the reports are warranted.

The condition of Senor Ariegui, captain of the civil guard at Bayamon, who was stabbed on the night of October 4, is improving. All the persons arrested on suspicion of being implicated in the affair, with the exception of Dr. St. Hall and one other, have been set at liberty. Dr. St. Hall and the other prisoner, who is retained in custody, declare that they are absolutly innocent of any connection whit the crime.

Four more American regiments and four batteries of artillery will be sent home, being replaced by newly arrived troops. It is stated officially that there is no yellow fever in Porto Rico. Mrs. Gordon, wife of General W. W. Gordon of the American military commission, is here with her husband.

Troops to Sail for Manila Tuesday

San Francisco, Oct. 10.—The transport Senator will probably sail on her second trip to Manila to-day. It is understood that the Third battalion of the Second infantry, and the Oregon recruits will be selected to go, and it is not impossible that General Miller and his staff may also be sent on the Senator.

In the event of General Miller going on the Senator, the command of the regular troops will devolve upon Colonel Funston of the Twentieth Kansas infantry, who at present commands the Second brigade.

Minister for Congress.

Springfield, Mass., October 10.—The Rev. Robert E. Bisbee, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of Chicopee, has been nominated for Congress by the Democrats of the Second Congressional district. Only seventeen delegates attended the convention in this city and the nomination was made by acclamation.

Patients from Porto Rico.

New York, Oct. 10.—The naval hospital ship Solace, which arrived from Porto Rico yesterday morning, brought forty-six ill soldiers belonging to regiments which are now serving or have served in that island.

China Protests to Russia.

Pekin, China, Oct. 10.—The Chinese foreign office has protested against the excessive Russian escort, pointing out that it is twice the strength of the detachments of other powers.

A MARVELOUS RECORD.

The War With Spain Cost the U. S. Navy Only 17 Lives.

Washington, Oct. 10.—Seventeen sailors killed and eighty-four casualties, all told, were the total loss suffered by the United States navy in the war. The figures just have been compiled at the navy department.

In Dewey's great fight in Manila bay not a man was killed, and every one of the nine men wounded was able to and did return to duty.

In the battle of July 3, off Santiago, one man was killed, and there were eleven casualties altogether. In that fight, also, every one of the wounded returned to duty.

The loss suffered in the attack upon the forts at the entrance to Santiago by the American fleet on June 22, was one sailor killed and eleven men wounded, seven being able to return to duty. The heaviest loss of the navy was at Guantanamo. There were twenty-two casualties in that fight. Of the wounded men nine returned to duty, three were invalided from the service and four continue under treatment.

Next after Guantanamo, the battle with the forts and gunboats off Cienfuegos caused the greatest number of casualties, the list aggregating twelve, with one man killed. Another man died subsequently from wounds; nine returned to duty and one continues under treatment.

More fatal in its results was the fierce battle between the torpedo boat Winslow and the revenue cutter Hudson with the Spanish land batteries and artillery forces at Cardenas. Of the eight casualties five were deaths. Three wounded men afterwards returned to duty. In the bombardment of San Juan the casualties numbered eight, with one man killed. One of the wounded men was invalided, while six returned to duty. There were four other casualties, occurring in as many separate engagements, and that completes the list of naval losses.

Of the sixty-seven men wounded in the war, fifty-four returned to duty, one died of wounds, six were invalided from the service, and six died under treatment. Considering results obtained this list is said to be the most remarkable in the naval history of the world.

A Deserter Shot.

New York, Oct. 10.—With a bullet through his brain, Thomas Greenwald, a private in Battery I, Seventh artillery, fell dead last night while trying to escape from Fort Slocum, New Rochelle. Private John Coates of the same battery narrowly escaped a similar fate. He was shot at, but threw himself on the ground just as the guns were fired.

Greenwald was kelled while running, and the bullet that ended his life was fired by order of Lieutenant Colonel William Sinclair, commander of the battery. Coates surrendered and was placed in the guard house.

The civil authorities have exonerated the officer who gaveb the command and the squad of three men who fired at the fleeing man.

Greenwald and Coates had been under arrest for two weeks. Pending the announcement of the finding of a court martial they were assigned to police duty during the day and were locked up in the guard house at night. They were together a good deal and planned to escape and desert from the army.

Maxim Accused of Bigamy.

New York, Oct. 10.—Hiram S. Maxim, the inventor of the famous machine gun, was arraigned in the Tombs police court Saturday morning on a charge of bigamy and abandonment.

The charge was made by a woman who gave the name of Helen Leighton. According to her allegations she married Maxim in 1878, when she was little more than 15 years old. She subsequently discovered that he was already married and he deserted her after their baby was born.

Mr. Maxim's examination was very brief, and was conducted in Magistrate Cornell's private room. At its conclusion he was turned over to the custody of a detective from Poughkeepsie, where the warrant for his arrest had been issued.

He was subsequently arraigned in a police court in Poughkeepsie, waived examination until next Friday and was admitted to bail in $1,500.

Maxim and the woman tell widely different stories. He says that he is the victim of a blackmailing scheme.

Rushing Troops to Paris.

Paris, Oct. 10.—The government has issued special orders to the garrisons of numerous towns near the capital to send immediately to Paris 500 infantry each.

The Journal Des Debats declares that these reinforcements will amount to 10,000 men.

The paper expresses the hope that the country is not on the eve of a revolution.

All the troops will be supplied with two days' rations and sixty rounds of ball cartridges.

Sunday passed off quietly. President Faure, instead of visiting the races at Longchamps, as he had intended, prudently remained at Rabouillot, thus avoiding a demonstration.

Princess Maria of Germany Dead

Berlin, Oct. 10.—Princess Maria, the wife of Prince Albrecht of Prussia, the regent of Brunswick, died Saturday afternoon at Kamenz castle. She was duchess of Saxony and a daughter of Duke Ernst of Saxe-Altenburg. She was born on August 2, 1854, and was married to Prince Albrecht at Berlin on April 19, 1873.

Belden Will Not Run.

Syracuse, Oct. 10.—Representative James J. Belden, in a letter to the Republican voters of the Twenty-seventh congress district declines the nomination recently thrust upon him despite his protests, by the united Republican organization of Madison county and by the McKinley or machine Republicans of Onondaga county.

Oregon Elects New Senator.

Salem, Ore., Oct. 10.—Joseph Simon of Portland was Saturday elected United States senator by the Oregon legislature in joint session, receiving the full Republican vote, as follows: Simon 64, Kincaid 23, Bennett 2, absent 1.

NEW YORK IN NEBRASKA

Large Crowd at the Empire State Celebration at Omaha.

DEPEW'S WEIGHTY WORDS

He Says the Exhibition Will Bring Nearer Together Different Parts of the Country. When Nebraska Shall Have Reached the Age of New York the Population of the United States Will be 200,000,000.

Omaha, Oct. 10.—There was a large crowd in attendance Saturday at the exposition with a fine delegation of the Empire state's representative citizens, including Chauncey M. Depew, Warner Miller presided at the formal exercises of New York day at the Auditorium, at which Mr. Depew was the principal orator. Besides these Jacob Amos of Syracuse spoke:

Mr. Depew spoke in part as follows: "The great benefits which the world's fair at Chicago conferred upon the United States in acquisition from foreign countries and information to foreign governments, this trans-Mississippi exposition at Omaha is vastly to enhance in bringing nearer together in better understanding of each other the different sections of our own country. This exhibition has increased in industrial interest during every hour of our war with Spain, and yet every pulsation of its activities and every throb of the hearts of its visitors have been moved with patriotic prayers for the success of our arms and intelligent understanding of the justice of our cause. We have carried on a war with a foreign country, raised and equipped an army of 250,000 men, and a formidable navy; have won great victories by sea and land, and yet, though our interests and industries are so intimately connected that a blow in any section of the country is felt everywhere, this exhibition has as serenely continued its course as it has enthusiastically celebrated the deeds of Dewey, Schley, Sampson and Hobson, Miles, Shafter and Merritt. There could be no happier illustration of the boundless resources of the United States and its power for peace or war.

"Foreign critics say Americans boast of the bigness of their country. There is no use denying the fact; we are big. We are not too large for a destiny never so manifest as to-day. Cuba is under our protection and certain to come under our flag by the voice of her people. Porto Rico is ours; our foothold in the Philippines will never be surrendered and the markets of the Far East are inviting us to compete with the nations of Europe for their trade. Big as we are, the future is bigger with duties, responsibilities and opportunities for our citizens.

When Nebraska shall have reached the age of New York there will be a population of over 200,000,000 in the United States. The English language will be the speech of diplomacy and the tongue of a quarter of the human race. The United States and Great Britain, having worked harmoniously together for a long period, will dominate the world. Their rule and example will be for the promotion of commerce and the spread of civilization with its requirements and benefits in Asia and Africa.

"The war with Spain has unified our country. The sons of the North and the South, fighting side by side, and under the old flag, have effaced the last vestige of the passions of the civil war. The young men of the farthest west and its primitive conditions, lying with their comrades from the circles of the clubs and fashion in the East in the trenches at El Caney and charging up the hill and over the defences of San Juan, have made the men of the West and the East one by the baptism of blood.

"Venerable New York sends hail and cordial congratulations to young Nebraska. Our settlement is 24 and our sovereignty 90 years older than yours. Three centuries of development under original conditions and free institutions greet this half century of the West, from the painted savage to the industrious citizen with a past and present full of cheer and hope. First among the states of the republic in population, prosperity, educational institutions, churches, productive power and wealth, and commanding the resources of the continent through her metropolis, the second city of the world New York, owes it all to American liberty and opportunity. It is her pride and pleasure to attract and welcome the citizen of all the sister states. The people of the South, the West and the Pacific have found hospitable homes in the Empire state in numbers greater than the population of many cities in these sections.

"From Manhattan island and the banks of the Hudson invisible wires stretch to distant places all over the land. They are burdened with messages of love and encouragement. These fraternal ties, intertwining with the bonds of patriotism and common interest, bind our states together in one indissoluble union, and make us all one people, of one country and under one flag."

Sloane Still Winning

London, Oct. 10.—Tod Sloane, the American jockey, continues to be the center of attraction on the English turf. His name is on the tongues of all turfmen, and the money of a majority of them is placed on the horses he rides.

At the Kempton Park October meeting Saturday he had five mounts and never was worse than second.

Twice he finished in front and three times he ran second.

Lee's Corps to Be Reorganized.

Washington, Oct. 10.—General Lee has been ordered to reorganize the Seventh Army corps, now under his command at Jacksonville, so as to make it consist of two divisions of two brigades each.

Gen. Wheeler at Huntsville.

Washington, Oct. 10.—General Wheeler has arrived at Huntsville, Ala., where he will assume command of the Fourth corps.

Flossie's New Costume.

(BY JAQUETTE.)

Last week Flossie announced to me that she would soon give the Jillings the Mountloves and the other girls something to talk about. "It will be a real smart tailor-made suit and I want you to go with me to buy it," she said.

In a day or two we boarded a trolley car and rode to Newark, where we visited several stores without finding anything in character and price that struck our fancy. "Just as I thought," exclaimed Flossie, "we could have saved time by going at once to Hahne & Co.'s; come on, Nell."

Just a glance at Hahne & Co.'s top garments decided the question of where to buy, with Flossie's whisper: "I told you so." A few seconds later she was declaiming the elegance of a brown camel's hair suit marked $15.98, the same that was shown us at $22 in New York. "I'll take that suit," she said to the lady in attendance. The coat is a cutaway with velvet collar, cadet sleeves and lined with black satin serge. The skirt has the popular flounce, and is lined with percaline. Every seam is tailored.

Flossie's hat came next. I quite shared her ecstasy over the beautiful millinery display, although I am usually sedate and reserved in manner, having reached the age of—well, no matter about that. A turban, trimmed with brown velvet and white satin, seemed to please Flossie immensely, and I advised her to buy it. The price was $7.25, a very reasonable one.

Before we left the store I bought for sister Kate an all-wool, fifty-inch broadcloth with twill back, fine face and dainty shade of green, for $1.10 a yard. Kate is delighted with it, and says $1.25 is the price in other stores.

There was a twinkle in Flossie's eye when she remarked to me on Sunday evening: "Say, Nell, I noticed the girls in groups today, several times; do you think they could have been admiring my new costume?"

YELLOW FEVER FRIGHT

Inhabitants Flee as the Dreaded Scourge Advances.

MISSISSIPPI DEPOPULATED

Three Railroads Suspend Busines as a Result of the Fever and the Disease Is on the Increase. Alabama Quarantine Against Mississippi and Louisiana.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 10.—The yellow fever situation throughout the state of Mississippi is assuming grave proportions. The area of yellow fever has so enlarged that infection may be said to be general throughout the state, as there is not a section that has not been visited.

The inter-state railroads have practically suspended business and several short lines are on the verge of a temporary shut down due to the lack of trade.

Twenty thousand or more people have hurriedly left the state and are now refugees in northern cities, eagerly awaiting the approach of cold weather.

The disease continues to increase rapidly in Jackson, the state capital. Since September 27 there have been forty-four cases there, of which twenty-four were negroes. Only five deaths have been reported since the beginning. The weather for the past two days has been considerably cooler throughout the state.

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 10.—In Jackson the area of infection is increasing. There is now one case within a hundred yards of the state capitol. The state board of health has issued an appeal for aid from the general government, the governor telephoning his approval from Brandon, where he is transacting public business.

Selma, Oct. 10.—The board of censors or the committee on public health of Dallas county, has established a quarantine against the states of Mississippi and Louisiana.

ARMY CAMPS TO BE VISITED.

Investigation Commission Will Make a Tour of Inspection.

Washington, Oct. 10.—The war department investigating commission examined two witnesses Saturday. They were Dr. Griffin, who is in charge of the Sternberg hospital at Camp Thomas, at Chickamauga, and Captain Balbridge a brigade commissary of subsistence at Camp Cuba Libre, Jacksonville.

The commissioners have practically decided to start on the night of October 16 for their rounds of the various camps.

They will go either to Camp Meade or to Jacksonville first.

All the camps will be visited in succession, but the understanding is that the trip to Camp Wikoff will not be made until some time in November. Next week will be given largely to the inspection of official reports and to other statements which have been furnished in reply to letters from the cimmission.

Major Hersey was quoted as saying that Mr. Wrenn of the Rough Riders, as well as Mr. Tiffany, was dead. The statement was an inadvertence, and was due to the coupling of he two names, and to the fact that Mr. Wrenn was ill.

Health of American Troops in Cuba

Santiago de Cuba, Oct. 10.—The general health of the American troops is now better than ever before. The recent heavy rains have done much for the health of the camps, although there has been a slight increase of ordinary fever, but all cases in the detention hospital of yellow fever are convalescent and practically ready to be discharged. The cooler weather is having an excellent effect on the sick.

The troops stationed at San Luis have benefitted greatly by a change of camp. General Ewers reports a reduction of sickness among his men from seven hundred to thirty. The Second immunes, at Altosongo, have only fifteen sick with light attacks of malaria and dysentery.

The Cubans are making great preparations to celebrate on October 10 the anniversary of the first outbreak of the revolution of 1868, headed by Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, for the expulsion of the Spaniards after the revolution in Spain. They are draping their houses with Cuban and American flags.

American business men are rapidly multiplying in Santiago; various industries are being started and the prospects for general mercantile pursuits are good.

Blanco Issues a Decree.

Havana, Oct. 10.—A decree of Captain General Blanco, dated October 5, has been published. It provides, first, that a full discharge be granted to every enlisted man who has the right to it and who desires to remain in Cuba; second, for the transfer of the Second Reserves of those who, possessing the necessary qualifications, wish to remain in Cuba; third, for the return to Spain of those who may have previously lost the right to a return passage. These orders are looked upon here as being important. Many men now in the Spanish army will decide to remain here, as there is a brighter future for them in prospect in Cuba than there would be if they returned to Spain.

A model commemorative of the blockade will be struck by the city of Havana. A competition has been opened for the best design.

Premier Sagasta's Denial.

Madrid, Oct. 10.—Senor Sagasta, the premier, denies that the United States government consented to delay the evacuation of Cuba and Porto Rico on account of the difficulties of the operations.

Carnegie After a Duke's Estate

London, Oct. 10.—Andrew Carnegie is negotiating for the purchase of the whole of the Duke of Sutherland's estate at Creich.

GERMAN VIEWS ARE CHANGING.

Favorable to Retention of the Philippines by the United States.

Berlin, Oct. 10.—There has been a great change in German public opinion on the subject of the retention of the Philippine islands by the United States. The feeling toward America is generally much more favorable than it was a couple of months ago. The news from the United States that the government at Washington is seriously contemplating holding the Philippine islands, is commented upon dispassionately in the German press, and it is significant that two papers of such standing as the Kolnische Zeitung and the Vissische Zeitung have published long letters from German merchants settled in the Philippine islands, in which annexation to America is strongly advocated. A correspondent of the Vossische Zeitung even vigorously combats Germany making any attempt to secure a portion of the islands, citing weighty reasons therefor.

Another significant fact is that a delegation representing German and German-Swiss firms in the Philippine islands called at the United States embassy to express hopes that America will not relinquish the islands, and above all not to return them to Spain, which, the delegation claimed, would mean a recurrence of the revolution and the perpetuation of commercial troubles.

The delegation also asked if it might go to Paris and lay its views before the United States peace commission. But the United States ambassador here Mr. White, advised the delegation not to do so.

Mr. White does not anticipate German interference, directly or indirectly, even if the United States insists upon retaining the whole of the archipelago.

Privy Councillor Schwartzenstein, formerly of the German embassy at Washington, strongly expresses the same view. He declares that Germany does not dream of putting obstacles in America's way.

Mr. White had a long conference on Wednesday last with the German minister of foreign affairs, Baron von Bulow.

The Turkish Ultimatum.

Constantinople, Oct. 10.—The ultimatum of the powers to Turkey on the subject of the evacuation of the island of Crete by the Turkish troops, declared that, should the sultan refuse to yield, he would lose his sovereign rights in Crete.

This has irritated Turkish circles. They call the action of the powers unjust, and hope is entertained that Russia will decline to co-operate with the other powers, in which case it is believed the latter will not resort to extremities.

In diplomatic circles comment has been excited by the fact that the censor permitted the newspapers here to reproduce the dispatch in which Russia, replying to Great Britain, declared she was opposed to violent measures, and would protest beforehand against their employment.

This is believed to be an attempt to make Great Britain alone responsible for the coercion.

President Off to Canton

Washington, Oct. 10.—President and Mrs. McKinley left here over the Pennsylvania railroad at 7.20 o'clock Saturday night for Canton, Ohio, where they will attend the funeral of Mrs. McKinley's brother, George D. Saxton. With them were several relatives, Miss Helen McKinley, Mr. and Mrs. Bowman, Mrs. Barber and her son, John Barber, and Major Webb Hayes.

The party arrived in the private car Campania, which was attached to the rear of the regular western express.

Mrs. McKinley looked a trifle pale, but smiled pleasantly at a small crowd gathered about and passed to the train supported by the president and Secretary Wilson.

The train arrived at Canton at 10.26 Sunday morning.

Big Tobacco Deal Made.

St. Louis, Oct. 10.—After negotiations extending over several months, the American Tobacco company of New York has finally purchased the immense tobacco works and warehouses on Spruce street, bounded by ourth and Valentine streets, owned by the Drummond Tobacco Company of which Harrison I. Drummond is president.

The purchase price is not given, but is said to be well up in the millions, as the plant is one of the largest of its kind in the world.

President Duke of the American Tobacco Company, who has been in the city for several weeks past negotiating for the property, brought the deal to a close.

4th New Jersey Going to Camp Meade.

New York, Oct. 10.—Deputy Quartermaster General Kimball, at the Army building, has been ordered to arrange for the transportation of the Fourth New Jersey volunteers from Sea Girt, N. J., to Camp Meade, Pennsylvania. The regiment expected to be sent to one of the southern camps, and the new orders will be somewhat of a surprise to the men.

The Fourth will eventually go to Cuba to do garrison duty.

Postmaster Short $2,400.

Weymouth Center, Mass., Oct. 10.—Postmaster Robert F. Shaw of the Weymouth Center postoffice has been relieved from duty on account of an alleged shortage in his accounts of $2,400. His bondsmen have made good the amount of the shortage, and J. A. Cushing is now in temporary charge of the office.

Boston Leather Firm Assigns.

Boston, Oct. 10.—The leather firm of Heckman, Bissell & Co. of this city has assigned to George W. Brown. The firm has been dealing largely in hides and sole and "upper" leather. It has been doing a business of between $500,000 and $750,000 a year.

Great Fire Near Sydney.

Sidney, N. S. W., Oct. 10.—An enormous fire at Redfern, the principal suburb of Sidney, has destroyed the whole of the area covered by business premises and dwelling houses.

SAGASTA LOSES HOPE

Spanish Premier Expects to Give Up the Philippines.

NO HELP FROM THE POWERS

Vain Appeal to the French Government for International Action on the Question. The French Would Prefer American Owner Ship to German.

Madrid, Oct. 10.—Senor Sagasta is at last becoming reconciled to the eventual loss of the Philippines, though it is a most bitter disappointment to the queen regent and the cabinet, for until Wednesday the secret hope had been cherished by the premier that Spanish diplomacy might prevail upon France, Germany and other powers to exert their influence to withdraw the final settlement of the Philippine question from the Paris commission and refer it to an international conference in case the United States should insist upon anything more in the archipelago than a port and a coaling station.

These hopes have now vanished, for it is stated on good authority that the French foreign office, being sounded on the subject, expressed most courteous and genuine sympathy but declined to hold out a single word of promise or encouragement.

It is now beginning to be realized in ministerial circles here that the French government, aware of the intention of Spain ultimately to dispose of whatever can be saved from the Philippine wreck to the highest cash bidder, would rather see the whole archipelago annexed outright by the United States than have it remain a bone of contention, with the likelihood of its being some day transferred to Germany.

Such, at least, is the present situation, subject of course to modifications when the American demands are actually known in detail.

As far as can be ascertained, no interchange of views has taken place here between the cabinets of Madrid and Berlin with a view to referring the Philippine question to an international conference; so that any threats of being able to achieve such a diplomatic victory may be regarded as a pure bluff.

General Weyler, whose recent arrival here from the Balearic islands causes considerable uneasiness in circles friendly to the dynasty, is believed to have at last made his choice between the Carlists and the Republicans and to have cast his lot with the latter. It is learned from sources that have hitherto proved trustworthy that Weyler is zealously working with a newly formed committee whose sphere of activity is Portugal as well as Spain, and whose aim is to proclaim after the signature of peace an Iberian republic uniting the whole peninsula, with Weyler as president.

A rise of a few points has taken place in the six per cent. Philippine bonds, which are held almost exclusively at Madrid, Barcelona and Manila, and are largely in the hands of Jesuits and the monastic orders which have relations with the Philippines.

Liliuokalani Wants Us to Pay.

San rancisco, Oct. 10.—The United States transport Valencia has arrived here from Manila and Honolulu. She was 34 days and 14 hours on the trip from Manila and nine days from Honolulu. She brought the following advices:

Honolulu, Sept. 28.—It is learned on good authority that ex-Queen Liliuokalani will leave here for Washington about the middle of November to present her claims to Congress for remuneration for the loss of her throne and the revenue from the crown lands, for which she feels that the people of the United States owe her some pecuniary compensation.

Company I of the New York Engineers is now in camp at Pearl City. They have been ordered to make a survey of the pearl harbor region, probably with a view of obtaining data for fortifications and improvement plans.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 10.—The steamer Warrimoo arrived here Saturday after a good passage from Honolulu and Australia. She had news from Honolulu as follows:

There was a fire on the United States cruiser Philadelphia shortly before she left on September 29 with Admiral Miller on board. The fire was extinguished after about an hour's hard work.

An Exodus from Crete.

Canea, Island of Crete, Oct. 10.—Many Christians, Mussulmans and Jews are leaving the island. All the steamers are crowded and the members of the different Roman Catholic orders have removed their valuables to places of safety.

Influential Mussulmans, however, assert that trouble is improbable, as the population is cowed by the sultan's consent to the departure of the Turkish troops.

Paris Markets Depressed by a Rumor.

Paris, Oct. 10.—Business on the Bourse Saturday started weak, owing to apprehension of the spread of the strike, coupled with a rumor, subsequently found to be false, of the assassination of President McKinley. Toward the end of the day there was a general recovery, and prices closed steady.

The Atlantic City Blaze.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 10.—Twenty buildings on the beach front were destroyed by fire Saturday morning within two hours.

They had been occupied by about fifty business concerns. In addition half a dozen families were made homeless. The loss is estimated at $200,000.

Guilty of Stealing $76,242.

San Francisco, Oct. 10.—A. G. Wilder, ex-treasurer of this city and county, has been convicted of embezzling $76,242 from the public treasury. The jury was out all night.

Wildber will be sentenced to next Saturday.

SHERIFF'S SALE—Union County Circuit Court. Robert W. Barnes and Norman K. Barnes, partners in trade as Barnes Brothers, vs. Catherine W. Runyon, defendant. Fi. fa. de bo. et ter. On contract.

By virtue of the above stated writ of fieri facias, to me directed, I shall expose for sale by public vendue, at the Court House, in the city of Elizabeth N. J., on at two o'clock in the afternoon of said day, all those tracts or parcels of land and premises hereinafter particularly described, situate, lying and being in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union and State of New Jersey:

Beginning at a point in the northeasterly side of Rock avenue distant 200 feet more or less southeasterly from the southeasterly corner of North avenue and Rock avenue, and is a corner of lands of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; thence northeasterly along line of lands of the Central Railroad of New Jersey 565 feet more or less to a point; thence north 20 degrees 46 minutes west 52 feet more or less to a point making a rear corner of lot No. 1; thence southwesterly and parallel with the line of land of Central Railroad of New Jersey, and along rear line of Front street lots 577 feet more or less to a point in the aforesaid northeasterly side of Rock avenue; thence southwesterly along said northeasterly side of Rock avenue 50 feet to the place of beginning.

Also, that tract known as lot No. eight (8) as laid out on a certain map entitled "Map of Rock View Villa Sites, Evona, near Plainfield, N. J., N. Yard, Civil Engineer," the same being 50 feet wide front and rear, and 150 feet deep, said lot fronting on Front street 150 feet northeasterly from Rock avenue.

Value of a Trolley Franchise.

The demands which Councilman VanHerwerden would make of the Plainfield Street Railway Company in return for granting a franchise for the extension of their tracks from the corner of Fifth and Richmond streets over the latter thoroughfare to East Second street and thence to the eastern limits of the city, are not by any means unreasonable. Mr. VanHerwerden's proposition is to compel the company to asphalt the streets in the business centre of the town at a cost of about $25,000. A great many people regard such a demand as prohibitory. Now let us see.

This eastern extension of the local system is wanted principally by the capitalists as a final connection in the line which they propose building from Elizabeth to Plainfield. The right of way has already been secured through Scotch Plains, Westfield, Cranford and Roselle.

The proposed line has exactly the same territory to draw business and profits from that the proposed county trolley will have when completed. For all practical purposes of determining the value of the franchise the same conditions and same arguments apply to both projects alike. John Kean, as astute and shrewd a business man as there is in New Jersey, says that such a franchise is worth $250,000 to him. If Kean is willing to pay such a sum of money for the franchise it certainly cannot be denied that it is not worth as much to the great trolley interests back of the private enterprise.

In all the towns except Plainfield we will say that the franchises thus far secured have cost the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company (the same thing as the Plainfield company) $50,000. We think this is a very liberal estimate of the compensation or amount of benefits Scotch Plains, Westfield, Cranford and Roselle are going to get out of the franchises they have already granted.

Councilman VanHerwerden's proposition to demand benefits to cost $25,000, in addition to the stipulations already embodied in the proposed ordinance granting the franchise, would bring Plainfield's demand to perhaps $35,000.

Add to this $35,000 the $50,000 that it will cost the capitalists to get through the other towns and we have a total of $85,000 for identically the same franchise that John Kean is willing to pay $250,000 for. Compel the Plainfield Street Railway Company to submit to Councilman VanHerwerden's idea and they will be getting a franchise dirt cheap.

Some of the Councilmen profess to think that the trolley will not be built if such a demand is made of them. Don't believe it. The trolley people have got more favors to ask of Plainfield than Plainfield has got to ask of them, and this air of injured innocence that some of the capitalists and promoters assume in looking upon the proposed demands is but a thin veneer for concealing their own knowledge that the franchise is worth far more than they are willing to concede.

If the Council grants this franchise without getting a fair price they will do so with open eyes.

The Railway Industry.

The railway industry in the United States is the most important factor in our prosperity, and its capitalization is the largest, yet the returns of that industry are the lowest, and there has been a steady decadence in the income value of railroads for the last six years. According to the statistics of Poor's Manual and of the interstate commerce commission, our roads have sunk to such a low ebb of profit that they cannot go much further that way without bordering bankruptcy. Without entering extensively into figures it may be cited that on a stock and bonded capital of $10,635,008,074 the returns are 1.92 per cent, a declension of one-half within half a dozen years. The essential cause of this terrible decline is attributed to extensive competition and the cutting of rates in the most unscrupulous fashion. In every pooling arrangement there has always been one to betray the rest. No guardianship on the part of traffic associations or of the interstate commerce commission has been able to check the rings within rings in railway operations and the surreptitious attempts to cut each other's throats. Many of the most conservative and honest railway men are coming to believe that government ownership is the only remedy. But against that, alike as a matter of theory and practice, there is a radical objection in the sentiments of many people. That something will have to be done very soon, however, to remedy the evil is the conviction of all those who have looked into the subject.

The disgruntled colored politicians, who have supported the G. O. P. for several years, are now decked out in Democratic warpaint and are preparing to carry devastation into the colored camp of their old political friends. They are to be known as the "Colored State Democracy," with headquarters at Asbury Park. The redoubtable Colonel Murrell is at the head of the organization. Plainfield is a Klondike for these gentlemen.

Councilman Murray Burtis, of the borough, who was made chairman of the police committee at the meeting of the Borough Council Friday evening, is a man that will undoubtedly maintain and increase the efficiency of the department. He has associated with him Councilmen George T. Rogers and F. O. Ball, both of whom are men thoroughly awake as to what a first-class police force should be.

Dr. J. Ackerman Coles, of Scotch Plains, has presented many statues to various organizations within the last few years, but he has probably never received an acknowledgement of a gift that afforded him such honor and satisfaction as the whole-souled letter from Admiral George Dewey. Admiral Dewey not only knows how to fight but also possesses the knack of writing a very pretty letter.

At the first meeting of the State committee of the Democrats at Newark last week former Senator Keyes, of Somerset county, stated that there would be no danger of his flunking if nominated for Congress in the Third district. The Senator would go in to win, and he has plenty of friends to help him along.

The Elizabeth Daily Leader has blossomed out in enlarged form, now the same size as The Daily Press. It is printed on a new web perfecting press, which was started by Mayor Mack and witnessed by a number of august personages of the county seat. Editor Drake is getting there in rapid strides.

With New Brunswick officials confiscating slot machines and breaking them into scrap iron we are inclined to think that the millineum is rapidly approaching. But be that as it may, we are glad to see reform with a big R hovering thereabouts.

If the Democrats should, at their primaries this evening, start the neucleus of a Democratic organization, with an agressive spirit to it, they would do a party work that might be full of favorable results at a not far distant day.

Through the newspapers of Somerville Senator Daly, of Hudson county, has extended thanks to the Somerset county Democrats who supported him in the recent contest for the Gubernatorial nomination.

Democrats who feel that they cannot be accommodated in Congressional aspirations in other districts, will please apply to the convention of the Eighth district to be held in Elizabeth next Wednesday.

Monday evening, October 24th, the Republican primaries will be held to elect delegates to attend the county convention to be held at Elizabeth Thursday, October 27th.

The Bound Brook State Center says that "Hiram O. Hance is one of the popular Democrats being mentioned in this community as a possible Assembly candidate."

Trolleys that try to pass in the night seem to be in vogue in Plainfield. But perhaps this may turn out to be a case of trolleys that fail to pass in the night.

The primaries for the election of delegates to the Democratic Congressional convention will be held in the various wards this evening.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

The coming of the ever-funny farce-comedy "Peck's Bad Boy," at Music Hall tonight, will delight every small boy, for there is nothing short of a circus that will make the eyes of the small boy sparkle with delight as quickly as a sight of the flaming posters along the walls announcing the coming of "Peck's Bad Boy." But not only does the small boy enjoy it, but adults as well, for it carries them back todays of long ago and for the time they forget all cares, and imagine themselves back to their boyhood days. The play is full of bright and sparkling specialties, catchy music, combined with the pranks of the "Bad Boy" make it one of the most entertaing of plays.

Oliver Byron's Great Gotham Stock Company, which opens at Music Hall October 17th, is said to be one of the strongest repertoire organizations on the road. It numbers eighteen people, and the list of plays were never before produced at cheap prices. Each will be staged with the special scenery carried by the company. Mr. Byron promises to give the public a first-class production of "Across the Continent," "Ups and Downs of Life," "The Plunger," "Inside Track," "The Sloggarth," "Ten Thousand Miles Away," and other strong plays. Specialties are introduced by Fred Warren, Ed. Hume and Alice Magill.

* * * * *

"The Little Corporal," now being presented at the Broadway Theatre, New York, by Francis Wilson and company, has made an instant and unqualified success, and every performance is given to crowded houses. The book is by Harry B. Smith, the well-known author of "The Highwayman," "Robin Hood," "The Serenade, "Rob Roy," etc., and the music is by Ludwig Englander, composer of a number of successful operas, among them "Half a King." The costumes and scenery are described as both beautiful and novel, and the opera is admitted to be the best of its kind produced for years. Although it abounds in droll situations and bright lines, it is free from any suspicion of vulgarity. In fine, "The Little Corporal," according to the metropolitan judges, has proved the winner of the present theatrical contest and is now enjoying its well-deserved laurels—praise and prosperity.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

In another column we print an article from the Plainfield Press that is of timely interest and importance to every Democrat in Union county. As the Press truly says, the great need of the hour in this county is for vigorous Democratic co-operation in the various sections of Union county with a view to rehabilitating the party organization and reviving the latent interest of the thousands of Democrats in the various townships whose ardor has been dampened and whose zeal has been chilled by the system of political control to which they have been subjected for the past ten years. The Press voices no new protest, when it condemns the policy of reserving all posts of honor or emolument for the Democrats of Elizabeth. To the army of vigorous Union county Democrats outside of Elizabeth, the party organization of the county seat appears to exist solely for the purpose of monopolizing all the posts of honor and emolument within the party's gift to the exclusion of the Democrats in any other part of the county. Against this system of proscription the Democrats of Union county ought to organize for their own protection and for the protection of the commuties in which they reside. What the county needs now is organization and leadership that aims at something higher than pandering to the omnivorous appetite of the Democrats of the city of Elizabeth.—Summit Record.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, N. J., Oct. 10.—Almost a year ago Isaac Stites, the blacksmith, inserted an advertisement in one of the Plainfield papers advertising a house and lot for sale cheap. The reason given for selling was that the house was situated so near the sewer beds that the people couldn't live in it with any comfort. In a short time Mr. Stites received a letter from an A. J. Noel, of Hasbrook Heights, in which the writer seemed very anxious to purchase, and desired Mr. Stites to send him full particulars, which he did. Since then Mr. Stites has had no further word from this anxious buyer. Knowing an official in Hasbrook Heights, Mr. Stites sent this friend a letter asking if their was such a person as A. J. Noel living there, and received the answer that there was no such person as A. J. Noel in the place. Ever since that time Mr. Stites has been wondering who was the writer of that letter. He thinks that some one was trying to play a trick on him, and get him to run up the value of his property, situated as it is just on the edge of the sewer beds, then perhaps used the signed statement in a law suit, if any should ever be brought against the city of Plainfield. But in his letter Mr. Stites says he told the truth which wasn't anything very complimentary to the sewer beds.

Mrs. Miller, who has been visiting her brother, M. L. Rarick, has returned to her home in Rahway.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, October 10.—Mrs. Baker and daughter, Miss Eva, are visiting relatives in New York State.

The Plainfield Common Council, by its action Friday evening in laying the Richmond street extension of the trolley over for one week, is a source of aggravation to the residents of the Plains who were beginning to have some hopes of communication with the outside world in the near future and now some of the residents of the town are beginning to think it never will be granted, on account of the county road which John Kean proposes to build and which will be of no use to Scotch Plains, as it comes no nearer town than the Central Railroad does. For this reason Scotch Plains has to look toward Plainfield for relief. Failing to get it Scotch Plains is bound to stay just where it has stood for the last two years, a beautiful spot, finely located, etc., but with no communication with the world about us, and this is just what investors and home-seekers are looking for. We simply stand still, while the world moves on. But if we ever get the trolley the town would soon awaken from its "Rip VanWinkle" sleep and build up in a few years. But we will wait patiently and hope that the franchise will be granted Friday evening.

The house committee of the public library have arranged for an afternoon tea, to be held in the library rooms Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. As the tea is for the benefit of the library an admission of ten cents will be charged. Mrs. A. D. Shepard has courteously loaned the Library Association her phonograph and Miss Shepard has kindly promised to be present and take charge of a little entertainment during the afternoon. All interested in the libary are invited to attend.

ITEMS BRIEF AND BRIGHT

GATHERED ALL ABOUT THE TOWN BY ALERT PRESS REPORTERS.

News in Short Paragraphs That are Interesting to Read During the Spare Moments of Many Busy Plainfielders.

—Democratic primaries tonight.

—There will be a meeting of Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company this evening.

—Next Friday evening the City Council will hold an important adjourned meeting.

—Stone Square Lodge, No. 38, F. and A. M., will hold an important meeting this evening.

—A communication of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A M., will be held tomorrow evening.

—There will be a meeting of the directors of the Plainfield Water Supply Company tomorrow.

—Preparations are now being made by the members of the W. C. T. U. for the bazaar they intend to hold at an early date.

—Two carloads of coal arrived at the North Avenue station Saturday. It was stored in the cellar for use during the winter.

—At the meeting of the Firemen's Relief Association next Wednesday evening business of importance will be considered.

—If your grocer hasn't our extracts in his store he can get them with very little trouble if you insist on having them. A. L Kaerth & Co.

—The contract for furnishing the shades for Miss Lincoln's new building on West Fourth street, has been awarded to George F. Brown.

—The Juniors of the Park Avenue Baptist church have begun their meetings for the winter. Next Friday afternoon there will be an election of officers, followed by a sociable.

—The notices issued to the borough taxpayers by Collector Brown have had a good effect. A number of property-owners have already called and paid their taxes for 1898, and the bills have not yet been sent out.

—The opening entertainment of the star course of the Y. M. C. A. takes place Monday evening, October 31st. J. Williams Macy, a humorous buffobasso, is to be the entertainer. The course this year will be unusually good.

—It has been suggested that the Plainfield trolley cars give wheelmen and carriages a little more room at the corner of Watchung avenue and North avenue. This can be done if the cars are not run so far beyond the corner. Of late several narrow escapes have been witnessed.

—Mark any peculiarities that children may have in looking at objects at a distance or nearby. Squinting, frowning, looking sidewise, with partially closed eyes are indications of eye troubles. Better be over-cautious in having a child's eyes examined than to take too much responsibility into your own hands. Examinations free at Collier's, 103 Park avenue.

Specials for Tomorrow.

Ladies' Cloth Skirts. Ladies' Muslin Underwear. The sale of Silks, the sale of Muslin Underwear, the sale of Medium Weight Underwear for Ladies and Men, the sale of Granite Iron Ware, all of them are well worth your while to investigate.

Oil Heaters.

Silks.

We place on sale tomorrow one thousand yards of fine rich Silks, bought from the leading Silk house in the country at half their usual price, every piece is of this season's production and the reason for their great cheapness is that they are in short lengths, enough for a skirt or waist, value from $1.25 to $2.00 per yard. We ask only 79c. the yard.

Housefurnishing Department.

Have placed on sale a special lot of first quality granite iron ware at remarkably low prices.

Soft, White Hands.

There are some hands which are so sensitive to outside influences that they flush almost like the face, becoming moist with fear or excitement, and causing their owners much inconvenience and discomfort. For hands of this description make a wash as follows: A teaspoonful of borax, a teaspoonful of glycerine, and a teaspoonful of eau-de-Cologne. Mix these ingredients thoroughly together, and put into a little china pot with a lid. Anoint the hands with the wash after performing the last ablutions of the evening, and allow it, as far as possible, to dry on. It will render the flesh firm, and prevent it cracking or flushing.

For clammy, moist hands, rub lemon juice, eau-de-Cologne, or any spirit thoroughly into them, both inside and outside, after washing, and use oatmeal instead of soap occasionally. Vinegar is also a useful astringment in such a case.

When gloves are used for sleeping in, it is better to slit down the centre of the palm, or even cut it away entirely. These remedies will be found equally good for the complexion as for the hands or the body generally.

When the hands have been very badly stained wash them first in hot water, then rub the stains with lemon juice and salt, and apply the pumice stone. If the stains be very deep, and refuse to move after several washings, go to your chemist and ask him to make you up a lotion or wash, with oil of vitriol in its composition. This should only be done as a last resource.

A slow circulation is a great enemy to a white hand during the cold weather. For this reason it is good to rub the hands and arms gently, especially after washing, and under-vests of wool with long sleeves should be worn.

However white a hand may be, its appearance is utterly spoiled if the nails do not receive proper attention. They should be trimmed with the knife, and rubbed back with the towel, and cleaned every time the hands are washed. If the scarf-skin be pushed gently down hangnails will not put in an appearance, but if they do, on no account bite or pull them off; a sharp pair of scissors must be used for the purpose. The tips of the fingers should be pressed between the thumb and finger upwards to give them a good shape.

Biting the nails will spoil them without a doubt, as well as witner the tips of the fingers. Cut the nails at regular periods; they should never be too short or too long, and do not clean them with a sharp instrument. Very short nails cause the tips of the fingers to spread and look clumsy; it is difficult to keep them clean, they are unsightly, and often sore. A mere rim beyond the flesh is sufficient, which should be cleaned with an ivory instrument.

Dainty Fan Bags.

The mounts of fans are so easily broken that it affords a great protection to carry them to and from a place of entertainment in a bag. The pretty model portrayed may be made in any length desired. The foundation of pale pink satin is lined throughout with sea green silk and the whole is edged around with a satin frill and is finished with a double slide of ribbon and a bow at the bottom of the bag.

The arabesque design running the length of the bag, is worked at the edges with buttonhole-stitch with two strands of filoselle. The top design is filled in with beads; the next is filled in with cross-stitches, with one bead in the centre; the third is filled in with a lattice pattern worked with silk, fastened down at each corner with a cross-stitch. The flowers and foliage are worked with china ribbon, and the stalks with cording-stitch in silk.

An Austrian professor estimates that only 900 persons out of 1,000,000 die from old age, while 1,200 succumb to gout, 18,400 to measles, 2,700 to apoplexy, 7,000 to erysipelas, 7,500 to consumption, 48,000 to scarlet fever, 25,000 to whooping-cough, 30,000 to typhoid and typhus, and 7,000 to rheumatism. These averages, of course, vary according to the locality. Small-pox does not even get a place in the list. Was this Austrian professor an anti-vaccinator?

A Mother's Mistake.

A mother makes the most grave mistake when she speaks of the faults of one of her children to another. It is disloyalty in the first place, and in the second, the child to whom the complaint is made must naturally think that in her absence her own faults are complained of to the others. Children resent treatment of this kind, and it helps to shake the trust and confidence they have in their mother, and at the same time damages their own self-respect.

Another mistake is often made in allowing the children to tell her tales of each other. It is a most contemptible habit to allow a child to get into, and immediate steps should be taken to check the little mischief-maker.

The surest way to do this is to punish the tale-bearer every time he carries tales of another's wrong-doing, explaining to the child at the time why you punish him. Mothers often create this fault themselves by asking the children questions as to each other's doings. It should never be done, it is not fair, either to the one who tells or the one of whom the tale is told, and is the most sure way to destroy a child's sense of honour.

Publicly rebuking a child is another great mistake. When he is doing wrong he may be checked in public, but the wise mother will reserve the scolding and threat of punishment till she gets the little sinner in private. There he will listen to her, and ponder over what she says; but rebuked in the presence of others he is apt to be defiant and harden his little heart. It is by little mistakes of this kind that mothers lose the love and respect of their children.

Lace Over Blouse.

An over blouse is a useful article to be worn over a bodice of silk or light material which has become slightly soiled. All trimming must be removed from the old bodice and it should be cleaned and pressed to look as fresh as possible.

The lace bodice is made without lining, and may be fastened up the back or on the left shoulder and under the arm. A little fullness is allowed in the center of the back at the waist and in the front it is fulled at neck and waist. The collar is a band of silk, covered with lace, with frills at the sides, and the epaulets are of lace, three and a half inches wide on the shoulder, gradually growing narrow at each end.

To Prevent Cakes Sticking.

Take up a small quantity at a time of good lard, or butter, with a piece of kitchen paper, and rub a cake tin (which has been warmed) over evenly with it, then lightly dust it with sufficient flour to form a coating over the butter. Turn the tin up and knock it against the pastry-board to get rid of the superfluous flour, and then pour in the cake mixture. If a rich cake is to be baked, the tin should be lined with buttered paper. Turn the tin up, place a sheet of white paper over it and crease it so as to get the size of the bottom, cut this out, and then cut a paper band to fit the sides of the tin, letting it come an inch or two higher than the top. Warm the tin and grease it, and then grease the paper and fit it neatly into the tin so that it is entirely covered.

See to the Straps.

Mothers should be careful to see to the straps when sending the baby out in his perambulator or mail-cart in charge of the nurse. If the little one is too young to sit up properly, the joltings and joggings will probably cause him to slip down from the seat, and get into a most uncomfortable and cramped position, because the strap is too loose. When the mother goes out with her baby herself she is quick to notice anything which goes wrong, but the eye of the nurse is not so watchful, and under the coverlet the baby's limbs may be rolling about in a cruel fashion, which a little tightening of the strap would remedy.

Queer Tastes.

Occasionally in a French recipe the addition of a few drops of cologne-water is given as one of the ingredients. Among other flavors that seem odd to the American cook is that used in the for East -- camphor in infinitesimal quantities. In Afghanistan saffron is the most popular seasoning, and in all hot countries ginger is freely used. A few drops of Jamaica ginger added to a glass of ice water make it a much safer drink in hot weather. The spices, in which list ginger takes high rank, are antiseptic, and for that reason a joint of spiced meat served occasionally in the summer is a valuable variety in the diet.

Scientists assert that the fly can make 600 strokes a second with its wings, but it prefers to loaf around on the bald man's head and tickle him.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Braunschweig. Anhalt.

Braunschweig. Der Strike der Böttcher in Braunschweig und Helmstedt ist, nachdem er sieben Monate gedauert, beendet.

Dessau. Der wegen Unterschlagung amtlicher Gelder vom Amte suspendirte Stadtsekretär Kliemt hatte sich mit seiner Familie nach Gernrode geflüchtet und dort in einem Hotel den Versuch gemacht, sich und seine Angehörigen durch eine vergiftete Bowle zu tödten. Er wurde verhaftet und hierher zurückgebracht. Trotz aller Vorsichtsmaßregeln ist es demselben in der Nacht gelungen, sich im Gefängniß zu erhängen. Kliemt bezog 3800 Mark Gehalt.

Großherzogthum Hessen.

Darmstadt. Zu drei Jahren Gefängniß verurtheilt wurde der 19jährige Bäckergeselle Weber. Derselbe hatte seinen Kollegen Philipp Ludwig Pfurdt aus Frankfurt, mit dem er hier zusammen arbeitete, am 12. Juni auf dessen Verlangen erschossen und sich darauf selbst eine Kugel in den Kopf gejagt. Er kam mit dem Verlust des linken Auges davon.

Mainz. In der Nähe von hier faß neulich ein Streckenarbeiter mit einigen Kameraden beim Mittagbrod, als ein Wiesel über die Schienen lief. Er versuchte das Thierchen zu fangen, als ein Eilzug dahersauste, den Unvorsichtigen erfaßte und tödtete.

Mommenheim. Hier brannten Nachts vier gefüllte Scheunen mit Nebengebäuden nieder. Als Brandstifterin wurde eine geisteskranke Frau verhaftet, die in dem Wahn, man beabsichtige sie zu ermorden, sich selbst in einer Scheune verbrennen wollte und dadurch den Brand verursachte.

Worms. In Folge der anhaltenden Trockenheit ist in sehr vielen Orten unserer Provinz eine Wasserkalamität ausgebrochen, die für unsere Landwirthe sehr bedenklich geworden ist. Die Bewohner mancher Orte sind genöthigt, aus weiter Ferne sich Wasser zu verschaffen.

Bayern.

München. Auf eigenthümliche Art verunglückte in der Löwenbrauerei ein Sattlergehilfe. Derselbe ließ sich vom Malzhause in den darunter befindlichen Maschinenraum, in dem er arbeitete, ein scharf geschliffenes Sattlermesser an einem Strick herunterreichen. Das Messer rutschte aus dem Hefte, an dem der Strick befestigt war, fiel dem Sattler in die linke Halsseite und durchschnitt ihm die Schlagader, so daß der Tod sofort eintrat.—Die Zahl der Schankwirthschaften ist nach den amtlichen Mittheilungen für 1897 erfreulicher Weise in ganz Bayern und auch in München nur im Verhältnisse zu der Einwohnerzahl gewachsen. Der Prozentsatz der Gast- und Schankwirthschaften hat nämlich nur um ein Zehntel zugenommen. Ebenso ist es mit der Zahl der Betriebe zum Kleinhandel mit Branntwein und Spiritus, die überhaupt keinerlei Mehrung zeigen.

Augsburg. In der Vorstadt Pfersee wurde ein zehnjähriges Mädchen von der elektrischen Trambahn überfahren und derart schwer verletzt, daß es nach einigen Stunden qualvollen Leidens den Geist aufgab. Den Wagenführer trifft keine Schuld. In der kurzen Zeit von acht Tagen wurden nicht weniger als vier Personen überfahren, von denen drei starben und eine schwer verletzt wurde.

Eggstätt. Bei einem Streit, den der Gemeindediener Prögler mit mehreren Gästen im Widemann'schen Garten anfing, stach der 19jährige Sohn des Prögler einen Bauernsohn von hier in die Brust und rannte unmittelbar darauf einem gänzlich unbetheiligten, zusehenden Maschinisten aus Herrenchiemsee zweimal sein Messer derart in die Brust, daß am Aufkommen des Maschinisten gezweifelt wird. Der junge Maschinist merkte den Stich in die Lunge erst, als er sich zu Bett legte, wobei sich ein Strom Blut aus dem Munde ergoß.

Hof. Ein Großfeuer hat in Tauperlitz das Anwesen des Bauern Heller völlig eingeäschert. Die Ernte und der Viehbestand sind mitverbrannt. Als Entstehungsursache dürfte Selbstentzündung anzusehen sein.

Lichtenfels. Der ehemalige Eremit des Staffelberges, Ivo, bekannt durch Viktor von Scheffels Dichtung „Der Mönch von Banz," ist in der Anstalt der Barmherzigen Brüder in Gremsdorf bei Höchstadt a. A. dieser Tage gestorben.

Marktheidenfeld. Die Ortschaft Wüstenzell wurde kürzlich durch einen Wolkenbruch mit starkem Hagelschlag heimgesucht. Gebrauchsgegenstände und Hausthiere wurden fortgeschwemmt, die Felder verwüstet, die Kartoffeln aus dem Boden gespült. Die Futterpflanzungen wurden vom Hagel vernichtet.

Nürnberg. Eine neue katholische Kirche, die St. Josefskirche, wurde hier eingeweiht.

Starnberg. Ein Meisterstück im Schwimmen vollführte dieser Tage der Münchener Rechtsanwalt Hubert Merk. Er durchschwamm den Starnberger See an seiner breitesten Stelle zwischen Tutzing und Ammerland in zwei Stunden. Die Rückkehr erfolgte in einem Kielboote.

GOOD JOB WORK.

THE DAILY PRESS office can do it—anything from a milk ticket to an auction bill; even larger, too.

The job department of THE DAILY PRESS office is the largest and best equipped in Plainfield or vicinity. The workmen employed are experienced and capable and possess the knack of producing neat products. The prices are reasonable. When work is promised for a certain time the customer gets it without the aggravating delay common to many printeries.

If you need job printing at all you need the kind that reflects credit for neatness and style on you. You can get that kind

AT THE DAILY PRESS.

AMOS H. VAN HORN LIMITED
Note first name "AMOS" and No. "73" before entering store. Get off car at Plane St.

There's the light running "Domestic" Sewing Machine—it's never been equalled—never will be. Here for cash or credit.

A Fresh, Bright 3-Acre Crop of Fall Furniture and Carpets--3 buildings packed with the things you homemakers like—no dust and mortar and plaster to annoy you while you're looking through our many floors—we do our alterations at other than busy seasons. Prices? None lower anywhere. Terms? Cash, or credit to suit your means.

Autumn Carpets—On our Immense Carpet Floor—Variety and cheapness combined, but not at your expense. Walk from one carpet store to another, you'll not find more honest, more unusual patterns at so far below what are regular prices than ours. But look us up—"seeing's believing."

Expect special drives in our All-Wool Ingrains and Brussels this week.

Here's our big event for coming 3 days—3 days only:

Entire dining Room Outfit—$20.75— No matter how used you are to "skiping ads" read this: Antique oak finish Extension Table, good sized, plate mirror sideboard, and six cane seat chairs—all for $20.75. Even at our low prices, these things came to $30 singly.

Parlor Suits—Half a hundred sorts from $16.50 to $20— OTHERS get more, far more—We BUY more, can sell for LESS.

Some $20.00 Oak Bedroom Sets at $15.00— if you've an eye for the "common-sensical," as the youngster calls it—the solid, long-wear bedroom suit, that brings $20 to $25—this sale at $15 interests you.

Our Stove Store's Ready —each year we've been ahead in stoves—'98 sees us with Jersey's finest stove store a furniture house ever had! That far famed "Portland" leads in ranges—tho' we've some 30 other warranted ones. Fully 50 kinds of parlor stoves—cylinders from $2.95—self-feeding parlor stoves, $7.49 up. Put dollars and time in your purse by seeing this stock.

But be sure to see the "Portland Range."

YOU'RE READING THIS?

CERTAINLY!

Well, Mr. Merchant-who-thinks-of-advertising, this is only one of the many corners in THE DAILY PRESS—it isn't the best located one, either; we can give you better—and if this attracts your attention in our endeavor to tell you how good advertising will get you a hearing before the purchasing public, doesn't common sense teach you that if you were having people reading your trade story instead of you're reading our argument about it, that it would be better for your business. THE DAILY PRESS reaches the purchasing public that makes the profits for the merchant.

We can give you big or little space—but in advertising it is'nt always economy to be sparing in your appropriation.

CHAPTER V.

Old Mrs. Latimar was not at all graciously inclined toward Sir Antony She acknowledged the introduction in her grimest fashion, and immediately afterwards looked across into Mr. Savile's eyes.

"I thought you said you would be quite alone today, Richard," she observed shortly, as she loosened her old-fashioned shawl and drew the gloves from her wrinkled hands.

Richard Saville smiled faintly, as he saw a flush mount to Sir Antony's face.

"Oh, Tony is a privileged person—he does not count! My dear boy," he added quickly, as Sir Antony murmured something to the effect that he was prepared to take his departure immediately—"what nonsense! Of course you must stay! Are you not always welcome wherever I may be? Mrs. Latimar imagined for the moment that you were a stranger."

"Now to table! Mrs. Latimar, you will be comfortable in this chair. Miss Elizabeth, will you sit here? Tony—What—you are not going, my boy? Oh, this is very unsociable of you! I—"

"I have promised to lunch with the Ferrands," Sir Antony said quickly. "I should not have intruded here at all—especially had I known you were engaged—but that I wanted to leave a message with you, Dick." He had regained his composure, strengthened by the thought of Elizabeth's sympathy, and he now advanced to Mrs. Latimar and held out his hand. "I hope you will forgive me," he said, with the frank boyish air that was so charming to most people. "I would not for worlds have disturbed your business-chat with my brother, Mrs. Latimar; but you see I made a mistake."

Mrs. Latimar was full of caustic wit throughout the luncheon; but Elizabeth noted that she ate next to nothing, and to the girl's anxious eyes it seemed that the gray shade that had fallen over the thin sharply-cut face deepened with each hour that passed.

Whatever the business was that had brought the old lady to Richard Saville's office, the final transaction of it seemed to have given her much satisfaction. It was wonderful, however, how very little it took to please her where Richard Saville was concerned.

"Mrs. Latimar was full of caustic wit throughout the luncheon."

"You will come and see me soon—very soon, if you please, Richard," she said peremptorily, when at last she signified her intention of departing. "I do not mean to be put on one side for any of your smart folk; so be good enough to understand that once and for all!"

Richard Saville laughed pleasantly.

"Do you think I deserve that reproach, my dear old friend?" he asked her. "When have I ever neglected you?"

Mrs. Latimar had a ready reply.

"All last year," she said promptly, "you neglected me shamefully! What took you off to dance attendance on a harum-scarum boy I could never understand. Please don't repeat the experiment, Richard—at least, not until I am in my grave!"

Richard Saville won his way a little further into Elizabeth's good graces by the tender way in which he waited on the old lady and bore with her sharp merciless tongue.

When they at last got down-stairs, they found a neat brougham waiting for them at the door.

"The next time I lunch with Richard he shall send this carriage for us," Mrs. Latimar said, as she alighted and went very slowly towards her house—so slowly that it seemed as though the journey would never be accomplished.

She stood a moment when the doorway was finally reached, and looked back at the Square garden bathed in the glory of the afternoon sun, the tall tops of the old trees moving gracefully in the faint breeze that stirred them now and then.

Leaning heavily upon her granddaughter for support, Mrs. Latimar went into her house, and the door was closed behind them, shutting out the heat and the golden splendor of the sun that made the day so beautiful.

About twelve hours later there came an end to all earthly sunshine and cloud for Charlotte Latimar; the world, with its good and its bad moments, was gone from her forever. The end had come to her in the night—stealthily, surely. She was found lying dead in her bed. She had said she was ready to go, and she had gone, peacefully—to the eyes of the only creature who shed tears over her—willingly; and there was a softer sweeter look upon her white still face in the first hush of death than there had ever been upon it in the years of the life which Elizabeth had shared and suffered with her so patiently.

Elizabeth took no active share in the necessary arrangements that followed immediately upon her grandmother's death. Gregory had taken into his own hands the management of everything. His first thought was to give Elizabeth as little pain as was possible. He made no effort to see her during the few sombre days preceding the funeral. He had a sense of pleasure in the knowledge that he was able to spare her the details of those last services to the dead. He knew it would have hurt her to share them. He himself was conscious of a vague sort of pain when the keys were given to him, and he had to unlock boxes and drawers filled with his grandmother's private papers. It seemed almost sacrilege to him to touch such secret things. He handled the packets of faded old letters with reverent fingers.

There was not much disorder! everything seemed to have been already arranged by the old woman. Gregory found little tickets attached to most of the bundles of papers, on which were directions whither they should be sent. The bulk of the papers were addressed to himself, and contained, as he guessed from a cursory glance here and there, matters dealing with his grandfather's management of the big business which now was entirely under his own control. There were other documents ticketed, with a request that they should be sent to the lawyers; and one packet of letters was directed to be given to Elizabeth; these were in a woman's handwriting, and Gregory guessed at once that they had been written by the girl's mother. He deferred giving them to Elizabeth till later.

On the evening of that first strange sad day that followed after her grandmother's death, a letter had reached Elizabeth. It had been brought, so the maid told her, by Mr. Saville himself, and he had made many inquiries about her. Elizabeth had shut herself in her little room and had opened the letter. It contained an enclosure in her grandmother's handwriting, and, at sight of the cramped curious characters which would never be traced again, the girl had winced, and a mist had come over her eyes. She had held the letter a long time in her hand unopened. Then she had sat down quietly and with tender reverence, yet with a touch of fear that she could not repress, and had commenced to read it. In another two or three days there was to be the gathering of the family for the funeral and for the reading of the will; but Elizabeth knew, as she glanced at the first sentence of the letter, that, whatever the legally-executed will might contain for others, so far as she was concerned this piece of paper represented the real, possibly the secret, wishes of the dead woman—wishes that must be regarded by Elizabeth as sacred and absolutely final.

* * * *

The girl sat by herself on the day of the funeral; she had sent back a message in response to Gregory's affectionate and sympathetic little note, saying that she preferred to be absent both at the grave and at the reading of the will. She left such attendance to the crowd of relatives who flocked into the house for almost the first time in their lives, and who gossiped and ate and drank together in a way that would have infuriated the dead woman for whom they had ostensibly assembled to mourn. Elizabeth heard of the numerous arrivals—most of the people came uninvited and unexpectedly—through the servants, who ascended to her room now and then to bring her some food and to offer her their humble sympathy.

Elizabeth's lip curled a little as she heard of the crowd that had flocked together.

"How well she knew the world!" she said to herself, with bitterness.

Immediately after the reading of the will, Gregory Latimar sent up a message to the girl asking her if she could come down and speak to him for a few moments.

"I must be the first to tell her," he said to himself.

He was thrilling with excitement that was half nervousness, half surprise, and he was experiencing a good deal of vexation too, for his mind was filled with a deep pity—a tender thoughtfulness for Elizabeth. Perhaps the dominant sensation that came to Gregory Latimar after he had listened to the last will and testament of Charlotte Latimar was one of complete amazement. He was prepared himself for some little eccentricity in the old lady's will, but certainly not for what he had heard. Gregory did not hesitate to denounce his grandmother's last decrees as both unjust and cruel.

Mrs. Latimar's personal property was stated to be, as every one had assumed it must be, very considerable. Apart from her share in the big commercial business of which Gregory was the head, her private investments and speculations had been wonderfully successful, and her years of careful hoarding and general thriftiness had also added not a little to the bulk of her wealth. To the yearly sum of fifty pounds bequeathed to Elizabeth had been added a box of old-fashioned worthless jewelry, together with a miniature of the old woman taken when she was a girl. The rest of the estate, including furniture, plate, books, and some valuable pictures, was willed unreservedly to Richard Saville, who was, moreover, appointed Elizabeth's guardian till she was of age.

The amazement followed by anger, that took possession of Gregory Latimar as he listened to the deceased woman's will was shared to a far greater and more bitter extent by the rest of the company present.

Gregory alone of all those present was sincere in his feeling of deep chagrin and sympathy for Elizabeth; his honest heart rebelled instantly against his grandmother's strange neglect to provide the girl with a proper home and a proper allowance for the future, whilst she could be so amazingly generous to a stranger. He had been almost unable to subdue his anger as he sat and listened to the briefly-worded document so characteristic in every sense of the dead woman. A slight feeling of suspicion, too, had mingled for an instant with that anger; but, as he turned to Richard Saville and read the surprise that was almost consternation written upon his face, the suspicion departed as quickly as it had come. He at least did not require Mr. Saville to express in words the feeling of astonishment and of regret that simply overwhelmed him on learning the wishes of the dead woman who had called him "friend."

"I am going to see her now," Gregory answered, touched by the note of annoyance, surprise, and regret that sounded so clearly in Richard Saville's voice. "I wish to tell her about the business myself; it will come better from me, I think. I am glad now that the child was not present during the reading of the will."

Mr. Saville warmly agreed with his companion.

"Although," he added quickly, "my firm impression is that you will find Miss Druro quite prepared for the information you have to give her. I say so, Latimar, because, immediately the news of my poor friend's death was conveyed to me, I lost no time in obeying a command she had given me on the very last occasion I saw her—the day before her death, in fact—when she and Miss Druro lunched with me at the Temple. The command was a very simple one; it was to forward to your cousin a letter which her grandmother had left in my charge, and which was to be opened and read as soon as she should have passed away. As I followed her instructions without delay, I fancy I am right in imagining that Miss Druro received her grandmother's last wishes through that letter. I hope so, for"—with another quick sigh—"I know it would otherwise cost you much to have to speak of the will to Miss Druro."

AT MME. PATTI'S CASTLE.

Afraid of Burglars, She Has Every Kind of Alarm that Exists.

Visiting Mme. Patti's superb castle in Wales, a guest not long since had a very curious experience. He chanced to open his window in the middle of the night, and, to his surprise, bells began to ring in every quarter of the grounds. Very much scared, but realizing that he had, after all, only set a burglar alarm going, the guest descended to reassure the household, when he instantly found himself in danger from a dozen roving dogs, who had obtained their freedom and were growling and snapping in the ugliest manner. At breakfast next morning he learned all about this curious fad of Mme. Patti, and wondered at it.

The singer has a great dread of burglars. Some time ago a gang of these gentlemen from London attempted to gain admittance, but were defeated in their object, and since that date Mme. Patti has set up every kind of burglar alarm that exists. The queer part about one of these is, however, well worth noticing. Her largest dog, an enormous brute, who might be relied on to cope with a little army of thieves, is kept rigorously chained to a patent kennel. But the chain is so arranged that should any one attempt to open a window or a door in the castle, the dog is released and free to rove at his pleasure, it being presumed that he would at once make for the burglars and do his duty.

The idea is ingenious, and, as the traveller discovered, not a little dangerous.—New York Herald.

Lightning on the Washington Monument.

One of the best evidences of the value of lightning rods up to date has been afforded by the Washington Monument. It is capped by a small four-sided pyramid of aluminum, which metal, so cheap to-day, was very costly at the time of the building of the greatest obelisk that the world has ever known. This aluminum tip is connected with the ground by four copper rods which go down deep into the earth. On April 15, 1895, five immense bolts of electricity were seen to flash between the monument and a thunder cloud overhanging in the course of twenty minutes. In other words, the monument was struck fiercely five times, but it suffered no damage whatever. On June 15 of the same year a more tremendous assault was made upon the monument from the heavens, and the result was a fracture of one of the topmost stones. The crack still remains to show what nature can do in the way of an electrical shock, but the slightness of the damage is evidence of man's power to protect himself from such attacks. The obelisk is ideally located for attracting electrical assaults from the skies, and yet, while many times hit, it has suffered only once, and that time to a trifling extent.—Boston Transcript.

Burns Won the Dinner.

There is a story told of Robert Burns in his youth. Burns was living in the town of Ayr, and though still young had attained more than a local reputation as a poet. One day he was passing through the main street of the town, and saw two strangers sitting at one of the inn windows. With idle curiosity he stopped to look at them. Seeing him, and thinking that the rustic might afford them some amusement while waiting, the strangers called him in and asked him to dine with them. Burns readily accepted the invitation, and proved a merry, entertaining guest.

When dinner was nearly finished, the strangers suggested that each should try his hand at versemaking, and that the one who failed to write a rhyme should pay for the dinner. They felt secure in the challenge, believing that their rustic guest would pay for the meal. The rhymes were written, and Burns read the following: "I, Johnny Peep, saw two sheep; the sheep saw me; half a crown apiece will pay for their fleece, and I, Johnny Peep, go free." The strangers' astonishment was great, and they both exclaimed: "Who are you? You must be Robbie Burns."

CUBAN LAND CRABS AS FOOD.

Disgusting as They Look, Soldiers Miss It if They Reject Them.

"Loathsome, leprous and horrible"—so the correspondents have described the land crabs seen by the American troops in Cuba.

This makes West Indians smile, and probably the soldiers are now laughing at the fear these monsters at first inspired.

The land crab of the Antilles yields about half a pound of dainty meat. If one dislikes the appearance of the animal, it is well to bear in mind that the sea crab and the lobster are mere buzzards of the shallows—salt water scavengers. The land crab, however, is fattened by the natives on a diet of grass, cane-tops and corn meal, mixed with molasses. Kept in captivity for a week, he is plump, lively and ready for the cook.

The land crab is hunted at night by the light of torches. It is then that the crustaceans come from their holes to graze on the young cane tops, for they are vegetable feeders of the most cleanly sort.

In the torch's gleam a white claw is seen to thrust itself warily from a hole till then invisible. The hunter keeps perfectly still until he can pin the crab's four hind legs to the ground with a short stick. Then he seizes the crab by the body behind its runners, where the strong claws cannot reach to bite. The next operation is to tie the claws with a strip of fiber torn from the nearest banana bush.

Sometimes a crab, too lightly held, escapes to his hole. The hunter carries a calabash, and pours water into the hole. The crab hates water, and will run out, apparently strangling, and is an easy capture in his confusion.

Every plantation in the West Indies—every hut, for that matter—has a pen to keep the captured crabs in. This is a rather deep well, lined with mortar, to keep the crabs from burrowing out.

In okra soup, called "gumbo" by the natives, the land crab is particularly delicate and appetizing. First, tanya leaves are chopped fine and boiled until tender. Then the okra is added in thin slices, with onion, tomato and a bit of salt pork. Then the crabs are added—one for each person is not too much.—New York Journal.

GOVERNOR WOLCOTT NAMED.

Massachusetts Republicans Hold a Harmonious Convention.

Boston, Oct. 7.—Entire harmony marked yesterday's convention here of Massachusetts Republicans. George Roger Wolcott and the state ticket previously agreed upon were nominated unanimously.

The platform as adopted praises the results of the war, declares that the Dingley bill has met the necessity for a protective tariff, increasing exports and diminishing imports, while wages, on the whole, have risen, and revenue in time of peace has been fully provided.

Massachusetts, the platform asserts, joins in the tribute to President McKinley for the conduct of the war. It says:

"We have heard with deep concern assertions that the hardships of our soldiers have been aggravated by official incompetency and neglect. We indorse the action of the president in providing for a thorough and searching investigation, that the American people may have full and early information of all the facts."

The platform urges a larger navy and army. It reaffirms the sound money pledge of the St. Louis platform. It desires that there be secured "to the Philippine islands and to Cuba in amplest measure the blessing of liberty and self government."

The Nicaragua canal is also urged as a necessary improvement. Recognizing the handicap in competition of the strict factory and sanitary laws of Massachusetts, as against the cheap labor of the South, the platform declares that the advantages of the restrictions for outweigh the drawbacks, as maintaining the high standard of state citizenship. Further immigration restrictions are asked.

Finally the Republican state administration is commended.

After the platform had been unanimously adopted, Congressman Lawrence of North Adams presented the name of Governor Roger Wolcott for renomination.

The nomination was accepted by acclamation.

Congressman McCall of Winchester then named Lieutenant Governor W. Murray Crane of Dalton, for renomination. Hewasa cisoa dN—,1w,w 90$66 tion. He was also accepted by acclamation.

The balance of the state ticket was named as follows:

William M. Olin of Boston for secretary of state; E. P. Shaw of Newburyport for state treasurer, and receiver general; John W. Kimball of Fitchburg for auditor, and the Hon. Hosea M. Knowlton of New Bedford for attorney general, all of whom were nominated by acclamation.

GOLF.

Next Saturday the team from the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club will go to Brooklyn and play a match game with the Dyker Meadow Golf Club team.

The Hillside course is now in fine condition for play and the most active members of the club are becoming thoroughly acquainted with it. Almost every day members can be seen on the links, and the bracing fall weather is having a tendency to bring out more players.

Despite the inclement weather of last Saturday, the course of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club was occupied with a goodly number of players who participated in the play for the Reinhart cup. Some excellent scores were made in this contest. J. H. P. Wharton won by a net score of 81. The other players and their net scores are as follows: H. W. Lowe, 82; A. R. Fisk, 85; C. F. Walz, 87; Olaf Saugstad, 92; Reeve Stockton, 93; Lester Glenny, 95. There was also play for the Mrs. Charles J. Fisk cup and the points made were as follows: J. H. P. Wharton, 3; A. R. Fisk, 2; C. F. Walz, 1. There has been considerable interest manifested throughout May, June, September and the present month in the contest for the Mrs. Fisk cup, and as the contest will be concluded this month the interest grows very much. Those who have made five points or over during the season are as follows: A. R. Fisk, 6; C. W. Fisk, 5; W. T. Kaufman, 5; C. F. Walz, 9; J. H. P. Wharton, 8. The player scoring the most points during this month wins the cup, and as will be seen the scores are close. Next Saturday the club's team will go to Brooklyn and play a match game with the Dyker Meadow Club team.

CYCLING COMMENT.

The annual fall race of Middlesex county took place on the macadam road, between Metuchen and Highland Park, last Wednesday afternoon. There were two races, one of ten miles and the other of twenty-five miles. Joseph Hidebrandt, with 3 minutes handicap, won the first in 29 minutes. Roy F. Letson was second and Rudolph Hugle third. Fred Letson won the time prize, starting from scratch.

NO EVADING OF LAW.

IF PROPERTY IS IN WIFE'S NAME IT WILL NOT BE ACCEPTED AS EXEMPT.

Important Attitude of Mayor Wilson and Borough Council in Reference to Relieving Firemen and Soldiers of Tax Bills.

Mayor Wilson and the members of the Borough Council have decided that regarding the collection of taxes on property in the borough for 1898, that no soldier or fireman shall receive $500 tax exemption where the property in question is in the name of the soldier or fireman's wife. There are a number of just such cases in the borough and for sometime past this sort of thing has existed.

One case was reported to the Mayor recently where a property owner residing in the borough was receiving $500 exemption on property, while in Plainfield he owned property in his wife's name and there was also $500 exemption on that property. His Honor is now taking steps to see that there is a proper adjustment of not only this case, but all similar ones finishing in 27 minutes and 3 seconds. The twenty-five-mile race was won by James Gregory, of Newark, with 2 minutes handicap. He finished in 1 hour, 9 minutes and 13 seconds. Edward Thomas, of New Brunswick, with 4 minutes handicap, was second, and C. Hauser, of Newark, 2 minutes handicap, was third. J. Hanson, of Perth Amboy, won the time prize and broke the twenty five mile record for the road. His time was 1 hour, 9 minutes and 3½ seconds.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

Saturday night F. O. Ball, of the Park Club, bowled three games on the alleys there and in each one made a score of 200 or over. The first one was 218, the second 210 and the third 200. In the first two games there wasn't a break, but in the last one there was one split.

Residental Changes.

Within the past few days Ira L. LaRue, the well-known real estate agent, has made a number of deals. He has rented A. J. Brunson's house on Crescent avenue to Charles W. Eoff, of West Hoboken. Possession will be taken next week. The house has been entirely remodeled. J. A. Layton, of East Second street, has rented David Arthur's new house on West Fifth street, and Miss Marriott's house on East Second street to T. L. Maloney, of Richmond street. The Brady farm situated on the New Market lake has been leased to J. F. Holden, of New York. J. Warren Brown, of Westfield, has leased the J. P. Homan house at 118 West Fifth street. All of the above deals have been made through Ira L. LaRue.

May Revolutionize Rubber Trade.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, October 10.—David McCullum is organizing a company here for the purpose of manufacturing a rubber substitute, asserted to be superior to any heretofore made. It costs $1.09. McCullum says he is backed by the Rubber Trust and has letters showing that the Havemeyers and John D. Rockefeller are in his scheme. He says, too, that he has interested Charles R. Flint, of the United States Rubber Company, in the matter.

Want a Canadian Duty Retained.

Quebec, Oct. 10.—Senator Fairbanks and Senator Faulkner have left for their homes and no further work will be done by the international commission in Quebec.

Saturday a delegation of Canadian leather manufacturers called upon the Canadian commissioners and asked them not to change the present duty upon American leather goods. They stated that the American manufacturers, on account of their superior machinery, and better facilities, could make leather goods much cheaper than the Canadian manufacturers.

FAMOUS TRINIDAD PITCH LAKE.

Its Immense Deposit of Bitumen Is Practically Inexhaustible.

The famous pitch lake or great bitumen deposit at Trinidad is situated at Point Librea, on an elevation at about a mile from the sea. It covers an area of nearly 100 acres, and its appearance is that of a dull, still, dark waste. It is irregularly circular, and its surface perceptibly convex, being more elevated in the centre and thence insensibly declining on all sides. In the centre the pitch is quite soft—in fact, semi-liquid—but it becomes more and more hardened as its circumference widens out. Except the soft central parts the surface is intersected in all directions by numerous fissures or chasms, varying in breadth from two feet to sixteen feet, and from half a foot to seven feet in depth, widening also at the bottom, thus producing, as it were, inverted angular hollows, while the sides are regularly rounded. These crevices are at all times filled with fresh water. Here and there, where the bitumen is mixed with earthy matter, grow lichens, mosses, grasses, etc. The centre of the lake—the pitchpot or chaudiere, as it is called—is at all times so soft that it would be impossible to venture on it without incurring the danger of being engulfed.

The lake is government property, and parts of it are leased out to private individuals, who have to pay royalties according to the amount of pitch removed, which amount is checked by the government. The lake is practically inexhaustible. No matter what quantity is taken out it is replaced by fresh pitch, which always wells up to fill the hole. The surface of the outer edges of this most wonderful of lakes is quite hard enough to walk upon; but a curious result ensues if you stand still for any length of time on one spot. For some yards around you the pitch bodily sinks until it forms a sort of basin. It is quite different to sinking in sand, where your feet gradually disappear without making any apparent difference in the level of the ground.—Wide World Magazine.

HE LIVES WITH HIS SNAKES.

A Catskill Mountaineer Who Prefers Reptiles to Wife and Child.

Up in the Catskills lives one of those men who have an affinity for snakes. He prefers the companionship of any kind of reptile to that of the most genial man or fascinating woman. Wherever he goes he carries with him several of these pets, and on several occasions has sent women into hysterics and made men nervous and angry by taking from his pocket a shining blacksnake or a poisonous copperhead and fondling it tenderly.

In a moment of abstraction from his devotion to snakes he asked a woman to marry him, and for some incomprehensible reason she consented. It was not long, however, until she began to make objection to the numerous reptiles which the snake lover insisted on bringing into the house.

Trouble began and continued. The sympathy of the neighbors was with the wife. They advised her to leave a man who could be little better than a snake himself to subject her to such indignities.

She bore it until there was a baby in the family. Then the fond father took to wheeling the baby out in its perambulator and bringing it back surrounded by snakes. This was too much for the mother, and she left the snake collector for good and all.

No one wanted to rent him a house, so he bought a little place of his own and lives alone with his snakes. The villagers give the house a wide berth, and the summer visitors hasten the other way when they see him coming down the street with a snake coiled about his neck.—New York Press.

All Must Pay Board.

When members of the Queen's family or any wandering German relative of high degree visit London and occupy apartments in Buckingham palace, "by invitation," they pay their board just like common folks in a first class hotel. This prevents the sovereign lady from having too much company and makes things very pleasant for the palace servants. The independence it gives of some of the royal guests is not wholly appreciated by them, but, as the Queen early in her reign determined on this economical course, her subjects cannot justly complain of her extravagance. It is a very expensive piece of pleasure being a guest of royalty, and even the Queen's own children must pay their way out of their allowances when not directly under mamma's roof.—Boston Herald.

SALOON ELEMENT MAY OPPOSE HIM

Elizabeth Politicians Fear Ackerman Will Weaken Ticket.

JUDGE CROSS MORE LIBERAL

MR. ACKERMAN VOTED AGAINST LICENSES WHEN IN COUNCIL.

This Action, the Friends of Judge Cross Claim, Will Make Him Unpopular In Certain Sections of Elizabeth—Plainfielders Are Persistent, However, and Want Him on Ticket.

There is yet two weeks before the Republican convention and there is no telling just what may arise in that time. At present, however, an active campaign is going forward to secure the Republican nomination for State Senator for Ernest R Ackerman, of this city. Unless some dark horse makes a sudden appearance, the race for the G. O. P. nomination seems to lie between that worthy Plainfielder and Judge Cross, of Elizabeth.

Down at the county seat it is given out that Judge Cross is meeting with but little opposition Nevertheless, the Elizabeth leaders realize that Mr. Ackerman has a strong backing. Elizabeth has, or will have, about her share and Plainfield is entitled to her share in the division of the spoils.

Just at present considerable pressure is being brought to bear on the friends of Mr. Ackerman to withdraw him and allow Judge Cross to run. Of course it is the friends of the Judge who are doing it but they have what they consider a strong argument. It looks as if the coming election was going to be decidedly close and the politicians are very anxious to do everything to win votes. Mr. Ackerman has the reputation of being a temperance man and being directly opposed to liquor licenses in this city at least. This, some of the Elizabeth politicians claim, will injure his candidacy in that section.

It is well-known that in certain parts of the county seat, the brewers and liquor dealers play a prominent part. Judge Cross has made no determined stand on the subject and these politicians argue that it would be better to put up the Judge rather than antagonize the elements already mentioned by putting up a man who was outspoken against them. It has been hinted that for this same reason, Mr. Ackerman would not make such a good run in his own city as some other man.

Despite these arguments, however, the friends of Mr. Ackerman are as determined as ever to put him on the Republican county ticket if it lays in their power. They think that Plainfield is entitled to the nomination and that she will receive the support of the rest of the county outside of Elizabeth and perhaps a part of her delegation. Mayor Fisk was considered as a candidate early in the race, but he has positively stated that he does not want to go to the Senate any further, that he is not going. There seems to be no other Plainfield candidate in the field and Mr. Ackerman has the strongest backing among the local G. O. P. workers that could be wished.

WESTFIELD AVENUE LANDS.

Commissioners to Be Appointed By the Court.

Application will be made tomorrow for the appointment of three commissioners to condemn land in Union township along Westfield avenue, to be used for the widening of the avenue to accommodate the building of the trolley line.

County Attorney Codington will make the application to Judge VanSyckel in the Circuit Court, under the resolution adopted by the Board of Freeholders last Thursday.

To Plan for "Echo" Meeting.

STILL STAND BY TROLLEY COMPANY.

Councilman Who Wouldn't Ask For Better Terms.

A LOCAL POINT OF VIEW.

ACTUAL WORTH OF FRANCHISE SEEMS TO BE LOST SIGHT OF.

Councilman Buckle Believes That the Business Interests of the City Demands That the Franchise be Granted—Councilman Barrows Fears Trolley Might Go By Way of the Borough.

Press reporters yesterday interviewed a number of the members of the Common Council in reference to the securing of more advantageous terms from the Plainfield Street Railway Company in return for the franchise it is proposed to grant them, and below will be found their opinions.

The present concessions granted by the Plainfield Street Railway Company are satisfactory to Councilman J. P. Homan of the Third Ward. When interviewed by a Press reported yesterday afternoon, he stated that he thought that Mr. VanHerwerden wanted too much from the trolley company. The city was getting all that it could reasonably expect, he thought. The present reading of the franchise gave the city some valuable concessions that made up according to his way of thinking for all that was granted the company. He did not believe that it was worth to the company any quarter of a million dollars to get through. He believed that Plainfield was getting far more out of the company than any other city had done.

Councilman J. F. Buckle, of the First Ward, was very free to say that he did not agree with Mr. VanHerwerden in his scheme to get the trolley company to asphalt the business streets. According to his idea, the city was getting its full value for the franchise it was giving to the Plainfield Street Railway. The route of the new extension, he continued, was through a section of the city practically unimproved. The thoroughfare selected was one that was almost unknown except to those who lived on it. The trolley corporation was to macadamize it from curb to curb from Richmond street to its end, converting it from a mud hole to a good thoroughfare. Then the property in that section would be vastly benefited by a railroad running there while the valuations on Front street would also be raised. It would build up a part of the city heretofore almost untouched. The city needed a trolley line through there, Mr. Buckle said, and ought to have it. The present terms, he believed, were all that anyone could reasonably expect.

The concessions now agreed to by the Plainfield Street Railway Company would cost that corporation nearly $8,000, he continued. If the route was through a densely-populated section then he, too, would be in favor of asking more for the franchise. The Plainfield Company had not paid any dividends on its stock as yet, and he could not see how they expected to make anything for years to come. The distant future, however, had very bright prospects when the through line might be completed. Under the circumstances, Mr. Buckle did not believe that the company would grant any more, and had been told as much by one greatly interested in it. A pretty picture it would make, he said, if the city should demand greater concessions than the company would grant and then have to reduce them and virtually beg the company to take the franchise for even less than is now offered.

Mr. Buckle also pointed out the fact that all the Councilmen, Mr. VanHerwerden included, had practically voted for the franchise when the discovery of a trifling legal irregularity had made it necessary to vote over again for the final passage of the ordinance.

Councilman Moffett has not changed his views on the subject since the meeting of the Council last week Friday. When seen by a Press representative yesterday, and was asked what his views were regarding increased demands from the Plainfield Street Railway Company he said that he did not think it right to ask too much. He seemed to realize that the extension is an important matter and means a great deal to the company, but he could see no reason why the Council should be so exacting. He thinks that the city will receive a great deal from the company under the present agreement, in fact more than other places have received. After he read yesterday's Press editorial, he remarked that he saw no reason why CARRIED OUT GRIM THREAT OF SUICIDE.

While Intoxicated Michael Ettinger Shot Himsel.

WOUND PROBABLY MORTAL.

DEED COMMITTED ON FRONT PORCH OF MICHAEL COYNE'S HOUSE.

Ettinger Had Been Drinking Heavily and Was Despondent—Had Also Threatened to Kill Michael Kane, With Whom he Had Had Trouble—Now in Muhlenberg Hospital—Second Attempt at Suicide.

While intoxicated last night Michael Ettinger, a laborer, of 413 Cottage place, shot himself with the intention of committing suicide. The ball entered the head through the right ear, and whether Ettinger will be successful or not in his attempt remains to be seen. The hospital authorities think the wound will prove fatal.

Ettinger is a widower, and about 55 years old. No good reason can be assigned for the deed, except that Ettenger was under the influence of liquor, and not in his right mind. He has had considerable trouble recently over a couple of law suits, and this doubtless preyed upon his mind and made him despondent.

All day Sunday, it is said, Ettinger was at one of the hotels in Scotch Plains intoxicated. Several times he referred to the uselessness of living and remarked that he was going to shoot himself. Those who heard him supposed it was only the mumblings of a disordered brain and gave Ettinger no more attention. As it was afterwards shown the man did mean what he said, but evidently couldn't get up courage enough to do the act that day.

He was down town yesterday morning and talked again about committing suicide. John Goff, in whose saloon he was, told him to go home and go to bed. Ettinger carried a pistol with him all day Sunday and had it in his pocket yesterday.

Last night about 11:30 o'clock, after Michael J. Coyne, of East Third street, had gone to bed, he was awakened by his wife, who said she had heard a pistol shot, and said she thought that Ettinger had followed up his threat, and shot himself.

Coyne did not want to go down stairs, so opening the window he shouted for the police. Patrolman Saffron had heard the shot from his beat on Front street and was on his way to the house when he heard Coyne call. Roundsman Frederickson came up too, and when they met they found Ettinger lying on the front piazza of Coyne's house with a thirty-two calibre revolver in his right hand and the blood streaming from a wound in the right ear.

Coyne hurried over to the freight-house and telephoned for Sergeant Kiely and the ambulance, and the man was then removed to the hospital.

No one knows how long Ettinger had been on the piazza, or why he chose Coyne's house as the place to do the deed. When the officers found him he was conscious. He lay on his back and had placed the muzzle of the revolver close to his right ear before pulling the trigger. It was his intention to make a sure job of it, for when the police found him he was trying to get his arm up into position to shoot again, and when the revolver was taken away from him he cried out in anger that he wanted to shoot again.

Dr. Endicott attended to the man's injuries at the hospital. The ball is embedded somewhere inside the skull, where it is hard to get at.

Ettenger and Coyne were sued as executors of Mrs. Ettinger's estate by Charles Kane, of Philadelphia, last summer, for $100 which Kane claimed he loaned to Mrs. Ettinger. Judgment was rendered against the defendants. Coyne is Ettinger's brother-in-law. Another cause of worry to Ettinger was Alexander Kane, who lives in the house with him. Kane says that Sunday he threatened to shoot him. Officer Mattox, who is on that beat, kept a close watch on the man all through the night.

About four years ago Ettinger took some rough on rats, but didn't get enough to cause death.

Early this afternoon the condition of the wounded man was reported to be worse, and since 11 o'clock this morning he has been unconscious. It is not believed that an operation will be performed, as it is barely possible that the bullet could be reached.

Trolley Cars to Bound Brook.

It is confidently expected that by the last of this week trolley cars will be running from this city to Bound Brook. The work on the temporary trestle over Union avenue, Bound Brook, is rapidly nearing completion.

DEMOCRATIC PRIMARIES

DELEGATES CHOSEN TO ATTEND CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.

A Good Attendance in the Fourth Ward, but in the Third There was Not Enough to Transact the Business.

The Democratic primaries for the election of delegates to the Congressional convention of the Eighth district, to be held in Elizabeth tomorrow, were held last night in all the wards but the Third, where there were not enough present to do any business. The results in the other wards were as follows:

FIRST WARD.

A goodly number of Democratic voters of the above ward met at the place designated in the call to elect delegates to the Congressional convention. The meeting was called to order promptly at 8 o'clock by John Rafferty, who was chosen as chairman. M. J. DeCourcy was the secretary. The delegates elected to the convention were John Rafferty and George R. Wyckoff, and after an informal talk on the probable choice of the convention for the honor the meeting adjourned.

SECOND WARD.

The promptness and expedition with which the affairs were conducted ducted at the Second ward primary was positively startling. At 8 o'clock to the second the meeting was called to order by James E. Martine, who was made chairman. William K. McClure was appointed judge of election. Alfred Cox, Sylvester Sharkey and George Bedford were elected delegates to the Congressional Convention at Elizabeth tomorrow. They were empowered to fill all vacancies. They went uninstructed.

FOURTH WARD.

The Fourth ward Democrats met at T. A. B. Hall last evening to elect their delegates to the Congressional Convention at Elizabeth tomorrow. The meeting was called to order by Councilman Elmore Moffett, secretary of the last primary. He was made chairman. The secretary was T. A. McCarthy. James Kane and Ira G. Hulburt were elected inspectors. The delegates were unanimously chosen as follows: First district, Councilman E. D. Moffett; second district, James Kane; third district, Ira G. Hulburt. They were empowered to fill all vacancies in their number and to vote as they wished.

DIVORCE IS DENIED HER.

A FAVORABLE DECISION FOR DR. GEORGE W. ENDICOTT.

Vice-Chancellor Stevens Declares That There is No Legal Proof of Infidelity Charged Against Mrs. Endicott's Husband

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, October 11.—Vice Chancellor Stevens yesterday announced his decision in the suit for divorce instituted by Mrs. Lillie C. Endicott against her husband, Dr. George W. Endicott, of Plainfield. The decision denies Mrs. Endicott's petition. In brief the Vice-Chancellor declares that there if no legal proof of the infidelity charged against Dr. Endicott.

Two of the five correspondents are referred to as "Mrs. W." and "Agnes." The Vice-Chancellor is of the opinion that "Mrs. W." was not guilty and the charge by Mrs. Endicott should never had been made.

In regard to "Agnes" the Vice-Chancellor says that she manifestly perjured herself on the witness stand in her charge against the doctor.

The complaint in connection with Miss Wells, in his opinion, is entirely unsustained.

The Vice Chancellor makes this comment:—

"It is remarkable that Mrs. Endicott, who appeared to be ever on the watch for indications of her husband's infidelity, saw no evidence of it at the time she now thinks he must have been faithful."

The conduct of Francis Ford, in going to the doctor's rooms and upbraiding him for his intimacy with Miss Wells, and her taking laudanum, the Vice Chancellor thinks is enough to arouse suspicion, "but suspicion," he observes, "is not proof, and the evidence is not strong enough to support the complainant's charge."

Alleges Extreme Cruelty.

Harry C. Runyon, as a Special Master, took testimony yesterday in the divorce case of Caroline Clipper against her husband, Herman. The woman is Justice William Newcorn's client, and sues for a divorce on the grounds of extreme cruelty. The plaintiff has established her residence in North Dakota, and has applied for her divorce there, as the law in New Jersey does not grant an absolute divorce on those grounds. Both parties formerly lived in New York.

Mrs. Susan Runyon, of New York, is visiting in town.

MURDERER ROESEL TRIED TO BREAK JAIL.

Warden Dodd Discovers Cell Bars Had Been Cut in Two.

HELPED BY A SWINDLER.

WILSON SECURED NECESSARY TOOLS FROM A CONFEDERATE.

Then Took the Slayer of Farmer Pitts Into The Scheme—Careful Plans Laid For Securing Outside Help—The Men Placed in Seperate Cells and Are Being Closely Watched.

(Special to the Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Oct. 11.—A second attempt at a wholesale jail delivery from the Union County Jail, within the last six months, has ended in failure through the watchfulness of the authorities. Warden Dodd yesterday made public the plot which was to have been carried into effect last Friday night. The ringleaders were Louis Roesel, the condemned murderer of Pitts, who is under sentence to be hanged October 28, and Thomas Wilson, who defrauded many Elizabeth business men by means of forged checks.

Wilson, through the aid of a discharged prisoner, communicated with a confederate, telling him to send saws, and explaining that by gaining an entrance to the Presbyterian cemetery, adjoining the jail, a window on the side of the jail could be reached. Wilson directed that saws be pushed through the grating in the window, when they would drop either into the cell of Roesel or his own. Wilson's instructions were carried out, and had not Warden Dodd noticed Friday morning that Wilson was nervous the plan would undoubtedly have been successful. Suspecting that something was wrong, the Warden had Roesel and Wilson brought into his office, where both were searched. On Wilson were found two fine saws, and Roesel had four and a file.

These was taken away, and in addition a note in Wilson's pockets asking the confederate to send a dollar so that they might take a car and escape after getting out.

Both men were placed in new cells, and their old ones were inspected. Two bars in each cell had been sawed top and bottom and they could have been easily pushed out. The holes in the bars were filled with soap.

Wilson when confronted with the evidence admitted the plan to break jail. He said it was the intention of Roesel and himself to saw the bars in the window, and that they intended to reach the window, which was twelve feet from the floor, by climbing on the table.

He said that Roesel and himself had talked the plan over, and had come to the conclusion that saws with handles would have to be sent. They were wating for these handles when their plot was discovered.

Roesel and George Manschanda, who was arrested with him for complicity in the murder of Mr. Pitts, a farmer, were the ringleaders in the first plot to break jail. Their plans were revealed to the warden by a prisoner. They had sawed through the bars of their cells, and their intention was to surprise the warden in his office, take his pistols, kill him if necessary, then secure the keys to the street from the safe and walk bodily out.

Went to War Instead of Gold Hunting.

After being absent from Plainfield for over a year, seeing the great west, experiencing the cold of Montana and the heat of Louisiana, W. G. Hicking and Alfred Montjoy, two young men who started for the Klondyke eighteen months ago have returned. They didn't get as far as the Klondyke, but headed south and brought up in Louisiana where they joined the 1st Louisiana Regiment of Volunteers. They were kept in the United States for garrison duty, and a few days ago were discharged. They came north and are looking around a little before settling down to hard work.

A Surprise Party.

A surprise party was given to Miss Nettie Bauersachs, of Grandview avenue, Friday evening, in honor of her fifteenth birthday. The evening was pleasantly spent with games and music. An out-of-town cousin was visiting her. The others present were the Misses Lucetta Clark, Florence McDonald, Minnie Nitchwitz, Mabel Stevens, Katie Bodine, Belle Williams, Ada VanHorn, Estella Brooks, Ida Gieder, and Fred Martin, Joseph Farlee, Arthur Jeffrey, Ray Stevens, Walter Hamilton, Harry Woodland, Will McCullough, Charles Windham, Robert Hand and Albert Utzinger.

HE CAME TO WOO; HE WENT TO JAIL.

She Tried to Save Him But She Failed.

FOUGHT IN THE STREETS.

HER LANDLORD CAME AND TRIED TO END THEIR LITTLE GAME.

Her Eye Was Black, Her Dress Was Torn—The Police Came and They Were Borne to the Lockup to Spend the Night—It Proved Quite an Expensive Fight For the Sentence Was Not Very Light.

He was a well dressed colored man and he came up before City Judge DeMeza this morning looking spick and span despite the fact that he had spent the night amid the creeping and the crawling things in a cell. He only had one arm, the other was broken in a fall from a horse on a southern race track and so had to be amputated. He was once a jockey but lately has been earning his living by selling newspapers and blacking shoes in the great metropolis.

She was not a very prepossessing character. Her right eye was black, her dress was torn and there was a disordered air to her that did not suit the fastidious eye of the Court.

The couple lined up before the rail and the Judge began to interrogate them. She was Miss Ella Williams, from Newark. Had been in the reformatory once, she remembered. He was Walter Fields, late of Baltimore, and more recently of New York. They had been lovers once.

Last night Fields came out to see his dusky queen who was boarding at Tom Smith's house on East Fourth street. Mrs. Smith wouldn't take Fields in and then the lovers betook themselves to the sidewalk. There they came to high words and were in the midst of a fiery encounter when Tom Smith appeared. He told the Judge that Fields' solitary fist was going like a trip-hammer. He requested Fields to let up for a little while and Fields promised to settle him as soon as he finished with the girl. Then Mrs. Smith yelled "police" and "fire" and ran for an officer.

Patrolman Mattox came in a hack and Sergeant Kiely on a wheel. Fields and his dusky queen were arrested and locked up.

This morning she tried to shield him but their cries last night had attracted all the neighbors who testified as to the combat. The Judge gave the dusky Ella thirty days in jail and sent her beau up for sixty days besides fining him $50. Tears rolled down his dusky cheeks when he heard the sentence.

MAY GO TO CUBA.

Officers Pleased, But Enlisted Men Don't Like it One Bit.

Pompton Lake, Oct. 11.—Rumors prevail that the Third Regiment will remain in the service until next year, over which great joy is expressed by the officers. It is believed that the regiment will be ordered within a day or two to Athens, Ga., or South Carolina, where it will be sent to Cuba.

The enlisted men, however, do not altogether like the idea of going to Cuba to do police duty, in which they see but little honor and no glory. They say they enlisted to fight, not to act as policemen.

It may be, however, that the Third and Fourth Regiments will be kept in New Jersey until after election, as the republican managers do not fancy the idea of losing the "soldier" vote, which they confidently count upon and which influence they have worked for several months for all it is worth.

The hospital corps, application for which were received a month ago, is now complete. Clarence E. Powell, of Company L, was selected Oct. 11 as the last man.

CHANGES IN PRIMARY RULES.

Matter to be Considered by Republican Executive Committee.

There will be a meeting of the Republican City Executive Committee this evening. There are several amendments to the Roger F. Murray scheme of primary government which will be acted upon that have been deemed necessary after the rules were given a practical test. The amendments are not of any great importance and merely relate to the details. One provides for the amending of the rules in a different manner, another requires that the clerk notify the candidates that they have been nominated and provides that he shall not give out until the time of the primary the nominations that have been made. The last provides that no primary officer shall try to keep a tally of how the different votes are made nor tell anyone how the election is going.

DESERTER ARRESTED ACROSS THE BROOK.

Private Sprague Has Been From Camp Twelve Days.

CLAIMS THAT HE WAS SICK.

HAD BEEN REFUSED A FURLOUGH BY CAPTAIN WHERLEY.

Benjamin Scribner Also Accused of the Same Offense, but Before He Could be Arrested He Went Back to Camp—Sprague in Borough Lockup Awaiting Arrival of a Guard to Take Him.

The first cases of desertion from the volunteer army from this section are reported today. They are Charles J. Sprague, and Benjamin Scribner, both residents of the borough, and privates in Company H, Third Regiment.

It was just twelve days ago today that these two privates left the camp at Pompton Lakes without leave of absence. They had complained to Captain Whereley that they were ill and wanted to come home for treatment. The captain refused them their request and told them that they could be taken care of in the hospital tent. This did not suit the soldiers and very suddenly they disappeared from camp.

In a short time they were missed by the officers, and Captain Wherley at once telegraphed to Chief Marshal Wilson, of the borough, and instructed him to arrest the soldiers, as he supposed they had come to their homes.

Chief Wilson investigated and went to the homes of the soldiers, and in both cases he found Sprague and Scribner in bed. They both claimed that they were sick and could not be moved. Chief Wilson telegraphed this information back to Captain Wherley. This brought forth a letter from the captain. He stated the facts in the case and said that both soldiers were expert fabricators, and that no doubt they would complain about treatment, food, etc., received while in camp. He also instructed Chief Wilson to arrest the men and hold them for further instructions.

Private Scribner acted a little more sensible and he returned to camp on the eleventh day. Sprague stayed here, and today he is confined to the borough lockup awaiting orders. It is true that Sprague was under a Plainfield physician's care for rheumatism. He claimed he was troubled with the disease in his knee and then in his hip. He also claims that he contracted the disease since enlisting, May 12th last.

Chief Wilson telegraphed to Captain Wherley and told him that Sprague was being held, and he asked for instructions. Just what will be done done with Sprague is hard to tell, but he will probably be severely dealt with.

When Sprague was seen by a Press reporter this morning he had very little to say, but admitted that he had done wrong in leaving camp without permission.

BOARDS OF REGISTRY.

Organized to Make a Canvass in the Borough This Morning.

The borough Boards of Registry met this morning and organized for their work of making a canvass of the borough for the coming election. In the first district A. D. Pope was chosen chairman, Chas. Emmons, inspector; W. W. Rolwey and D. J. Carney, clerks.

The second district organized with John Goodwin, chairman; David Bodine, inspector; J. E. Bailey and Edward Schenck, clerks. The members started out this morning to make a canvass of the borough and the work must be completed by Friday next. Next Tuesday the Boards will meet to fix the registry.

A Distinguished Speaker.

Rev. W. N. Grosvenor, rector of the Church of the Incarnation, in New York, is said by The Philadelphia Press to be one of the clergymen mentioned for the rectorship of Holy Trinity Episcopal church in Philadelphia. Dr. Grosvenor will address the meeting to be held in Grace P. E. church Sunday night in connection with the anniversary of the local Y. M. C. A.

Pension for Dunellen Woman.

Justice Nash has just received word from Congressman Howell that he has succeeded in obtaining a pension of $8 a month for Mrs. Cynthia Smalley, of Dunellen. The matter has been in the Justice's hands only about three months and considering the complications he had to go through is considered quick work. The back pay will amount to about $100.

At the Junior Class election held last week at Barnard College, Miss Florence Leslie Kyte, of Fanwood, was chosen president.

There are three conditions:
When the blood is poor;
When more flesh is needed;
When there is weakness of the throat or lungs.
There is one cure: that is Scott's Emulsion.
It contains the best cod-liver oil emulsified, or digested, and combined with the hypophosphites and glycerine. It promises more prompt relief and more lasting benefit in these cases than can be obtained from the use of any other remedy.

DEFENDING THE NAVY

Facts Concerning the Delay of the Tampa Transports.

SPOOK SQUADRON AFFAIR

Secretary Alger's Attempt to Throw Blame Upon Rear Admiral Sampson to Result in the Making Public of Official Records.

Washington, Oct. 11.—The navy will take a hand in the investigation of the conduct of the war. Secretary Alger, in a statement prepared for the commission, has made the direct charge that at least ten days' delay in one way or another in the embarkation, final departure and landing of troops was caused by the navy.

He places the responsibility, it is said, directly upon Rear Admiral Sampson, and indirectly, but no less specifically, upon Lieutenant W. H. H. Southerland, the officer in command of the Eagle, and at one time naval aide to Assistant Secretary McAdoo.

Southerland has returned to duty in Washington, and has been placed in charge of naval militia matters. He is an officer of discretion, great industry and splendid record, and is regarded as eminently competent and trustworthy.

Secretary Alger said that the records showed that Lieutenant Southerland, while on the Eagle, reported what the army officers term now the "spook squadron."

The report caused great consternation in Washington, and orders were immediately sent to the army transports, which had not left Tampa, to delay.

It was feared that Admiral Cervera and his ships had evaded the American war vessels and were awaiting the military boats. When it was found thatt Cervera was nowhere near the transports, there was great anger in the army and the military authorities insisted that Lieutenant Southerland should be punished.

Southerland made a report to his superiors, and this and other documentary evidence will probably be forthcoming from the navy department to show that the naval officers in West Indian waters were not so very far wrong.

It is said that Lieutenant Southerland not only sighted four or five Spanish ships, but sailed abreast of them, within a mile, for forty minutes. They made no attempt to attack him, much to his surprise, and did not hesitate in or swerve from their course.

No one could recognize any of the vessels, but there were two gunboats, a cruiser and a torpedo boat, and one of them appeared to be the Alfonso XIII.

Every one on board the Eagle saw the ships, and another American vessel in the neighborhood reported them at the same time as the Eagle.

The explanation made at the time was that these ships came from San Juan harbor, and that the two gunboats were two of the thirty or forty inconsequential craft of that type which were off the Cuban and Porto Rican coasts.

It was surmised that the Spanish officers had already seen the Maple, and when they sighted the Eagle, it is assumed, they took thte natural view that these small vessels were the advance of the main squadron, and that it was the better part of valor to continue on their course without delay.

These facts, with others which defend the navy in its administration, will now be made public, and naval officers acquainted with the circumstances are confident that the service will sufficiently refute all the army charges.

Officers of the navy are greatly incensed at Secretary Alger's action, and most of them speak in emphatic terms of condemnation of the war department's cuttlefish policy of defence.

To Make a Diamond Crown.

A pretty and agreeable amusement is the production of a perfect imitation of a diamond crown by means of a cheap chemical solution. It is only necessary to dissolve a pound of alum in a quart of hot water and hang in this solution a crown made of wire, wound with flannel.

In order to achieve the best results, a smooth surfaced and perfectly transparent glass should be used, and this with the solution and the crown, be allowed to stand undisturbed for twenty-four hours. The alum will then have been deposited in crystals on the crown, giving the latter the appearance of a diamond studded crown, which can be taken out of the solution, dried and preserved. In place of the crown one can select any other shape, which can be made with wire, and one can color the crystals by pouring a litt'e ink of whatsoever tint into the solution of alum.—New York Herald.

WAR INVESTIGATION PROCEEDINGS.

Conditions at Camp Thomas Described by Capt. Culver

Washington, Oct. 11.—Captain J. H. Culver of Troop A, of the Third United States volunteer cavalry (Grigsby's Rough Riders), was before the war investigating commission yesterday. He had been stationed at Camp Thomas Chickamauga, from May until he was mustered out on the eleventh of September. His company had been located in the woods, but while the site was dry, he thought that they would have been better off in the open. The food generally was abundant and very good. At first they only received fresh meat two or three times a week, and for a week the bread was hard, but this was soon rectified.

On one occasion the meat was tainted, but it was condemned and exchanged. He stated, however, that the tainted meat was not badly spoiled, and that he would have been glad enough to have had it in the civil war.

Captain Culver mentioned an instance when the bacon received was wormy, and when the command first arrived there was a shortage of tentage, but these defects had been speedily remedied.

Captain Howell interrupted the proceedings to inquire the object of the examination of the witness, to which ex-Governor Beaverfl who was conducting the examination, replied that it was to show what the different bureaus of the war department had done and how they did it, and he thought the inquiry very pertinent.

To this Mr. Howell responded: "The proper men from whom to secure this information are the officers who supplied the equipment."

FOR ANGLO-AMERICAN UNION.

Resolutions Favoring Such a Step Introduced in Episcopal Councils

Washington, Oct. 11.—There is no abatement in the public interest attending the triennial council of the Episcopal church and a large crowd joined in the religious service at Epiphany church which preceded the business of yesterday.

The expanding influence of the church was indicated by the memorial from the Japanese diocese urging the creation of a southern jurisdiction in that country and from the Anglican church in Honolulu, heretofore fostered by the English church, asking that in view of the annexation of Hawaii to the United States the church of Hawaii be amalgamated with that in this country, becoming a missionary jurisdiction. The propositions were referred.

The first evidence of friendly rivalry for the honor of holding the next convention developed in a resolution for the appointment of a committee of five deputies to meet with a committee of bishops to select the city of the next meeting.

Among the resolutions presented and referred was one expressing thanks for the sympathy of Great Britain toward this government during the recent war with Spain, and hoping that the time would come when the two great nations would stand "shoulder to shoulder and flag to flag" in the progress of the world.

Mrs. George Arraigned.

Canton, O., Oct. 11.—Mrs. Anna E. George, the woman under arrest for the shooting of Saxton, was arraigned on the affidavit charging murder in the first degree, at ten o'clock yesterday, for the purpose of fixing a date for the preliminary hearing.

It is claimed that the defence will be an alibi, and that the shots were fired by a man dressed in the garb of a woman.

A great crowd was present in court when Mrs. George was brought in. She looked unconcerned. Soon afterwards her counsel came in—Messrs. John C. Welty, Mayor James A. Rice, and Jas. A. Sterling.

After reading the affidavit, Mrs. George's counsel said that they were ready for the arraignment.

They asked that the reading of the affidavit be waived.

Justice Reigner asked Mrs. George whether she was guilty or not guilty, and she answered not guilty.

This afternoon was agreed upon for the preliminary hearing, and Mrs. George was taken back to jail.

The coroner has resumed the examination of witnesses and the number of names on the list indicates that his examination will not be concluded for several days.

Views of Oregon's New Senator

Portland, Ore., Oct. 11.—Senator-elect Joseph Simon, in an interview regarding his course on the leading questions which will come before Congress, said:

"I favor the retention of the entire Philippine group, and I should not agree to the ratification of a treaty that remits any portion of them to Spain. I am for government construction and control of the Nicaragua canal, and favor a Pacific cable. I am for a larger standing army and a greater navy. I am especially anxious for the firm establishment of the gold standard and reformation of the currency by the retirement of government paper obligations and creation of a banking currency."

The Strike in Paris.

Paris, Oct. 11.—The strike situation here, following yesterday's orders by the government reinforcing the troops in the city by about 10,000 men from towns near the capital, is much calmer. Only one band of strikers needed dispersal, but, as a matter of precaution, the military pickets were further increased.

Several meetings of workingmen took place during the day at the Bourse du Travail, and resolutions favoring a continuance of the strike were passed.

The Forty Seventh Sails

Newport, Oct. 11.—The transport Manitoba, with the Forty-seventh New York regiment on board, sailed from here at 4 p. m. yesterday for Porto Rico.

A great crowd of Brooklynites were on hand to view the departure of the troops and bid them farewell.

Although there were originally thirteen hundred men in the regiment, not more than 1,150 sailed for Porto Rico. The majority of the others had been discharged.

ENGLAND'S FIRM STAND

Salisbury Has Burned His Bridges on the Fashoda Question.

DISCUSSION WITH FRANCE

Tone of the London Press is Grave. England Will Maintain Her Assertion of Exclusive Rights at Fashoda. The French Newspapers View the Affair With Calmness

London, Oct. 11.—All the papers applaud Lord Salisbury's firmness in the Fashoda question and the fact that he has approved all the doings of General Kitchener. The Times has the following:

"While not despairing of an amicable settlement, we cannot but think the situation extremely grave. Lord Salisbury has taken up a position from which retreat is impossible after the publication of the Blue Book."

The Daily Chronicle thinks that the situation "only grave on paper and not in reality."

The Daily News says: "We hope Lord Salisbury will be able to provide a golden bridge for M. Delcasse."

The correspondence contained in the Blue book shows clearly that Great Britain asserts exclusive rights and denies that the Marchand expedition has any political significance.

Lord Salisbury appears to have taken a firm stand in the question and he makes it clear that no discussion of the matter is admissable.

The comments in public and in the newspapers show that the Marquis of Salisbury's determined stand has come as a most agreeable relief and as disposing of all the stories of a possible compromise. No whisper of dissent is heard anywhere.

Both friends and opponents of the premier are rejoicing at the fact that, in furnishing the Blue Book on the Fashoda question he has burned his bridges behind him.

While it is recognized that the situation, by this publication, has become more difficult for France, there is almost an entire absence of disposition anywhere to believe that France proposes to press her claims to the point of danger.

The Matin, which is directly inspired by the French foreign office, and was the foremost in urging extremist views, voices the more pacific mood which is apparently obtaining in Paris, saying:

"We shall probably not risk a war with Great Britain for the nominal sovereignty over territories at an immense distance from our possessions on the Atlantic. They are as inaccessible from our coast annexations as the mountains in the moon. But we can retain our honor without retaining Fashoda. Prudence should prevent us from loading ourselves with too much territory. We must be colonials, but in moderation."

The newspapers of Paris take a calm view of the situation and plead for moderation. They express a sincere desire for a friendly settlement of the question when Major Marchand's report arrives.

The prevailing view of political men is that the French cabinet will find a way out of the difficulty in the report asked from Major Marchand, who, it is expected, in response to a hint from the French foreign office, will declare that his position at Fashoda is untenable. The publication of such a report, it is held, would fully justify the French government in recalling him.

Off for the Omaha Fair

Washington, Oct. 11.—The Washington official party, which is to attend the Omaha exposition, started yesterday, going by two separate trains over the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio railroads. Their itineraries are so arranged that the two parties will arrive at Chicago and later at Omaha close together.

The presidential party left via the Pennsylvania road at nine o'clock. The train was a handsome one of four cars, including the sleepers Socrates and Dromio, the dining car Gilsey and the combination car Brutus.

From the Baltimore and Ohio station the other train left a few minutes after 8 o'clock. Aboard of it were General Miles and other army officers, the members of the diplomatic corps, and the representatives of the press. The train was made up of a combination car, the sleepers Potosi, Hector and Kara, a dining car and also a private car.

Canton, O., Oct. 11.—The train from Washington bearing the official party for the Omaha exposition, arrived here last evening at a few minutes past nine o'clock. The private car of President McKinley, the Campania, was attached and the train sped on its way westward.

Col. Roosevelt's Taxes.

New York, Oct. 11.—The motion of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt to discontinue the certiorari proceeding brought in his behalf to contest the assessment on him of a personal tax of $1,005 by the city authorities, was consented to by the corporation counsel when the motion was called by Justice Smyth in the supreme court this morning. The payment of the tax and the order of discontinuance therefore end litigation over Colonel Roosevelt's liability to pay taxes as a resident of this city.

Italy Saves on Her Navy.

Rome, Oct. 11.—Owing to Italy's financial straits, the minister of marine, Admiral di Canevaro, has renounced the sweeping naval programme, involving the expenditure of 540,000,000 lire, and will be satisfied with a naval credit this year of 28,000,000 lire. A ministerial crisis is thus averted.

It is expected that the budget for the current year will show a deficit of 17,000,000 lire.

Coast of the War to Spain.

Madrid, Oct. 11.—It is estimated here that the campaigns in Cuba and the Philippines have cost Spain three million pesetas, or about six hundred million dollars.

Flossie's New Costume.

(BY JAQUETTE.)

Last week Flossie announced to me that she would soon give the Jillings the Mountloves and the other girls something to talk about. "It will be a real smart tailor-made suit and I want you to go with me to buy it," she said.

In a day or two we boarded a trolley car and rode to Newark, where we visited several stores without finding anything in character and price that struck our fancy. "Just as I thought," exclaimed Flossie, "we could have saved time by going at once to Hahne & Co.'s; come on, Nell."

Just a glance at Hahne & Co.'s top garments decided the question of where to buy, with Flossie's whisper: "I told you so." A few seconds later she was declaiming the elegance of a brown camel's hair suit marked $15.98, the same that was shown us at $22 in New York. "I'll take that suit," she said to the lady in attendance. The coat is a cutaway with velvet collar, cadet sleeves and lined with black satin serge. The skirt has the popular flounce, and is lined with percaline. Every seam is tailored.

Flossie's hat came next. I quite shared her ecstasy over the beautiful millinery display, although I am usually sedate and reserved in manner, having reached the age of—well, no matter about that. A turban, trimmed with brown velvet and white satin, seemed to please Flossie immensely, and I advised her to buy it. The price was $7.25, a very reasonable one.

Before we left the store I bought for sister Kate an all-wool, fifty inch broadcloth with twill back, fine face and dainty shade of green, for $1.10 a yard. Kate is delighted with it, and says $1.25 is the price in other stores.

There was a twinkle in Flossie's eye when she remarked to me on Sunday evening: "Say, Nell, I noticed the girls in groups today, several times; do you think they could have been admiring my new costume?"

EVACUATION WITHOUT DELAY.

Selection of Camp Sites for Our Soldiers in Cuba.

Madrid, Oct. 11.—It is said here that the evacuation of the island of Porto Rico will be completed next week, and that the evacuation of the island of Cuba will be accomplished by the end of November.

The government is employing twenty-one vessels in the repatriation of the troops. The latter have received their pay for June, and before landing in Spain they will receive two months' pay. The soldiers will also be given civilian clothing and will be mustered out of the service.

Havana, Oct. 11.—The special American commission charged to select sites for camps for the American troops to be sent here shortly, visited Guanajay, Mariel and other places in the province of Pinar del Rio Sunday.

The commissioners travelled by a special train, which returned here Sunday night. They have decided that a camp is to be located on the hills in the vicinity of Guanajay, and it is reported that the first American troops will reach there about November 10. The railroad engineers report the roads as being in a very bad condition at the present time.

At nine o'clock Monday morning General Wade, Colonel Clous, Captain Hart and Lieutenant Wade had an interview with Captain General Blanco. The conference lasted only for twelve minutes.

THE TEXAS READY.

Report That She Will Go to Manila.

New York, Oct. 11.—The battleship Texas was towed out of the Brooklyn navy yard yesterday by the tugs Nina and Narkeeta, and went down to the government anchorage off Tompkinsville.

Captain Sigsbee, formerly of the ill fated battleship Maine, said that he knew nothing as to what the future movements of the vessel would be. In the yard it was common rumor that the Texas was to join the Iowa and the Oregon on their trip to the Pacific station.

Although this is denied by the authorities at the yard, it is evident that the vessel is to go on a long voyage, as her coal bunkers have been filled to the brim; she has taken on more ammunition that she ever carried before; she has been provisioned for at least six months, and all the short-term men on board have been sent to the receiving ship Vermont and replaced by recruits.

No Business Boom at Honolulu.

San Francisco, Oct. 11.—Rear Admiral Miller, who will retire from the navy during this month, warns people against going to Honolulu in the expectation of making their fortune. He says:

"The simple fact that the form of government is going to change has not opened up additional resources or extended any which have been in existence. There are no new positions for people who go in, and there are not likely to be any."

The admiral, however, thinks that there is a great future in store for the islands.

The Call says that when the Gaelic leaves this port to-day she will have on board two local bankers, bound for awaii. Upon their arrival a bank will be established in Honolulu, which will be called the First National ank of Hawaii, with a capitalization of one million dollars.

Mr. Chamberlain on Our Policy.

Paris, Oct. 11.—The Evenement yesterday published the substance of an interview with Mr. Joseph hambeCrlain who is now in America, in which the English statesman is quoted as saying that he considers the United States to be in the same position as Great Britain in Egypt, adding that America has the same imperative duty to keep the Philippines. Mr. Chamberlain continues:

"The moment has arrived for the United States to prepare for an extension of its territory, and in order to realize this ideal she will not refuse Great Britain's support. United, Great Britain, the United States and Canada will be invulnerable."

Conclave of Knights Templar

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 11.—Ten thousand Knights Templars have arrived for the triennial conclave which was opened formally with receptions at all the public buildings last evening. Special trains are coming in from every direction, and it is estimated on reports received that twenty-five thousand uniformed knights and one hundred thousand other visitors will be here for the parade to-day.

The city is magnificently decorated, and the electrical display last evening was the most brilliant ever given in this country.

Mr. Gage in Colorado

Boulder, Col., Oct. 11.—Secretary of the Treasury Lyman J. Gage and wife, who have been spending some days with Mrs. Gage's brother, have started on their return trip. They will meet President McKinley at Omaha and accompany his party to Washington on its return.

Kaiser Cool Toward Pope.

Rome, Oct. 11.—The Rome press asserts that in consequence of the pope's speech to the French pilgrims on Saturday there has been a marked coolness between the Vatican and Germany, diplomatic communications having been almost wholly suspended.

Viscaya is Abandoned

Santiago, Cuba, Oct. 11.—The Spanish cruiser Viscaya will be abandoned and its divers have found that a great deal of the bilge has been knocked off.

The Infanta Maria Teresa will reach New York the latter part of the present month.

Fire at Point Pleasant

Point Pleasant, N. J., Oct. 11.—The round house and water works of the New York and Long Branch railroad at this place were destroyed by fire yesterday with a loss amounting to $20,000.

INDIANS STILL FIERCE

The Hostile Pillagers Gathering to Attack Troops.

GEN. BACON'S ULTIMATUM

Leader of the Government Force at Leech Lake Indian Reservation Will Hold the Last Council To-day. Treacherous Dealings.

Walker, Minn., Oct. 11.—The Indian situation at Leach lake is still ominous.

After a fruitless council at the agency Sunday, General Bacon announced that the last council would be held Monday and the Indians dispersed.

Flatmouth and his band of forty Chippewa Indians may be seen on the war path before another day has passed. At a council held yesterday he delivered a message asking that the troops be taken away from the agency and informing the authorities that in event of a refusal he would join the hostile Pillager Indians.

Sunday's council was held between the Indians, General Bacon, Colonel Harbach, Indian Agent Sutherland and Marshal O'Connor. No one of the leading Indians was present.

There were, however, representatives from Bear island, Cass Lake, Ottertail Point and Pine Point, but none of those has influence with the tribesmen. They were sent merely as stool pigeons.

On Saturday thirty canoe loads of Bear Island Indians and their families, professing to be peaceful, arrived at the agency. All the bucks in the party left presumably for Bear island to join the hostiles.

Several hundred armed Indians are probably on the island, and more are on the road.

Bear island men still at the agency say they know nothing in regard to dead and wounded among the Indians from last Wednesday's fight.

It is reported by a citizen who has talked with a hostile Pillager Indian who was in Wednesday's battle, and who has sat in all councils of the Pillagers, that the Indians have sworn to an agreement to accomplish, if possible, the following:

They will attempt in a few days to drive from the reservation all troops. If successful they will try to prevent any United States authorities or troops from landing upon the reservation.

The man who gave this information is believed to be thoroughly reliable. He has had a conference with General Bacon.

Up to date the hostile Indians have made no attacks upon white settlers. There are no indications that they will do this.

Rumor of Indian Attack.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 11.—A dispatch from Bermidji, Minn., yesterday, said that a rumor that Indians were coming caused a stampede.

The people were greatly excited and massed at the court house. The soldiers were telegraphed for.

Troops Leave for the Front.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 11.—Monday morning 130 of the Fourteenth Minnesota regiment left for towns of the Fosston extension of tthe Great Northern road on the northern border of the Leech Lake reservation.

Lieutenant Colonel Johnson was in command, and had with him Major Schaefer, Captain Holmes, Adjutant Winne, Surgeon Dorsey, Lieutenants Baker, Brisbin, Smiley and O'Brien and Quartermaster Cox.

The men carried tents, 100 rounds of ammunition and several days' rations. All the twelve companies are represented.

They will be stationed mostly at Ferris and Mermill, whence have come reports of panic at supposed menaces of parties of Indians.

Roosevelt Will Stir Up the State.

New York, Oct. 11.—The plans of the Republican leaders for the campaign are being definitely formed. Colonel Roosevelt was at headquarters in the Fifth Avenue hotel yesterday, and he said that he would start out on a tour of the state next Monday morning. Where he will go first, and other details of the trip have not yet been arranged, but it can be stated upon the colonel's authority that he will appear in every section of the state. If he decides to make his tour by special train a special route will be mapped out, but if he uses the regular train service dates will have to be arranged to suit.

From all parts of the state requests are coming in for the Republican candidate to come and speak. Necessarily many of these invitations will have to be refused, but Colonel Roosevelt will visit all the great centers of population, thereby giving the greatest possible number an opportunity to see and hear him.

Contract Surgeons.

Washington, Oct. 11.—Judge Advocate General Lieber, in an opinion just rendered, holds that contract surgeons are subject to military law and army regulations and are consequently subject to court martial.

The question was raised in the case of Dr. Taber, one of the contract surgeons assigned to duty at Montauk Point. He was charged with negligence resulting in the death of one of his patients, Private Hugh Porett.

The court martial of Dr. Taber will probably now be ordered.

Cotton Crop Much Damaged

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 11.—Reports from various portions of Kansas indicate great damage to the cotton crop by excessive rains. In the bottom lands the cotton is reported as sprouting in the bolls and the bolls are rotting rapidly. In some localities the crop is almost entirely ruined.

Battleships for Manila.

Washington, Oct. 11.—Commodore Crowninshield, chief of the bureau of navigation, stated yesterday that he expected the Iowa and Oregon to leave New York on Wednesday for Honolulu. These ships are destined for the Philippines.

PEACE COMMISSION AT WORK.

Two Sessions Held in Which Cuban Debt Were Discussed.

Paris, Oct. 11.—The United States peace commission held two sessions yesterday.

It is believed that the questions now being discussed relate to Cuba and the adjustment of the debt of the island.

The Paris newspapers show anxiety in behalf of the Spanish cause. Le Journal des Debats on Saturday said the Philippine question was being considered by the joint commission, and the Matin on Sunday followed with a similar statement, alleging that an understanding regarding Cuba and Porto Rico was possible, "as the United States claims everything and Spain refuses nothing, but the difficulty arises on the question of the Philippine islands."

The Matin closed its remarks on the subject by expressing the belief that "we shall see the republic, which has just shown herself to be so brave and strong, show herself also to be generous."

In view of the fact that the joint commissions have not yet considered the Philippine question, the Paris papers appear to Americans to be stretching a point to adjure the American commission to treat Spain generously.

The Gaulois this morning reviewed the political situation and draws the conclusion that "between the alleged Republican purpose of expansion and the Democratic opposition thereto, President McKinley and the United States commission will be inspired after all with the sentiments of generosity which are the honor of victorious nations."

The keynote of these expressions seems to have been sounded by a Spanish diplomat to an American here last week, the diplomat saying that the United States should be generous to Spain.

That remark and the utterances of the French press give to each other added significance.

M. Jules Cambon, the former French ambassador at Washington, has arrived in Paris. He will remain here for two months.

SAMPSON OR SCHLEY?

Navy Board to Pass Upon Credit for the Destruction of Cervera's.

New York, Oct. 11.—The navy board which is to pass judgment on the question of the credit for the destruction of Cervera's fleet off Santiago, July 3, reassembled yesterday. This board was appointed by the secretary of the navy before Rear Admiral Sampson went to Havana as a member of the evacuation committee, the navigators of all the armor-clads which participated in the fight, as also Lieutenant Commander Wainwright, of the Gloucester, and the commanding officer of the Vixen comprising the board.

An assignment of the ships to various duties and a transfer to other ports of some of the navigating officers made a postponement of the hearing necessary. By order of the department the board reconvened yesterday on the armored cruiser Brooklyn, at the navy yard, across the river, and the hearing was secret.

Camp Wikoff's Closing Days.

Montauk Point, L. I., Oct. 11.—Orders were received at Camp Wikoff Monday for the Seventh infantry, the only regiment here, to leave camp.

It has been assigned to the department of the lakes, and will do garrison duty at Fort Wayne and Fort Brady, Mich.

The transportation of the regiment is being arranged for, and the command will probably get away within the next day or two.

Five hundred mules, two hundred horses and one hundred and seventy-five army wagons are to be sent to the government corral at St. Asaph, near Washington.

The Long Island railroad expects to transport them all to New York before to-night.

Gov. Tanner and Coal Strikers.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 11.—Governor Tanner has had a sharp controversy with Manager Lukens of the Chicago Virden Coal Company.

Mr. Lukens said that he proposed to import labor to supplant strikers and would operate his mine, if necessary, at the muzzles of Winchesters.

Governor Tanner said that he would not send troops to assist in running mines with imported labor, and if operators attempted to use Winchesters he would send the National Guard to Virden to disarm all.

Governor Tanner also said that if operators persisted in employing imported labor at Pana he would withdraw the troops from there.

More Dreyfus Forgeries.

Paris, Oct. 11.—M. Clemenceau, in an article in the Aurore, asserts that letters purporting to have been written by the German emperor figure in the Dreyfus dossier, not indeed as originals, but as photographs.

These, he declares, were palmed off as authentic upon M. Hanotaux, formerly minister of foreign affairs, who paid 27,000 francs for them. M. Clemenceau challenges contradiction of these statements.

British Squadron's Cruise.

London, Oct. 11.—In view of the situation in Crete, Egypt and China, it is significant that the British channel squadron will start for a two months' cruise in the Mediterranean on October 15.

The squadron has been ordered to take a six months' supply of stores, which is unprecedented.

An Oil Tank Steamer Burned.

Philadelphia, Oct. 11.—The British oil steamer Weehawken, which cleared from this port on Saturday for Venice, with a cargo of 1,200,000 gallons of oil, was burned on the Cherry island flats about twenty miles down the Delaware river Monday.

Japanese at Pekin.

Yokohama, Oct. 11.—The Japanese government has ordered the landing and immediate march to Pekin of a force of bluejackets to protect the Japanese legation there.

COMING EVENTS.

October 16—Thirty-first anniversary exercises of the Y. M. C. A. in churches at the evening service.

The Trolley Franchise.

In the news columns of The Daily Press today a number of interviews with members of the Common Council are published concerning the agitation to secure greater benefits from the Plainfield Street Railway Company than are now inculcated in the ordinance pending before the Council.

In reading the statements made by the various Councilmen it appears that they look upon the franchise, which they are about to grant, as something possessing only local value to the corporation securing it. This is a narrow view of the subject. It cannot be denied that the Plainfield Street Railway Company is owned and controlled by the same capitalists that are back of the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company, and it is the project of these men to secure a cross-county trolley through identically the same territory as the so-called county trolley will run.

The trolley capitalist are slyly holding out the terrible bug-a-boo of entirely forsaking Plainfield if they do not get what they want at their own price. They threaten to branch off at Scotch Plains and swing around up into the borough somewhere and come into the city over Somerset street, thus depriving the city of even a little bit of its benefits. They promulgate such stuff under the presumption that the borough officials will play into their hands. If we know the temper and ability of the borough councilmen we think the trolley magnates will be greatly mistaken in tneir ideas of finding the borough so "easy."

The whole thing in a nutshell is this: The local system was not built with the view of its paying profitable dividends on the local business. Neither have the franchises in Scotch Plains, Westfield, Cranford or Roselle been secured with such a view. The trolley capitalists are in the business for the purpose of securing a number of links that taken separately are not of great value, but when connected together are of far greater worth than they are willing to concede. Plainfield holds the key to the situation. Why should we unlock a coffer that is going to make the men behind the scheme wealthy by our receiving a paltry little present from them?

The Soldier Vote.

Secretary of State Wurts has finished preparations for securing the votes of Jerseymen in the service of the army and navy, whose duties keep them from being present in their home-election districts this year. The voting will be done through blanks authorizing a person in the State to be selected by the voter to cast one ballot.

The absent voter can send his proxy to a person in the election district in which he would be entitled to vote were he at home. The proxy must be sworn to before a field officer or a commander of a vessel. The absent voter is also furnished with a blank ballot, which must be filled in by the voter. No provision is made by the law to inform the absent voter of the names of the candidates. His vote must be inclosed in a sealed envelope and sent to the elector in the district, to be delivered sealed to the election officers.

Astronomy In the United States.

In no country has there been a keener interest in astronomical science and nowhere has there been more devoted and skillful research into the mysteries of the skies than here. We have the two largest refracting telescopes in the world, and in the possession of instruments of the next grade, we stand among the three foremost peoples in the world. In the number of important discoveries made during the last quarter of a century we compete favorably with any other. In that important branch of the science known as spectroscopy we are a little behind our contemporaries, but in all other directions, including stellar photography, our record is a magnificent one. Among the more celebrated men, the names of Newcomb, Harkness, Hall, Davidson, Langley, Young and Elkin are famous worldwide and among the younger aspirants such students as Pickering, Todd, Keeler, Barnard, Burnham, Comstock, Lowell and others equally deserving are almost as well known and honored.

An important step in the organization of astronomical work in the United States has just been taken in the formation of an astronomical society similar to the Royal Astronomical society of Great Britain. It is worth while that this great science should be represented with more dignity than as a mere branch of the American Association For the Advancement of Science. The special affiliation of men working in the same direction is in line with that differentiation of work so important for effective research. It will more effectively draw together all those enthusiastic in this study who are perhaps in part amateurs. From this class the science of astronomy has, however, drawn some of its brightest lights. Hall, for example, now at the head of the Yerkes observatory, in the start had his own little telescope in Chicago, and Barnard, who discovered the fifth satellite of Jupiter, was originally a photographer's assistant at a small salary. An astronomical society admitting these amateur workers as associate members, while the full membership would be reserved for the higher achievement, would be of great scientific value.

Those young men who drive the ambulance would show far better judgment if they would not ring the bell on the vehicle when there is no need for it. The mission of gong on the ambulance is to warn people and other vehicles to get out of the way, but when the ambulance is being driven along a deserted street at midnight there is not the slightest need of constantly pounding the resonant bell to awaken and startle people. East Second street residents were thoroughly provoked last night by the constant clanging of the gong as it passed up the street at midnight.

There is still a chance for this country to go deeper into political affairs than prevail at present. It seems that in New South Wales political stump speakers swing around the circle accompanied by a huge poultry net, from which they address their audiences. Some cruel critic says that the net is used to prevent over-ripe vegetables and bombs of flour from descending upon the person doing the speechmaking in the English colony.

According to present plans, the Republican campaign in South Jersey will be "whooped up" by Candidate Voorhees next week. He is down for a "whirlwind" tour of the First Congressional district, beginning with a visit to Camden on Monday, and the other four counties during the balance of the week.

The scarcity of onions prevailing in the East has not been lost sight of by speculators, who have sent orders for cargoes of the vegetables to Great Britain and Ireland. The first consignment of 20,000 crate arrived at New York city a few days ago.—A News Item.

My, but that will be a trust that will bring tears to the eyes.

George W. Otis, who was sent to investigate the opportunities offered by the Klondike for the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, has written a letter to his employers stating that all the claims worth working have already been bought up. But still the tide flows towards the Klondike.

The Democratic ship is sailing around in the Eighth Congressional district without a single man who will say that he will venture the job of steering her into port on election day.

MEETING PLACE OF PEACE COMMISSION.

The grand salon of the building of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, in Paris, is the scene of the efforts of the American and Spanish representatives to arrange terms of final peace between the two countries. Exterior and interior views are here presented. The dove is the artist's idea.

Why is it thus? In years gone by the ship has not always gone up Salt River.

Congressman Pitney will try to become Senator Pitney—in the State Legislature. Mr. Pitney doubtless concludes that a term in the upper house at Trenton will better fit him to grasp the Gubernatorial prize three years hence.

The Elizabeth Journal throws mud at Plainfield by speaking of the municipality as a "borough." We're just as good as Elizabeth any day in the week, and trot right along in the same class with her, too.

Why should Plainfield provide the completing link to a trolley line for benefits worth about $10,000 when such an act will make a franchise worth not less than $250,000.

Four weeks from today is election. Four weeks from tomorrow will be the day of has-beens who will soon after commence laying plans to be want-to-bes again.

The Middlesex county Democratic convention for the purpose of nominating three Assembly candidates will be held in New Brunswick Saturday.

At the annual school meetings, recently held in Michigan, a proposition for free text books was defeated. All of which was not in the line of progress.

The borough has a chance to secure a nice little public park for its people. No town can have enough of these public breathing places.

What has Gov. Voorhees got up his sleeve that he is postponing his resignation so many times?

An official report from Trenton tells of the cost of living in New Jersey It's cheap at any price.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

And now again Sheriff Kirk will have the pleasant duty of trying to provide invitations to some two or three hundred men who want to see Roesel executed, when the law allows only thirty-eight to witness the grewsome event.—Plainfield Press.

That's rough on the people of Union County. Newspaper men and physicians go to such disagreeable affairs as a matter of duty, but why in the world should any other man of fine sensibilities be eager to look upon a sight of that kind?—New York Tribune.

* * * * *

The Third district Democrats are all at sea over a candidate. Such prominent men as former Speaker Bergen, James Deshler and former Senator Terhune are unwilling to be candidates, and it looks as if the nomination will go to former Senator Keys, of Somerset. Congressman Howell is sure of a re-nomination by the Republicans. The district is largely Democratic, under good management, and with an unobjectionable candidate on that side, success would be assured. Perhaps Mr. Keys may meet the requirements. It looks now as if the next delegation to Congress from New Jersey will stand 5 Republicans and 3 Democrats.—The Philadelphia Record.

he should change his mind, and he stills thinks the way he did before Mr. VanHerwerden introduced his resolution.

Mr. Barrows expressed himself strongly against the resolution as offered by Mr. VanHerwerden. He said that he thought the scheme unreasonable and too much to ask. Regarding the John Kean scheme he said that it would probably cost Union county all of $600,000 to follow out the plans for the county boulevard, and after the county has complied with the requests of Mr. Kean, then the latter will pay $250,000 to the county for the franchise to locate and operate a trolley between Plainfield and Elizabeth. As regards the Plainfield Street Railway Company franchise he said that the people in the eastern part of the city and at Scotch Plains are now clamoring for the trolley, and they want it. For this privilege the company is willing to pay about $8,000 to macadamize the streets, over which they want to extend the tracks, from curb to curb, in addition to a number of other agreements. The company, Mr. Barrows thinks, is willing to do anything that is fair and reasonable. It was also intimated that if the city asked too much of the company they might change their plans and connect with the end of the Somerset street trolley line. This would not take them much further out of their way, and the company claim that they could handle the traffic equally well over that route. In view of all this Mr. Barrows can see no reason why he should change his mind or vote.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

Monday, October 17th, Oliver Byron's Great Gotham Stock Company will open its engagement of one week with matinees daily except Monday at Music Hall. The company is the largest and strongest one that has ever appeared at cheap prices, and the plays to be produced are all standard successes, and they will be put on just the same as if in a large city at high prices. The company carry all the scenery that is called for to give a scenic production. Two extra stage carpenters are employed so that everything will move quickly and with a finish fitting the most critical audience. The bill for Monday night will be that money-winner, "Across the Continent." The company includes R. Fulton Russell, Frederick Kensil, Emmit Whitney, Edwin Southers, Fred Warren, James Morgan, Ed Hume, John W. Rose, Harry Lyman, N. W. Waterhouse, Gertrude Dion Magill, Madaline Price, Margarite Fields, Alice Magill, Clara Moran, and Frank Hodgson, musical director. Specialties of the up-to-date order will be introduced by Fred Warren, Ed Hume and Alice Magill.

Spoke in an Unknown Tongue.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—At the Reform Club meeting Thursday evening, the principal speaker might have said many good things, but as he mostly spoke in an unknown tongue, I don't think any man present, or the angels in heaven, or the speaker himself could interpet his speech, or tell what the intent of his subject was. I could not tell what he was trying to prove by the Bible. Was there anything edifying about his talk? It might be easily proved by the Bible that such speakers were out of place in a congregation. For he that speaketh in an unknown tongue, speaketh not unto men—for no man understandeth him," except he interpet. Read the 14th chapter of 1st Corinthians, and ask him to set down. Critic.

—A cloth cape was advertised as lost in The Daily Press last night. Before the office was closed it was returned by a woman who refused to allow the use of her name.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Westfield, Oct. 11—William Kelly, known as "Doc," went into Lawrence Powers' hotel yesterday morning and tried to clean the place out. Mr. Powers did some objecting and there was a fight in which "Doc" came off second best.

A RAGE FOR VELVET.

All Sorts of Costumes Made From It. Velutina Also Worn.

(By special arrangement with the N.Y. Sun.)

Velvet is to be much used this winter. The present styles demand the employment of this rich fabric, and both plain and fancy velvets are far finer than ever before and more artistic in design and coloring.

For several seasons two-toned or changeable velvet has been fashionable for gowns, but it is no longer considered good style except in a few very light shades, such as apricot, where a blending of two colors is necessary to get the desired opalescent effect.

As to color, browns, blues, purples and greens promise to be the vogue.

The always popular greens shade from emerald to hunter's green, and from hunter's to myrtle. Gowns of plain velvet show trimmings of magnificent passementerie or lace; oftentimes, strange to say, coarse cotton lace embellishes the richest silk velvet.

Not every woman can afford a gown of silk velvet or even one of half silk, but such need not despair. Velveteens are to be made into smart frocks, and they are of such excellent quality that only experts can distinguish them from the real thing if they are well cut, well made and fitted. By the way, this material is known as velu tina this season and is brought out in all the new shades.

By far the handsomest of all the velvet novelties is a material known as antique or satin soleil degrade. This comes in nine different shadings, such as petunia, mordore, sea green, cornflower or bluet, Capucine, gray and Russian blue, and the tints in each piece run from very dark to light. This fabric is used in millinery as well as for bodices and trimmings, and is quite expensive enough not to become common.

Most of the new skirts are being made so tight in the upper part that it will be almost impossible to wear petticoats. A skirt buttoned down the back in the prevailing mode certainly has one decided advantage—it obviates any possibility of the open placket hole. A skirt slightly raised on the left side has also made its appearance, and the outlook for its popularity is good.

Fat Men's Clubs.

There is sympathy in fat. It has a sympathy which those superabundantly gifted in the way of adipose do not receive from those of whom Julius Caesar called the "lean and hungry," but which is bestowed in proportion to the necessity, by all and sundry who are of the more generous and voluminous proportions, while it overflows, even as the milk of human kindness, from those approaching the Falstaffian size.

Nearly everywhere these more or less unwieldy mortals have formed themselves into clubs for common enjoyment, and it may be for mutual sympathy, and the comparing of notes as to their increase in size, for we may be sure, that though the outside world is very infrequently permitted to penetrate into the arcana of these meeting places, a scale is one of the chief articles of furniture.

Paris has a Fat Man's Club, which is called "Les Cent Kilos," a title which sufficiently designates the object of the institution. No one is admitted until he can turn the scale at that very respectable weight.

Vienna, too, has a Fat Man's Club. So has New York, and so, indeed, have several other cities.

At times, like the clown cricketers, the members of these various clubs show their agility and exhibit their bonhomie by festivities, in which they permit their friends to participate. Such an exhibition, indeed, there has been of the Paris Fat Man's Club, in which these good people indulge in such "violent delights" as dancing and a walking match.

Men as Careless as Women.

There seems to be an idea that the average woman is the individual who persistently and wilfully outrages her digestion; but there is much evidence in favor of equal carelessness on the part of men. At a railroad lunch-counter last Sunday evening several middle-aged, well-dressed, intelligent-looking men, evidently prosperous business men en route to New York for the week's work, were noticed satisfying their appetites in what seemed a most reprehensible manner. One made his meal entirely on a full quarter of a large apple pie, taking as second course a cream cake. This man looked like a scholar, and it was noticed that two books which he put down beside him while he ate were of a character that denoted thoughtful reading. Another ate a sandwich and took as dessert something that is called "fried pie" and is an abominable edible peculiar to New England lunch-counters. The others of the set bestowed equal attention upon pastry and cake, to the exclusion of the simpler food that was to be had. All ate with the keenest relish, indicating that the diet they enjoyed and presumably took regularly was before them.

Why the Sky Is Blue.

Did it ever strike you to inquire why the cloudless depths of sky above us are so delicately blue? It isn't that the gas we call air is in itself blue. So far as we know, it is quite transparent and absolutely colourless. No; the blue comes from reflected light.

Air is never pure; you couldn't live in it if it were. Countless millions of tiny particles, chiefly of water, are always suspended in it, and these arrest the free passage of light. Each particle has a double reflection—one internal, the other external—and so the reflected rays suffer the usual result of what is called "interference," and show colour.

You will notice that the sky appears much bluer if you look straight up than if you look across towards the horizon. The reason is that, in the first instance, you are naturally looking through a much thinner layer of air than in the second.

If there were no air, and consequently no watery vapour, and nothing to interfere with the free passage of light, even at mid-day the sky above would look perfectly black, and all the stars plainer than they do now at midnight.

Early Marriages.

The farther south one goes, the earlier one finds marriages take place. A census was taken lately in Algeria, and it was found that the youngest Arab married man was twelve years old, and that there were very many boys who were married at thirteen and fourteen, while some at fifteen years of age had several wives. There is a youthful Algerian widower of fifteen, and a divorced husband of the same age. Girls are still more precocious, and are sometimes married when only eleven years old, though twelve is the more usual age. There are 189 widows of fifteen, and 1,176 divorces of the same age.

Spiced Herb Vinegar.

This is a valuable addition to sauces and salads, and a few drops added to a mince or hash will give it a piquant flavour. Put into a clean dry bottle one tablespoonful of finely-chopped chervil; one tablespoonful of tarragon, also chopped; one shallot, minced; one dozen peppercorns; a salt-spoonful of celery-seed, and one clove of garlic; pour over the herbs and spices half a pint of the best French vinegar; cork the bottle tightly and seal it with wax. In a week or ten days strain the vinegar through muslin into another bottle. It should be shaken two or three times while the herbs are being steeped in it.

If a cloth is wetted in vinegar and then wrung out as dry as possible with the hands and wrapped round cheese, and then the whole put in a large paper bag and kept in a cool place, the cheese will retain the moisture and freshness of a new-cut cheese, and will not mould.

Colial-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Württemberg.

Stuttgart. Für das hiesige Arbeitersekretariat ist der Sozialdemokrat Mattutat aus Augsburg gewählt worden. Mattutat ist von Beruf Drechsler und war in Berlin längere Zeit Vorsitzender der Arbeiter-Bildungsschule. Vor seiner Uebersiedelung nach Augsburg hatte er im vierten Berliner Wahlkreise das Amt eines Vertrauensmannes inne.

Biberach. Auf dem Wochenmarkt stürzte der 64jährige Schmied Kramer von Aufhofen, während er gerade mit Einkaufen von Kartoffeln beschäftigt war, vom Schlag gerührt, plötzlich todt nieder. Der Verstorbene war unter dem Namen „Stähleschmied" als Wunderdoktor und Thierarzt auf der Alb und im Oberland bekannt.

Bopfingen. Der 75 Jahre alte Thurmwächter August Nietzer beging mit seiner 80jährigen Frau das Fest der goldenen Hochzeit. Beide versehen noch immer den Hochwächterdienst.

Friedrichshafen. Die württembergische Dampfschifffahrts-Verwaltung läßt ein neues Bodensee-Salonboot erbauen. Württemberg hat bis jetzt acht Dampfboote, darunter drei Salonschiffe; das neueste, „Königin Charlotte," wurde im Jahre 1893 erbaut und kostete 240,100 Mark.

Maulbronn. Wegen der unter den Kindern herrschenden starken Diphtheritis-Epidemie sind durch Verfügung des Oberamts die Schulen geschlossen worden.

Niederstetten. Fürst Albert zu Hohenlohe-Jagstberg-Haltenbergstetten ist gestorben. Er war Mitglied der württembergischen Ersten Kammer.

Ulm. Die aus allen Theilen Deutschlands, besonders aus Württemberg, sehr zahlreich besuchte 51. Hauptversammlung des Gustav-Adolf-Vereins beschloß, die große Liebesgabe im Betrage von 19,287 Mark der Gemeinde Ostrowo (Posen) zuzuwenden und der aus Braunschweig überbrachten Einladung für 1899 zu folgen.

Baden.

Karlsruhe. Die Strafkammer verurtheilte den in weiteren Kreisen bekannten Rechtsagenten Dittes, früher in Mannheim, wegen Unterschlagung, Urkundenfälschung, Betrug und Untreue zu drei Jahren Gefängniß.—Postassistent Reichenbacher, ehemals Wachtmeister der Artillerie, fuhr mit seinem Rade so in ein Straßenfuhrwerk, daß ihm die Deichsel die Brust eindrückte und der Tod sofort erfolgte.

Heidelberg. Hier ist der Student der Medizin Krohn, welchem nachgewiesen wurde, daß er der Urheber der falschen Nachricht von dem angeblichen Attentat auf den Großherzog Friedrich von Baden war, polizeilich bestraft worden. Krohn hatte von Mannheim an die Kölner Börse telephonirt, daß in Straßburg ein Attentat auf den Großherzog verübt und daß diesem ein Finger der linken Hand abgeschossen worden sei.

Mannheim. Der Verleumdungssucht zweier Frauen ist die 15 Jahre alte Dina Moos hier zum Opfer gefallen. Dem Mädchen war von den beiden Frauen nachgesagt worden, daß sie ein Verhältniß angeknüpft habe. Hierüber alterirte sich das Mädchen dermaßen, daß es in den Floßhafen sprang, wo es als Leiche geländet wurde. Der Vater des Mädchens hat gegen die beiden Frauen eine Privatbeleidigungsklage angestrengt.

Weinheim. Wie verlautet, hat hier der Anarchist Lucheni, der Mörder der Kaiserin Elisabeth, im Jahre 1896 in den Steinbrüchen gearbeitet.

Elsaß-Lothringen.

Straßburg. Das reichsländische Preßgesetz trat vom 1. September ab in Wirksamkeit. Das Gesetz hält die Zeitungskautionen aufrecht, auch ermächtigt es das Ministerium, die Verbreitung einer außerhalb des Reichsgebietes erscheinenden Druckschrift oder einzelne Theile einer solchen in Elsaß-Lothringen zu verbieten.

Niederbronn. Hier wurde der Artillerist Jäger der 5. Batterie des Feld-Artillerie-Regiments Nr. 15 im Hofe der Wirthschaft „Zum weißen Hahnen" durch einen seiner Kameraden im Streit mit einem großen Messer erstochen. Der Thäter ist noch nicht ermittelt, doch wurden zwei der That verdächtige Artilleristen verhaftet. Der Getödtete, der verheirathet und Vater zweier Kinder ist, ist aus Oberschönau, Kreis Schmalkalden und sollte in den nächsten Tagen zur Reserve entlassen werden.

Great Grumblers

Grumbling Will Cease if Plainfield People Follow This Citizen's Advice

When the kidneys are sick they grumble.

You hear them clear through the back.

You feel them clear through the body.

They grumble when overtaxed.

Know how the kidneys grumble?

It's a simple thing; your back will tell you.

Backache is the first grumbling warning.

The kidneys give it and if you heed it not

Look out for trouble, it will surely come.

Urinary trouble, kidney trouble and many miseries.

Doan's Kidney Pills are made for kidneys only.

They cure every form of kidney ill.

The experience of Plainfield people proves this.

Here's a case in point:

Mrs. R. A. Martin, of No. 70 Jackson avenue, says: "I have had pains in my back and loins for about one year or more, no doubt caused by my kidneys being out of order. I felt it more in the morning just after getting up or if I did any stooping or lifting. Notwithstanding the fact that I took all kinds of medicines I never found anything which helped me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at L. W. Randolph's drug store. They not only removed the pain, but they have strengthened me in other ways. I can cheerfully recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering with a lame back."

Doan's Kidney Pills for sale by all dealers, price 50 cents per box. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N.Y. Sole agents for the U.S. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

Well, Mr. Merchant-who-thinks-of-advertising, this is only one of the many corners in THE DAILY PRESS—it isn't the best located one, either; we can give you better—and if this attracts your attention in our endeavor to tell you how good advertising will get you a hearing before the purchasing public, doesn't common sense teach you that if you were having people reading your trade story instead of you're reading our argument about it, that it would be better for your business.

THE DAILY PRESS reaches the purchasing public that makes the profits for the merchant.

We can give you big or little space—but in advertising it is'nt always economy to be sparing in your appropriation.

SCHOOL BOOK FACTS.

CHANGES IN HISTORIES AND GEOGRAPHIES CAUSED BY THE WAR.

Printing Presses Working Night and Day Create a Supply That Would Make the Capitol Look Almost Like a Mole Hill In Comparison.

So far, this year has been a busier one among those who write, edit and publish school histories and geographies than any since the close of the civil war. For this has been a year of history making and the history has been of the sort that changes maps.

The publishers began to see the probability of a busy summer in midwinter. When the Maine was blown up these probabilities became certainties. That disaster required no change in geographies, however, and, in the circumstances, none was made then in the histories. Had the ship's destruction come at the beginning of a regular school year, however, instead of near its close, there would have been a great overhauling. As it was, nothing was done till the breaking out of the war. Then the plates of every one of the United States school histories were revised to suit the facts.

The expense was not excessive in the case of any one history, since it involved as a rule the preparation, type setting and electrotyping of no more than a page or two of "matter," and in some elementary histories only a few lines. But in the aggregate the outlay must have been considerable, for there are more than 100 United States school histories on the market, a single publishing house in New York having 25.

As soon as the beginning of the war had been tacked onto the end of the histories the plates were put on the presses and the printing of the regular summer editions was begun. This is the ordinary custom with school book publishers, who must, of course, be well stocked up with thousands of new books for the beginning of every fall term. But the course of events was hardly expected to run as smoothly as usual this summer, and instead of starting the presses for a straight-away run until near the close of August, it was generally understood that yet another edition might need to be made.

When Santiago fell the presses were stopped, and the plates taken off. The additions and corrections then to be made were considerably more important than the earlier ones. In some cases several pages had to be entirely recast. It being inexpedient to increase the size of the books—this would involve great inconvenience and a disproportionate additional expense in paper, press work, etc.,—there had to be much compression in order to get the new matter in and that, of course, set a small army of editors and condensers at work.

They worked rapidly, however, and when a week had rolled round the history presses were grinding again. Thousands of books had been printed and bound in the meantime, however, in which no mention was made of the surrender. For these books the publishers printed single additional sheets or supplements, which were afterward pasted in, thus bringing all the summer's output so far up to date. Owing to the delay that had been experienced, the presses when started again were driven rather harder than customary. But the rush of press work did not last long. Spain cried for mercy sooner than the publishers expected, and when that cry came the presses were stopped again and the editors and condensers addressed themselves anew to the task of revision. At the same time new supplements had to be prepared, to take the place of those inserted a few days before which now were destroyed by the thousand.

Some of the publishers got a little nervous while the negotiations that resulted in the protocol were pending, for fear the delay would be so great as to render it impossible to complete the third edition in time for the opening of the schools and some were obliged to continue printing without any revision. In most cases, however, the second stoppage of the presses lasted until the protocol was signed. Tens of thousands of pupils, therefore, found a complete, though much condensed synopsis of the Spanish war in the body of their histories when they began work this fall, and hundreds of thousands found virtually the same synopsis pasted in at the back. At least one concern furnishes the additional leaf free to all requesting it who own old copies of the United States histories it publishes.

Changes in the geographies seemed necessary when Santiago fell, but they were slight, and related only to the maps showing the West Indies. When the protocol was signed and Spain virtually gave up both Cuba and Porto Rico more extensive changes were necessary both in the color blocks and the insertion of lettering showing that these islands now belong to the United States.

In the aggregate the geography changes involved more expense than the history changes, text as well as maps having to be revised in all save the most elementary books. Besides there are many more geography text books than histories, a single New York house publishing nearly 100 works in which map changes had to be made.

Map-changing is much less expensive now-a-days, however, than it was in the sixties. Then, although all geography maps were printed from lithographic stones, they had first to be laboriously engraved on copper. After a map had been engraved a careful "proof" was taken and it was transferred to the stone for printing, the copper plate being kept from which to take new and fresh proofs when the lithograph wore out. When changes were necessary they were always made in the plate, it being impossible to alter a lithograph.

The old combination of engraving and lithographing is still adhered to by most English and European map publishers, but in the United States the "wax process" is now employed almost universally. This process is simple, quick and comparatively inexpensive. A smooth plate of metal is coated evenly with wax, the lines of the map are scratched through the wax, exposing the metal, the lettering is stamped through with steel type and the plate is suspended in a regular electrotyping bath. The result is a "shell" showing lines and lettering in raised or relief lines. The shell, "backed up," makes a plate which can be used alongside of type in an ordinary press. When changes are necessary the part to be changed is cut away and a new section of plate is made and soldered in. Unless the changes are too extensive, is is possible to revise a map by this process in a single day, and thus map revision may be introduced in the middle of an edition without any great or annoying delay.

No data are at hand from which to compute the cost of the changes in histories or geographies which have been made necessary by the Spanish war, but it has certainly run well up into the thousands, and there is likely to be more history making soon, more changes will probably be necessary before the end of the year. Some notion of the total expense involved may be gained from the statement that the publishers of a well known encyclopedia had to expend $30,000 in the typographical correction made necessary to bring the statements in the work into line with the figures of the census of 1890.

It should be understood, however, that little of the expense of the recent changes in school histories and geographies falls on the purchasers. It has to be borne by the publishers, whose charge for a revised text book is necessarily the same as for one not brought down to date. In some cases old books will probably be discarded for new editions, but the total percentage of geography and history sales from this cause is expected to be only a small percentage of the whole.

Although this year's changes have been and will be more extensive than usual, there is no year that school book publishers are not put to some expense of this sort. Big concerns keep a staff of men constantly on the watch for news from all over the world. Whenever an explorer finds a new mountain, lake or river; whenever there is a straightening of a boundary line due to war or diplomacy; whenever some Arctic traveller makes a new "furthest north" mark, the maps and histories are overhauled. Whenever a national election is held or a sweeping change is made in the currency laws, or an important treaty is negotiated, the histories have to be revised. The discovery of gold in the Klondike region changed the maps of Northwest America. The annexation of the Hawaiian Islands made it necessary to insert the line "Belong to the United States" in the maps and to interpolate a few lines in all the histories.

The people of the United States spend about ten cents a year for each man, woman and child in the country on school books. In 1897, then, the outlay was about $7,500,000. In two years enough is paid for school books to build a Brooklyn bridge. In one year the outlay would equal the expense of building two battle ships.

A six-year-old, while visiting at the house of a friend, accidentally tripped and fell down about six of a flight of stairs. Running to the little one's assistance, Mrs. R., after picking the tot up, asked:

"Did you hurt yourself, dear?"

"No—no'm," she replied sobbingly.

"How many steps did you fall down?"

CHAPTER VI.

Gregory Latimar occupied himself in walking restlessly to and fro in the shabby little study while his message was taken up-stairs to Elizabeth.

He was not in the least prepared for the change which the short week of grief and regret had wrought in Elizabeth. When the door opened slowly and the girl came in, her cousin was startled. He had pulled up one of the blinds, and, as he went forward and took Elizabeth's two small cold hands in his, he was conscious of pain that was almost fear. She had such a pale spiritless air; she looked so frail, so forelorn, so desolate.

"Dear Elizabeth," he said tenderly, "I hope you are well enough to come down to see me; I would not have troubled you, but that—"

Elizabeth let her hands rest in his.

"I wanted to come, Gregory," she made answer; "I wanted to thank you and Feo for all your great kindness this week. It—it is not very easy to speak of it just yet!"

Gregory drew her to a chair.

"Gregory," the girl said involuntarily, "what an awful thing death is! I do not think I shall ever begin to understand its full, its awful meaning! I—I cannot believe that she is gone from us for ever—that she will never speak again! Last night I thought she called me. I was full of happiness for a moment; my heart stood still. I had not gone to bed—I was waiting, as I have waited so often, in the passage outside her room, and it seemed to me that I could have knelt down and thanked Heaven for that one moment of relief. But it lasted only for a moment; the next I had pushed upon the door. All was dark; there was no sound. I——"

"'Dear Elizabeth,' he said, tenderly, 'I hope you are well enough to come down to see me.'"

Elizabeth covered her face with her hands, whilst Gregory stood by, deeply moved, yet not knowing what to say or do. Elizabeth recovered herself before he had time to speak.

"Please forgive me, Gregory," she said hurriedly. "I am detaining you; you want to speak to me on business. I—I think I know what it is."

"You have received grandmother's letter?" Gregory said, trying to be as business-like as he could. "Mr. Saville told me that he had forwarded it to you."

"Did he tell you of the contents?" Elizabeth asked, not bitterly, but in a dull tired sort of way; and she passed her hand over her eyes as she spoke.

Gregory shook his head.

"He could scarcely do that, since the letter was addressed to you, Elizabeth dear," he said gently, yet with just a suggestion of reproach in his manner.

"Of course; I forgot." The girl's voice was still tired and dull; then she smiled, a curious flickering smile. "But Mr. Saville is so clever!" she added.

Gregory had another uncomfortable sensation, and the suspicious feeling he experienced after the reading of the will returned to him. As Elizabeth continued speaking, however, the misgiving passed once more from the young man's mind.

"You want to tell me about the will, do you not, Gregory? But I think I know all that there is to know; grannie"—her voice faltered a little—"grannie put down full particulars in her letter to me."

Gregory gave a sigh of relief.

"And you are not disappointed, dear?" he asked tenderly.

Elizabeth looked at him inquiringly.

"Disappointed about the money? Oh, no, no!"—she spoke with absolute sincerity.

"Poor little Elizabeth!" he said, with a pitying smile. "You are as different from all the rest as chalk is from cheese. They are so disappointed, Elizabeth—some of them are almost in tears!" It was impossible for Gregory's voice to be anything but contemptuous as he uttered his concluding words.

"What did they expect?" the girl asked, with equal contempt. "Grannie would never recognize any of them, and she was always consistent." She sighed faintly. "What a horrible thing it is—this rushing and clamoring after money! Is there one of them here to-day who cared a pin about her, who understood her or desired to understand her, who is experiencing one sincere real regret at her loss? Gregory, the world is very, very selfish—utterly abominable!"

Gregory smiled; there was a touch of Feo's impatient anger in Elizabeth's speech.

"Some of the people in it are bad and unscrupulous, but not all, dear. You have had a rough experience, poor little Elizabeth; but we are going to change all that now—Feo and I. How soon do you think you will be ready to come to us? We shall, of course, go out of town the moment you join us. Feo is in a perfect fever to carry you off to Courtleigh without delay."

Elizabeth shrank back in her chair.

"Ah, then you do not know," she said hurriedly—"it was not in the will?"

"What," asked Gregory Latimar, looking at Elizabeth in a puzzled sort of way—"what was not in the will, Elizabeth?"

"Grannie's wishes about me and my future life."

He knitted his brows.

"There was nothing set down except the legacy of fifty pounds a year and the appointment of Richard Saville as your guardian."

Elizabeth's lips trembled slightly; she looked down at her two small hands lying clasped on her knees; they showed very white, very delicate against the rusty black of her shabby old gown, yet Elizabeth felt a thrill of pride as she realized that, for all their seeming frailty, they could be strong, as indeed she fully intended them to be.

"I might have known better than to imagine that she—she would put the secret wishes of her heart into a document that must be read by all the world; yet you seemed to know everything, Gregory. I thought from your manner that there was nothing to tell." Elizabeth paused for a few seconds; then she spoke more deliberately. "Surely, if you are ignorant of grannie's commands to me—for they are more than wishes—Mr. Saville at least is better informed!"

"I do not know anything about that, Elizabeth, dear," Mr. Latimar said, feeling unconsciously that his wife's anticipated pleasure as regarded Elizabeth was about to be utterly dispelled. "I know only what I gathered from the reading of the will and what Mr. Saville himself told me, which amounted to nothing more than that he had been deputed by the poor old lady to send you a letter left by her in his charge the moment he should hear the news of her death. More than that I do not know, nor," Gregory added, with sincere loyalty to his friend—"nor, Elizabeth dear, do I imagine Saville knows anything either."

"Very probably you are right, Gregory. After all, if as you say, grannie made no mention in the will of her commands concerning me, it is scarcely likely that Mr. Saville can know about them. I—I wish"—Elizabeth's wan face was dyed with color for an instant—"I wish I could keep him in ignorance of them altogether; but I suppose that is not possible!"

She moved restlessly in her chair. Gregory Latimar stretched out his hand and took one of hers in his firm strong clasp.

"Tell me about the old lady's wishes, Elizabeth," he said tenderly.

The girl gave a smothered sigh.

"They are short, simple, and comprehensive," she said, "and they lie in two directions. Grannie's first request is that I should marry Mr. Saville, by which plan I may become a sharer in the money she has left him. Fortunately she does not insist upon this arrangement." Sympathetic as Gregory Latimar undoubtedly was, even he could not guess what it cost this proud highly-strung girl to disclose this part of her grandmother's wishes. "But she evidently desired it very much. If I refuse to carry out her request, I am to go to a school kept by a Mrs. Proctor, an old friend of grannie's, at a place called Little Stonebury. There I am to occupy a post of governess-pupil until I am sufficiently educated to become a governess myself. I know what is passing in your mind, dear Gregory," the girl said softly, in a voice that was low and inexpressibly tender, "and it pains me to think that there should be any disappointment to you or to my dear Feo where I am concerned; but"—Elizabeth rose abruptly and hurriedly paced the room for a minute; when she spoke again her voice barely rose above a whisper, her face was half averted, but Gregory could see that its pallor was extreme, that even her lips were pale and drawn—"there can be no question of my opposing this second wish at least," the girl said slowly, "for I agree absolutely with grandmother. I see—I know how right she is—how right she has always been—how just even in her terrible sorrow. Gregory, you—you must help me in this—you must stand by me. You must support me in my determination, for I am not born to such a life as dear Feo would give me. I have no place in her world. The—the story of my mother——"

Elizabeth stopped abruptly; she turned away from her cousin, and he saw her hands steal up and cover her face.

Strong man as he was, tears rushed suddenly into his eyes. He went up to her, and, with all the tenderness of a father or a brother, took her in his arms.

Dear Elizabeth, be brave and trust me," he said, as he brushed her hair from her brow with a touch that was caressing and soothing. "Whatever you may ask of me you know I will do. I am not only your cousin, I am your brother too. You must never forget that, Elizabeth; and you must promise me that you will always turn to me when you have need of a brother." As he spoke he put her back gently into her chair. "Now we will sit down and discuss things calmly," he said as cheerily as he could. "Please let me know your exact wishes, dear. You will at least let me arrange everything for you, will you not? I feel sure you are anxious to get away from here as soon as possible."

Elizabeth eagerly acknowledged it. Her voice broke a little as she tried to thank him for his unfailing sympathy.

"You are so good, Gregory!" she said hurriedly. "You understand so fully! Grannie always said your heart should have belonged to a woman."

Then she wiped her eyes with her handkerchief, and her voice and manner grew as composed as they were when she had first meet him. Her pain, her disturbance of spirit, had been soothed by her cousin's delicate consideration, by his quiet acceptance of her decision, and by his matter-of-fact yet gentle way of dealing with the new state of things.

"I have already written to this Mrs. Proctor," she said. "I fully expect that she has had some communication from Grannie, and will therefore be prepared for my letter. No doubt I shall get an answer to-morrow. Little Stonebury is not far from London—is is, Gregory. Looking back, I remember now that Grannie used to go there, but that was when I was quite little. So far as I know, she has not been to the place the last year or two."

"Little Stonebury?" Gregory said thoughtfully. "Let me see. It is somewhere near the South Coast, is it not? I suppose it will take about an hour or so to reach it by train from Charing Cross."

He was not thinking very deeply of Little Stonebury or its distance from London as he said this. He was cogitating, in a half puzzled fashion, over the quiet determination with which Elizabeth had dismissed the first wish expressed in her grandmother's letter. In his opinion a marriage with Richard Saville was one that any woman might have desired, even putting the fact of his newly-acquired wealth out of the question altogether. Yet there was no mistaking Elizabeth's attitude towards such a feature. She had done nothing more than just mention the proposal her grandmother had made; but there was something in the girl's manner, in the coldness of her voice, in the tone of contempt with which she uttered Mr. Saville's name that impressed Gregory most uncomfortably.

TO BE CONTINUED.

ROSARIES NOT FOR CATHOLICS ONLY

Without the Cross They Are Used by the Followers of Buddha.

The prevailing idea in regard to a rosary is that it belongs solely to the followers of the Catholic religion. But take away the cross that is hanging to the beads and we find that one must turn to the dim, mysterious East for the origin of the rosary, for it is among the temples of India, China and Japan that the first sign of the practice is to be found. Ancient pictures of the Hindoo gods depict them with chaplets of beads in their hands, and it is believed that this method of keeping count of their many prayers was in use among the Hindoos before the era of Buddha, or at least B. C. 500.

The use of the rosary seems especially suited to an Eastern clime and to the repose of an Oriental mind. The Buddhists are fond of using very smooth beads of glass, polished jade or coral, and it has been thought that the smooth, cool beads gliding through their fingers as they murmur the holy name for thousands of times help them to arrive at that state of holy abstraction from earthly things which is so much prized among the followers of Buddha.

The favorite Japanese rosaries are made of polished wood, crystal, onyx and chased silver, and the Japanese Buddhists repeat in endless devotion "Numa Amida Butzu" (Save us, Buddha), while their Chinese brothers have the blessed name "O-Mi-to-fu" forever on their lips. A rosary of very great size was recently brought from a temple in Kioto, Japan. The largest bead is about six inches in diameter, and the rosary entire is about twenty-four feet long. The huge beads are of dark brown polished wood. They are hollow and have each a figure of a god inside the little shrine, which can be seen through a lattice of brass work.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Hindu Child Wife.

A Hindu child-wife divides her year in two intervals, one of which she spends with her parents, this being a sort of vacation time, and the other she spends at the house of her husband's parents, this being the time of daily downright drudgery. Village girls in Bengal blacken their teeth with mishi, a coloring powder. The lips are black also, and this is supposed to make them exceedingly charming.

Writing letters, especially to her husband, is thought to be a fearful immodesty in a Hindu girl; and she has no chance of improving her mind by intelligent conversation with any one. She must write to her husband, though she has to do it by stealth in the night. The moon is her lamp, a stick out of the domestic broom her pen, the juice of the puin berry her ink, and probably the dried leaf of the banana her paper. A Hindu girl must always keep the inner apartment of the house. She is only let out when she goes to draw water for the household either from the pond or the well or the river. Hence the waterside is a great feminine resort, a sort of women's club, where there is much gossiping and plenty of stolen leisure.—Christian Register.

"No, I tell you this thing of gobbling islands can't be a paying business." "What are your reasons for thinking so?" "Nobody has tried to organize it into a trust."—Chicago Daily News.

ON THE GRIDIRON.

In Saturday's football games at Yale University, an account of which was given in yesterday's Mail and Express, Raymond McGee, of Orchard place, was given his share of praise.

With the football season fairly under way, there seems very little prospect of last year's Alis team putting in an appearance this year. Instead, the boys who played last year under the name of the Alis second are likely to drop the "second" and become the successors of Plainfield's crack junior team of last season. The Alis second had a game arranged for last Saturday morning at Westfield but the rain prevented any playing. Now the game is set for next Saturday morning at Westfield. "Hal" Phillips, the captain of the Alis second, brother of the captain and organizer of the original Alis team, has also started negotiations with the team from the Battin High School at Elizabeth. He is also scheduling several other games with out of town teams.

Plainfield is unusually honored this year on the collegiate gridiron. Two of the players who learned the game on the local gridiron have gone to Yale and are now both strong candidates for places on the varsity eleven of Yale University. Last year, Raymond A. McGee won the position as regular substitute for left tackle. This year, he is considered one of the best candidates for that place. He has also been tried at centre but is better at tackle. If Rodgers does not return, McGee is the next man for the position in order of experience which will count considerably. Charles Dupee won honors last year as full back on the Freshman team. He was then picked out as a rusher of the real Yale standard. He is now in a lively race with McBride who has had more experience and is an older player but Dupee is showing up wonderfully. The football critics of Sun and Tribune have both selected him as the best punter on the Yale team. While playing against the 'varsity team, he has scored probably more than any other back. His ability as a running, dodging back have been particularly meritorious. The movements of these two young men from this city have been watched with much interest by their friends here. Saturday, both of them played against Williams College.

GOLF.

The board of trustees of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club will hold a meeting tomorrow night at the Park Club. They will take action on the application for membership, and probably will set some date for a formal opening.

A junior team of six from the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club has arranged a match for tomorrow afternoon with a team from Leals' School. There are a number of the crack young golfers of the city who attend that school and they are longing for a match with their rivals who don't go there. One match has already been played and the non-scholastic team won twenty up. The Leal team will be composed of George Richards, Frank Talmage, Carroll L. Runyon, Owen Fleming, Will Townsend and Aubrey Crowe. The other six will be Gus Fisk, Charles Fisk, Harvey Fisk, Morris Dumont, Carl L. Walz and Whitney Baker.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Last night was opening night in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. About twenty-five members of the physical department were on the floor with the physical director, C. E. A. Heywood, and went through a short drill of easy movements. There was a large crowd in the gallery looking on, and the evening was profitably spent. Some of the men are a little rusty after the summer's vacation, but the most of them went through the drill with credit to themselves. After the drill a game of basket ball was played between two picked teams of seven men each. James Stafford captained one team and Thomas Stafford the other. James Stafford's team won by a small score. The classes will be organized as soon as possible, and in a few weeks the gymnasium will be running as usual.

Mr. Marsh's Legal Victory.

Craig A. Marsh has long been recognized as one of the ablest lawyers in the State, and the public have come to expect him to win cases which he undertakes, but the Endicott divorce case has, perhaps, more than any other, put his powers to a supreme test and gained for him a reputation beyond the State lines.

MANY WANTED TO BATHE.

MIODOVNIK HAD 336 DISAPPOINTED CUSTOMERS.

He Would Have Charged Twenty-five Cents a Piece, and Now He Wants Plumber Thorn to Pay for His Loss.

Justice Smalley spent the greater part of yesterday hearing the case for damages of David Miodovnik, the West Front street barber against A. B. Thorn, a plumber. The suit was for $200 damages.

Some time ago Thorn placed a heating apparatus in Dave's barber shop. Dave refused to pay for the work, claiming that the furnace was not what the plumber agreed to put in. Thorn sued Dave in Justice Morsher's court and secured a judgment against him for the full amount of the claim.

Instead of settling this, Dave turned around and sued Thorn, claiming $200 damages, setting forth his claim on gas pipe, carpenter's work, painting and 336 baths at 25 cents apiece, which he was not able to accommodate his customers with because the bath tub was not in order. It seems that every time a customer came in for a bath Dave would put down his name and the date, and count it as 25 cents loss.

The plaintiff was represented by Counsellor W. K. McClure and the defendant by Counsellor W. S. Angleman. The trial lasted from 10 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, with a recess for luncheon, and after hearing the evidence the Justice reserved his decision for a week.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Rufus C. Larue, of West Fourth street, has malarial fever.

Senator Reed and family, of the borough, have returned from Belmar.

Fred Leland, of West Second street, has gone south for his health.

Dr. Daniel Thickstun, of Central avenue, has gone to Belmar for a few days.

J. B. Mosher, of East Fifth street, is spending his vacation at Alfred, N. Y.

George Mehl is on duty at Alert hose house today, during the absence of Driver William Townley.

Justice Nash, one of the grand officers of the A. O. U. W., visited Unique Lodge, of Jersey City, last evening.

The marriage of Miss Bessie Blair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey Blair, to Samuel Case, of Westervelt avenue, will be celebrated Thursday evening next at the bride's home on East Second street.

'TWAS MURRAY'S WHEEL.

After it Was Found E. F. Murray Discovered He Had Lost It.

The wheel that was so unceremoniously dropped near Stelle avenue Sunday evening and was afterwards taken possession of by Patrolman Vanderweg, has proved to be the property of Assemblyman Roger F. Murray, of Madison avenue. The wheel was left in a shed at the rear of Mr. Murray's residence and the door to the shed was left unlocked. When Mr. Murray looked for his wheel Monday morning it was not there.

By comparing notes with the police, however, it has since been shown that Mr. Murray's missing wheel and the unclaimed one found by the policeman were all one and the same. The officer saw it in the possession of the stranger at about 8:30 o'clock, so it seems that the bicycle thieves began their work early in the evening.

TALLYING VOTES.

Another Scheme for Politicians Devised by Roger Murray.

The election officers of the city, together with the prominent politicians, have been invited to meet at the Republican headquarters Friday evening, to listen to an explanation by Assemblyman Roger F. Murray as to a new system of keeping tally of the votes that he has originated. The new scheme has its object to prevent many of the errors that sometimes creep into the tallying, no matter how efficient the election officers. The system is a modification of one used in other towns, has several advantages which Mr. Murray has added. Friday night he will explain the system in all its details and will advocate its use by the local election officers. Those who have heard it explained pronounce it a decided improvement.

Wreck on the Central.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Lebanon, October 11.—About two o'clock this morning, a loaded coal train east bound separated in the middle and about forty cars were wrecked, blocking all tracks on the Central Railroad. All of the east bound passengers were delayed until 8 o'clock. There was no loss of life.

Putting in New Ties.

VOORHEES STILL STAYS.

HE MAY NOT RESIGN AS GOVERNOR TILL NEXT WEEK.

Speaker Watkins Wants All the Important Business to be Got Out of the Way Before He Becomes Acting-Governor.

(Special To The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Oct. 11—Governor Voorhees will not resign as Senator from Union, president of the Senate and Acting-Governor today as had been announced. He will probably hold office until next Tuesday. He may remain in office ten days, and still there will be time for nominations to be made in Union county for a man to succeed him.

The reason of this change of plan is that there are several matters relative to the State institutions and other affairs which will have to be attended to by the Acting-Governor between this and the installation of the Governor elected in November. Speaker Watkins, of the Assembly, declines to do more than formally hold the office of Acting-Governor. He declines to exercise any of the rights of Governor unless something unforseen and pressing requires him to do so. In the coming week Governor Voorhees will transact as far as possible all the business of the office, and then Mr. Watkins will fill out the term. Mr. Voorhees intended to leave the matters requiring attention in the remainder of the term to Mr. Watkins, but the latter says the portion of the term remaining is too short to warrant him to exercise the powers of the office any more than circumstances may require.

Miss Ella Boice, of W. A. Woodruff's insurance office, has returned from a pleasant trip to Niagara Falls.

An Odorless Onion.

A late product of scientific propagation is the odorless onion. Just how an onion can be odorless and still remain an onion is not explained. To most people the odor is all there is of an onion, and that is enough. The elimination of the characteristic feature of a vegetable of such long and strong standing in natural history ought to be reckoned among the proudest achievements of man. But an onion deprived of that delicious tang and the penetrating scent which goes with it can hardly be an onion. The palate which loves will not recognize it; calling a whitened, innocuous, insipid, plated bulb an onion will not make it one.

No true lover of onions will hail this new invasion of science. He eats his onion at dead of night in silence and solitude. He rejoices in it and sleeps upon it. The incense of his praise fills the room and soothes him to delicious sleep. He rises in the morning after his sacrifice to pass the day in purification, to see no one until the sun hath sunk. It is a luxury and a worship. Shall he yield all his delight for an odorless bulb? Let others do as they will, he will not. An onion without its odor would be ashamed of itself.—Milwaukee Journal.

Not a Cannon Ball Among Them.

A charge of poor gunnery was brought against the captain of the Yen Ste Chang, one of the largest battle-ships that escaped, with but little injury, from the battle at Port Arthur, in the late war between China and Japan. After Li Hung Chang read the charges, Captain Le Chen Fue asked that a dozen shells be brought from the vessel. They were brought before him and laid in a row. "Can you wonder that we were defeated when our shells were like these?" asked the captain; and, drawing his sword, he brought it down on a shell, causing it to split open and disclose a filling of sawdust and red brick. The witnesses of this action were so surprised that they stood motionless while he struck the twelve shells in rapid succession, and with the same result. It is quite likely that the thought came to each mind. "Suppose the last should not be as the others,—a sham!" But such was not the case. There was not a real cannon ball among the lot. As soon as the astonished Li Hung Chang could speak, he dismissed the case, returning to the captain the sword which he had surrendered a moment before.—Success.

A Cruel Blow Well Answered.

The late Benjamin H. Brewster, President Arthur's Attorney-General, whose face was terribly disfigured by scars, was once engaged in a case as attorney for the Pennsylvania Railroad, and the opposing counsel, in his closing speech, made a most brutal attack on him. "The dealings of the railroad," he said, "are as tortuous and twisted as the features of the man who represented it."

Mr. Brewster gave no outward sign that he felt this cruel blow until he had finished his argument. Then he said: "For the first time in my life the personal defect from which I suffer has been the subject of public remark. I will tell you how I came by it. When I was 5 years of age, I was one day playing with a younger sister, when she fell into an open grate where a fire was burning. I sprang to her assistance, dragged her from danger, and in so doing I fell myself, with my face upon the burning coals. When I was picked up my face was as black"—and his finger transfixed his antagonist—"as that man's heart."—San Francisco Argonaut.

A CLAY SPOUTING WELL.

This Freak of Nature Is In Evidence Before a Wind or Rain Storm.

The government artesian well at Lower Brule agency is certainly a freak of its kind, says The Omaha Bee. Originally the pressure threw a solid six inch stream of water to a height of twenty-one feet above the top of the well casing. Subsequently the pipe became temporarily choked up, and at such times the water would not flow at all for periods of two or three days. Then without apparent cause the pipe would suddenly become clear and the water would again spout to the height of twenty-one feet. After continuing for a few days, during which time it almost constantly spouted large quantities of sand, it would once more become choked and cease to flow. This became so frequent and regular that in time the agency employees became accustomed to it and paid no particular attention to the freakiness of the well, which is constantly under their observation. But now the matter has taken another and more peculiar turn. Arrivals from the agency report that, commencing about three weeks ago, the well has been at intervals forcing out apparently endless quantities of blue clay. This in itself is nothing strange, but the manner in which the clay is carried through the pipe is something out of the ordinary. The blue clay entirely fills the six-inch pipe and arises slowly above the top of the casing, exactly as sausages emerge from a sausage machine, until the top is so high in the air that it becomes overbalanced, when five or six feet topples over upon the ground. The continued upward movement of the clay in a few minutes causes more of the column to topple over. This has continued until circular pieces of the blue clay aggregating several hundred feet in length have been deposited on the ground adjacent to the well, necessitating the employment of men to remove the huge deposits before the top of the casing becomes completely buried. The discharges of blue clay are accompanied by very little water, and the clay, probably from the great pressure required to force it up through the well casing, is always as dry and hard as a brick. Another peculiarity is that these eruptions invariably commence a short time prior to the advent of windy or stormy weather and continue until the weather again becomes settled.

THE PARROT AND THE QUEEN.

She Was Glad To Find One Voice That Was Not Afraid To Speak the Truth.

In Windsor Castle there is a suite of rooms for the use of the queen's chaplain. A private passage connects the chaplain's study with the queen's apartments, and she frequently repairs there to consult him on important matters. One day, as the queen was returning to her apartments after an interview a parrot called out some words in a cross tone of voice from its cage in the passage. Failing to understand the sounds, says Tid Bits, the queen turned to the chaplain and asked:

"What is the parrot saying?"

With much embarrassment he replied: "If you please, your majesty, I would rather not repeat it."

"But what was it?" she said.

"Something I fear your majesty will not like, therefore I hope your majesty will excuse me from telling it."

The queen's curiosity was now thoroughly aroused, and she said: "Come, I insist."

The chaplain bowed low and made answer: "Since your majesty insists, the parrot said 'Go along, you ugly old woman.'"

Queen Victoria laughed heartily as she said: "Well, I am glad there is at least one voice in the kingdom which is not afraid to tell me what it thinks of me."

Women in Canada.

The women of French Canadian households work themselves out sooner than the men, who, as a rule, marry again very quickly. A girl, too, considers it a disgrace if she hasn't a beau to see her home from church. A little habitant servant of fifteen was found in tears by her mistress one Sunday morning. "What is the matter with you, Celestine?" asked her mistress. "It's the first Sunday since I was twelve I haven't had a young man to walk with," sobbed Celestine. "Think, madam, of the disgrace!" "But how about Jean Seguin?" "Oh, last night Jean came in to say he had met a girl with a cow and a featherbed, and he liked her better than me, and wanted his presents back. Don't be sorry for me, madam. I'll try to get another beau before this afternoon and be married first, just to spite him." Five minutes later she sailed forth in cherry-colored ribbons in search of a fresh beau, and brought him back in triumph to dinner.—Buffalo Commercial.

Score One For "My Lady."

Lady Blessington, who was accorded the name of "the gorgeous," when Prince Louis Napoleon, the last Emperor of the French, was in exile in London, was remarkably courteous to him, extending her hospitality in the most lavish way. After his accession to the throne of France she was in Paris for a season, and somewhat naturally looked forward to an invitation from the Tuileries. Time passed and none came. But at a sumptuous ball given elsewhere the Emperor passed in the full splendor of his triumph. Catching sight of his benefactress, he smiled and said: "Ah, Lady Blessington! You remain in Paris for a time?" "Yes, sire," said she; "and you?"—San Francisco Argonaut.

TEMPERANCE DRINKS POISONOUS.

Proved by the Death of a Noted Teetotaler from Their Excessive Use.

The death in England by delirium tremens of a noted teetotaller, through the excessive use of so-called non-alcoholic drinks, has caused an investigation of the subject to be made by the Daily Mail. A distinguished physician in an interview reveals to a reporter of the journal quoted the outcome of his experience. "I am inclined to think," he says, "that a large proportion of the drinkers of supposed non-stimulants find it an excellent way in which to swallow their principles and their alcohol without endangering their reputations as total abstainers." There are numberless cases, this physician asserts, within his knowledge of persons who would not wittingly touch a glass of spirits upon any consideration, and yet who are passing through the slow stages of alcoholic poisoning owing to the so-called temperance beverages. The physician cites the case of a woman, who is sincere, and glories in her principles of total abstinence, and yet who from drinking a certain tonic wine is being slowly but surely poisoned with alcohol. It is not the cocaine contained in it that is the more dangerous element; it is the alcohol with which it is combined that renders it so insidious and fatal. The physician is glad that attention is being called to the quality of these so-named temperance drinks. The amount of damage wrought by them he looks upon as appalling.

TO PLAY FOOTBALL ON ELECTION DAY.

Plainfield Team Will Gather for That Occasion.

A VERY STRONG LINE-UP.

WILL MEET THE SAN REMOS, OF THE NEW YORK A. C.

A Brief Sketch of the Eleven That Will Represent Plainfield in the Game—The Same Management—The Game to Be Played on the Martine Field—A Strong Team Picked Out.

While football is attracting lots of attention throughout the country, there has been little of it in Plainfield. The announcement that the Plainfield team could not be gotten together this season was discouraging indeed, and so far no other team has taken the lead. Now, however, the management of the local eleven comes forward with the glad news that there will be a game here Election Day, and that Plainfield will be represented by one of the strongest teams that has ever lined up on a local gridiron.

While the boys found that they could not get off to play regularly every Saturday afternoon, all were anxious to get together again on the holidays. Of course, it will necessitate some practice and training. That will begin next week and continue up to the time of the game, Tuesday, Nov. 8th.

The same committee that looked after the interests of the team last year will take charge for the Election Day game which will be played on the Martine Field. The opposing team will be the San Remos from the New York Athletic Club. As the N. Y. A. C. has no regular team in the field this season, the San Remos practically constitute the representative team from that well-known athletic organization. The team has been changed somewhat and considerably strengthened. Most of the players are old college men and they are particularly anxious to meet their old rivals from Plainfield.

So far there have been three games between the San Remos and the Plainfield team. Each team has secured one victory while the third game was a tie. The game on Election Day will be the deciding one and consequently will be particularly hard fought.

The eleven that will represent Plainfield will be very strong and will average 170 pounds. Thomas A. Cuming will be back at his old place at centre. Cuming is rather light for the place, but the fact that he will have Ed Brown on one side and "Shorty" Milne on the other will make the centre trio a strong one. Cuming is particularly quick and makes up in that what he lacks in weight. The guards have already been mentioned. For tackles, W. L. McClure and Fletcher Hallock will fill the places very ably. Louis Waring will return to his original place at end, where he is at his best, while Edgar I. Serrell, who showed up there so well last season, will look after the other end.

Behind the line "Ted" Freeman is going to try his luck at quarter, where his speed will be appreciated. George Cathcart is not to be excelled as a line-bucking half and will be in place. Thomas U. Smith will act as half back and do much of the running. At full back, Henry L. McGee will be particularly valuable. He is a good all-round back while he has the faculty of punting a long and low ball which is exceedingly difficult to catch. With such a line-up, Plainfield will be well represented and need have no fear that her boys will not look well to her honor on the gridiron.

MANUFACTURE OF ARTIFICIAL ICE IN PLAINFIELD.

Water Congealed to Thickness of Five Inches at the Hygeia's Plant—A Demand Made for the Product Already.

The plant of the Plainfield Hygeia Ice Company is now in full working order and ice to the thickness of five inches has thus far been made. The plant was started Saturday last and everything from the start has worked satisfactory. It is expected that by the last of this week ice will be harvested. It is not to be expected that the first crop of ice will be as clear as that which will be made afterward. The finishing touches about the place are now being made and by the last of the week everything will be completed. A number of visitors have called at the place and have been surprised to see what an industry the company has established. The interior as well as the exterior presents a neat and attractive appearance. The machinery is getting down to fine working order and considering that everything is new it works remarkably smooth.

Owing to the fact that the company is anxious to see how the first crop of ice will turn out, the process of freezing is being pushed rapidly. Yesterday afternoon DeWitt C Ivins and H. G. Runkle, of the company, called at the plant and expressed great satisfaction over the working of the plant.

As soon as the first crop is harvested the work of filling the storage houses will commence and the ice not sold will be placed away as a surplus stock. There is already a demand for the ice.

DEATH CAME SUDDENLY.

RACHAEL ANN M'CLINTOCK DROPPED DEAD MONDAY NIGHT.

Her Body Found Lying on the Floor in Her Bedroom by Mrs. George Moore, With Whom She Resided.

The brief notice went around yesterday that Mrs. Rachael Ann McClintock, of Elm place, was dead. Death occurred Monday night at about 11 o'clock, and was due to apoplexy. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon from the house. Interment will be in the Westfield cemetery.

Mrs. McClintock was a sister to Mrs. George W. Moore, and made her home with them. She was about 78 years of age.

Monday evening Mr. Moore went home at about 11 o'clock. There was a light burning in Mrs. McClintock's room, but no sound was audible. Mr. Moore, thinking that something must be wrong, sent his wife inside to find out. As soon as she had entered the room Mrs. Moore sent a call for her husband. When he answered he found Mrs. McClintock's body lying flat on the floor. She was lying near a large rocking chair, and at first it was thought she had fallen out of it. This was an error, for on the chair stood an empty teacup which Mrs. McClintock had evidently placed there just after rising to call for help or to get something from a table.

Dr. Jenkins was sent for and said the death had occurred a half hour before. Dr. Westcott, the county physician, viewed the remains yesterday noon and said that death was due to apoplexy.

Mrs. McClintock was born in Bound Brook, but has lived in this city for eighteen or twenty years. She was married twice. Her first husband was Richard Calvalier, of Somerville, and her second Robert McClintock, of Westfield. He died twenty-three years ago.

By her two husbands Mrs. McClintock had eight children, who are living in Westfield, Cranford and New Market. Only one granddaughter, Mrs. Joseph Plumb, lives in this city.

The second husband was an old soldier, and served with the nine months men in the 30th N. J. Volunteers. Mrs. McClintock was a faithful attendant at the Crescent Avenue church.

Will Send for the Deserter.

Captain John Wehrly, of Co. H, 3d Regiment, has sent word to Chief Wilson, of the borough, that he will send to the borough for Private Charles J. Sprague, who is now confined in the lockup on a charge of desertion. It seems to be the general opinion that Sprague will get at least two or three years on Governor's Island at hard labor as a penalty for his crime. The soldier's parents called on Mayor Wilson yesterday and tried to get His Honor to intercede in behalf of their son. The Mayor stated clearly that the case is out of his jurisdiction and that he can do nothing for the young man.

—The first session of the boys' class at the Y. M. C. A. was held yesterday afternoon. There were about 30 boys out, which was considered a good attendance.

"Raymond" Claimed to be a Piano Tuner and Also Possessed a Music Box That He Wanted to Sell—Left Postal Cards and Note Book Behind—Memorandum of Articles Supposed to Have Been Pawned.

Was Paul Metz and his wife in this city last January? From evidence in possession of J. H. McVey, the North avenue hotel keeper, it appears that they were and that they stopped at his house under the name of "Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Raymond."

It all happened in this way. The day Metz was arrested at Benner's Hotel, Fanwood, and was brought to Plainfield, a young man residing in the centre of the city saw the piano tuner and remarked to a representative of The Daily Press that he was the same man that stopped at McVey's Hotel several months ago. At the time the stranger had his wife with him. He also had a music box which he wanted to sell Mrs. McVey. He said that he was a piano tuner and wanted to tune the piano at the hotel.

The couple registered as "Joseph Raymond and wife," and remained at the hotel long enough to run up a board bill of about $30. Nothing more was thought of the couple until last Monday when a Press reporter called on Mr. and Mrs. McVey and inquired concerning the strangers. Mrs. McVey immediately recalled "Raymond" and his wife, and gave a very accurate description of them, which tallies with Metz and his wife.

One afternoon "Mrs. Raymond" started from the hotel for the purpose of shopping. She told Mrs. McVey that if anyone called for her to tell them that she would be back soon. That was the last seen of "Mrs. Raymond," or her husband.

While the couple were at the hotel Mr. Raymond received two postal cards addressed to Joseph Raymond, McVey's Hotel, North avenue. These cards together with some pieces of piano wire, two memorandum books and a catalogue of the Hardman piano, were left behind at the hotel and were presented to The Press reporter yesterday. Both postal cards are from New York. One dated January 26th, 1898, is as follows:

Say—I expected to return to Paterson, but got fooled. You know what is happening here. Well, I am taking care of my end, as I have nothing else on hand. Friday is my day off. Let me know by return mail if you will be in Plainfield and I'll come and see you if possible. If you come here don't fail to send st and no at once. Love to Millie and yourself. Bill.

Across the face of the card was writ ten very faintly these words "——— received at this institution ——— this M, and was assigned to Ward. Please call, bring this card. Respectfully."

The other card reads as follows;

Jan. 28, 1898.

Say Bill—Impossible to break away on account of unforseen obstacles. Something has made me hustle in another direction. Send me your add here as soon as you can and I'll explain fully when I see you.

Faithfully, Bill.

In the memorandum books there is a list of clothing consisting of coats, vests and pants, and opposite each is, presumably, the amount received at some pawnbroker's shop for them. There are also several names of different people, including Mr. Brown, "Chickering piano, Ridgefield; also the names of J. A. Hegeman and Mrs. Wright, J. C. Moore, Nutley; I. Wanamaker, H. D. Mills, station agent, Walwick; Dr. DeNoye, Walwick; A. Lawrence, Mrs. Watts, Mrs. Marsey, Mrs. Voight, Demot avenue and 2 street; Mrs. Maloney.

It is the intention of Mr. McVey to go to Elizabeth the day Metz is called for trial, for the purpose of identifying him if possible, for he feels sure that Metz is the same man that stopped with him last January.

Arlington Hotel Changed Hands.

The Arlington Hotel has changed hands. The transfer was effected Monday evening when Charles Jensen, of Cranford, bought out Mrs. Christina Wedemeyer. The license has been properly transferred and the new proprietor began yesterday. F. J. Blatz, of the law firm of Murphy & Blatz, looked after the interests of Mrs. Wedemeyer in the sale while City Judge DeMeza represented the purchaser.

Borough Primaries.

Next Friday evening the Republicans of the borough will hold their Congressional and county primaries in the basement of the Borough Public School.

SOMETHING WORTH WHILE.

Novel Entertainment at Trinity Reformed Church Tomorrow Evening.

A real genuine birthday social will be held in Trinity Reformed church tomorrow evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society. It will not only be a social, but an entertainment will be provided which will be furnished by Miss Mary Luckey, who will recite; Councilman Wm. N. Runyon, who will sing, while the guests will be entertained by S. C. Baker, who will exhibit his Edison phonograph. A feature of the affair will be the exhibition of an exceedingly large cake. It will be well-worth seeing, and after everyone has admired it the committee in charge will cut it up and serve it with other refreshments to those present. The affair is to be a birthday celebration of the church and the members and friends. Each person who has been provided with a sack will be expected to place therein an amount of money equal to their age, and this money will be used by the Ladies' Christian Work Society to pay off the church indebtedness on the upholstering. It is expected that there will be a large attendance and everyone will be welcome.

ALL WILL BE WELCOME.

Soldiers of '61 and '98 to Mingle as Guests of G. A. R.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R. met last evening and formulated plans whereby at the next post meeting to be held on Tuesday evening, October 25th, an enjoyable time will be had. It is the intention of the members to have every soldier in Plainfield at the meeting, also every sailor and the members of the Sons of Veterans. This applies to the soldiers and sailors of the last war as well as to the war of '61-'65. A programme, to consist of music, recitations, and excellent speeches, will be presented and it is confidently expected that the affair will be one of great pleasure to all. The committee in charge consists of Wm. Hand, M. C. Dobbins, William Day and Samuel Terry.

—Patrolmen Mattox and Higgins are now looking after the business part of the city every night.

SAD NEWS BROKEN TO MR. SALTZMAN

Met on the Dock of the Red Star Line in New York.

HAPPINESS TO SORROW.

HE DID NOT EVEN KNOW HIS WIFE HAD BEEN SICK.

When He Saw One of the Party Who Had Come to Apprise Him of the Terrible News He Was Full of Joy, But Soon After it Was Dispelled by the Shock of Hearing That His Wife Was Dead.

A pathetic scene was witnessed on the dock of the Red Star Line in New York this morning on the arrival of the steamship Weatherland from Antwerp, when a party of Plainfield gentlemen met Auguste Saltzman, who has been in Switzerland during the summer to receive treatment for his health, and conveyed to him the sorrowful news that his wife, whom he had expected to welcome on the dock, was dead and only awaited his arrival before interment of the remains would be made.

Mr. Saltzman broke his knee cap last winter and early this summer sailed for Switzerland to receive treatment at one of the miner.l springs in that country. While he was absent his son, Auguste, Jr., enlisted in the navy from the New Jersey Naval Reserves, and Mrs. Saltzman decided to spend the summer with her daughter, Mrs. J. T. Fritts, of Hawley, Pa. Three weeks ago she was taken ill, but it was not considered serious enough to notify Mr. Saltzman, who was then about to sail for home. Mr. Saltzman sailed for home October 1st, and a day later Mrs. Saltzman's condition became precarious and on Thursday last she died. Her remains were brought to this city and the funeral held Sunday while her husband was still upon the ocean totally unconscious of even the fact that she had been in anything but the best of health.

The most painful incident in her death, of course, was apprising Mr. Saltzman of it upon his arrival in this country. Last Friday it was decided that a committee from the Royal Arcanum, consisting of D. W. Littell, T. A. Beguelin and Charles Burnett, should perform the sad duty. Accompanied by Dr. Fritts and Auguste, Jr., they awaited the landing of the steamer this morning. As the boat glided into her slip Mr. Saltzman was on deck scanning the dock for a sight of his family, whom he expected would be there to welcome him back home. The first familiar face he spied was Mr. Littell. Mr. Saltzman waved his cane, then his hat, and a broad smile spread over his face. As soon as he could he spoke out a merry welcome. As he came down the gangway, Mr. Saltzman greeted Messrs. Littell, Beguelin and Burnett, but none of them for the moment betrayed the news they had to impart.

After the baggage had been arranged for Mr. Beguelin broke the news first by telling Mr. Saltzman that his wife was not at Hawley, but in Plainfield and that she was quite ill. After preparing his mind for worse tidings the real news was told to him. Mr. Saltzman was dumbfounded for a moment, and then he broke into tears. He recovered his composure in a few moments and was told of the sad circumstances of the death.

The afflicted husband, together with the rest of the party, then went to the Liberty street ferry and took a train for Plainfield, arriving here at 11 o'clock. On the way out from New York Mr. Saltzman broke down a couple of times, but he bore up under the terrible news remarkably well.

PLAGUE OF DIPHTHERIA.

One Child Dead and Four Others Sick in Edward Baker's Family.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baker, of West Front street, are sadly afflicted. Yesterday afternoon their eight-year-old daughter, Laura, died from diphtheria. That is not all, for four more children, Florence, aged ten; Charles, six; Clarence, four; and Harold, ten months, are also ill with the same disease, and fears are entertained for their recovery.

The epidemic first made its appearance in the family Monday, October 3d, when Florence, the oldest, was taken. She is better, but one after another the others have caught it. Charles is quite bad, but the others may recover. Laura, who died, was only taken Saturday. Edward the sisteen-year-old son, is living away from home.

The funeral services will be held this afternoon at three o'clock, and will take place in the hall. Dr. Tomlinson is the attending physician.

WILL NOT LEASE OVAL.

RIVERDALE FIELD CLUB WILL GO ELSEWHERE NEXT YEAR.

Robert C. Wood, the Promoter, Has Notified J. T. Vail That He Will Not Lease Crescent Oval for Next Year.

After a renewed lease of life there is every prospect that the Crescent Oval will return again to quietude and rest. The middle of the season the Oval was leased by Robert C. Wood, of New York, the head and promoter of the Riverdale Field Club. It was Mr. Wood's intention to make this city the home of the crack baseball team he had on the diamond and play here every week if the support of the local cranks would make it pay. There were a few of the old reliable ones that you couldn't keep home from a baseball game unless you tied them. They came, but the crowd that Mr. Wood was led to expect would turn out, never showed up.

Mr. Wood leased the Oval through the agency of J. T. Vail for the rest of the baseball season. He had an option on the Oval for next year, for he was considering the advisability of playing here next year. The lack of support, however, decided him and he has notified Mr. Vail that he will not continue the lease.

WEDDED AT HIGH NOON

YOUNG PEOPLE IN BOUND BROOK SOCIETY MARRIED.

Miss Clara Powelson the Bride—John R Hall the Groom—Ceremony Performed in a Floral Bower—Many Guests Present.

(Special To The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, October 12.—A charming home wedding was held here yesterday at high noon when Miss Clara Thompson Powelson, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Powelson, of Union avenue, was united in marriage to John Richard Hall, a rising young man of this place. The marriage took place at the home of the brides parents which was handsomely decorated for the occasion with a profusion of flowers and potted plants. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Owen Jones, pastor of the Congregational church; in a floral bower. Two hundred guests assembled to do honor to the newly-wedded couple.

The bride was prettily gowned in white Liberty silk. The maids of honor were Miss Helen Hall, of Neshanic, and Miss Gertrude Cornell, of Bound Brook, a cousin of the bride. Her bridemaids were Miss Jennie V. Cornell, a cousin, Miss Minne Powelson, a consin, Miss Lou Kirkland, and Miss Elizabeth Deane, all of Bound Brook, Miss Ida L. Hampson and Miss Olive E. Hampson, of Newark.

Harry D. Powelson, of Bound Brook, brother to the bride, was the best man. Frederick Cornell and William Cornell, a cousin of the bride, both of Bound Brook, were the ushers.

After an informal reception, Mr. and Mrs. Hall left on the Royal Blue Line at 2:43 o'clock for a southern trip. They will reside in Bound Brook on their return. Mr. Hall is in the employ of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in New York. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hall are prominent in local society.

ECHO MEETING ARRANGED.

Local Endeavorers to Hear of Their State Convention.

The monthly executive meeting of the Christian Endeavor Local Union was held last night at the home of the president, Miss Florence G. Hawkins, of LaGrande avenue. Arrangements were made for the local union convention echo meeting which is to be held Thursday evening, October 20th, probably in the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

The speaker of the evening will be Rev. L. R. Dyott, of Newark, vice-president of the New Jersey State Christian Endeavor Union. Rev. Mr. Dyott will speak upon the convention. In addition to this three five-minute talks will be given by Plainfield people upon the musical, social and spiritual sides of the convention.

The next executive meeting of the local union will be held the last Tuesday in November, when a question box will be conducted by a prominent State Christian Endeavor worker. The local union pledged $10 towards the expenses of the State Union.

A movement is on foot to make Miss Sarah Curry, matron of the Westfield Fresh Air Camp, an honorary member of all the societies in the local union.

Barn Burned; Loss $1,000.

(Special to the Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, Oct. 12—The barn and stable in the rear of the residence of William Ross, Jr., of West Main street, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. The origin of the fire is unknown. The barn was full of hay. The loss is estimated at $1,000, which is partially covered by insurance.

CITY FATHERS TALK ABOUT THE TROLLEY.

Press Reporters Interview Them On the Subject.

VARIOUS OPINIONS GIVEN.

NO ABATEMENT IN THE GENERAL INTEREST IN FRANCHISE.

Councilman Hetfield Has Facts and Figures to Back His Statements—W. N. Runyon Has Another—Others Favor Plenty of Discussion—Much Interest Shown By Members of the Council.

Councilman Walter L. Hetfield, of the First Ward, was prepared with some facts for the Press reporter to explain why he favored the present contract. From his point of view, the present contract with the Plainfield Street Railway Company is a better one than the one granted to John Kean by the county authorities. He went on to explain that the county would get $250,000 from Kean but that it would have to pay that and as much more to complete the boulevard. Kean, in return, gets the lease of the road for a term of 75 years without any more expense. According to the terms of the contract with the local company, the city will get $100 for every mile of track every year, and $75 for each car every year. Then the company, he continued, agrees to macadamize Second street and perform several other conditions regarding sprinkling and repairs which will easily cost the company $10,000. Another provision of the contract provides that when the gross earnings of the company reach $80,000 a year, the city is to receive five per cent of it. According to Mr. Hetfield's reckoning, this would take place in ten years at the extreme limit. Then comparing it with the terms of lease that John Kean secured. In the following 65 years, Mr. Hetfield said that $150,000 would be a low estimate of the gross earnings of the company. This would amount to $7,500 a year or $487,500 for the length of time the Kean lease will last. Computing it at compound interest, it would reach up in the millions. For these reasons, Mr. Hetfield said that he believed that the present contract was eminently satisfactory to the city and far better than the agreement that the county had made with the corporation of which John Kean is the head.

Councilman William N. Runyon, of the Second ward, realized the full value of the franchise that Plainfield was to grant the Plainfield Street Railway. It was utterly wrong, he said, to look at the value of the line in Plainfield alone. It was to form part of the trunk line and in that lay its value. He did not think the argument that the Plainfield Street Railway had not paid any dividends amounted to anything. He believed that the capitalists did not really expect it to, but that their hope for profit lay in the through line of which the Plainfield line was to form a part. This franchise was now the key to the situation and was consequently very valuable to the company. He believed that the city should secure all the benefit possible from it. He also believed that the corporation would concede a great deal before it would abandon the attempt to get the franchise. As he understood it, the company had fought almost every concession so far and only gave in at the last moment. Mr. Runyon was in favor of getting full value for the franchise. The present contract, he explained, was an excellent one and gave the city much. If any more concessions could be secured, he thought that it would be of far more interest and benefit to the city and its inhabitants if, instead of compelling the company to asphalt the principal streets, the trolley company agreed to build an extension through the southern section of the city. Such a line could go south on Arlington avenue from West Fourth street to Randolph road and thence across by the Oval and open up all that section of the city now practically unimproved. Such a line, while it would not be of much value to the company, would develop that part of the city, increase valuations and thus taxes, encourage building there and generally add to city's welfare. He believed that it would help the city more than if the company asphalted the streets.

Councilman Henry Liefke, of the Fourth ward, believes that it is the duty of the Common Council to secure as great concessions from the Plainfield Street Railway as possible. He does not believe that they would be asking too much if they followed Councilman VanHerwerden's suggestion. In his opinion, however, it is now pretty late to do anything of that

GET FLESH.

Get Strength, Vigor, Clear Complexion and Good Digestion, Not by Patent Medicine, But in Nature's Own Way.

Any honest physician will tell you that there is but one way to get increased flesh; all the patent medicines and cod liver oils to the contrary notwithstanding.

Nature has but one way to increase flesh, strength and vigor, mind and body, and that is through the stomach, by wholesome food, well digested. There is no reason or common sense in other method whatever.

People are thin, run down, nervous, pale, and shaky in their nerves simply because their stomachs are weak.

They may not think they have dyspepsia, but the fact remains that they do not eat enough food, or what they eat is not quickly and properly digested, as it should be.

Dr. Harlandson says the reason is because the stomach lacks certain digestive acids and peptones, and deficient secretion of gastric juice.

Nature's remedy in such cases is to supply what the weak stomach lacks. There are several good preparations which will do this, but none so readily as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which are designed especially for all stomach troubles, and which cure all digestive weakness on the common sense plan of furnishing the digestive principles which the stomach lacks.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets give perfect digestion First effect is to increase the appetite and increased vigor, added flesh, pure blood and strength of nerve and muscle is the perfectly natural result.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest tonic known and will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach. May be found at druggists at 50 cents for full sized package, or direct by mail from Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. 10-10-12-14

SECRETARY ALGER'S STATEMENTS.

War Investigation Committee Examines Them.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12.—The war investigating commission devoted its forenoon session yesterday to the examination of Secretary Alger's statement that the papers were furnished by him in reply to the commission's inquiries.

The accompanying papers include the reports from the various bureaus of the war department and also various letters and telegrams bearing upon the conduct of the war.

Secretary Alger in his report replies to the various questions propounded by the commission, but he gives especial prominence to the plan of campaign and to changes that were made in the original plans.

He states that Tampa was chosen as the base of operations because of its proximity to Havana, at which point it was originally intended that the first attack should be made. The determination to make a change was due to the developments on the southern coast of Cuba and to Cervera's course in locating his fleet in the bay of Santiago.

When it became quite certain that he was securely entrapped in the bay, Admiral Sampson wired the fact to the secretary of the navy, asking that troops be sent immediately.

He said he had silenced the batteries, which were accessible from the sea, and that ten thousand men could capture the town within forty-eight hours.

The text of this message is given, as is the text of various other telegrams, showing the cause of delay in getting the expedition off, this cause being, as frequently published, the report that Spanish warships were lying in wait for the transports.

The reports show that General Miles advised in the beginning that the first move should be made against Porto Rico and that after that island should be subjugated the American forces should be landed on the north coast of Cuba, at some point from which they could move conveniently either to the east or the west.

A FEW FACTS ABOUT PERFUMES.

Flesh of the Harem Favorite Permeated With Odors of Burning Spice.

The costliest article of ancient commerce was the heart of aloes. Not the medicine, but the heart wood of the sacred aloe tree, fragrant with enduring and inexpressible sweetness, a treasure in which was paid the yearly tribute of kings, a perfume so exquisite and esteemed that it was reserved for the use of great potentates and holy temples.

Eastern women perfume their persons with the smoke of burning spices till their flesh is penetrated with odors, a practice kept up in the seraglio till the flesh of a harem favorite smells like one of those tablets of pressed perfume familiar in every collection of Turkish wares. In later times, at coronation feasts and civic triumphs like those which graced the court of Charles of Bergundy, fountains of wines and perfumes were part of every show, a boon to be thankful for in times when the common people were, as Erasmus calls them, unwashed, "rammish clowns."

At the entrance of Charles the Second into London, sprays of perfumed waters were flung upon the multitude, and among the English and Italian nobility it was the custom to break eggshells filled with perfume over the heads of guests at dinner. The custom descends to our day in the perfumed crackers of French chemists, capsules of gelatine filled with scent and wrapped in brilliant papers or silk cornets.—New York Journal.

GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE.

The Dispute Concerning Fashoda Will Be Settled Peacefully.

Paris, Oct. 12.—The Gaulois, referring to the publication of the Fashoda blue book by the British foreign office, expresses confidence in a satisfactory settlement of the matter.

On the other hand, the Jour says the situation appears most serious. It says: "The language of the Marquis of Salisbury, Lord Cromer, and the Sirdar removes the last illusions of the most optimistic."

The Journal de Paris affirms that the documents made public in the blue book do not establish the right of Great Britain to the region which France occupies.

The Justice expresses the opinion that Great Britain, instead of facilitating the negotiations, evidently aims at forcing the situation.

The Libre Parole says: "Great Britain has suddenly unmasked her batteries, doubtless after an understanding with her good friends the Dreyfusards, and she evidently deems the moment has come to strike what she supposes to be a decisive blow. The precipitate publication of the documents was an act of rudeness and menace."

The Eclair says: "We have always protested against Great Britain's idea that the whole basin of the Nile was included in Egyptian or British influence, and we persist in our theory, which is confirmed by the treaty of Berlin, that effective occupation alone confers the right of possession. Great Britain now seeks to change the international rules, but the right is on our side, and we hope our diplomatists will compel respect for it."

The Figaro says: "We have been literally subjected to an ultimatum threatening war on the Marchand question. The ultimatum was in the pocket of the British ambassador or on his lips. Fortunately the document was not produced and the word was not spoken. We should be grateful for the skill of M. Delcasse, the minister of foreign affairs, in preventing the delivery of the ultimatum, and to the honesty and uprightness of the British ambassador in a critical juncture."

THE INDIAN TROUBLES.

The Rest of the Third Infantry Called for.

Minneapolis, Oct., 12.—General Bacon yesterday telegraphed to Colonel Sturgis, assistant adjutant general, in charge of the department of Dakota to send all the remaining able-bodied soldiers of the Third regiment of United Etates infantry, left at Fort Snelling.

There are only about twenty-five available men, and these will be sent to Walker this morning.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Orders have been received at division headquarters here from General Bacon, in command of the Department of the Lakes and the Dakotas, to have the Fourth infantry at Fort Sheridan and the Seventeenth infantry, at Columbus barracks, Ohio, held in readiness for immediate service at the scene of the Indian trouble in Minnesota.

Commissioner Collis Victorious.

New York, Oct. 12.—The charges of corruption made by Tammany's commissioners of accounts against General Charles H. T. Collis, former commissioner of public works, and presented by District Attorney Gardiner to the grand jury, have fallen flat.

The grand jury yesterday voted not to entertain the charges.

Major Gardiner, the district attorney, said that this action did no signify the dismissal of the charges.

It was charged that General Collis gave contracts to the Barber Asphalt Company for work amounting to more than $1,000 without having previously advertised for bids.

Higher Than Mount St. Elias.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 12.—The beological survey party, under G. H. Eldredge, which has just returned from the Cook's Inlet country, asserts that it has discovered the highest mountain in North America. The peak, which towers above Mount St. Elias, is situated in Alaska, to the right of the Sushitna river.

The government topographer took triangulations, and according to his calculations the height of the peak is more than twenty thousand feet.

The mountain was named Bullshae, a word spoken in exclamation by the Indian guide of the party upon first beholding the peak.

Retired Against His Will.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Major General J. C. Breckinridge, on his return from Macon, Ga., will probably have something pointed to say to Secretary Alger.

His muster out is a surprise to him and against his wishes, and is made under such circumstances as will embarrass him.

A Michigan Bank Robbed.

Holland, Mich., Oct. 12.—Jacob Denherder's private bank at Zeeland was broken into yesterday morning and the safe blown open with dynamite and rifled.

It is estimated that the loss will be ten thousand dollars, although an examination has not yet been finished. There is as yet no trace to the robbers.

African Chiefs Arrested.

Sierra Leone, West Coast of Africa, Oct. 12.—Native chiefs to the number of one hundred have been arrested and are awaiting trial at Freetown, capital of the British colony of Sierra Leone, for the murder of American and other missionaries at Kwellu, in May last. A number of the chiefs implicated have already been convicted.

After Nancy Guilford.

New York, Oct. 12.—Edward Cronin, the Bridgeport detective, sails for London to-day on the St. Louis. He carries with him the extradition papers for the return of Mrs. Nancy Guilford, now a prisoner in London. The papers charge the woman with murder in the second degree.

New B. & O. Freight Station.

Baltimore, Oct. 12.—The receivers of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad have adopted plans and are about ready to let the contract for a new $100,000 inbound freight station in this city.

TILL TREATY IS SIGNED

Spain's Intention to Hold Troops in Cuba until That Time.

DEC. 1 THE DATE SET BY U. S.

The Spanish Authorities at Havana Have Been Notified That Their Rule Will Cease by the End of November. American Control of Porto Rico to Begin October 18.

Madrid, Oct. 12.—The Spanish government announces its intention to maintain a strong force of troops in Cuba until the treaty of peace with the United States is definitely signed.

Immediately after peace is signed the Cortes will be convened and measures dealing with the reorganization of the State departments will be submitted to parliament.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12.—Instructions have been sent to the United States military commission in Cuba fixing December 1 as the date when Spanish control over the island must cease.

The commissioners, acting upon these instructions, have notified the Spaniards that all ports and customs receipts and the management of the municipal affairs will then pass into the hands of the American military commander in the island.

This order was not intended to work a hardship to the Spanish troops or government, but it was thought best to arrange a definite time to end the Spanish rule and to begin operations under the United States. It is probable that the United States troops will go to Cuba before that time.

By December 1 it is expected to have troops so stationed that there will be no need of Spanish troops to preserve order.

The proclamations that have been issued by the president establishing customs rates in defining the manner in which Cuban territory shall be governed will prevail until it becomes apparent that new regulations are needed.

On October 18 Major General Brooke will assume absolute command of the island of Porto Rico. It is possible that all the Spanish troops will not have left Porto Rico at that time; if so, they will be quartered in barracks until they can be taken away.

In the language of Secretary Alger, the United States will be the host and the Spaniards the guests after October 18.

The United States will not ship the remaining troops to Spain at their own expense. That was no part of the protocol. The custom houses, the money received for customs and the government of the island will pass completely from Spanish control on the date set. The present customs relations under permission of the president will remain.

Zola's Clever Friends.

Paris, Oct. 12.—A sensation was caused here at yesterday's auction sale of the house and furniture of Emile Zola, to satisfy a judgment of 30,000 francs obtained against him by Dreyfus case handwriting experts.

The sale was ordered to take place, in spite of the facts that the late Lieutenant Colonel Henry confessed to having forged a letter instrumental in bringing about the conviction of Dreyfus, which sustained the attitude assumed by M. Zola toward the handwriting experts, and although M. Octave Mirabeau offered to be responsible for the amount.

However, the friends of M. Zola, who were present, ran up the bidding on the first article, a Louis X walnut table, which was originally bought for 120 francs, to 32,000 francs, thus producing the amount required and stopping the sale.

No Cuban Celebration.

Santiago de Cuba, Oct. 12.—The festivities arranged by the Cubans to celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of the declaration of independence, were postponed until October 17 on account of the continuous rain.

The city, however, was gayly decorated and bunting and flowers were to be seen on all sides. Many persons visited the cemetery and placed flowers on the monuments erected to the memory of Marti and Cespedes.

A few speeches were made last night from the San Carlos Club, the principal speaker being Senor Trujillo and Dr. Prias. The latter was the agent of the Cuban government at San Domingo during the war.

Both claimed that they were satisfied with the situation and confident that within two years Cuba Libre will be an accomplished fact.

Food for Destitute in Cuba.

Washington, Oct. 12.—The following cablegram from Major General Wade, chairman of the American-Cuban commission, dated Havana, to Assistant Secretary of War Meikeljohn, was made public this morning:

"United States can land free of duty supplies for destitute at ports Bahia Honda and Caibarien, and Matanzas, also."

A Red Cross Romance.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Miss Anne M. Fowler, who served as a Red Cross nurse in Cuba, was married yesterday to Albert Vanshelle, a Belgian nobleman, delegate general of the Red Cross Society on the staff of his Majesty Leopold II.

Miss Fowler met Vanshelle at Santiago.

Turkey Accepts Terms.

Constantinople, Oct. 12.—The reply of the Turkish government to the note of the powers on the evacuation of the island of Crete was handed to the ambassadors yesterday evening. Turkey accepts the terms proposed, but expresses a wish for certain modifications.

Clothing Company Assigns.

Dover, Oct. 12.—The Dover Clothing Company of this city and one of the largest establishments of its kind in the state, has assigned to A. C. Whittemore, receiver of the Dover National Bank. It is thought the liabilities will reach $70,000.

Flossie's New Costume.

(BY JAQUETTE.)

Last week Flossie announced to me that she would soon give the Jillings the Mountloves and the other girls something to talk about. "It will be a real smart tailor-made suit and I want you to go with me to buy it," she said.

In a day or two we boarded a trolley car and rode to Newark, where we visited several stores without finding anything in character and price that struck our fancy. "Just as I thought," exclaimed Flossie, "we could have saved time by going at once to Hahne & Co.'s; come on, Nell."

Just a glance at Hahne & Co.'s top garments decided the question of where to buy, with Flossie's whisper: "I told you so." A few seconds later she was declaiming the elegance of a brown camel's hair suit marked $15.98, the same that was shown us at $22 in New York. "I'll take that suit," she said to the lady in attendance. The coat is a cutaway with velvet collar, cadet sleeves and lined with black satin serge. The skirt has the popular flounce, and is lined with percaline. Every seam is tailored.

Flossie's hat came next. I quite shared her ecstasy over the beautiful millinery display, although I am usually sedate and reserved in manner, having reached the age of—well, no matter about that. A turban, trimmed with brown velvet and white satin, seemed to please Flossie immensely, and I advised her to buy it. The price was $7.25, a very reasonable one.

Before we left the store I bought for sister Kate an all-wool, fifty inch broadcloth with twill back, fine face and dainty shade of green, for $1.10 a yard. Kate is delighted with it, and says $1.25 is the price in other stores.

There was a twinkle in Flossie's eye when she remarked to me on Sunday evening: "Say, Nell, I noticed the girls in groups today, several times; do you think they could have been admiring my new costume?"

THE OIL TRUST INQUIRY

Trying to Probe the Affairs of the Standard Company.

ROCKEFELLER ON THE RACK

Ohio State Officials Trying to Find Out Why it Takes So Long a Time to Liquidate the Concern. Chairman Rockefeller Has a Very Poor Memory at Times

New York, Oct. 12.—The investigation having for its object an attempt to prove that the Standard Oil Company is in contempt of the supreme court of the state of Ohio was begun yesterday morning in the parlor of the New Amsterdam hotel, Fourth avenue and 21st street.

Those who are conducting it are the attorney general of the state of Ohio, Frank S. Monett, and Special Commissioner Allen T. Brinsmade of Cleveland, representing the supreme court of the state of Ohio.

They are assisted by E. B. Kinkhead, a lawyer of Columbus, who said yesterday that John D. Rockefeller would be present and testify before the investigating commission. He explained the case, saying:

"In the case of Attorney General Monett against the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, judgment was rendered by the supreme court of Ohio debarring the company from participating in or having connection with the trust. It was held that the famous Standard Oil agreement was void. That was in 1892. Immediately afterwards the Standard Oil trust called a meeting of the certificate holders, the meeting being held in New York city on March 21, 1892. At that time steps were taken to dissolve the trust, and liquidating trustees were appointed to wind up its affairs, so the trust maintained. It has been six years since that meeting and all of that time has been taken up in liquidating the trust."

Mr. Kinkhead said that the state of Ohio spent much time in trying to get at the intention of the trust. Mr. Rockefeller once consented to answer some questions, and the commission was here to get those questions answered by him.

J. D. ROCKEFELLER

Mr. Kinkhead said that the commission had powers to examine all the books and papers of the trust. He said he expected to have as witnesses, besides Mr. Rockefeller, George Rice, an Ohio oil refiner, and Virgil Kline of Cleveland, a member of the company.

John D. Rockefeller arrived at the hotel at 10.15 o'clock, soon after the examination proceedings had been opened by Special Commissioner Brinsmade.

Mr. Rockefeller was immediately put upon the stand and questioned by William Flagg of this city, who is associated with Commissioner Brinsmade and Attorney General Monett.

Mr. Rockefeller testified that New York was his summer residence. He admitted that he was chairman of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio. He said that the books of the company, he understood, were kept at No. 26 Broadway, this city. He also said that he was president of the defendant company.

Mr. Rockefeller was then asked who were the officers of the Standard Oil Company in 1892. This question was objected to on the ground that Mr. Rockefeller had previously answered this question in Ohio.

The objection was made by Mr. Kline, who appeared as attorney for Mr. Rockefeller. He declared that these preliminary questions had been answered, and it was a waste of time to repeat them.

Finally Mr. Rockefeller said that the names and addresses of the members of the Standard Oil Company on March 2, 1892, were John D. Rockefeller, New York; Frank Rockefeller, Cleveland; F. B. Squire, Cleveland; Charles W. Harkness, Cleveland.

Mr. Rockefeller also testified that the gentlemen named and the trustees of the company were the stockholders of the company. Mr. Rockefeller said he could not tell from memory whether there was a meeting of the directors of the company at which they considered the judgment taken against the company on March 2, 1892, at about that time.

Mr. Flagg put the question in several different ways, but apparently did not get a satisfactory answer.

Much of the time of the morning and afternoon sessions was taken up by the wrangling of the opposing attorneys.

Big Grain Exports.

New York, Oct. 12.—The orders for grain for export yesterday reached the largest total of the year. The engagements include 1,500,000 bushels of wheat and 1,000,000 bushels of corn, besides 200,000 bushels each of oats and rye. The announcement ran the Chicago price of corn up from 63 3-4 cents of Monday to 64 5-8 cents, which was the closing price.

Four Train Robbers Caught.

Waterloo, Ia., Oct. 12.—Four men, believed to be members of a gang responsible for several hold ups on an extra freight last night on the Chicago and Great Western road, were captured in a saloon at Marshalltown yesterday afternoon.

PRESIDENT RECEIVES AN OVATION.

Crowds Turn Out to See the Chief Executive.

Clinton, Oct. 12.—The president's journey from Chicago to the Mississippi river yesterday was one constant ovation. Since he was elected President McKinley has never until now travelled west of Chicago, and the immense crowds at the stations along the Northwestern road showed the appreciation of the people for the opportunity of seeing their chief magistrate.

Even at the smallest stations good sized crowds were in waiting whose only hope of reward was the possibility of a passing glance at the president as the train swept by.

The first stop was made at Dekalb at 9.05, and here the president spoke a few words in response to the crowd's enthusiastic welcome.

"It was no part of the programme," said Mr. McKinley, "that I should be welcomed by the people of Dekalb at this hour of the morning, but I appreciate your generous welcome and share with you in congratulation to our country and to your army and navy for the successful issues of the last four months. I am sure there never has been a time in our history when patriotism has been more marked or more universal than it is to-day, and the same high purpose which characterized the conduct of the people in the war will influence and control them in the settlement of peace."

YELLOW FEVER ON THE INCREASE.

Four Hundred and Seventy Cases in Mississippi.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12.—The reports to the Marine hospital service show that the yellow fever in the south is steadily increasing.

The officials state that the increase in the fever list is likely to be continued until cold weather sets in, and this is thought still to be at least three weeks off in the region that is most affected.

The dispatches received here report the total number of cases in Mississippi to be 470, with 36 deaths since the epidemic broke out. Yellow fever was reported to have occurred at Lake Charles in Louisiana, in a dispatch from Dr. Edmond Sushan of New Orleans.

At Franklin, La., there are 28 new cases and no deaths.

Following are the Mississippi reports of new cases for yesterday:

Jackson, two white cases, one negro, total three; Canton, five; Chrystal Springs, four; Madison, five white, ten negroes, total fifteen; Harriston, fourteen, making fifty-five in all now under treatment; Ridgeland, one; Norwood, six new cases and one death; Oxford, one case.

Camp Hutton, the new fever detention point at Avondale, near New Orleans, with a capacity of about one thousand patients, was opened yesterday.

Paris Strike Grows.

Paris, Oct. 12.—In spite of optimistic predictions of the end of the strike being near, the strike continues to spread. The bricklayers and wood carvers yesterday decided to join the strikers and quit work.

The city, however, is perfectly quiet, but the enormous increase in the strength of the garrison points to the fact that the government fears political rather than labor troubles.

The strikers' central committee is a political and revolutionary organization, and it is engineering the dispute as if it were a strike of the proletarians.

No conflict between the soldiers and the strikers has occurred up to the present.

Not since 1870 has Paris looked so warlike. A number of young men of title made a demonstration in front of the house of the Duchess d'Uzez, on the Champs Elysees on Sunday evening.

They were led by Prince Henry of Chartres and Count Sabran de Pontevès and cheered a squadron of cuirassiers with cries of "Vive l'Armee."

Then they proceeded to an anti-revisionist meeting, presided over by M. Millevoye, where they shouted "Vive le Roi!" (Long live the king.) They afterwards dispersed.

Sailing of Warships.

New York, Oct. 12.—The collier Sterling left the navy yard yesterday afternoon and joined the fleet anchored off Tompkinsville, Staten Island. She will sail with the battleships Oregon and Iowa, the supply ship Celtic and the distilling ship Iris for Manila.

It is believed that the fleet of five vessels will start some time to-day and Secretary of the Navy Long has announced that the first stop will be Buenos Ayres.

At Norfolk there are four other colliers being prepared for the battleships and these will join them and their consorts at some South American port.

Wheeler at Huntsville.

Huntsville, Ala., Oct. 12.—Gen. Jos. Wheeler has arrived here to take command of the Fourth army corps, succeeding General Coppinger.

General Wheeler was met by a committee of citizens, headed by General Moore, and was escorted to the Huntsville hotel. The general is in excellent health.

General Wheeler's cavalry division, destined for Cuban service, was filled yesterday on the arrival of the Tenth cavalry, Colonel Baldwin, which came in two sections over the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis.

The Tradesmen's Bank.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12.—At the request of the directors of the Tradesmen's National Bank of New York, Comptroller of the Currency Dawes has granted them one week from to-day to look into the affairs of the bank, with the view if possible of going into voluntary liquidation.

At the end of that time, if satisfactory arrangements have not been made it is probable that a receiver will be appointed.

Chinese Loan Contract.

Pekin, Oct. 12.—The loan contract for the extension of the Niu-Chwang railroad, signed by the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, calls for 2,250,000 pounds ($11,250,000), at five per cent., guaranteed on the securities of the existing lines at Pekin, Shanghai and other places.

THE NAVAL INQUIRY

The Official Board of Officers Completes its Labors.

DISPUTED POINTS SETTLED

The Inquiry Into the Naval Battle of Santiago Ordered by Admiral Sampson Which Has Been in Progress for a Month is Finished and All Differences of Opinion Are Harmoniously Adjusted.

New York, Oct. 12.—All disputes regarding the naval battle of Santiago have been settled officially. There is no longer any Sampson-Schley controversy. For that matter there never was a Sampson-Schley controversy, so far as those distinguished naval officers were themselves concerned. But irresponsible and ignorant writers both in the yellow daily press and the current periodicals, succeeded in raising an issue. In this they were aided to an extent by the over enthusiasm and loyalty to their immediate chief of some of the younger officers of the navy.

Statements were made and printed seriously, which were so utterly absurd as to cause doubts whether or not there ever was a great sea fight under the shadow of the Santiago mountains.

Even the honor of high officers was questioned. Some action was imperative. To lay the ghosts of jealousy malice and uncharitableness, as well as for the sake of historical accuracy, Rear Admiral Sampson determined upon an inquiry which would be thorough, official and final.

This inquiry has been held under the auspices of the Navy department and completed. It was begun early in September and finished Monday afternoon.

The board has prepared an exhaustive report, which has been forwarded to Secretary Long, accompanied by charts and documents.

The chief issues before the board related to the parts taken in the battle by the two flagships, New York and Brooklyn. Many other questions came up incidentally.

The board was made up as follows:

Lieutenant Commander Wainwright of the Gloucester, presiding officer.

Lieutenant Samuel P. Comly of the Indiana.

Lieutenant Lewis C. Heilner of the Texas.

Lieutenant William H. Schuetze of the Iowa.

Lieutenant Albon C. Hodgson of the Brooklyn.

Lieutenant William H. Allen of the Oregon.

Lieutenant Edward E. Capehart of the New York.

The orders for the inquiry were issued by Admiral Sampson on September 2. Personally, he thought there was no necessity for such an inquiry, and Admiral Schley concurred with him in that opinion. The ships, officers and men of the American navy had done their duty. The plans of the commander-in-chief had been carried out faithfully, and the most wonderful naval victory in the history of deep waters had been won.

Both Sampson and Schley were satisfied with the results of their work, and the effort to stir up personal jealousy between them failed signally.

The orders to the board were to make a "complete, thorough and final" inquiry into various specified questions, among which were:

1. The relative positions of the American ships when Cervera came out, and throughout the battle.
2. The course of the Brooklyn immediately after the alarm.
3. The distance of the New York from the Colon when the Spaniard surrendered.
4. The signals which were made by the Brooklyn.
5. The orders issued by Sampson in preparation for an attempted escape of Cervera.

Full power and authority was given the board to get any information or records desired from any of the ships engaged.

When the Brooklyn returned to Tompkinsville she was made the meeting place of the board, which convened in Admiral Schley's cabin and discussed the vexed questions around the very table where Schley sat when he said "the credit is Sampson's."

The ships' logs were produced, a chart was blocked out and the battle of Santiago was fought over again.

Although the work of the board consumed much time, it was not spent in bickering. The representatives of the different ships found that they agreed upon nearly all points, and that there was really nothing for anybody to worry about.

In summing up it appears that:

1. The battle was fought and won upon plans prepared by Sampson.
2. Any directing of the movements of ships done by Schley during the battle was inconsiderable.
3. The New York had no active part in the fight.
4. The Brooklyn was not engaged at so close quarters as had been represented by the first report.
5. The brunt of the fighting was borne by the Oregon, Texas and the Iowa.
6. The New York was over nine miles from the Colon when that ship surrendered, and between four and five miles from the nearest of her sister ships engaged (from which signal distance is taken.
7. The average range of the ships most engaged was about a mile and a half.
8. No American ship at any time during the battle was within a mile of an unsurrendered Spanish ship.

Escaped from Prison.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Perry King and George Bertris escaped from the Clinton prison Sunday night and are now at large. A portion of the lower part of the door, twelve by eight inches, was sawed out of the cell in which King had been locked. There was a similar hole in Bertris's cell.

A Condition, Not a Theory.

The capitalists back of the Plainfield Street Railway Company, and the scheme to get a through line between Elizabeth and Plainfield in opposition to the county trolley project, stand in good position of selling out their franchises, if they can secure the pivotal one in this city, at a price that will be a fortune. The immense bonus on the franchise will be paid irregardless of stipulations that the ordinance calls for in benefits to the city, which Councilman Hetfield calls attention to in his interview in today's Press.

From a gentleman who has heretofore proved a reliable source of information to The Daily Press, we understand that a syndicate of capitalists stand ready to pay a big sum of money for the franchises between Plainfield and Elizabeth after they are secured by the present promoters. After paying this money, they will take the enterprise burdened with all the stipulations Councilman Hetfield calls attention to, and expect to find profit in it; and they will, too.

The point at issue in this trolley business is why should Plainfield provide a franchise to these promoters to be used in speculative purposes at a price that is a mere bagatelle in comparison to the amount of money the promoters will make out of it.

As proposed in the present ordinance, it will cost the Plainfield Street Railway Company about $8,000 for the franchise over this pivotal point. Once they have got the track laid and the extension in operation in conjunction with the rest of the line that they are already assured of, they will sell out at a big advance. The stipulation of benefits to be derived in years to come will cut no figure with them. They want the franchise to sell to someone else who will pay the benefits, if there are any.

Plainfield's price for this extension should be guaged by the amount of profits that it is almost certain the promoters are going to make out of it before the real benefits, called attention to by Mr. Hetfield, become effective. Twenty-five thousand dollars can well be afforded by these promotors in view of the sum they are going to make by dickering with the franchise, not by the use of it in operating a street railway line for years to come.

As Grover Cleveland once said, "it is a condition, not a theory" that confronts the Common Council, and if they persist in disposing of this valuable right for these promoters to take into the money market to be sold at a hugh profit, they will do so in defiance of the interests of the city.

Speculation is rife in certain political circles why Governor Voorhees does not resign the Union county Senatorship. By some it is believed that Voorhees does not intend to resign the office unless he is pretty certain of election to the Gubernatorial position. By holding on until too late to have his successor chosen at the regular election he would in case of defeat have a chance to run for the Senate again at the special election. If such should be the course of events in the Senatorial matter, Union county people would have their confidence in Mr. Voorhees sadly shocked. It has been regarded as a certainty that he would resign the Senatorship and political plans galore have been formulated as a result. To have the aspirations of some of the other Republicans go askew would no doubt cause considerable of a rumpus with the powers that be.

TO STRENGTHEN ADMIRAL DEWEY.

When the Oregon and the Iowa join the ships of Admiral Dewey at Manila, they, with the accompanying cruiser Buffalo and the supply ships and colliers, will make our fleet in the Philippines one of the strongest ever assembled by the United States.

These trolley manipulators, who have been hoodwinking the people of this and other sections of New Jersey for several years past into giving them valuable franchises for almost nothing, appear in innocent garb in Plainfield proclaiming their desire to extend the local line for what benefits they will attain locally, when, as a matter of fact, they are striving to get this link principally for its worth to them in completing a line from Elizabeth to Plainfield. While ostensibly salaaming to Plainfield they are winking their eyes at each other over the prospect of getting a golden egg by a good deal of cackling.

Next Friday evening at the adjourned meeting of the City Council, former Councilman Spangenberg will have something to say regarding the first trolley franchise granted to the Plainfield Street Railway Company by the "Big Six." He will refute the statements published by the News on the subject last Monday evening. Mr. Spangenberg says that he knows more about that trolley franchise than anyone else in the city and that he will open somebody's eyes Friday evening.

Local enterprise received a stunning blow in Cranford the other night when the township committee awarded a five years' contract to the Suburban Electric Light Company—one of John Kean's concerns—to furnish 196 electric lights at $15 per light per year. The Cranford Elocttic Light and Water Company, which is made up of local capital, offered to furnish the light fifteen per cent. cheaper, but their offer was turned down.

Chicago's new crusaders against the vice which flaunts itself so openly in that city are called Henry's Rough Riders. They are a band of young men led by Rev. J. Q. A. Henry, who styles himsel "Captain-General." They are creating a stir in the city, much to the annoyance of the police, who, they say, are in collusion with the evil-doers.

Because Mercer county Democrats have nominated Bayard Stockton, a neighbor and personal friend of former President Cleveland, for Senator. It is said that the "local Democrats expect Mr. Cleveland to take an interest in the campaign." Certainly, Mr. Cleveland, being a born Jerseyman, will do as all other good Jerseymen do—take an interest in the welfare of the State.

The people of Plainfield do not want their streets used for speculative purposes by trolley promoters unless a good return is made for such a privilege. Councilman VanHerwerden's proposition of compelling the railway company to asphalt the streets in the business center of the city is but a reasonable offer.

It is a shame that Front street should be torn up every few weeks as it has been for the past two or three years to allow sewer, gas and water connections and street railway changes to be made. Every time the road bed is disturbed it is left in worse condition than before.

Under the new lighting contract, Cranford streets are to be illuminated at night irrespective of the moonlight. Pushing Cranford don't do things like backwoods New Brunswick in the matter of lighting its streets.

Mayor Budd, of Nutley, is said to be an aspirant for the Democratic nomination in the Eighth Congressional district, the convention of which is being held in Elizabeth this afternoon.

LIFT HIGH THE BANNER.

Lift high the banner, the star-spangled banner.
The flag of the country, America's pride:
Wherever thou art planted, each freedom is granted:
Oh blest land of freedom of justice and right.

Wherever we may travel within thy dominion.
Wherever we may settle be it east, south or west
We meet the same freedom in city or village.
Wherever thou art waving, the stranger may rest.

He may be an exile from home and his people
His aims and ambitions thy boarders may be:
Oh, blest be the Nation, whose harbors are open
To welcome the brother from over the sea.

Thy schools and thy churches are grandly protected.
Religion unhindred may walk side by side.
Thy missions of mercy have great many lifted
Have shown them the way to the glorious light.

The stars and the stripes may forever keep moving.
Well may the foe tremble when coming this way:
May God the Almighty watch over the Nation.
To "thee" land of "freedom" due honor we pay.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The Union county Democrats declare that they are going to make the strongest fight possible in Union county, and will put up the very best men they can get to accept nominations. They are talking of P. J. Ryan for assembly, also ex-Mayor Peter Bonnett, City Attorney J. C. Connolly, Mulford Scudder, of Westfield; Irving I. Ross, of the same place; F. T. Higgins, of Linden, and a number of others, equally well known. For senator they are talking of Peter Egenolf, member of the state committee, and Hon. Fred C. Marsh.—Elizabeth Journal.

The Martin act decision of Justice VanSyckel in the Union County Circuit Court Monday is in conformity with similar decisions by jurists of this State upon the same matter. It sustains the doctrine that after the expiration of twenty years, where the property has been in the hands of bona fide purchasers since that time, the presumption is that taxes back of that date have been paid. It also refutes the claim that this presumption does not arise as against the State or the city acting as the State's agent, and reaffirms the rule that where the property has remained in the hands of the original owner, the taxes may be reassessed even though the tax lien has expired. As in most cases commissioners of adjustment under the Martin act have followed these rules, which had already been laid down by Justices Abbett and Lippincott, the decision is not of widespread importance except as confirming the practice already established.—Newark News.

F. P. Olcott's Trotting Stock.

Round Top Farm, Bernardsville, N. J., will be the central point of attraction to horsemen Saturday, October 15th, when Auctioneer Peter C. Kellogg will sell under the hammer about twenty-five head of richly-bred young trotting stock, representing the owner's annual sale of increase, to keep his breeding stud from overflowing the capacity of his farm. This will be Mr. Olcott's fourth annual sale, and if as many trotting and pacing racehorses develop from the present years offerings, as have already appeared from previous sales, buyers will not regret their investments.

Byron's Great Gotham Stock Company will open a week's engagement at Music Hall Monday night, October 17th. This is without a doubt the strongest and most expensive repertoire organization now traveling, carrying a carload of special scenery and mechanical effects. The company number eighteen competent people, and have been selected by Mr. Byron for their respective parts. In addition to the actual company, Mr. Byron has secured the services of Mr Ed. Hume, Mr. Fred Warren, Miss Alice Magill, and The Brownings, all first class vaudeville performers, who introduce up-to-date specialties. The cake walk, executed by Mr. Ed. Hume and Miss Alice Magill, cannot be excelled, if equaled. The leading lady of the company is that talented and handsome artiste, Gertrude Dion Magill, and as an actress has great power and a charming stage presence. The balance of the company consists of Mr. R. Fulton Russell, Frederick Kensil, J. W. Rose, Edwin Southers; N. M. Waterhouse, Emmit Whitney, Grant Laferty, Geo. H. Willey, Miss Madaline Price, Margarite Field, Clara Moran, with Frank Hodgson, musical director. The repertoire includes "Across the Continent," "The Plunger," "Ups and Downs of Life," "Inside Track," "Ten Thusand Miles Away," "East Lynne," "Heart of Africa," and "The Sloggarth." Prices will be 10, 20 and 30 cents. Matinee every day except Monday.

The Food Show at the Madison Square Garden in New York which enters upon its second week is a succeseful exhibition which appeals to the best class of people. The Madison Square Garden is the mecca of housekeepers and people who wish to know how many good things there are in the food product line and how they may be prepared. There is liberality everywhere beginning with the bakers exhibit at the rear of the Garden and extending to the booth nearest the Madison avenue door. It also extends to the box-office where every lady who buys a ticket is given a coupon for a package of goods at the give-away box or a handsome souvenir spoon, certainly is enough for the money, and as the show is open every morning at half past ten and closes at half past ten at night, there is plenty of time for everybody to get something and all well satisfied. Mrs. Lemcke talks upon cooking in her pleasant style in the Concert Hall every afternoon and the topic for to morrow's discourse and demonstration is "Benevolence."

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Tomorrow evening at Reform Hall, Lawyer Swackhamer will endeavor to answer the arguments put forth by Noah Pike, one week ago.

—Fred Endress, the West Front street butcher, has had a handsome and attractive sign placed in front of his market. It was made by Jerry VanWinkle.

—Peter Johnson's horse was taking a walk down Park avenue yesterday noon when James W. Davis, of Boice, Runyon & Co., ran out and caught him. Johnson was nowhere in sight.

—The City Council will meet next Friday evening in adjourned session to take up the trolley ordinance.

—The Gold Dust Band of the First Baptist church will meet in regular session this afternoon in the parlors of the church.

—The members of Unity Lodge, K. of P., are making an extra effort to increase the membership, and the result is encouraging.

BANQUET TO THE NAVAL RESERVES.

Hoboken Greets the Young Men Who Served Their Country.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Hoboken, October 12—The New Jersey Naval Reserves, Battalion of the East, who comprised the crew of the auxiliary cruiser Badger during the war and gave such good account of themselves in the Cuban blockade, were the guests of the citizens of Hoboken last night at a banquet. It was held in Quartette Club Hall. Mayor Fagan presided. There were more than 300 sailor boys and guests at the tables.

The Reserves left their ship, the Portsmouth, at 7:45 p. m., and attired in blue dress uniforms, marched to the hall. They received an ovation all along the line. Mayor Fagan and a committee of citizens received them at the hall.

Commander Irving and his lieutenants occupied seats at the head table with the guests, among whom were Senator W. D. Daly, the city officials, President Adolph Lankering, of the Quartette Club; Mayor Hoos, of Jersey City; Rev. Archdeacon Jenrey, of St. Paul's P. E church.

The Reserves will be given sixty-day furloughs and will not resume drills until December.

Specials for Tomorrow.

Ladies' Cloth Skirts. Ladies' Muslin Underwear. The sale of Silks, the sale of Muslin Underwear, the sale of Medium Weight Underwear for Ladies and Men, the sale of Granite Iron Ware, all of them are well worth your while to investigate.

Oil Heaters.

Silks.

We place on sale tomorrow one thousand yards of fine rich Silks, bought from the leading Silk house in the country at half their usual price, every piece is of this season's production and the reason for their great cheapness is that they are in short lengths, enough for a skirt or waist, value from $1.25 to $2.00 per yard. We ask only 79c. the yard.

Housefurnishing Department.

Have placed on sale a special lot of first quality granite iron ware at remarkably low prices.

Edward White.

White Kilt Suit.

White is undoubtedly the children's color and they should be dressed in this spotless fabric as much as possible. For cool days there are many varieties of thin woolen goods, and even the small boy may have his kilt suit of serge or albatross.

A natty little kilt suit of white flannel for a boy of three, has the plaited skirt made in two breadths, fastening invisibly with buttons and buttonholes on the left of the front box pleat. The skirt is secured to a lined belt which also holds the blouse—a back and two fronts, the broad trimmed box pleat fastening like the skirt. The turned down collar is trimmed with lace and insertion and the belt is of white kid, fastening with a silver buckle.

The Largest Wedding.

On the day that Alexander the Great was married no fewer than 20,202 persons in one ceremony were made husbands and wives. This seems impossible, but the event really took place, as historical records tell us. This monster wedding occurred upon the conquest by Alexander the Great of Persia, which was then ruled over by King Darius.

Alexander married Statira, the daughter of the conquered King, and decreed that 100 of his chief officers should be united to 100 ladies from the noblest Persian and Medean families. In addition to this, he stipulated that 10,000 of his Greek soldiers should marry 10,000 Asiatic women.

When everything was settled a vast pavilion was erected, the pillars of which were 60ft. high. One hundred gorgeous chambers adjoined this for the 100 noble bridegrooms, while for the remaining 10,000 an outer court was inclosed, outside of which tables were spread for the multitude. Each pair had seats, and ranged themselves in a semi-circle round the Royal throne. Of course, the priests could not marry this vast number of couples, so Alexander the Great devised a very simple ceremony. He gave his hand to Statira and kissed her—an example that all the bridegrooms followed.

Thus ended the ceremony, and that vast number were married. Then followed the festival, which lasted five days, the grandeur of which has never been equalled since.

The Separate Waist Question.

The usual yearly, also semi-annual, question again presents itself regarding the adoption of the separate waist for both day and evening gowns. There are invariably changes and rumors of changes about this garment, which for many seasons has proved a saving grace with women of modest means and a dainty inborn taste for dressing well, and no end of comfort and satisfaction to those who delight in varied, easy changes of the toilet. In some respects waists of this sort are an absolute necessity to women of this class, and their name is legion. No doubt the very smartest, most recherche tailor-made and other elegantly finished "dress" gowns have waists matching the skirts, and these will constitute the costumes par excellence for two seasons to come; but there will, let all women be assured, be no wholly complete feminine outfit prepared by any noted dressmaker in this country, or sent out from any celebrated importing house of this city, which does not include among its elegancies, waists for both day and evening wear which do not match any one skirt, but which can be worn with many.

Extra Sleeves.

The substitution of transparent sleeves for those of heavier material, or the supplying sleeves to an evening toilet that one may suddenly wish to render somewhat less dressy for afternoon use, is not uncommon, and certainly economical practice. White satin sleeves, covered with cream or black lace or figured silk net, transform a waist whose sleeves were originally plain black. Supposing color is introduced on the bodice, that same color will supply a foundation for the under-sleeves of chiffon net or lace, and now that we cannot count on the permanence of any fashion, it is absurd to purchase many gowns at one time, for, by a little trouble and attention to detail—remembering that trifles make as well as mar matters sartorial—one can always compass that variety which every dainty woman likes to introduce into her attire.

White Nainsook Apron.

Every girl up to the age of eleven or twelve should wear an apron or pinafore. They should be made as dressy as possible and are a very pretty and becoming addition to the costume, being useful either to cover a shabby dress or protect a good one. Muslin, lawn, fine linen or nainsook are suitable materials and fine embroidery or torchon lace the best washing trimmings.

A pretty model of nainsook has the skirt cut in a straight piece, hemmed 2½ inches at the edge, with five tiny tucks above. The bodice is full, the upper part set in a yoke shaped trimming of muslin embroidery, the fullness of nainsook being gathered in the centre back and front.

The sleeves are of nainsook edged with embroidery. The bodice is fastened at the top and waist by worked cotton loops and small linen buttons. A wide band of embroidery finishes the waist.

A Woman's Friendship.

It is a wondrous advantage to a man, in every pursuit or vocation, to secure an adviser in a sensible woman.

In woman there is at once a suitable delicacy of tact and a plain soundness of judgment which are rarely combined to an equal degree in man.

A woman, if she is really your friend, will have a sensitive regard for your character, honor, and repute.

She will seldom counsel you to do a shabby thing, for a woman friend always desires to be proud of you. At the same time, her constitutional timidity makes her more cautious than your male friend. She therefore seldom counsels you to do an imprudent thing. A man's best female friend is a wife of good sense and good heart, whom he loves and who loves him.

But supposing the man to be without such a helpmate, female friendship he must still have, or his intellect will be without a garden, and there will be many an unheeded gap in even the strongest fence. Better and safer, of course, such friendships where disparities of years or circumstances put the ideas of love out of the question. Middle life has rarely this advantage; youth and old age have.

We may have female friendships with those much older and those much younger than ourselves.

Moliere's old housekeeper was a great help to his genius; and Montaigne's philosophy takes both a gentler and loftier character of wisdom from the date in which he finds in Marie de Gourney, an adopted daughter—"certainly beloved by me," he says, "with more than paternal love, and involved in my solicitude and retirement as one of the best parts of my being."

Female friendship is, indeed, to man the bulwark, sweetener, and ornament of his existence. To his mental culture it is invaluable; without it, all his knowledge of books will never give him knowledge of the world.

Doyley With Lace Border.

Dainty doyleys are at all times in demand and novel and pretty designs are always welcome to the artistic needleworker.

A miniature of a dainty dessert doyley is shown in the illustration and is made of a very fine Indian grass lawn bordered with point lace, which is of muslin braid, worked with linen threads, 2½ yards of braid and 2 skeins of thread. This would make a very dainty addition to the table and will undoubtedly prove popular after the long rage embroidered doyleys have had.

The deaf and dumb waggon-maker picked up a hub and spoke. The blind carpenter reached for his plane and saw. The deaf cowboy went out with his dog and herd. The elephant inserted his trunk into a grate and flue.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Oesterreich.

Wien. Auf Requisition des Berliner Polizeipräsidiums wurde hier der Elektrotechniker Eugen Woese-Nollendorf Ritter von Innstein wegen durch Annoncen betriebenen Ordenschwindels verhaftet. — Die 24jährige Köchin Fanny Ploiska verletzte den Hausknecht Joseph Weißbrod, der sie geneckt hatte, mit einem großen Küchenmesser, das sie eben in der Hand hielt, durch zwei Stiche im Gesicht so schwer, daß ihm im Spital der Barmherzigen Brüder, wohin er gebracht werden mußte, die halbe Nase abgeschnitten wurde.

Bozen. Der berühmte Alpinist und Dolomiten-Kletterer Norman Neruda ist mit seiner als Hochtouristin ebenfalls bekannten Gattin auf der Fünffinger-Spitze verunglückt. Norman verschied während des Transports.

Budapest. Zur Nachtzeit gerieth das Petroleummagazin der Firma Bihari u. Szilagyi in Brand. Das brennende Petroleum steckte die riesige, zum Bahnhof führende Holzbrücke in Brand; 5000 leere Petroleumfässer sind vom Feuer vernichtet.

Graz. Die erste Finanzbeamtin, Fräulein Hochmaier, hat kürzlich den Dienst im Rechnungsdepartement der Grazer Finanzlandesdirektion angetreten. Frl. Hochmaier wurde vom Finanzminister als Kalkulantin angestellt.

Innsbruck. In Tristach wüthete dieser Tage ein großer Brand, der durch zwei Knaben im Alter von drei und vier Jahren entstanden war. Die Knaben spielten in einer Streuhütte mit Zündhölzchen. Dem Brand fielen 14 Objekte, 6 Wohn- und 7 Futterhäuser und theilweise die Kirche, zum Opfer. Der Schaden beträgt 60,000 Gulden, die Versicherungssumme 30,000 Gulden.

Leitmeritz. Hier hat die 20jährige Ehefrau von Emil Breuer zuerst ihren schwindsüchtigen Gatten und dann sich selbst erschossen. Das Paar war erst seit zwei Monaten verheirathet und wollte gemeinsam sterben.

Prag. Das Chrudimer Schwurgericht verurtheilte den Arbeiter Anton Tam, der den russischen Advokaten Leopold Blumenthal aus Petersburg, als dieser in Johannisbad zur Kur weilte, während eines Spazierganges in räuberischer Absicht angefallen und schwer verletzt hatte, zu acht Jahren schweren Kerkers.

Zara. Im Erdbebengebiet werden fortdauernd zum Theil sehr starke Erdstöße verspürt.

Schweiz.

Bern. Der Kanton Bern hat von der verwittweten Baronin Zorn von Bulach in Straßburg eine Besitzung in Bellelay, Gemeinde Saicourt (Berner Jura), um die Summe von 200,000 Francs erworben. Die Besitzung umfaßt 121 Hektaren und 95 Aren. Bern hat in Bellelay eine Anstalt für unheilbare Geisteskranke errichtet. Das erworbene Gut dient zur Arrondirung, ferner ist beabsichtigt, darauf eine landwirthschaftliche Musterwirthschaft zu errichten.—Die erste Theilstrecke der Jungfraubahn von Scheidegg zum Eigergletscher in einer Höhe von 2319 Meter wurde unter großen Festlichkeiten eröffnet, an denen 350 Personen theilnahmen. Das Wetter war nicht günstig. Während der eigentlichen Feier traten die Bergriesen von der Sonne bestrahlt hervor.

Luzern. An der Klimsenhornwand am Pilatus hatten sich zwei deutsche Touristen so verlaufen, daß sie weder vor- noch rückwärts konnten. Auf ihre Hilferufe kamen zwei Sennen, die sie mit eigener Lebensgefahr aus ihrer gefährlichen Lage befreiten.

Graubünden. Der Führer Schnitzler, der, um dem Professor Dr. Nasse das Leben zu retten, sein eigenes in die Schanze schlug, indem er sich von dem Seil losschnitt, um bald darauf in die Tiefe zu stürzen, hat für seine wackere That eine namhafte Summe erhalten, die von in Pontresina weilenden Berliner Touristen aufgebracht wurde. Wie man hört, soll Geheimrath v. Bergmann beabsichtigen, sich dafür zu verwenden, daß dem Führer die preußische Rettungsmedaille verliehen wird.

Thurgau. Fischer von Staad im Badischen kehrten in einer Wirthschaft zu Kurzrickenbach ein. Bei der Fahrt auf dem See wurden sie von starkem Unwohlsein befallen, so daß einzelne rasch am schweizerischen Ufer an's Land gehen mußten, um ärztliche Hilfe in Anspruch zu nehmen; von dort wurden sie nach Hause gebracht. Die Ursache der Erkrankung ist im Genusse verdorbener Würste (Landjäger) zu suchen. Im Ganzen sind 15 Personen erkrankt, von denen der 19jährige Karl Hegele aus Bayern verstorben ist. Als Todesursache wurde Vergiftung festgestellt.

Waadt. Ein Gesetzentwurf über Erhaltung historischer Denkmäler ist vom Großen Rath des Kantons angenommen worden. Das neue Gesetz sieht eine besondere Eintheilung und Behandlung derjenigen Gebäulichkeiten vor, die ein vaterländisches, geschichtliches oder künstlerisches Interesse bieten und schafft den Posten eines kantonalen Archäologen, sowie eine ständige historische Kommission zur Ueberwachung der richtigen Ausführung der Bestimmungen des Gesetzes.

GOOD JOB WORK.

THE DAILY PRESS office can do it—anything from a milk ticket to an auction bill; even larger, too.

The job department of THE DAILY PRESS office is the largest and best equipped in Plainfield or vicinity. The workmen employed are experienced and capable and possess the knack of producing neat products. The prices are reasonable. When work is promised for a certain time the customer gets it without the aggravating delay common to many printeries.

If you need job printing at all you need the kind that reflects credit for neatness and style on you. You can get that kind

AT THE DAILY PRESS.

YOU'RE READING THIS?

CERTAINLY!

Well, Mr. Merchant-who-thinks-of-advertising, this is only one of the many corners in THE DAILY PRESS—it isn't the best located one, either; we can give you better—and if this attracts your attention in our endeavor to tell you how good advertising will get you a hearing before the purchasing public, doesn't common sense teach you that if you were having people reading your trade story instead of you're reading our argument about it, that it would be better for your business.

THE DAILY PRESS reaches the purchasing public that makes the profits for the merchant.

We can give you big or little space—but in advertising it isn't always economy to be sparing in your appropriation.

AN ORDINANCE

to amend an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance Relating to the Construction of Buildings," approved January 3d, 1896; amended December 8th, 1896; amended December 31st, 1897.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the second paragraph of Section 2 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Frame buildings to be occupied or used as a stable, workshop or manufactory shall not be built or so used if more than thirty (30) feet in total height above foundation.

Section 2. That the fifth paragraph of Section 2 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Where two (2) or more frame houses are built continuously, each dividing wall is to be filled in with not less than two (2) inches of brick above foundation wall to a point up to the under side of the roof.

Section 3. That the first paragraph of Section 4 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

All cellar or basement walls for frame buildings, outside of the fire limits, shall not be less than eight (8) inches thick, if of brick, to a depth of eight (8) feet below grade on street; and to be not less than eighteen (18) inches thick and well bonded if of stone. If of greater depth than above, or if carried up twelve (12) feet or more above grade to frame, the foundation wall is to be not less than twelve (12) inches thick if of brick, and not less than twenty (20) inches thick and well bonded if of stone.

Section 4. That the first paragraph of Section 5 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

All frame or wooden buildings exceeding a height of fifteen (15) feet shall be built with sills, posts, interties or ribbon strips, plates and rafters, all of suitable and sufficient size, to be properly braced and framed, and with suitable studs set at proper distances apart, with fire cut-off at each floor. The floor beams shall be not less than two (2) inches in thickness and ten (10) inches in depth, or of equal supporting capacity, except thick story or attic beams which may be two (2) inches in thickness and eight (8) inches in depth, well bridged.

Section 5. That Section 7 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

The fire limits of the City of Plainfield are hereby established so as to include all that district of said City contained within the following boundaries, and also within the space of one hundred (100) feet beyond and parallel to the centre lines of the streets or avenues constituting the said boundaries: Beginning at the point of intersection of the centre line of Grove street with the City line in Green Brook; thence along the centre line of Grove street to the centre line of West Front Street; thence along the centre line of West Front Street to the centre line of Central Avenue; thence along the centre line of Central Avenue to the centre line of West Fourth Street; thence along the centre line of West Fourth street and East Fourth street to the centre line of Watchung avenue; thence along the centre line of Watchung avenue to the centre line of the continuation of East Fourth street; thence along the centre line of said continuation of East Fourth street to the centre line of Church street; thence along the centre line of Church street to the centre line of East Front street; thence along the centre line of East Front street to the centre line of Elm place; thence along the centre line of Elm place to its intersection with the City line in Green Brook; thence along the centre line in Green Brook to the place of beginning.

Section 6. That the sixth paragraph of Section 11 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Piazzas or balconies of wood, not to extend in height more than three (3) feet above the second story floor beams may be erected upon any dwelling house.

Section 7. That the ninth paragraph of Section 11 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

If of any greater height or dimensions, or more than one is desired on any one side or face, it or they shall be covered with metal and such other means taken to insure slow burning as the Inspector of Buildings may require.

Section 8. That the following paragraph be and the same is hereby added to Section 12 of said ordinance.

Whenever any store building within the fire limits is divided by stud partition walls, such walls are to be filled in with brick or such other fire proof material as the Inspector of Buildings may direct.

Section 9. That the first and second paragraphs of Section 18 of said ordinance be and the same are hereby amended so as to read as follows:

All outside walls of dwelling houses within the City limits shall be not less than eight (8) inches thick, if under and not more than twenty-five (25) feet above foundation.

If over twenty-five (25) feet and not over fifty (50) feet above foundation, the walls shall be not less than twelve (12) inches thick.

Section 10. That the first and second paragraphs of Section 20 of said ordinance be and the same are hereby amended so as to read as follows:

All the walls of dwellings not more than twenty-two (22) feet wide, forty-five (45) feet deep, and not more than thirty (30) feet or two stories in height, may be built not less than eight (8) inches thick above foundation.

One story structures not over twenty-two (22) feet in height, may be built with all the walls not less than eight (8) inches in thickness.

Section 11. That the following paragraph be and the same is hereby added to Section 20 of said ordinance:

Store fronts in one story structures may be built of wood and covered with metal, above the show windows, provided suitable fire stops are placed between buildings.

Section 12. That the following paragraph be and the same is hereby added to Section 23 of said ordinance:

Store buildings shall be construed to mean all buildings, any part of which is to be used as a store.

Section 13. That the twelfth paragraph of Section 25 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

In all buildings, any portion of which is used for any other purpose than a dwelling, the hall partitions of the first story and basement shall be of brick or other fire-proof material and underside of staircases covered with metal lathing and plaster, as Inspector of Buildings may direct.

Section 14. That the second paragraph of Section 30 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

All header and trimmer beams, unless to be supported by partitions, shall be double or one inch thicker than the beams, and where more than six feet long shall be hung in stirrup irons.

Section 15. That the third paragraph of Section 31 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

The interior of all elevator, dumb-waiter or light shafts to be lined with metal or covered with metal lathing and plaster, the doors at each story to be covered with metal on the inside, and the walls thereof to be carried to under side of roof.

Section 16. That the fifth paragraph of Section 32 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

The roofs of all buildings within the fire limits shall have a scuttle or bulkhead, covered with approved fire-proof material and fixed ladders or stairs of iron or wood leading thereto. No scuttle is to be less than two by three feet in size, and the frames of all bulkheads are to be filled with brick or fire-proof block.

Section 17. That the fifth paragraph of Section 33 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

All stud partitions back of portable kitchen ranges shall be framed sixteen (16) inches higher than smoke pipe opening and one (1) foot wider each side of range, and the opening filled in with brick or fire-proof blocks. No stove shall come within two (2) feet of any wooden partition unless said partition be covered with zinc. No woodwork shall cross the brick breast of any portable range.

Section 18. That the second paragraph of Section 36 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby stricken out and the following substituted in place thereof:

Where hot-air pipes are placed in stud partitions, the sides of the studs are to be lined with metal, with suitable air space left between the studs and the metal, and the metal and the pipes.

Section 19. That the following paragraph be and the same is hereby added to Section 39 of said ordinance:

No work of the character described in this section shall be covered until the Inspector of Buildings shall have duly inspected and approved the same.

Section 20. That the following section be and the same hereby is added to said ordinance, and numbered Section 45:

That with respect to any of the requirements or provisions of this ordinance, it shall be lawful for the Common Council by resolution upon report submitted by the Committee on Fire and Buildings, to specify a substitutionary method or plan of construction, or a substitute in material in the place and stead of that specified in said ordinance, provided that the risk from fire will not thereby be increased and in every such case the owner or builder may adopt such method plan or material specified in such resolution; provided further that no such resolution shall be adopted without there being first presented to the Common Council a petition specifying in detail the changes desired, the reasons therefor, and the location and character of the building in question.

Section 21. That the section of said ordinance now numbered and known as Section 45 be and the same shall henceforth be numbered and known as Section 46.

CHAPTER VII.

Gregory Latimar did not reveal in any way to his wife the irritation and uneasiness that he was experiencing.

"Did Tony come up from Spede today?" he asked

Lady Feo nodded her head.

"Yes, he was with me all the afternoon. He ran up to town on purpose to see me; and really I don't know how I should have got through the day if Tony had not appeared! We had to keep the blinds down, you know; and it was all so weary and depressing! Tony was very sympathetic, Gregory. We discussed my plans for Elizabeth, and he took great interest in everything!" Lady Feo sighed. "Poor Tony!" she said half wistfully.

"Why 'poor' Tony? Is there anything wrong? I thought he looked remarkably well when he was here the other day."

Lady Feo, having nearly twisted the button off her husband's coat, now proceeded to readjust it with sundry little pats and pressings.

"I don't know why I called him 'poor,'" she answered, "except it is because it comes to me quite naturally to pity him. There is, especially since he has come home, something pathetic about Tony. Oh, don't ask me to explain what I mean! You can call it feminine imagination or sentiment if you like; but, all the same, Gregory, I don't mind confessing that I am not quite happy over Tony. He is so changed, somehow, not in any one important respect, perhaps; but—" Lady Feo paused. "I will tell you just what I feel," she said hurriedly. "It strikes me, Gregory, that Tony is now acting the part which formerly came to him naturally. He laughs and jokes, and seems as bright and clever as ever; and yet his manner generally appears altogether unreal."

"Perhaps he is in love," suggested Gregory. He was not going to let his wife know how quickly he himself had arrived at something like the same conclusion respecting Antony Pelle.

"Perhaps; but somehow I don't think such is the case. I may be wrong, of course; but I fancy that, if he were in love, or engaged, or anything of the sort, Tony would be sure to tell me all about it."

Gregory smiled faintly.

"A man is generally slow and disinclined to lay bare his heart when a serious affection possesses him," he said.

Lady Feo remarked that she knew all about that.

"What I hope," she added, "is that the boy has not got himself entangled in any way and that there is no serious trouble. I long to speak right out to him, Gregory; but perhaps I had better not."

Gregory assented to this rather emphatically.

"Now I must go and dress," he said. "You won't mind if I ask for dinner to be served an hour earlier, and if I leave you this evening, Feo—will you, dear? I think I had better go and see Saville, as he suggests."

"Oh, go, by all means! I shall drive round and spend an hour with Elizabeth after dinner. Now, don't begin to preach, Gregory! I am only going to see whether I cannot help her with her things. She won't surely refuse me that small pleasure, whatever else she may reject! Besides, it was arranged, you know, that I was to visit her this evening."

Lady Feodora's visit to the old house in Bloomsbury was, however, unexpectedly postponed that evening. Dinner was only half way through when a message came from the nursery saying that Miss "Pootles" was very far from well, and that her nurse would feel more comfortable if Mr. Latimar or her Ladyship would kindly send for the doctor.

Gregory did not leave his house till he had been satisfied that the child's illness was nothing but a passing indisposition, brought on by the sultry heat of the dull, close day; and when he left, Lady Feo was sitting in the nursery scribbling a few affectionate words to the lonely girl Bloomsbury, explaining the reason of her absence.

"This note must be sent by a cab at once," she gave orders; then a sudden idea came to her. Sir Antony Pelle's arrival in the drawing room had just been announced. When they had parted in tthe afternoon, she had made the young man promise to look in again, and he had kept his word. She ran down and spoke to him for a few minutes.

"Yes—'Pootles' is ill," she said "but it is nothing serious. It is a slight touch of fever, which will have passed away by the morning. I don't care to leave her, however, and I want Elizabeth to know why I cannot call upon her. I have just written to her, and was going to send my note by cab. Perhaps you would not mind taking it, Tony, dear, and then you could explain more fully why I am compelled to remain at home, and so relieve her of any anxiety."

Sir Antony instantly accepted the commission.

"I shall be delighted to go! I suppose Miss Druro will not think it odd if I ask to see her, Feo?"

"She will guess that you have come with a message from me. I have been dreadfully disappointed, Tony! All my plans for Elizabeth have been upset. Just fancy—she is not coming to us after all?"

"Not coming? Do you mean not at all, Feo?"

Sir Antony's face reflected his cousin's disappointment when he heard this news. He had been greatly interested in the arrangement whereby Elizabeth should be domiciled under Gregory Latimar's roof. Indeed, he would have found it difficult to express in so many words the great interest he had felt in listening to all Feo's plans for the future of the pale, sweet faced girl with whom he had sat and chatted so pleasantly on the steps outside his "brother's" chambers only a few days before. He had been quite unable to forget the feeling of pity and liking that Elizabeth had aroused so instantly within him. His first sensation, when the news of Mrs. Latimar's sudden death had reached him, had been one of relief on Miss Druro's account, although he was quite ready to believe Feo when she told him that the girl's grief at the loss of her grandmother would be both deep and true. His own single experience of Mrs. Latimar had not left a pleasant impression upon him. He remembered long after he had bidden the trio "Good-bye" that day in Mr. Saville's room how he had been filled with indignation because of the old woman's rough treatment of her grandchild. He had said something about it to his "brother" when they had met at dinner in the evening, and Antony Pelle had been a little astonished at the way in which Mr. Saville had received his remarks.

"In Lady Feo's household, Tony, it is the fashion to abuse Mrs. Latimar," Mr. Saville had said. "I hope however, that when I tell you that the old lady is one of my most esteemed friends, you will refrain from saying anything harsh about her. It is, after all, scarcely good taste to abuse a person who is really a stranger to you."

"Oh, certainly!" the young man had replied, a trifle nettled at the other's tones. "I am not likely to discuss Mrs. Latimar any further; only, if you are such an intimate friend of hers, Dick, could you not give her a hint to stop treating that poor girl so rudely, at least when friends—and strangers, too, as you say—are present?"

Richard Saville had glanced at the speaker sharply, then, with his easy laugh, had turned the conversation. He had a curious disinclination to discuss with Sir Antony anything relating to Elizabeth. Lady Feo, on the other hand, had found the greatest delight in talking with her cousin all that she had determined to do for Elizabeth.

"First of all, I mean to get her some clothes, Antony. You have no idea how pretty Elizabeth will look when she is decently dressed."

She had made this announcement only that very afternoon; and Sir Antony had smiled to himself, for he had formed a very distinct opinion already on the question of Elizabeth's appearance, and the addition of smart clothes would not, in his eyes, enhance in the least either her charm or her beauty. He did not say so, however.

"And I intend her to make a splendid marriage!" had been another of Lady Feo's remarks; and to this also Antony Pelle had made no answer.

"I had better not express my views about matrimony," he said to himself with bitterness, "or I shall upset poor little Feo altogether!"

In this fashion, full of eager tenderness and sincere delight, Lady Feo had chatted about the future which Elizabeth was going to share with her and to find so beautiful.

"We will all go abroad," she had summed up finally. "And, Tony, you must come too. And perhaps we can coax dear old Aunt Bertha to leave her beloved Spede for a month or so. I feel, you know, as if I shall never be able to give Elizabeth enough sunshine and pleasure to make up for the cold and gloomy years she has spent in that wretched old house! It is wicked of me, Tony, isn't it, to feel glad that Grannie Latimar is dead? But I don't want to speak unkindly of the poor old creature, although she did hate me so much. I only want to remember that Elizabeth is free, and is going to belong to us at last!"

All these speeches came back to Antony Pelle now as he stood holding Feo's note to Elizabeth in his hand, and heard her sympathetic voice as she spoke of her disappointment. There was no need to do more than glance at Lady Feo's face to perceive how real that disappointment was. All the brightness of the afternoon's anticipations had gone from it; she was both very pale and very sad.

"Marry Richard Saville? No, thank heaven! He has taken her money but he shall not take Elizabeth too," she said emphatically.

"I don't know whether some future day may bring a change," Lady Feo said, as she prepared to go. She had told him as briefly as possible all that there was to tell. "But, at any rate, for the time being I must bid farewell to all my plans and hopes. Gregory had a long talk with Elizabeth this afternoon. He says she is absolutely determined to carry out Grannie's wishes, and that without a day's delay!"

"You mean she is going to marry Dick?" questioned Sir Antony.

He was turning Feo's note over and over in his hand. He had not the least idea how hard was the sound of his voice. The news of Richard Saville's inheritance had come to him almost as a shock. Indeed he had followed all that Lady Feo told him with a sense of confusion, and with another feeling, too, which he could not have described.

Lady Feo was intent on hurrying back to the nursery, but she paused to answer his question.

"Marry Richard Saville? No, thank Heaven! He has taken her money, but he shall not take Elizabeth too!" she said emphatically; and immediately she had spoken she remembered her husband's wishes. She colored hotly, and was very angry with herself.

"I—I don't mean anything unkind about Mr. Saville, Tony!" she hastened to add. "The fact is I am so upset I don't know what I am saying. You know what a nice temper I possess. The idea of Mr. Saville's marrying Elizabeth is to me out of the question. He—he is much too old for her; and—and, oh, not at all the sort of husband for a girl like Elizabeth! He wants some one much older and grander, and all that sort of thing. Now be sure you give Elizabeth all my messages, Tony! And, oh, do ask her if she has had anything to eat! Gregory has made me so wretched about her!"
